BANGKOK POST Comment

[By The Chongkhadikit]

[Text] General Athit Kamlang-Ek has made it to the top -- in the military, that is. And his position has been strengthened with officers loyal to him named deputy (Lt-Gen Sup Ak-Saranukro) and assistant commanders (Lt-Gen Thianchai Sirisamphan and Lt-Gen Pathom Soemsin).

Even the officer named to succeed him as commanding general of the First Army Division, Maj-Gen Phat Urailoet, is his man. The First Army, based in Bangkok and responsible for defence of the central plain and eastern Thailand, wields not only military but also political influence. The commanding generals of the Second (northeast), Third (north) and Fourth (south) Army Regions who retain their posts are either for him, having studied with him, or are not in any way against him.

Gen Athit can be expected to further strengthen his position when he appoints colonels and those of lower ranks who are in actual charge of armed units. However, he may have to be cautious not to make waves with powerful present commanders.

Another significant fact of the annual military lists is that no one was appointed to the vacancies created by the retirement of the deputy supreme commanders representing the army, the navy and the air force.

This means that Supreme Commander Saiyut Koetphon's plan for all the commanders-in-chief of the armed services to become automatically deputy supreme commanders is coming into effect. This will give General Saiyut some supervision over all the services. This is the first time that a supreme commander has had such power. The system works both ways, with the supreme commander and the commanders-in-chief maintaining a power balance with each other, which can provide stability for the government as well as unity among the armed forces.

An important transfer is that of Maj-Gen Prawatwong Hutasewi from being simply attached to the Army Command Headquarters to the powerful position of commander of the Lop Buri Military District. He replaces Maj-Gen Khanung Simarut. It was at Lop Buri that rockets were unsuccessfully fired at a motorcade conveying Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon during a visit to Lop Buri as defence minister.

Shifted to inactive poasts were Maj-Gen Prasat Wimonsilapin, commander of the Anti-Aircraft Artillery Division, and Maj-Gen Amphon Sombunying, commander of the Artillery Division.

It is also noted that deputy commanding generals in the various regions have been replaced, with the incumbants being given inactive posts or posts without command over armed units. Some officers believed to be close to former Prime Minister Kriangsak Chamanan have been removed from top intelligence posts.

Gen Athit's appointment may not make everyone in the military happy because of his past rise to the highest and most potent post, and because he advanced over a more senior officer. However, he showed himself capable of command when he successfully suppressed the April coup last year. His advice and assistance have been sought by labourers, students and other public bodies. He has visited military units around the country.

In the most recent exclusive interview, Gen Athit told the BANGKOK POST: "I am not interested in politics. I support General Prem to be prime minister for another five years. I visit military personnel on the orders of my superiors. I have no dispute whatever with the supreme commander. I meet only those groups which come to visit me. I only see their majesties the king and queen when I am summoned to an audience."

A man definitely dedicated to nation, religion and monarchy in a democratic society, Gen Athit can be a stabilising influence for the next three years -- if he can neutralise elements in the military opposing him or win them over to his side, if he can turn "enemies" into friends, and if he continues to gain public confidence.

Although generally considered controversial, Gen Athit, popularly known as "General Sunday," has been able to confuse his critics. As it looks at present, he can make it.

[Editorial: "Supreme Command Revamping Must Give It Punch"]

[Text] There are many wisecracks that have been made and can be made about the Supreme Command in Thailand. One of them is that it is the parking place for unwanted generals, admirals and air marshals. The other is that it is a gutless and toothless entity which is completely divorced from reality. We can go on ad infinitum, but these will suffice our purpose. Late Field Marshal Sarit Thanarat, who was, militarily, much under the influence of the Americans, set up the Supreme Command, himself becoming the head, in some sort of an imitation of the American Joint Chiefs of Staff, which is neither gutless nor toothless.

Having set this up, Sarit was not quite sure what to do with it, and in no time at all, possibly because of desuetude, then Supreme Commander Sarit, who did not need that position to exercise his dictatorial rights, made it a place where sinecures could be found for out-of-favour high-ranking military officers so that they could be consigned to limbo. Somehow, fantasy rather than factuality transformed the Supreme Commander, in the outer fringes of people's imagination, to an institution which would bring to bear the full wrath of the three armed services, coordinating them, if Thailand ever faced external aggression. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Gen Saiyut Koetphon, the present supreme commander, realizes this deficiency all too well and both he and Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon are in accord with making the Supreme Command an effective force in the country, something like the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, on which it was originally patterned but actually lost its raison d'etre as time went by. But again there is some clouded thinking about making all three commanders-in-chief -- or the TRA, TRN and RTAF -- deputy supreme commanders so much so, together, they will be able to give the Supreme Command at least some ability to coordinate the armed forces at a time of crisis.

We strongly like the idea, but to us it is not quite sure that the process that has been set in motion is exactly right. Gen Saiyut, however, seems to have set some new idea hatching. If all goes well, the senior-most commander-in-chief -- army, navy or air force -- will be the supreme commander and the other two commanders-in-chief will be his deputies. We believe that this will rather confuse the issue, since one man will be wearing two hats.

Not that in Thailand we are not used to seeing military officers wearing quite a few hats, but we are talking about something that would potentially be the most powerful military unit of this country. Let us turn the question the other way around. Suppose the senior-most commander-in-chief is made to relinquish his command before he becomes the supreme commander; then a situation will exist when there will be a supreme commander who is over the three different arms of the military and thus will be in an effective position both to coordinate the three branches and also to work out an effective strategy with his deputies.

Going back a couple of decades or more, we think Sarit's idea was a good one, but the effectiveness of it stopped with its conception. Again Sarit's idea is a good idea, but we do not want it to be a half-baked one. Without referring to internal threats of subversion, insurrection and separatism, for the first time since the days of imperialism, Thailand can clearly feel a possibility of external threat. After a long, long time, we believe that the Supreme Command should come of age and should have the iron fist, without the velvet glove, for all to see and, if necessary, feel.

It might be argued, in our typical lackadaisical way, that the effectiveness of the Supreme Command should be improved step by step. We do not agree. Since change is in the wind, and the initiative has been spelled out, let us make the right changes, not from the point of mutual accomodation, but from the sole point of giving the Supreme Command the edge and power to carry out a duty, which we hopefully presume it will not be called upon to discharge.

COMMENTARY SCORES PROPOSAL FOR ASEAN EXERCISES

BK151606 Hanoi International Service in Thai 1130 GMT 14 Sep 82

[Unattributed commentary: "Dangerous Collusion"]

[Text] Recently, the ASEAN countries have been clamoring for joint multilateral military exercises. The aim of such exercises is to strengthen ASEAN's opposition to the communist powers in the region. This idea is dangerous and belongs to the United States and the international reactionaries. It has the intent of promoting the arms race, creating tension in Southeast Asia and the world and undermining the promising trend toward dialogue and detente. It is a premeditated move aimed at enhancing the effectiveness of the joint U.S.-Chinese plan to transform ASEAN into a military alliance to create tension and instability in Southeast Asia and to use ASEAN as a frontline for confrontation with the Indochinese countries.

Public opinion notes that those expressing support for a joint military exercise among the ASEAN countries also hope to benefit from the formation of a market in the region for weapons produced by U.S, UK and Italian companies. It is funny to learn that the ones who encourage such joint exercises are those who have said repeatedly in public that ASEAN is nothing more than an economic grouping.

The clamor for such exercises shows that reactionary powers in the ASEAN countries are colluding closely with the United States and the Beijing reactionaries to revive the corpse of SEATO under a new disguise in order to undermine the trend for peace, independence and neutrality present in the countries in this region. They want to replace dialogue with confrontation and create confusion instead of peace, stability, cooperation and friendship in the region.

While the U.S. imperialists are speeding up the arms race, waging cold war and preparing for a hot war by staging large military exercises among the NATO and ANZUS countries and holding joint exercises with Japan, South Korea and Thailand, the call for joint exercises among the ASEAN countries serves the interests of the warmongers. The peace-loving people of the world and Southeast Asia cannot forgive it.

U.S.-Beijing collusion is the sole cause of trouble and lack of peace in Southeast Asia. The expansion of U.S. military strength in Southeast Asia and U.S. support for Beijing's multifaceted destruction efforts against the Indochinese countries and use of Maoist organizations to subvert ASEAN countries are posing danger to independence, sovereignty, security and peace in Southeast Asian countries. The primary and most urgent duty of the Southeast Asian people now is to struggle against the U.S.-China schemes in order to protect peace, stability and security in the region. This is a matter of survival for the ASEAN countries.

With their unswerving foreign policy of peace and friendship, the Vietnamese people as well as the other people of Indochina always wish to live in friendship with all Southeast Asian countries. They want to hold dialogues and contacts to better mutual understanding and to cooperate in building Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, cooperation and friendship.

We had voluntarily taken the initiative by advancing sincere and constructive proposals to ease regional tension in the interests of all the regional countries' peoples and for the sake of world peace and security. This act of good will has been welcomed by the world public and many leaders in Southeast Asia. Those who plot to check and sabotage the trends of detente and dialogue by their adventurous policy of belligerence and confrontation are unaware of the situation. They will only meet with defeat. No one can check the advance of history.

VAN TIEN DUNG SPEAKS AT MILITARY ACADEMY

[Text] Sharing the emulation spirit of the entire country and determined to carry out successfully the resolution of the fifth party congress, almost all academies, colleges and officers' schools of the army recently held ceremonies to open the new academic year. Attending these functions were the minister, vice ministers and high-ranking cadres of the General Staff and general departments of the Ministry of National Defense.

At the advanced military academy, Sen Gen Van Tien Dung, member of the Political Bureau, first deputy secretary of the Military Commission of the party Central Committee and minister of national defense, said: The fourth and fifth national party congresses set forth and systematically concretized the political and military lines for nationwide application during the socialist revolution. Our army has the heavy duty and great honor to organize the successful implementation of party lines, and is also dutybound to contribute to developing and concretizing the party's military line. The advanced military academy must make its worthy contributions to the fulfillment of these tasks of the army.

In particular, the comrade minister urged all cadres, instructors and trainees to always uphold the spirit of creativity in carrying out research, giving lessons and studying the scientific military line and the military art of people's war for the defense of the fatherland; to creatively apply the experience gained during the anti-French and anti-U.S. wars as well as during the recent war against the Chinese expansionist army; and to inherit and develop the traditions and experience of our forefathers in fighting the enemy. Also, he said, it is necessary to creatively learn from the experience of the armies of fraternal countries, first of all the Soviet Army and Navy -- an army that is highly experienced in national defense war and is a standardized and modernized revolutionary army that symbolizes the military might of the countries belonging to the socialist community.

Analyzing the methods for studying and applying experience gained in the revolutionary struggle, the comrade minister stressed: It is necessary to firmly grasp the general rules of people's war in our country and recognize the special characteristics of the current war for the defense of the fatherland as compared with the former anti-French and anti-U.S. wars. In studying and applying the experience already gained, we must avoid empiricism, dogmatism and duplication as well as the tendency of stressing only the special characteristics of the current war for the defense of the fatherland or mechanically separating the experiences gained from each stage.

Upon entering the new academic year, all cadres, instructors and trainees at all the schools throughout the army declared their determination to constantly study Marxist-Leninist theory, firmly grasp the party's general line and economic line, and thoroughly understand and apply the basic points of the resolutions adopted at the fourth and fifth party congresses so as to ensure that party lines will serve as the guiding light for all military activities.

The academies and schools of the army also professed their resolve always to pay attention to trainees and to the objectives and requirements of the academic year as well as to the situation and tasks of the army with the aim of constantly enhancing academic and scholastic standards, contributing to increasing the fighting strength of the army and the might of the all-people national defense system, and readily defeating all the schemes and maneuvers of the Chinese reactionaries acting in collusion with the U.S. imperialists in order to firmly defend the socialist Vietnamese fatherland and fulfill its international obligations.

MALIK ON ASEAN EXERCISES, MIDDLE EAST ISSUE

BK151407 Jakarta OANA in English 1155 GMT 15 Sep 82

["Pool item"]

[Excerpts] Jakarta, Sept 15 (ANTARA/OANA) -- Vice President Adam Malik has stated that the GBHN (outlines of state policy) to be decided by MPR (Consultative Assembly), the higher sovereign body in the country, will lay greater emphasis on economic matters since the next five years will mark a grave situation as a result of the world recession and international crises precipitating in various parts of the globe.

Adam Malik told this to newsmen following his talk Wednesday morning with President Suharto at Cendana residence on matters relating to the coming MPR/DPR [Parliament] session as well as the world economy.

Asked for his comment on the result of the Arab summit conference at Fes, Morocco, recently, Vice President Adam Malik regarded the agreement which laid emphasis on the Middle East problem, particularly Lebanon, as a step forward.

Adam Malik believed that the Arab summit at Fes marked the emergence of a sense of reality on the part of the Arab world. He said the Arab countries no longer lived in a dream world. They had already made an assessment of the proposal of U.S. President Ronald Reagan and this was "a good sign indeed."

Israel rejecting [as received] it was, according to the vice president, "a common thing, because you can't expect any proposal to be accepted by everybody."

"Still, what is important, assessment of the Reagan proposal was already a start of a tripartite discussion involving the Arab countries, Israel and the United States," he said.

Concerning an overall solution of the Middle East problem, Vice President Adam Malik emphasized that the United States should be more active in making its contribution. "The Reagan proposal clearly indicated that the United States desired the existence [words indistinct]. This being a start, what remains to be done is how to see to it that Israel would not feel derogated and the Arabs would not consider themselves to be under pressure," he commented.

Asked to comment on Lebanon President-Elect Al-Jumayyil's violent death by a bomb explosion, Vice President Adam Malik said: "Terror is a consistent phenomenon in Lebanon. Once terror started it would never end, but this brings no solution."

Queried about Singapore PM [Prime Minister] Lee Kuan Yew's view on joint multilateral military exercises among ASEAN Nations (Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Philippines and Indonesia), Adam Malik replied: "The desire to conduct joint military exercises is good but creates problems. Why should we do something that gives rise to problems?" He said.

The vice president pointed out that bilateral exercises had already been done, between Singapore and Indonesia, between Malaysia and Indonesia, between Thailand and Indonesia and between Philippines and Indonesia. "Thailand has already rejected multilateral exercises. So let's be careful.

"The principle of mutual understanding among ASEAN is enough. Multilateral military maneuvres would only raise questions and open up front," he stated.

As of the post of U.S. ambassador for Indonesia being still open, Adam Malik said the vacancy would hopefully be fulfilled before President Suharto starts his travel abroad next month.

BK101413 Hong Kong AFP in English 1300 GMT 10 Sep 82

[Excerpts] Jakarta, Sept. 10 (AFP) -- Indonesia will not be allowed to carry out hot pursuit of the Free Papua Movement (FPM) rebels into Papua New Guinea (PNG), PNG Foreign Minister Rabbie Namaliu said today. FPM, outlawed by the Indonesian Government, wants to secede from Jakarta and set up an independent state of West Papua. Many FPM leaders reportedly have fled to PNG. PNG and Indonesia have agreed to act against those crossing the border illegally. The foreign minister said: "Those making illegal crossings will be arrested."

Indonesian troops have allegedly crossed the border in hot pursuit of the FPM rebels who often would cross over to PNG. "The border problem constitutes a source of challenge," Mr. Namaliu said.

Mr. Namaliu will be the first foreign government minister to visit East Timor, incorporated into Indonesia six years ago.

Trade links between the two countries are weak because both countries produce nearly similar goods such as rubber, copra, coffee and others, the foreign minister added.

LEADERS CONDEMN 'MASSACRES' AT PALESTINIAN CAMPS

Suzuki Comments

OW200208 Tokyo KYODO in English 0147 GMT 20 Sep 82

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 20 (KYODO) -- Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Monday he was angered by the massacres at two Palestine refugee camps in west Beirut late last week. Suzuki told newsmen such cruel acts could not be tolerated. The killings took place while west Beirut was under Israeli occupation, Suzuki said. An early withdrawal of Israeli troops is necessary, the prime minister said. Suzuki made the remarks before going into the second round of talks with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who is on a six-day official visit which began Friday.

Sakurauchi Statement

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 20 (KYODO) -- Japan Monday expressed its anger at the massacre of Palestinian refugees in west Beirut under control by Israeli forces. Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi said in a statement that it is "an extraordinarily outrageous act of violence that a great number of innocent Palestinian refugees were massacred in area under control by Israeli troops." "The Government of Japan expresses its anger at these cruel acts," the statement said. It said that the Japanese Government strongly condemns the Israeli thrust into west Beirut, for it runs counter to the cease-fire agreement, as well as the agreement reached among the parties concerned on the withdrawal of the Palestinian armed forces from west Beirut. The statement called for immediate withdrawal of Israeli forces to positions held before September 15 in accordance with U.N. Security Council Resolution 520. It also expressed Japan's desire that the life and security of the Palestinian inhabitants be assured by the immediate reinforcement of U.N. observers.

In the meantime, Fathi Abdul Hamid, chief representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) in Tokyo, met with Yoshio Hatano, chief of the Foreign Ministry's Middle East and African Affairs Bureau, according to ministry officials. The meeting was held at the request of Abdul Hamid to call on the newly appointed director general in charge of Middle East affairs. Hatano conveyed Sakurauchi's statement to Abdul Hamid.

The PLO representative told Hatano that his organization appreciated the standpoint of Japan which, he said, marked a step forward in understanding better the position of the Palestinians than Europeans.

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 17 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki told a visiting Chinese press delegation Friday that Japan and China must work to make their relationship an unshakable one. The prime minister made the remarks while meeting with a five-member delegation led by Tan Wenrui, deputy editor-in-chief of the PEOPLE'S DAILY, official paper of the Chinese Communist Party, at his official residence in downtown Tokyo, Japanese officials said. Suzuki is to leave for an official visit to China on September 26.

"While there may on occasion be small disturbances between our two countries, these are only a temporary phenomenon when seen from the long history of friendly relations between Japan and China," Suzuki told the delegation. The prime minister also touched on economic relations, saying Japan would take a positive approach on new projects with China and would cooperate as much as possible in the country's economic development.

ABE RETURNS FROM PRC VISIT, CITES IMPRESSIONS

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 20 (KYODO) -- China is placing more emphasis on heavy and chemical industries than ever before to quadruple the nation's industrial and agricultural output by the year 2000, International Trade and Industry Minister Shintaro Abe said Monday. To realize the ambitious target, the Beijing government is seeking Japan's continuing financial assistance despite the recent rift over interpretation of history and Chinese cancellations of plant and machinery orders from Japan, Abe said. Abe made the remarks in a news conference which also covered his talks earlier in the day with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and his planned trip to Washington next month. He returned Sunday night from a 6-day visit to China.

"China is putting a considerable amount of weight to heavy and chemical industries," he said. "And the Chinese consider development of energy, transportation communications and rare metals essential" to quadruple industrial and agricultural production by 2000. Chinese leaders, including Premier Zhao Ziyang, whom Abe met, viewed the history textbook controversy positively, and he quoted Zhao as saying: "The issue will help strengthen bilateral relations in the long run." "I felt the need for a durable relationship between the two countries," the MITI minister said in summarizing his first Chinese trip, which also took him to the ancient capital of Xian. In Xian, the Abe delegation was briefed on a color TV tube plant partly assisted by a Japanese electric firm, Hitachi, Ltd., and heard complaints from Japanese engineers about differences of opinions stemming from their cultures and societies.

Abe said he relayed his observations on China and his forthcoming visit to Washington October 1-6 to Suzuki, who is also scheduled to pay an official visit to China starting September 26.

In the course of his talks with Chinese economic planners, officials said, Abe proposed the signing of a bilateral investment protection accord on which Tokyo and Beijing have been negotiating. The Chinese took note of the Abe request but were non-committal, the officials added. The MITI leader extended invitations to his Chinese counterparts, Chen Muhua, a state councillor in charge of trade, and Tang Ke, petroleum industry minister, to visit Japan. Tang replied he would visit Japan next year. Abe told the petroleum industry ministry the Japanese Government would do its utmost to extend economic aid for an oil development program in the Bohai Bay area which is projected to cost as much as dollar 600 million.

NODONG SINMUN Editorial

[NODONG SINMUN 18 September editorial: "Grand Demonstration of Invincible, Militant Friendship"]

[Text] The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the KWP and president of the DPRK, arrived in Beijing on 16 September to make an official state visit to the PRC at the invitation ofthe Central Committee of the CPC and the State Council of the PRC.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to China is in progress at a time when a new change is being made in the development of the revolution in the two countries of Korea and China and when one complicated situation after another is occurring in Asia and in the world.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to China is attracting great attention and interest from the peoples of Korea and China and the progressive peoples in Asia and the world.

The Central Committee of the CPC and the State Council of the PRC are treating the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song with wholehearted and cordial welcome. The fraternal Chinese people are warmly welcoming the respected and beloved leader. The leaders of the Chinese party and government and the Chinese people are expressing a high respect for and trust in the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. This is a clear expression of the revolutionary support from the Chinese party and people toward our party and people.

That the leaders of the parties and governments of Korea and China exchange opinions and consolidate the unity by frequently coming and going, thus waging a common struggle, has been an excellent tradition established between the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and Comrades Mao Zedong and Zhou Enlai.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's return visit to China this time forcefully shows that the militant friendship and revolutioanry unity between the parties, governments and peoples of Korea and China are being further consolidated and developed with each passing day. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to China this time carries a great significance in the struggle for the socialist and communist cause of the peoples in Korea and China and in the struggle for defending the peace in Asia and the world and for consolidating the unity among the anti-imperialist and independent forces. Above all, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to China serves as an epoch-making event that develops the invincible friendship and unity forged between Korea and China to a new, higher stage.

Korea and China are the closest neighbors whose rivers and mountains adjoin each other.

Because of their common circumstances and purposes, the korean and Chinese peoples have long waged the struggle against the Japanese and U.S. imperialist aggressors together. In the course of this, they have shared joy and sadness by forging the militant comradeship and friendship in blood.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows: Our two countries' peoples have always set store by the friendship forged in blood as revolutionary comrades-in-arms and by the sense of duty as the class brothers. Unwavering under any hardships, they have endlessly consolidated and developed the friendly relations.

The two peoples of Korea and China have not only shared the fate of life-and-death along the single road to revolution in the past, but today, also, marching forward shoulder to shoulder in the common struggle for independence and socialism. In reality, the friendship between the Korean and Chinese peoples is a militant friendship between the comrades-in-arms based on the revolutionary sense of duty, is a great friendship that achieved a shining victory in the common struggle against imperialism, and is an eternal friendship that nothing can break.

Because of this visit to China by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the Korean and Chinese friendship will be brought into fuller bloom on a new track of history.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to China is in progress at a time when both the peoples of Korea and of China are making new great strides in revolution and construction. This is a very meaningful event for the peoples of the two countries.

Not long ago, the 12th Congress of the CPC was successfully held in China. The congress reviewed the achievements and experiences made by the CPC and the people in revolution and construction and clearly indicated the road for the Chinese people.

The congress put forward a general task of the new era to build China into a highly modernized and highly democratic socialist country by realizing the four modernizations while adhering to the 4-point principles, achieving self-reliance and waging an arduous struggle. And the congress put forth the line, plan and policies to realize the program. The congress also put forward the task for the struggle to reunify the entire country by restoring Taiwan and to defend the peace by uniting with the world's peoples. The congress organized a new Central Committee headed by Comrade Hu Yaobang.

All Chinese are warmly congratulating with delight the success of the congress and the whole of China is seething with exaltation. The 12th Congress of the CPC largely displayed the unity and cohesion between the party and the people and the might of the party and largely encouraged the popular masses who have turned out in the socialist, modernization construction. The congress marked a new milestone in strengthening and developing the CPC and in the history of the struggle of the Chinese people.

The Chinese people are great people and the CPC is a glorious revolutionary party that is leading the Chinese people to the single road to victory. Under the correct leadership of the CPC, the Chinese people achieved the victory in the people's revolution and pioneered the road to socialism. They have, in recent years, entered a new historic stage on which they realize the socialist modernization by surmounting obstacles laid on the road along which they have been marching forward. Once the policies set forth by the CPC are realized, the Chinese people will enjoy a richer and more civilized life and the might of the PRC will be further strengthened.

The Chinese people are vigorously waging the struggle to oppose the two-Chinas plot and to restore Taiwan -- their inseparable territory -- to the fatherland. Restoring Taiwan to the fatherland and reunifying China are the sacred, independent rights of the Chinese people. The Korean people sincerely rejoice, as over their own, over everything that is going well in China and sincerely wish the fraternal Chinese people a new brilliant success in the struggle to accomplish the task for the socialist, modernization construction put forth by the party's 12th congress.

Today, the Korean people are vigorously pushing ahead with the revolution and construction in the northern half of the republic and are struggling to achieve the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification under the banner of the three revolutions -- ideological, technological and cultural, upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's program for the socialist and communist construction, which he elucidated in his report and his policy speech to our party's sixth congress. The fatherland's reunification is an ardent national desire of the Korean people and is the greatest national task facing our people.

The highest priority in resolving the fatherland's reunification problem is to force the withdrawal of the U.S. forces from South Korea and to check and frustrate the U.S. imperialists' two-Koreas policy. The U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea and their splittist policy are basic obstacles blocking our country's reunification.

To achieve our country's independent and peaceful reunification, the South Korean society should also be made independent and democratic. South Korea is a complete colony of the U.S. imperialists; not a vestige of national sovereignty remains there. The South Korean puppet clique is a sordid nation-seller that mercilessly suppresses people and sells the country to the foreign forces.

The South Korean people are resolutely struggling against the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule, the puppet clique's policy of depending on foreign forces and its fascist suppressive schemes while they struggle for making the society independent and democratic and for achieving the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification.

The U.S. imperialists should abandon the policy of colonial occupation over South Korea and the anachronistic policy of national division, should immediately withdraw their aggression forces from South Korea and give up their two-Koreas plot.

The proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forth by our party is the most realistic and reasonable reunification program for the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea and for constructing an independent reunified state.

The fraternal Chinese people always actively support and encourage our proposals and our just struggle for the fatherland's reunification.

Our people feel grateful for this.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's visit to China, which is taking place at a time when the peoples of Korea and China are making strides in revolution and construction, shows that the friendly relationship between the two parties, countries and peoples is being further consolidated in the struggle for the common cause with each passing day. His visit not only encourages our people but also pleases the Chinese people.

The present international situation is not calm. Because of the imperialists' schemes, various types of disputes and contradictions are becoming acute, military clashes are taking place and the danger that a new world war might break out is growing in various places of the world.

The imperialists are intensifying their maneuverings to subordinate again the newly emerging nations, the Third World countries, by splitting them up and alienating them from each other.

It is important for all the world's progressive countries, including the socialist nations, nonaligned countries and the Third World nations and the peace-loving peoples to set up a wide-ranging reunification front by firmly uniting with each other and to defend the peace by jointly standing up to the imperialists' policy of aggression and war.

As in the past, the Korean people will firmly continue to maintain its independence and to march forward hand in hand with all the world's progressive peoples and will positively struggle to oppose the imperialists' schemes of aggression and war and to defend peace in Asia and the world. The Korean and Chinese peoples share the line of battles and are taking united action in the struggle to realize the anti-imperialist and independent cause and to safeguard the world's peace.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's current visit to China will make it possible to bring the opinions of the two parties closer to an agreement and to further intensify the joint struggle. The current visit will serve as an important turning-point which further consolidates the great friendship and unity between the parties, countries and peoples of Korea and China and enhances the fraternal cooperative relations to a higher level.

DETAILS OF 17 SEP MAC SECURITY OFFICERS' MEETING

[Text] A meeting of the security officers of the Military Armistice Commission [MAC] was held on 17 September at Panmunjom at the proposal of our side. At the meeting our side lodged a protest to the enemy side and called it to account, noting that the U.S. imperialist aggression forces were increasing tension in the Joint Security Area in flagrant violation of the armistice agreement and agreed points between the two sides.

According to the statement of the security officer of our side, the U.S. imperialist aggression army brought into the Joint Security Area 21 more armed personnel than the designated number and one machinegun to a building of the enemy side south of the MAC conference room on the morning of 13 September. Earlier, the enemy also brought a machinegun along with tens of armed personnel into the Joint Security Area on the mornings of 24 August and 3 September. Moreover, at around 1006, 31 August, and around 0930, 13 September, the security personnel of the enemy side at the post southeast of the MAC conference room obstructed the routine performance of duty of our side's personnel by making a provocative gesture at them on the opposite side. Also, at around 1705, 12 September, and around 1142, 14 September, the U.S. imperialist aggression army personnel committed a similar provocation at the location south of Military Demarcation Marker No 0099. Such provocations and violations committed by the enemy numbered 47 cases from 11 August to 16 September.

The security officer of our side lodged a strong protest to the enemy side and condemned such a deliberate obstruction of the routine performance of duty of our side's personnel by illegally bringing machineguns and numerous armed personnel into the joint security area and by making a provocative gesture at our side's personnel. He pointed out that these are deliberate and premeditated acts by the enemy side to increase tension in the Joint Security Area. But the security officer of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces foolishly attempted to cover up their crimes under an absurd pretext. Refuting the unreasonable pretext of the enemy side, the security officer of our side emphatically said that the enemy side should bear in mind that if it continues its rash provocations against us, failing to renounce its untenable stand and attitude, it should be held totally responsible for all the consequences arising from this.

In conclusion, our side's security officer strongly demanded that the enemy side take responsible measures to stop the provocations and violations that are aggravating tension in the Joint Security Area.

KIM IL-SONG VISIT TO BEIJING VIEWED, ASSESSED

Unification Minister Comments

SK190133 Seoul The KOREA HERALD in English 19 Sep 82 p 1

[By staff reporter Yi Sang-pil]

[Text] Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik predicted yesterday the current trip by North Korean leader Kim Il-song to Beijing will produce "little substantive" outcome largely due to differences in policy lines between the two communists countries. Kim is now on a "wooing tour" to mainland China for the first time in seven years in a bid to earn military, economy and foreign diplomacy support.

In an exclusive interview with the KOREA HERALD, the unification minister commented that Kim is soliciting the support of the Chinese leadership to help him check Seoul's promotion of relations with Third World countries, particularly following President Chon Tu-hwan's visit to four African nations and Canada. He estimated that Pyongyang is seeking to reaffirm relationships with Beijing at a time when China has launched a new leadership at the end of a recent Communist Chinese party congress.

Kim must have several other issues to discuss with Beijing leaders, including the controversial power succession, withdrawal of U.S. ground forces from the Korean Peninsula and an increased supply of Chinese oil, he said. However, Son predicted, Beijing is not in a position to openly back the "power succession" since the newly appointed party platform of China explicitly forbids personality cult.

Despite the conflicting stands of the two communist countries, Beijing may have to condone the forming of a communist monarchy in North Korea for fear that Pyongyang may tilt toward Moscow. He also said that massive military aid by Beijing cannot be expected in light of China's relations with the United States as well as the Soviet Union and its intention to preserve the status quo on the Korean Peninsula.

Given Deng Xiaoping's pragmatic plan to modernize his country, Son went on to say, China would be unable to provide Pyongyang with significant economic assistance. "In this regard," the unification minister said, "there will not be any change in the relations between the two."

Touching on the tripartite relations among Beijing, Moscow and Pyongyang, Minister Son said that North Korea is walking on a tight-rope between the two communist giants. The unification minister did not preclude the possibility that Kim will visit Moscow for military and economic aid, in case he is unsatisfied with Beijing's response for aid.

When asked to comment on future inter-Korean relations, he voiced an optimistic view, saying unification will be achieved eventually because of the ardent desire by 60 million Korean people. He said that the North Korean communist regime can no longer ignore international opinion which strongly supports Seoul's unification formula.

Minister Son has recently visited several countries in Central and South America and Southeast Asia to inaugurate new overseas chapters of the Advisory Council on Peaceful Unification Policy (ACPUP). On the result of his visit, he said he was moved by the anti-communist posture of the Korean residents there which, he said, is so strong that North Korean communists will not dare infiltrate.

KOREA TIMES Editorial

[Editorial: "Pyongyang Maneuvers"]

[Text] What is happening in North Korea or how its communist leadership behaves for internal and external consumption is something that has to be closely observed with great concern because of its obvious impact on peace and stability on the Korean Peninsula and the future settlement of inter-Korean issues, which in turn are vitally related to the regional situation.

Another factor demanding such keen concern is the very fact that North Korea is one of the most closed societies on earth -- even in the communist bloc -- and that its leadership, bent on adventurism and aggressiveness, is largely deemed unpredictable.

Against the backdrop, a scene is being staged in the form of Kim Il-song's visit to Beijing, the first in seven years, closely following the much-publicized Chinese Communist Party's 12th National Congress. Also notable and coincident with his trip is an analysis of the North Korean military capability and changes in its armed forces leadership, which was given by the commander-in-chief of the United Nations Command and the ROK-U.S. Combined Forces Command in Seoul.

Discussing Kim's journey first, it has to be admitted that pinpointing the tour's precise purposes -- let alone assessing its probably outcome -- is still premature. Nonetheless, it can be surmised that the trip is ultimately designed to sustain and restructure, if needed, the Pyongyang-Beijing relationship in view of hierarchical changes taking place or being formulated in both communist states -- and that in opposing directions.

Kim, who has ruled North Korea for the past 36 years and is now aged 70, is laded with the paramount issue of power succession, which he has maneuvered to solve by grooming his own son as heir apparent. In fact, the son, Chong-il, has already been installed in the second or third highest positions in several key apparatuses of the Pyongyang hierarchy. This attempt to create a hereditary dynasty is not only unprecedented in the communist world, but also in sharp contrast with Beijing's successive campaigns to wipe out traces of the personality cult of Mao Zedong, which resulted last week in an institutional change in the party leadership barring the emergence of a one-man rule.

The reform moves sweeping China must be embarrassing to the idolized ruler of North Korea, who is now apparently trying to obtain Chinese connivance at the hereditary move and sustain "brotherly" relations with Beijing by playing a "Soviet card" -- leverage owing to his equidistance diplomacy toward the two giant communist neighbors, China and the Soviet Union.

On the other hand, the Chinese must feel ambivalent. While Kim's attempt to set up his own dynasty should be disgusting, Beijing is obliged to take a real-politik choice to bring North Korea closer to its side or at least keep it from swinging to Moscow. Such a dilemma was illustrated by the latest disclosure that two top Beijing leaders, Deng Xiaoping and Hu Yaobang, made a secret visit to Pyongyang last April -- obviously to woo North Korea, but shunning the impression that they paid homage to Kim's notorious personality cult.

Besides the political issues, Beijing and Pyongyang appear to have a number of practical problems to settle, including China's oil and arms deliveries, and they are certain to rehash a rhetorical reaffirmation of their close ties. But then, it is to be pointed out that there is a widening gap in their approaches to the leadership question and perceptions in dealing with swiftly changing international developments, in which Beijing displays shrewd pragmatism.

Though not directly related to Kim's tour, noteworthy is a warning posted by UNC Commander Gen. Robert Sennewald this week that the emergence of a new generation in the North Korean military leadership, highly indoctrinated and Soviet-trained for modern warfare, might significantly increase the danger of miscalculation. Such ominous developments in North Korea, both on its political and military fronts, arouse our deep concern and stimulate the need for futher safeguards against Pyongyang's malicious schemes.

[Text] Phnom Penh, 19 Sep (SPK) -- The National Assembly delegation of the PRK led by Chairman Shea Sim, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the KUFNOD National Council, held talks in Phnom Penh on 18 September with the visiting National Assembly delegation from Bulgaria led by Chairman Stanko Todorov, member of the Bulgarian Communist Party [BCP] Central Committee Politburo.

Attending the talks were, among others, on the Kampuchean side: Hun Sen, member of the Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs; Mat Ly, member of the KPRP Central Committee and vice chairman of the National Assembly; Tep Vong, vice chairman of the National Assembly and of the KUFNCD National Council; and Meas Huon, acting charge d'affaires of Kampuchea to Bulgaria; and on the Bulgarian side: Stoian Markov, member of the BCP Central Committee, chief of the Industrial Department of the Central Committee and chairman of the Economic and Public Development Commission; Penko Guerganov, member of the BCP Central Committee, member of the Economic and Public Development Commission and first secretary of the Pleven City ward party committee; Evtim Kostov, chairman of the Mikhailovgrad City ward People's Council and member of the Economic and Public Development Commission; Dimitar Viatchev, secretary of the Bulgarian Fatherland Front National Council, member of the Bulgarian People's Agricultural Council Central Committee and member of the Foreign Trade Commission; Penka Khristova, secretary of the Talboukhin City ward People's Council; and Simeon Dimitrov, Bulgarian ambassador to Kampuchea.

Chairman Chea Sim talked about the situation in Kampuchea, the development in all fields during the past 3 years and, particularly, the development of the National Assembly since its first session. He briefed the Bulgarian delegation on the tense situation on the Kampuchea-Thai border caused by the Beijing expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and reactionary Khmer forces who have set up the so-called tripartite government of Democratic Kampuchea in order to sabotage the Kampuchean revolution. Despite these maneuvers, he noted, the situation in Kampuchea is irreversible.

Stanko Todorov talked about the construction of Bulgaria into an industrialized country from a backward agricultural country. During the past 38 years, Bulgaria has achieved successes in all fields thanks to the efforts of the Bulgarian people and the assistance of the Soviet Union. Bulgaria has categorically condemned and rejected the illegal presence of Pol Pot at the United Nations, Stanko Todorov stressed. The two sides agreed on the cooperation between the two assemblies and on the situation in Southeast Asia, the settlement of the conflict with China and the avoidance of a possible nuclear war in the Balkan region.

Reception 18 Sep

[Text] Phnom Penh, 19 Sep (SPK) -- Chea Sim, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the PRK National Assembly, hosted a reception in Phnom Penh Saturday evening in honor of the Bulgarian National Assembly delegation.

Hun Sen, member of the Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs; Mat Ly, member of the KPRP Central Committee and vice chairman of the National Assembly; and other personalities were present. Members of the diplomatic corps responded to the invitation.

Speaking on this occasion, Chairman Chea Sim said: We highly appreciate your visit as a contribution to the strengthening and deepening of the bonds of fraternal friendship, solidarity and multifaceted cooperation between the PRK and the People's Republic of Bulgaria [PRB] based on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism and in conformity with the spirit of the Kampuchea-Bulgaria treaty of friendship and cooperation signed in Sofia on 25 November 1980 by Comrade Heng Samrin and Comrade Todor Zhivkov.

Recently, the Communist Party and fraternal people of Bulgaria have just celebrated the 38th anniversary of the founding of the PRB. The PRK and the Kampuchean people as a whole express their cordial greetings to this solemn day which marks the great successes that the Bulgarian party and fraternal workers have obtained successively in building up the socialist fatherland of Georgi Dimitrov to its present state.

It is true that the achievement of this marvelous work is attributable, first of all, to the just and enlightened leadership of the Bulgarian Communist Party [BCP] of which Comrade Todor Zhivkov is now the eminent leader, to the patience and perseverance of the creative and skillful Bulgarian workers and to the internationalist cooperation of the fraternal socialist countries in the CEMA and the Warsaw Pact and particularly of the Soviet Union which provides the framework for socialism and the struggle for peace.

We are convinced that the fraternal Bulgarian people will win great successes in realizing the decisions of the 12th BCP Congress, bringing to the Bulgarian society new and great social and economic progress.

The PRK accords its unreserved support to the foreign policy of the PRB in strengthening and developing its relations of friendship and multifaceted cooperation with the USSR and the fraternal socialist countries, and in maintaining solidarity with the progressive forces and peace-loving peoples in the world to oppose the aggressive and hegemonist policy of U.S. imperialism and the international reactionaries who are poisoning the international situation in order to push mankind toward the danger of a nuclear catastrophe.

On the other hand, we highly appreciate the consistent policy of the PRB in the Balkan region, which constitutes an important factor for the peace and stability of this region as well as the world.

Here, permit us to assure you that the PRK supports the initiatives and efforts of the PRB to turn the Balkan region into a nuclear-free zone and the efforts that the PRB and fraternal socialist countries have made so that the Madrid meeting would be crowned with success for the benefit of peace and security in Europe and the world.

In this context, the peace program put forward by the CPSU constitutes an effective counterweight to foil the bellicose policy pursued by U.S. imperialism and international reaction.

At present, our party and people are actively working to carry out the decisions of the Fourth KPRP Congress. We are convinced that during your stay in the PRK, you will be able to note the revolutionary gains achieved by our people during the past more than 3 years and all the work being carried on in order to make the country progress step by step toward socialism.

To arrive at these successes, we have surmounted many difficulties owing to, on the one hand, the consequences left behind by the genocidal regime which are a heavy burden for us and, on the other hand, the sabotage and subversive actions against our national reconstruction efforts by Beijing expansionism-hegemonism, U.S. imperialism, the Thai authorities, international reactionary circles and the reactionary Khmers in their pay. They are the ones who react by trying to destroy our revolution by any means as in setting up the so-called "Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea" sowing discord among Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos and between these latter and the socialist community, provoking instability in Asia, and blocking the efforts by Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos and the progressive forces in the ASEAN countries to establish good-neighbor relations between Indochina and ASEAN and between Kampuchea and Thailand. Moreover, they spurn any constructive initiative aimed at making Southeast Asia a zone of peace, stability and cooperation.

Whatever their maneuvers or activities, they cannot stop the progress of the Kampuchean revolution or the Indochina revolution.

The rock-like union of the Kampuchean people around their KPRP, the fraternal solidarity of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos, the aid and support of proletarian internationalism accorded by the USSR, the PRB and the other fraternal socialist countries, and the increasingly growing support of the progressive forces and peace- and justice-loving peoples the world over constitute a sure guarantee for the victory of our people withstanding all kinds of difficulty and triumphing over the Beijing expansionist-hegemonists, U.S. imperialists and reaction, and in building a sound and prosperous new Kampuchean society, contributing to the establishment of peace and stability in Southeast Asia and the world.

Once again, I would like to stress the importance of your present visit which will further deepen the feelings of friendship and solidarity between our two parties and peoples.

Within a month, our two assemblies have exchanged their respective delegations. This reflects the coherent cooperation between the legislative organs of our two countries which, henceforth, will labor in the service of our two peoples, the cause of socialism and peace in the world.

Stanko Todorov affirmed that the Kampuchean people's struggle against colonialism and imperialism has always enjoyed the sympathy and support of the Bulgarian people. We wholeheartedly hail the overthrow of the bloody Pol Pot regime which sowed so much suffering and woe on the ancient soil of Kampuchea. Currently we are following with fraternal interest the remarkable achievements of the heroic people and workers of Kampuchea in the rehabilitation of the economy, the stabilization of social life and the socialist revival of their fatherland.

Together with the Vietnamese and Lao peoples, the PRK is striving to foil the designs of imperialism and hegemonism in Southeast Asia and the world.

We are convinced that under the leadership of the KPRP and with the aid and support of the Soviet Union, Vietnam, Laos and other fraternal socialist countries, the Kampuchean people will win more important successes in the construction and defense of their country. No obstacle raised by imperialism, hegemonism and reaction is able to block the peaceful upward movement of People's Kampuchea.

Our party and our people pay particular attention to successfully realizing the decisions taken by the 12th BCP Congress for the future construction of an advanced socialist society in our country. We are carrying out complex tasks of high responsibility.

We work for a great goal, which is to create ever more favorable living conditions for all workers in our country. This strategic orientation of the BCP enjoys the full support of the people. In the process of realizing this policy we rely on the support of and cooperation with the Soviet Union and on unity of action with the members of the Warsaw Pact and CEMA. The friendship which unites us with other fraternal socialist countries can be qualified as being internationalism at work and a factor of our ascension.

Fraternal and fruitful relations unite the PRB and the PRK. These relations are traditional and vast horizons open before them. The treaty of friendship and cooperation between our two countries has inaugurated a new stage in deepening the rapport of brotherhood and solidarity between Bulgaria and Kampuchea. The two countries maintain active political relations. They are deepening their economic, scientific and technical cooperation and expanding their cultural exchanges. The development of our relations can also be seen through the exchange of visits by our National Assembly delegations. We are convinced that our current meeting, in which we carry on the exchange of views started in Sofia, will be another contribution to strengthening the friendship, unity and cohesiveness of our two countries and of peace and security in the world.

The building of a new life in our countries cannot be separated from the struggle for the safeguard of peace. In an international juncture of serious deterioration caused by the adventurous actions of imperialism, hegemonism and the reactionary forces, our two peoples struggle resolutely together with all progressive mankind against the aggravation of tension in international relations and for peace and mutual understanding. The PRK holds a noble place in this struggle. The United States, in collusion with some ASEAN countries, is using all possible means to prevent the rebirth of Kampuchea. Through its foreign policy, China lends a helping hand to the schemes of imperialism and leads subversive actions against your country. Guided by bad intentions, the enemies of the Kampuchean people have set up a puppet government of exiles which has neither the political nor the moral right to represent the Kampuchean people. The PRB resolutely demands that an end be put to the representation of the so-called "Democratic Kampuchea" at the United Nations and that the PRK Government assume its seat at the United Nations as the sole legitimate representative of its people.

I would like to express our full support for the proposals of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos for settling disputes in Southeast Asia by means of negotiations and through a dialogue with the ASEAN countries.

SRV SEIZES THREE THAI TRAWLERS; ONE BOAT MISSING

[Text] Vietnamese vessels seized three Thai fishing trawlers and about 75 crewmen fishing near Vietnamese waters on Thursday, fisheries sources reported yesterday. Another trawler, the Siripairoj 10, which carries about 20 crew, lost contact with the radio centre in Samut Prakan after it was chased and shot at by an armed Vietnamese vessel converted from a seized Thai fishing boat, the sources said. According to the sources, a large Thai fleet was fishing in international waters near Vietnam's (O-B Yai) Island on Thursday evening when five armed Vietnamese vessels appeared and started chasing the trawlers.

Many of the trawlers simply cut their nets and fled the scene, but three were captured after a long and wild chase, during which the Vietnamese opened fire, the sources said. The three seized trawlers were Lakchai Udomsak 9, the Thanadorn Nava 5 and Tatchai Navee -- all from Samut Sakhon Province.

The sources said the Siripairoj 10 contacted the Samut Prakan radio centre at about 2230 when it was chased and machine-gunned by a Vietnamese boat, but later it lost contact, raising fears that it may have been sunk, the sources added.

FOREIGN MINISTRY 'CLARIFICATIONS' ON LEE PROPOSAL

BK171520 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1100 GMT 17 Sep 82

[Text] At a press conference held at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs press center this morning, Mr Chet Sutcharitkun, the director general of the Information Department, clarified foreign news reports which said that Thai Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila had rejected the military cooperation proposal of Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore. The Foreign Ministry is required to make some clarifications because that report was totally wrong and misleading.

In the press interview given by Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew on 9 September, the Singapore prime minister told the newspaper MERDEKA that there has been bilateral cooperation, both in intelligence and in security matters, between Singapore and Indonesia for several years and some joint naval and air exercises. At a later stage these exercises could become trilateral and later guadrilateral. Chet futher quoted the Singapore prime minister as saying on behalf of ASEAN member countries that they wanted this region to be without communist influence or aggression, and if they left ASEAN alone, the ASEAN countries would do better still.

Chet said that Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila has stated clearly that he will not comment on statements by leaders of ASEAN countries. Therefore, foreign news reports that the foreign minister rejected the Singapore prime minister's proposal are false.

POST: ASEAN DRAFT RESOLUTION ON KAMPUCHEA PLANNED

[Text] ASEAN plans to submit a resolution at the forthcoming United Nations General Assembly session which reaffirms its call for a comprehensive political settlement of the Kampuchean problem, a Foreign Ministry source said yesterday.

The draft resolution includes a provision calling for the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Kampuchea to ensure the nation's sovereignty, independence, territorial integrity and neutrality and adds that the Kampuchean people are entitled to the right of self-determination free from outside interference.

The resolution refers to the formation in June of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea comprising the factions headed by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Khieu Samphan and Son Sann, and its subsequent establishment in Kampuchea.

Another matter of concern to ASEAN, particularly Thailand, is the continuing deployment of foreign forces close to the Thai-Kampuchean border, which the resolution says has heightened regional tensions.

The draft also covers the refugee problem, the source said. He said it also reaffirms ASEAN's plan to establish -- once the Kampuchean problem is settled -- an inter-governmental committee to urge all states in the region to provide assistance to rebuild Kampuchea's economy and to aid its social and economic development.

Foreign Minister ACM Sitthi Sawetsila heads a delegation which leaves for the United States tonight to attend the opening ceremony of the 37th Session of the United Nations General Assembly, scheduled for September 25.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi will be accompanied by the Foreign Ministry's Under Secretary of State M.R. Kasemsamoson Kasemsi; Political Department Director-General Asa Sarasin; Information Department Director General Chet Sutcharitkun; Office of ASEAN-Thailand Deputy Director-General Det Bunnak; Councellor Sarasin Wiraphon; and Mr Sakthip Krairoek, the foreign minister's secretary.

ACM Sitthi is due to arrive in Washington, D.C. on Wedensday, where he will meet with U.S. Defence Secretary Caspar Weinburger and Secretary of State George Shultz and other State Department officials. Their talks will centre on Kampuchea and the refugee problem, U.S. aid to Thailand and bilateral trade, the source said.

ACM Sitthi is expected to arrive in New York on September 25 and is scheduled to address the UN General Assembly during the Kampuchean debate four days later, the source said.

VISITING JAPANESE PARTY LEADER ON CGDK SUPPORT

BK140426 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in nglish 14 Sep 82 p 3

[Excerpts] A senior member of a Japanese opposition party said last night that Japan should not provide non-military assistance to the newly-formed Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea until the coalition is "firmly established and wins wide international recognition." MP Watanabe of the Japan Democratic Socialist Party (JDSP) told the NATION that Japan should give only moral support for the coalition government for the time being.

Watanabe, who is chairman of the Foreign Policy Committee of the party, also hinted that it would become clear whether the coalition government would enjoy wide international support and become stable after the UN General Assembly late this month. "It takes a couple of more months to decide on the issue," he added.

However, Watanabe said his party's position on the Kampuchean issue is the same as that of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). "We are supporting the ASEAN efforts to achieve a political settlement of the problem and it mignt be the best solution to achieve the neutralization of Kampuchea, if possible," he said.

Asked what he thinks is the second best solution, if the ASEAN's aim could not be fulfilled, he said it is now too early to figure out an alternative to the aim. "Moreover, we are just starting on the way to the target with the formation of the coalition government," he said.

He said that it was rather difficult to achieve a political solution for the moment and hoped that with the economic isolation imposed on Vietnam and the Vietnamese-backed Heng Samrin regime would finally prompt a political solution.

The position of the party, which commands 32 out of 511 MP's in the House of Representatives, is the same as that of the government as far as Japan's denial of economic aid to Vietnam is concerned. Touching on Japanese aid to the Indochinese refugees here, Watanabe said Japan should increase the assistance, "from a humanitarian point of view."

Watanabe belongs to a delegation of MP's that is visiting here on a fact-finding mission. The delegation met Thai leaders, including Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon, and Industry Minister Chatchai Chunhawan during its stay here.

He said his delegation agreed in principle to the premier's request for Japan to help tip the balance of trade in the favour of Thailand and to reduce the tariff wall Japan imposed on the import of agricultural crops from Thailand.

The delegation, which also plans to conduct similar fact-finding missions in other ASEAN countries, will submit its proposals to improve the relations between the two countries to the Japanese Government, according to Watanabe. The Japanese team, which arrived here on Sunday, is due to return to Japan on Wednesday.

PROTEST PLANNED OVER U.S. TAX ON SHRIMP IMPORTS

["News in Perspective" feature]

[Text] Thailand will protest to the U.S. Government over its plan to impose both a tax wall and import quotas on imported frozen shrimps. Agriculture and Cooperatives Minister Chuan Likphai says that he has asked the Foreign Affairs Ministry to lodge an urgent protest with the United States over the plan. The plan poses a serious threat to Thai shrimp exports. The United States is the second largest buyer of Thai frozen shrimps after Japan. Mr Chuan says many other exporting countries are protesting against the plan which was proposed by the U.S. House Committee on Fisheries, Wildlife Conservation and the Environment, and approved by the Congress under the shrimp industry development act. The act empowers the U.S. president to impose the tax wall and allows the U.S. Commerce Department to limit imports. At present, imports of frozen shrimps into the United States are free of tax. In 1980, the United States bought around 3,000 tons of frozen shrimps worth about 239 million baht.

Meanwhile, Vice President of the Fisheries Association of Thailand Chia Kokphon says that the imposition of the tax wall and import quotas pose a serious threat to the fishing industry. Mr Chia says that Thai shrimp fishermen rely heavily on sales to the United States. He expresses concern that the prices of other marine products in the local market would also be affected as local exporters would offer to buy shrimps at lower prices because exports of the product face strong competition from other exporting countries. Mr Chia adds that fishermen selling shrimps at low prices will be forced to offset any loss by raising the prices of other marine products.

VNA REJECTS XINHUA 'FABRICATION' ON HOSTILITIES

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 18 -- The Chinese news agency XINHUA on September 17 alleged that Vietnamese troops on September 13 and 15 intruded into and opened fire at several areas in the Chinese border province of Guangxi.

VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY is authorized to completely reject this fabrication. This is a deliberate act of the Chinese authorities to cope with Vietnam's proposal that Vietnam and China stop armed activities and other hostile actions including firing and shelling along the common border on the occasion of their two national days. This is also aimed at misleading public opinion which is welcoming Vietnam's good will and desires to see peace along the Sino-Vietnamese border.

VNA REJECTS THAI 'FABRICATION' ON TROOP BUILDUP

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, Sept. 17 -- According to an A.F.P. report datelined Bangkok, September 16, Thai military authorities alleged that Vietnam has beefed up its troops in northwestern Cambodia and that upswing in fighting had spilled into the Thai border provinces, including shellings and troops intrusions.

VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY is authorized to flatly reject this fabrication, and to reaffirm that Vietnam always respects the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Thailand. This fabrication is aimed at distorting the good will of Vietnam, which has withdrawn part of its troops from Kampuchea, disturbing the atmosphere of dialogue between Vietnam and Thailand, and only serving the interests of Beijing expansionism and hegemony.

U.S. DELEGATION MEETS WITH OFFICIALS ON MIA'S

[Text] Hanoi, Sept. 18 (AFP) -- The corpses of five U.S. soldiers, whose discovery was announced in June to a delegation here of American veterans, have all been identified, an American with another cisiting group said here today. The remains might be returned to the United States in October, said a member of a delegation from the Washington-based National League of Families of Americans Missing in Action, which arrived here Thursday from Laos.

Delegation president George Brooks said it was the first time representatives of families of men missing in action (MIA) had come to Vietnam since the end of the war in 1975. Each of the four members of the delegation lost a son, brother or husband in Laos or in Vietnam. (?One) body had been identified in June, that of Gerald Patrick Frye, who was killed on July 19, 1967. According to the delegation member, the names of the four other dead GI's will be released when their families have been notified. Four of the five corpses were found in Ha Nam Ninh Province south of Haiphong, including the one initially identified. The fifth came from Quang Ninh Province, north of Haiphong.

The delegation met today with officials from the Vietnamese office in charge of the search for American MIA's and then visited the wreckage in Ngoc Ha of a U.S. B-52 shot down on December 27, 1972. The delegation also saw a former prison for captured American pilots, which is now the army's film studio.

The delegation has decided not to go to Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon) and was due to meet tomorrow with Vice Foreign Minister Vo Dong Giang and to leave Hanoi for Laos next week.

NHAN DAN RAPS U.S., PRC BACKING OF DK UN SEAT

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 19 -- NHAN DAN today directs attention to the fact that the United States and China are seeking to maintain the presence of Khmer reactionaries at the United Nations. The paper quotes U.S. Assistant Secretary of State John H. Holdridge as declaring at the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives on September 15 that the United States had again decided to support the position of ASEAN to continue accrediting "Democratic Kampuchea". This, the paper says, was followed up the next day with a call from the Chinese news agency XINHUA for opposition to the vacation of Kampuchea's seat.

NHAN DAN notes that along with smear propaganda against the People's Republic of Kampuchea, Beijing and Washington have raised a false alarm about an imminent Vietnamese attack on the Thai-Kampuchean border. They also gave the public a wrong interpretation of the peace proposals made at the July meeting of the three Indochinese foreign ministers, and presented in a bad light the partial withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Kampuchea -- a gesture of good will welcomed by broad sections of the world public, NHAN DAN adds.

NHAN DAN continues: "The fact is that many more U.N. member countries have come to loathe the Pol Pot clique, and they do not want the United States and China to continue to exacerbate tension in Southeast Asia to the detriment of peace and security in the region and the rest of the world. Moreover, many countries have received with sympathy the well-meaning statement of the People's Republic of Kampuchea that in case of the expulsion of the Pol Pot clique, and the vacation of Kampuchea's seat, it would not press for immediate seating. At the same time, the consensus among the Non-Aligned Movement to leave the seat vacant has caused other countries to approach the problem more carefully so that this international body can rid itself of the genocidal clique in conformity with its Charter". "This is a new trend at the U.N. General Assembly this year. Regrettably, it is ignored by the supporters of a political corpse", NHAN DAN says.

It also met with representatives of the people of all walks of life and toured a number of economic and cultural establishments in Hanoi and Ho Chi Minh City. Everywhere it received a warm welcome, which expressed the Vietnamese people's warm feelings for the people and the land of Bulgaria.

A delegation of the S.R.V. National Assembly led by Chairman Nguyen Huu Tho, and the delegation of the P.R.B. National Assembly led by Chairman Stanko Todorov informed each other of the situation in their countries and their achievements in all fields of socialist construction and national defence, and exchanged views on bilateral relations and international problems of mutual concern. The talks took place in an atmosphere of fraternal friendship, and the two sides saw eye to eye on all points.

The Vietnamese side warmly congratulated the Bulgarian people on their great achievements in 38 years of socialist construction under the correct leadership of the glorious Bulgarian Communist Party.

The Vietnamese delegation highly valued the principled foreign policy and active efforts of the People's Republic of Bulgaria in consolidating peace, security and cooperation in Europe and throughout the world, and voiced full support for its policy to build good neighborhood relations among the countries and peoples of the Balkans and to make the region nuclear free. The Vietnamese delegation wished the fraternal Bulgarian people success in the tasks set by the 12th B.C.P. Congress.

The Bulgarian delegation hailed the brilliant victories obtained by the Vietnamese people in 37 years of staunch struggle under the correct leadership of the Communist Party of Vietnam for socialist construction and national defence.

The Bulgarian side voiced full support for the foreign policy of good will pursued by the Socialist Republic of Vietnam for a Southeast Asia of peace, stability and cooperation.

The Bulgarian delegation warmly welcomed the Socialist Republic of Vietnam's constructive proposals for normalized relations with China on the basis of peaceful co-existence, respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, and settlement of disputes through negotiations.

The two delegations hailed the treaty of friendship and cooperation signed between Vietnam and Bulgaria in October 1979 as a solid foundation on which to promote their fraternal friendship, militant solidarity and all-sided cooperation in the interests of the two peoples, of the socialist community as a whole, and of the common struggle of nations against imperialism, for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism. The two delegations declared that greater efforts would be made to help further the Vietnamese-Bulgarian treaty.

The two delegations hailed the Soviet people's great achievements in building the material basis of communism, and voiced full support for the Soviet Union's peace programme put forth at the 26th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, for Comrade Leonid I. Brezhnev's commitment that the Soviet Union will not be the first to resort to nuclear weapons, and for the many important Soviet initiatives regarding peace and security in Asia, Europe and other parts of the world.

The two delegations voiced resolute support for the Lao and Kampuchean peoples in national construction and defense, and strongly condemned the so-called Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea rigged up by the reactionaries in the Beijing ruling circles in collusion with U.S. imperialism and other reactionary forces to cover up the genocidal nature of the Pol Pot clique, deceive world public, oppose the Kampuchean people's rebirth, and serve China's expansionist and hegemonist designs on Southeast Asia.

The two delegations affirmed that the national assemblies of various countries were playing a more and more important role in the common struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism. They declared that the national assemblies of these two fraternal countries would work untiringly for the noble objectives of this struggle.

The two sides unanimously held that the P.R.B. National Assembly delegation's visit to the S.R.V. was an important contribution to the consolidation and strengthening of the fraternal friendship and comprehensive cooperation between the peoples and the national assemblies of the two countries.

The P.R.B. National Assembly delegation warmly thanked the National Assembly and the entire people of the S.R.V. for the warm welcome given it in Vietnam. Comrade Stanko Todorov invited a delegation of the S.R.V. National Assembly led by Chairman Nguyen Huu Tho to the People's Republic of Bulgaria for a visit at its convenience. Chairman Nguyen Huu Tho accepted the invitation with warm thanks.

NHAN DAN Editorial

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 19 -- NHAN DAN today editorially describes the recent visit of the Bulgarian National Assembly delegation led by Chairman Stanko Todorov as a vivid expression of the good development of the fraternal friendship and cooperation between the peoples of Vietnam and Bulgaria.

The paper says that the Vietnamese people were deeply moved by the warm feelings of close friendship and militant solidarity brought to them by the Bulgarian envoys.

NHAN DAN says that the most important result of the visit, as announced in the communique released to the press yesterday, was the complete identity of views on all issues of common concern, which Chairman Stanko Todorov himself regarded as a very important contribution to the fraternal friendship and militant solidarity between the two peoples.

Recalling the main points of the communique, the paper says: "The two sides highly valued the treaty of friendship and cooperation signed between the two countries. Its effectiveness has further promoted the fraternal friendship, militant solidarity and comprehensive cooperation between Vietnam and Bulgaria in the interests of the two peoples and of the socialist community and the world revolutionary cause as a whole. The furtherance of cooperation between the two national assemblies has made an active contribution to the implementation of this treaty".

It also recalls that, referring to the international situation, the Bulgarian delegation vehemently condemned U.S. imperialism and the expansionist and hegemonist forces in the Beijing ruling circles for pursuing a hostile policy towards the three Indochinese countries, obstructing dialogue between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries, and maintaining tension in Southeast Asia. The Bulgarian delegation, on the other hand, highly valued Vietnam's internationalist services to the fraternal peoples of Laos and Kampuchea. It firmly supported the Lao and Kampuchean peoples in national construction and defence, and resolutely condemned the so-called "Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea" rigged up by Beijing in collusion with the United States to deceive public opinion and serve China's expansionist and hegemonist designs.

NHAN DAN concludes by saying: "We will remember Chairman Stanko Todorov's kind words: 'We shall always side with our Vietnamese friends in their just cause. I would like to reaffirm that we shall never change in our iron-clad determination to join you in the common struggle to defend socialism and for its complete victory.'"

MANILA PAPERS COMMENT ON MARCOS VISIT TO U.S.

TIMES JOURNAL 18 Sep Editorial

HK200658 Manila TIMES JOURNAL in English 18 Sep 82 p 4

[Editorial: "America's Destiny Tied to the East"]

[Text] No greater compliment could have been paid a visiting head-of-state than that given President Marcos by U.S. President Ronald Reagan during his welcome remarks at the south lawn of the White House last Wednesday. "Yours is a respected voice for reason and moderation in international forums," Mr Reagan said of Mr Marcos. "The Philippines today is a recognized force for peace and security in Southeast Asia."

Likewise, no better reply to the compliment could have been given Mr Reagan by Mr Marcos when the Filipino chief executive said that his people, as well as the peoples of Southeast Asia and the rest of the Free World, looked to Mr Reagan and the United States to continue to uphold the ideals of democracy and freedom through strong foreign policies.

The exchange of compliments was, in fact, conclusive proof of what every Filipino and American has known all along -- that Philippine and American good will and friendship for each other have been and will continue to remain closely bound under special relationships.

The U.S. President's support for the Philippine program of government was quickly followed by American agreement to help the Philippines "completely modernize" its armed forces. Initial steps in this direction will be taken late this year when Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile meets with U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

American good will was also shown in the remarks of three ranking American officials -- U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldridge and special trade negotiator William Brock -- who said that the U.S. will give the Philippines wide access to the U.S. market as soon as the American economy "picks up".

All these topics were discussed more concretely and in greater detail during a closed door conference at the cabinet room of the White House between Mr Reagan and Mr Marcos, assisted by their key advisers. Also taken up were international issues such as the Middle East tinderbox, the Kampuchean issue, the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), and Japan's future role in Asia.

Early indications show that Mr Marcos and Mr Reagan are in full agreement on policies to be followed in the re-arming of Japan and on the issue of Kampuchea.

That Mr Marcos has admitted that the Philippines and the U.S. "have come to an agreement on how to work out an arrangement to resolve possible misunderstandings that may arise in relations between the two countries in the future" is in itself a big step forward towards removal of many irritants, involving American nationals in this country and Filipinos and Philippine Government.

Good will and simple pragmatism are the anchors under which Philippine-American relations are being renewed and improved. Mr Marcos knows this and so does Mr Reagan.

It is hoped that the "Europe first" policy followed by earlier American presidents may give way to an "Asia first" policy since it is here where the destiny of the Free World may be determined in the battle for the minds of men.

[Text] Washington, D.C., Sept 16 -- Even the more blase of reporters among Washington's cynical corps of correspondents executed double-takes when President Reagan welcomed visiting Philippine President Marcos so effusively on the White House lawn this morning. None could believe their ears. Mr Reagan was endorsing Mr Marcos for another stint in Malacanang -- the Philippines' seat of power -- instead of the other way around. Where President Johnson said in Manila in 1960's that Mr Marcos was his right hand man in Asia, Mr Reagan said here today that their mutual comrade was his right and left hand man in Asia.

Everybody expected Reagan to be nice and polite to the visitor. That Reagan called attention to "close friendship -- one forged in the shared history and common ideals -- enjoyed by our two peoples" was not expected. Nor was Reagan's praise of Marcos' "valiant" part in "defense of freedom and democracy" in World War II cause for eyebrow lifting.

But when Mr Reagan said "the values for which we struggle -- independence, liberty, democracy, justice, equality -- are engraved in our constitutions and embodied in our people's aspirations," reporters sat up and took notice. The American President stilled for all time whatever doubts critics may in future try to raise about the Reagan administration's support for President Marcos and his regime.

The Marcos record "in the search for self-determination by Southeast Asian peoples, in addressing the problems of economic development, in the improvement of standards of living of the Filipino people, in the nationwide electrification program," each were all cited by Reagan. He added that the U.S. remains the Philippines' leading trading partner, "reflecting American confidence in your progress and prospects for economic growth." He pointed to the administration's ability to keep American markets open for the products of the Philippines.

Mr Reagan's praise for President Marcos' role in the forging of security relationships in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations was almost fullsome. "Our security relationship is an essential element in maintaining peace in the region and is so recognized," Mr Reagan said. He added: "Mr President, under your leadership the Philippines stands as a recognized force for peace and security in Southeast Asia through its bilateral efforts and through its role in ASEAN which is the focus of our regional policies in Southeast Asia. Mr President and Mrs Marcos, the United States deeply values its close friendship and alliance with the Philippines. We seek to use this visit to further strengthen our ties with your country."

["Viewpoint" column by Salvador P. Lopez: "Two Styles of Speaking"]

[Text] Listening on television to the speeches of President Reagan and President Marcos during the welcome ceremonies at the White House, one was struck by the dramatic contrast in style of the two speakers. The difference was one of form and substance, manner as well as matter. Where Mr Reagan was cordial and friendly, Mr Marcos was glowing and fervent. And these qualities were reflected in what they said: The Reagan speech was measured, almost matter-of-fact, yet generous, while the Marcos response was emotional, almost rapturous, and fulsome to the point of adulation.

The next morning, as you read the text of the two speeches, these impressions fairly leap at you from the newspaper page. In cold print, the contrast between them becomes even more emphatic.

Mr Marcos has always preferred to deliver extemporaneous speeches, as well as speeches that seem extemporaneous. To do this, he used to depend on a fabulous photographic memory which enabled him to deliver long speeches from memory. Recently, however, he has been resorting more and more to the use of an inconspicuous electronic teleprompter.

Mr Marcos is a top star of the old Philippine school of oratory. His skill has been honed in the hustings, in the endless grind of campaign speeches at election time. He is a veteran of many electoral campaigns. He comes from a long career of public speaking where the main qualification is the ability of leap to one's feet, at the drop of a hat, and start orating from the top of one's head.

The oratorical gift is an important element of his public persona, and it is easy to understand why he would wish to continue employing it wherever he goes. But there are occasions when this penchant for instant oratory is better left at home or locked up in a hotel room. A state visit is such an occasion.

The reason is simple. A speech delivered off-the-cuff, no matter how carefully prepared beforehand and committed to memory, can never have the accuracy and precision of a written text. Beyond a certain age, the memory or the capacity for fluent speech has a tendency to wobble or fade away, with disastrous consequences for the grammer and syntax, not to mention the logic, rationality and wisdom of what is being said.

President Reagan delivered a carefully crafted speech that evoked the right sentiments and said the right things. It was appropriate to the occasion. It alluded to the close friendship between the two peoples, "one forged in shared history and common ideals". It recalled that "in World War II, Americans and Filipinos fought side by side in the defense of freedom." He reminded his guest that "the values for which we struggled -- independence, liberty, democracy, justice, equality -- are engraved in our constitutions and embodied in our people's aspirations."

The speech of Mr Marcos did not quite respond either to the tone or the substance of the Reagan speech. The desire to be gracious was there, but what came out was adulation.

He committed the Philippines to the "principles of American democracy". He added: "We learned to love these ideals and principles.... We have always stood by these ideals. We shall continue to do so, whatever may be the cost.... We stand for the ideals of democracy that is our legacy from the United States of America."

The other day, in this column, we foresaw the possibility that the two presidents, in referring their common devotion to "democracy", could be using the same word and meaning different things by it.. This now seems to have happened.

One could wish therefore that President Marcos had made his commitment to democracy in a carefully thought-out written speech like Mr Reagan's. An extemporaneous speech full of rhetorical flourishes in neither appropriate nor adequate for this purpose.

If, on the other hand, the Marcos speech was as sincere as it was spontaneous, then we would like to be shown when he returns how he proposes to make action fit the word.

FURTHER MATERIALS ON VISIT BY UK'S THATCHER

Tour of Scientific, Nuclear Sites

OW181043 Tokyo KYODO in English 0659 GMT 18 Sep 82

[Excerpts] Taukuba, Ibaraki Pref., Sep 18, KYODO -- British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher Saturday visited Tsukuba Academic City north of Tokyo for a firsthand look at examples of Japan's allied [as received] science. Mrs. Thatcher, on the second day of a six-day official visit to Japan, flew to this city about 60 kilometers north [words indistinct] including Ichiro Nakagawa, a Cabinet minister and head of the Science and Technology Agency, also escorted the British couple.

When she reached the state-run electrotechnical laboratory, she was cheered by researchers and primary school pupils who waved small national flags of the two countries.

The obviously fascinated British prime minister fired a battery of technical questions at the director. She commented before reporters that Britain is superior in capacity as to discoveries in basic science, while Japan is ahead in direct applications for profit.

After the hour-long inspection tour, Mrs. Thatcher flew by helicopter to the Tokaimura nuclear power center.

She was the first foreign government leader to visit the Pacific coast center, the nation's first commercial nuclear power plant which went into full operation in 1967. The 160,000-kilowatt-hour plant is the only Japanese nuclear facility using a British-made reactor. Its fuel is also being supplied by Britain. Thatcher and her party also visited the British ship "Pacific Swan" now berthed at the power plant pier. The vessel carries spent nuclear fuel to Britain for reprocessing. The prime minister planted a tree in the facility's garden in commemoration of her visit.

The one-day trip through the prefecture later took her to the nuclear fusion laboratory of the Japan Atomic Energy Research Institute. She flew back to Tokyo by helicopter in the evening.

Comments on Beirut Situation

[Text] Tokyo, Sep 19, KYODO -- British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher spent a busy day Sunday, visiting a robot factory and a cultured pearl shop and meeting former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda.

Thatcher, who arrived in Japan last Friday for a six-day official visit, toured the facilities of FANUC, Japan's top maker of numerically controlled (NC) equipment and industrial robots. Showing interest in a fully-automated motor production facility, the British prime minister put questions about Japan's high technology to Seiuemon Inaba, president of the company. Although British technology is not inferior to that of FANUC, Thatcher said, the problem is how British firms cut down prices.

Commenting on a reported massacre in Palestinian refugee camps in west Beirut, she said those who committed such a cruel thing should be severely condemned. She added that people should express deep concern over the incident, although they must first discover what actually happened there.

Meeting With MITI's Abe

OW200959 Toyko KYODO in English 0945 GMT 20 Sep 82

[Text] Tokyo, September 20, KYODO -- British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Monday she was shocked by the postponement by Nissan Motor Corp. of a decision on setting up a plant but expressed the hope the Japanese auto firm will make an affirmative decision on the issue. Thatcher expressed concern about Japanese exports of machining centers, numerical control equipment to Britain in a meeting with Shintaro Abe, the minister of international trade and industry.

The visiting British leader told Abe she was "shocked" by Nissan Motor's announcement to delay a decision on whether or not to build an automobile plant in her country, a ministry spokesman said. The spokesman said Thatcher expressed the hope Japan's No 2 automaker will make a positive decision on the British venture. She conferred with Nissan Motor Chairman Katsuji Kwamata Sunday in a bid to persuade the maker of Datsun cars and trucks to build a plant in Britain.

In response to her concern about Japan's NC exports, the ministry spokesman said, Abe pointed to a 24 percent decline in NC exports to Britain in terms of value on a yen basis in the April-July period from a year before. The MITI official said the decrease was apparently caused by sluggish demand in Britain.

The two leaders agreed on continuing industrial cooperation between the two countries and Abe said Japan is prepared to accept British engineers for training sessions. The two countries have held two seminars in Tokyo and London last year and in June and a third seminar is slated for November in London.

Abe said the Japanese Government is not happy about European moves to bring the trade issue to the Geneva-based General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. Thatcher said Britain and other European countries are not criticizing Japan's social and cultural structures but simply expect Japan to buy more manufactured products from Western Europe.

Lunch With Emperor

[Text] Tokyo, Sep 20, KYODO -- Visiting British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and her husband Denis were received in audience by Emperior Hirohito Monday at the Imperial Palace. The 30-minute audience, 20 minutes longer than initially scheduled, was their first meeting in about three years. Thatcher visited Japan for the 1979 Tokyo summit of industrial democracies.

The 81-year-old emperor later hosted a luncheon in honor of Mr and Mrs Thatcher. About 40 participants, including Crown Prince Akihito, Princess Michiko, Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi [attended].

Further Talks With Suzuki

OW200709 Tokyo KYODO in English 0623 GMT 20 Sep 82

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 20, KYODO -- Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and his British counterpart Margaret Thatcher agreed to strengthen political dialogue and economic cooperation between the two countries Monday, according to Japanese officials.

The two leaders also shared disgust at the massacre in Palestinian refugee camps in west Beirut, they said.

The second and last round of their meetings, following one last Friday, was termed "fruitful." It lasted for more that two hours in a "cooperative atmosphere," according to officials.

Referring to the Beirut massacre, Mrs Thatcher was quoted as saying that she was "shocked by the horror" and that she had "an abhorence of the atrocity.

Suzuki, saying that he deplored the mass killing, agreed the matter should be discussed at the United Nations for adoption of an adequate resolution calling for withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon.

In regard to the bilateral economic affairs, Thatcher urged Japan to make "very great efforts" to alleviate its trade surplus with Britain which totaled about dollar 1.3 billion in the first half of this year. The British prime minister called for direct investment by Japanese firms in her country and purchase of BAE 146 civil aircraft and Harrier fighters as well as equipment for exploration of off-shore oil fields, the officials said. She said Japan has invested in Britain only in 24 cases, providing 7,000 jobs, compared with 1,000 such investments in her country by the United States.

As for the influx of Japanese goods into Britain, she appreciated the share of Japanese cars in the British market has been held at 11 percent through self-restriction by the Japanese auto makers, but she pointed out numerical controlled machine tools and forklift trucks as striking items in import from Japan.

Suzuki explained Japan's market opening efforts since last year in cutting tariffs and establishing an Office of Trade Ombudsman for dealing grievances in connection with trade with Japan, according to the officials. In regard to the numerical controlled machine tools and forklift trucks, Suzuki said Japan is making them less competitive by setting a bottom price. Mrs Thatcher wished for an agreement for industrial cooperation between the two countries to be concluded as soon as possible, while Suzuki expressed similar hope for early conclusion of a science and technical cooperation agreement, officials said.

Regarding a political dialogue, the two leaders agreed to extend the regular meeting to more frequent talks between the working-level officials and even to private and parliamentary levels, the officials said.

At the request of Mrs Thatcher, Suzuki explained his perception of Chinese thinking, saying that cooperation is necessary not only by Japan but also by the United States and West European nations for development of the country with large potentials. The British prime minister is scheduled to visit China after her stay in Japan until Wednesday.

Mrs Thatcher sought understanding that Britain has no intention to negotiate on possession of the Falkland Islands because Britain secured the islands at the cost of life of several hundred soldiers. Suzuki was non-committal, officials said.

They said the two leaders did not touch the controversial deal of equipment for Siberia gas pipeline construction with the Soviet Union due to lack of time.

National Press Club Speech

OW211027 Tokyo KYODO in English 1007 GMT 21 Sep 82

[Text] Tokyo, Sep 21, KYODO -- Japan's persistent surplus with its major trading partners cannot be allowed to continue without threatening the world's free trade system, Britsh Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said here Tuesday. She said European nations welcomed steps taken by Japan to open its market, but warned we are bound to judge by results.

Speaking at the Japan National Press Club on the closing eve of a six-day official visit to Japan, Thatcher said her talks with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Japanese Government and business leaders had been very friendly. However, she said Japan's ten-year-old trade surplus with the United Kingdom must be rectified and called for greater Japanese investment in Britain, increased industrial cooperation between the two countries and greater Japanese imports of British capital goods.

Thatcher said her talks with Nissan Motor Corp during her stay here were confidential, but any decision by the firm to begin vehicle production in Britain would be warmly welcomed. Noting that only 24 Japanese firms had set up facilities in Britain compared with around 1,000 from the United States and 170 from West Germany, Thatcher said greater Japanese investment would be a significant way of overcoming protectionist sentiment. I believe we got that point across, too, she said.

She also said Britain had put 18 proposals for industrial cooperation ventures to the Japanese Government, compared with only three proposals made so far by the Japanese side.

Describing Japan's market as harder to penetrate than any other in the industrialized world, Thatcher said of 1,700 million pounds worth of British aerospace products exported in 1980, only 30 million pounds worth went to Japan. In the same period, Britain sold over 170 million pounds worth of vehicle components to the United States, 280 million pounds to West Germany, but only 7 million pounds to Japan. Yet because of its size, Britain's trade imbalance with Japan could only be put right by greater Japanese imports of British capital goods, Thatcher said.

Asked about the sanctions imposed by the United States on U.S. technology for the European-Soviet gas pipeline, Thatcher said that had the sanctions been discussed before contracts with the Soviet Union were concluded, the Europeans might have gone along with the U.S. idea. However, she said it was unreasonable for the United States to try to block contracts already freely concluded between West European countries and the Soviet Union. But she said this problem among the allies was small compared with the enormous and overriding interests that unite us.

Thatcher departs Wednesday for China and said that during her talks with Chinese leaders she would be seeking arrangements to keep the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong, whose future as a British crown colony is contingent on a lease which expires in 1997.

SUZUKI COMMENTS ON UPCOMING TRIP TO PRC

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 21 KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Tuesday he intends to directly refer to the textbook issue which recently caused serious Sino-Japanese diplomatic strain when he meets Chinese leaders during his forthcoming visit to China due to start Sunday. He told reporters he was happy about the upcoming six-day official visit to mark the 10th anniversary of the normalization of diplomatic relations between Japan and China.

Concerning the textbook revision controversy, Suzuki said he would tell Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang and other Chinese leaders that Japan will speedily carry out the promise made in a government statement issued late last month to amend distorted accounts of Japanese militaristic actions before and during World War II in Japanese history textbooks. Noting that the issue had stirred the sentiments of the Chinese people, Suzuki told reporters that Japan will pledge to strengthen and expand friendly ties with China in accordance with the principles and spirit of the 1972 Japan-China joint communique. Suzuki also said he wil tell Chinese leaders that Japan will make more efforts for world peace and to ensure that this country will not become a military power threatening its neighbors.

He also said he will sound out Chinese leaders on views about China-Soviet relations amid recent speculation about possible rapprochement between China and the Soviet Union.

Referring to North Korean President Kim Il-song's current visit to China, Suzuki suggested that Kim's visit was not likely to cause any change in relations between North and South Korea but he said he would ask Chinese leaders about China-North Korea relations.

In the field of Sino-Japanese economic cooperation, Japan will ask China to shift its weight to private economic cooperation from yen loans on a government-to-government basis while promising legislative efforts to facilitate that purpose, Suzuki said. Suzuki said he will stress that China's modernization line will lead to peace and stability in Asia and peace and prosperity in the world. He also disclosed his intention to express thanks to Chinese foster parents of Japanese residents orphaned in China.

Suzuki said he favored the issuing of a brief Japan-China joint press communique at the conclusion of his visit, although the question of whether such a communique will be issued is still being discussed through diplomatic channels.

SUZUKI NEGATIVE ON PRC-USSR RAPPROCHEMENT

OW210613 Tokyo KYODO in English 0603 GMT 21 Sep 82

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 21, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Tuesday gave his negative views about possible rapprochement in China-Soviet relations when he met David Watt, visiting director of the British Royal Institute of International Affairs. Suzuki and Watt exchanged views on Asian situations in a 30-minute meeting at the prime minister's official residence here.

When Watt asked Suzuki about recent indications toward rapprochement between China and the Soviet Union, Suzuki said: "It will be difficult for the Soviet Union to meet preconditions demanded by China" for improvement in Beijing-Moscow relations.

Prior to his forthcoming visit to China starting Sunday, Suzuki also said he wants to talk with Chinese leaders on what Japan can do for China while taking first-hand look to the country.

As to situations in Taiwan where Watt visited before coming to Japan, he said both the Taiwanese Government and people were worrying about U.S.-China and U.S.-Taiwan relations but at present Taiwan was convinced of the recent U.S. explanation. Watt said that Taiwan seemed rather uneasy about its domestic economic slump.

Watt paid a courtesy call on Suzuki in return for the prime minister's lecture delivered at the British institute when he visited Britain in June last year.

The China visit of the great leader is an epochal event in further cementing and developing anew the blood-sealed militant friendship and solidarity between the Korean and Chinese parties, countries and peoples.

To constantly consolidate and develop Korea-China friendship is a unanimous desire of the two peoples. It is a great contribution to energetically pushing ahead with the socialist and communist construction in the two countries and promoting the common cause of the peoples in Asia and the rest of the world.

Sichuan Province is a place with a long history and with the brilliant footsteps of the Chinese revolution. It is also the place which, under the slogan "Resist America, aid Korea, safeguard the homeland and defend the nation," positively helped our people during the Korean war by sending to the Korean frontlines a great number of excellent sons and daughters, including heroes (Hwang Chaegwang) and (Ku Songun), as members of the Volunteers' Army. Since our arrival here, we have experienced the Chinese people's invariably warm, fraternal friendship and militant solidarity with the Korean people. We have also witnessed and been impressed with the successes which, adhering to the line and policies of the CPC, the people of Sichuan and Chengdu have attained in socialist revolution and construction. The happy life blossoming in this province clearly shows that the aspirations, which the people of this province have long cherished, have been finally realized in this era in which the CPC leads China. We firmly believe that, by more greatly displaying the revolutionary spirit of independence, sovereignty and self-reliance together with the Chinese people [as heard], you will win a new victory in achieving the grand tasks for the modernization of socialism.

The Korean people, who have always shared life and death, weal and woe with the Chinese brothers on the same road of revolution, value all your successes as their own and draw great inspiration from them.

We are greatly happy to have such a reliable revolutionary comrade-in-arms as the Chinese people for our neighbor and will make all efforts in the future to further consolidate and develop the Korea-China friendship as times goes by.

Esteemed comrades and friends, at this place, overflowing with fraternal friendship and friendly feelings, I propose a toast to the everlasting and imperishable friendship and unity between the Korean and Chinese peoples, to the flourishing and prosperity of the PRC, to the good health and long life of respected Comrade Deng Xiaoping, to the good health and long life of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the good health of Comrade Tan Qilong and the good health of comrades and friends here.

NODONG SINMUN CONDEMNS SOUTH'S NAVAL EXERCISE

SK190419 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0407 GMT 19 Sep 82

[Text] Pyongyang, September 19 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN September 19 comes out with a commentary captioned "Heading for Destruction" flaying the provocative naval firing exercise staged by the Chon Tu-hwan group in many parts of West and South Seas.

Noting that the South Korean puppets are kicking up a dust of war more frequently these days on the instructions of the U.S. imperialists, the author of the commentary says:

The military rehearsals of the puppets are taking place at a time when the anti-U.S. struggle for independence is growing daily and the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule is facing a serious crisis in South Korea. This indicates that their war clamour is a premeditated and deliberate war gamble for inciting confrontation with us and strengthening fascist tyranny by creating a war climate at the dictates of the U.S. imperialists.

While raising the war clamour, the puppets faked up a "spying case" and scheme to frame up what they call "model school children's corps" in an effort to foster antagonism and confrontation within the nation and intensify suppression of the patriotic students and people. This is not accidental.

It is an urgent demand of the time and the nation to force the U.S. imperialist aggression troops to withdraw from South Korea, ease tension and accelerate the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. At such a moment, the Chon Tu-hwan group, at the request of the U.S. imperialists, is kicking up a war racket, seeking distrust and antagonism between fellow countrymen and cracking down upon the people more harshly. This is an unpardonable treachery against independence, democracy and peaceful reunification.

The Chon Tu-hwan group, finding itself in a fix, isolated from the people, is fanning war fever in an attempt to find a way out in the policy of military confrontation. The puppets hope to maintain the colonial terror rule by making military threats against the South Korean people's anti-U.S. struggle for independence and their anti-"government" struggle, diverting their attention elsewhere through the furtherance of the spirit of confrontation and intensifying fascist repression.

But this is a mistake. The defunct puppets met their doom while doing so. Now the Chon Tu-hwan group is following in the footsteps of its predecessors. The puppets should draw a lesson from the end of their predecessors and stop running riot and promptly give up the play with fire.

KIM CHONG-IL REMARKS CITED ON U.S. 'ATROCITY'

SK210024 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 16 Sep 82

[Station reporters' travelogue on the Sinchon Museum from the "Ray of Guidance" program]

[Excerpts] Last June, our reporter team visited the Sinchon Museum in Sinchon-up, Sinchon County, South Hwanghae Province located 300 ri south of Pyongyang. Sinchon-up is the place where, occupied for 50 days during the Korean war, the U.S. imperialist aggressors committed atrocities, slaughtering 35,000 inhabitants, one-fourth the total population of Sinchon County.

At the Sinchon Museum, which was opened on 25 June 1960, materials showing the atrocities committed by the U.S. imperialist aggressors during the Korean war and the history of their aggression against Korea for the past 100 years are displayed in detail.

Upon arrival in the museum, we looked around the exhibitions. In the first room of the museum, a guide said: On 23 January 1962, 20 years ago, the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il visited this museum. Looking around the exhibitions he gave us valuable teachings. Having heard such a significant story by the guide, we felt as if we were inspecting the museum, directly accompanying him.

Explaining the exhibitions with a voice of hatred, the guide said that the dear comrade leader had said: The U.S. imperialists [words indistinct] have imposed countless misfortunes and sufferings on our people. There was no place in our land of 3,000 ri where the U.S. imperialists failed to set their feet. Everywhere they set foot, the blood of the people was shed. The modern history of our nation is a (?warning) indicating the vicious crimes committed by the U.S. imperialists. No matter how long a time may elapse, the aggressive nature of the imperialists will not change. The great leader has taught that our people should struggle against the imperialists to the end until they have met their doom. Indeed, these remarks by the dear comrade leader revealed that his will against the United States and the imperialists was vigorously burning.

We looked around various evidence showing the large-scale massacre in Sinchon perpetrated by the U.S. rascals and the exhibitions displaying the remains of the slaughtered patriots and inhabitants. Cherishing burning hatred and indignation against the U.S. imperialists, we entered an exhibition room where the blood-stained clothes, shoes and burned hairs of the Sinchon inhabitants mercilessly slaughtered by the U.S. imperialists were displayed.

According to the guide, seeing this (?miserable) evidence, the dear comrade leader was unable to repress his surging indignation and hatred and said: Indeed, this is a heart-rending thing. [passage indistinct] We should not have any illusions about U.S. imperialism. The brutal nature of imperialism will never change. We must beat the imperialists -- who are wolves devouring men -- to death.

These remarks by the dear comrade leader have excited our hearts to further burn with the hatred and hostile feeling against our inveterate enemies.

These remarks by the dear comrade leader in Sinchon have excited our hearts to burn with the hatred and indignation against the U.S. imperialist aggressors more strongly.

Having completed the inspection of the Sinchon Museum, we have come to more strongly feel that our revolutionary struggle for national liberation and against the United States to drive out the U.S rascals and to regain (?national sovereignty) is an urgent demand of the times and is the utmost task arising before our revolutionaries and patriotic people. We left the Sinchon Museum, cherishing our will to struggle against the United States and for national salvation more deeply in our hearts in accordance with the teachings of the dear comrade leader Kim Chong-il.

DFRF TALK URGES MOVEMENT TO RESCUE KIM TAE-CHUNG

[Talk issued 17 September by Yo Yon-ku, director of the Secretariat of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland [DFRF] -- read by announcer]

[Text] It is two years since, under the manipulation of the U.S. imperialists, the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique sentenced South Korean democratic figure Kim Tae-chung to death on fabricated charges at the first trial held by the military court in the headquarters of the puppet army.

Expressing a deep concern over the circumstances in which Kim Tae-chung has been suffering from hardships in prison, being bestially suppressed and maltreated by the fascist hangmen, and in which he has been facing life-threatening danger, I issue this talk with the desire for rescuing him soon.

As is already well known to the world, the death sentence imposed on Kim Tae-chung on 17 September 2 years ago was unwarranted. The death sentence was an act of political suppression totally fabricated by the U.S. imperialists and premeditatedly committed by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique.

Dismayed at the unprecedented growth of the movement for democratization and for reunification in South Korea since the October incident by which the former dictator was eliminated, the U.S. imperialists, in an effort to cope with the crisis in their colonial rule, established a more truculent military fascist, dictatorial system than the Yusin dictatorship and launched a knavish fascist offensive against democratic forces, including Kim Tae-chung, and forces seeking peaceful reunification. Though they cried for the protection of human rights, babbling about regret and the like, the U.S. imperialists, indeed, were the ringleaders who egged the South Korean puppets on to fascist suppression and murderous acts and the masterminds who instigated them to impose the death penalty on Kim Tae-chung on the fake charges at the court-martial. The U.S. imperialists were also the ones who, when the unjustifiable act of trying Kim Tae-chung and passing a death sentence on him faced a strong protest and denunciation from impartial public opinion, wrote the scenario for the Chon Tu-hwan ring to perform in commuting the death sentence to life imprisonment and then to 20 years in prison. The commutation following the U.S. imperialists' scenario was aimed at lulling the rising public opinion and at seeking stability for their colonial rule over South Korea.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring has not only suppressed Kim Tae-chung according to the U.S. imperialists' script, but, in a conspiracy with its masters, has attempted to physically liquidate him in prison. Kim Tae-chung, who is imprisoned in a solitary cell at Chongju prison, is almost treated as if he were a criminal under a death sentence. Visits from his family are restricted; newspapers are withheld; and, according to a report, he is suffering from all kinds of hardships, including an aggravating stomachache and neuralgia in a narrow and musty cell. In his letter to his wife on 29 July, Kim Tae-chung said that the days in the cell of Chongju prison are the most difficult ones of his life.

Dissatisfied with plunging Kim Tae-chung into a deadly situation, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique is plotting to murder him secretly. According to a report, the Chon Tu-hwan ring is hatching a horrible scheme to kill Kim Tae-chung either by putting poison in his food or by injecting poison on the pretense of medical treatment. Every fact clearly confirms that the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan ring are the heinous stranglers of human rights and the truculent enemies of democracy and peaceful reunification.

The fate of Kim Tae-chung is hanging in the balance. He is confronted with danger that may end his life on the gallows at any moment. I think that any Korean, if conscientious, will never just sit back and watch the fate of Kim Tae-chung, who has ardently demanded democracy and peaceful reunification.

The movement for rescuing Kim Tae-chung is linked to the struggle to make South Korea an independent, democratic society and to reunify the country in a peaceful way. To resolve the Kim Tae-chung question, we must force the U.S. imperialist aggressors to withdraw from South Korea, eradicate their colonial rule and simultaneously overthrow traitor Chon Tu-hwan, the faithful stooge of the U.S. imperialists.

All the compatriots at home and abroad should more vigorously wage the struggle to rescue Kim Tae-chung, closely combining the movement for rescuing Kim Tae-chung with the anti-U.S. struggle for independence in South Korea. The U.S. imperialists should clearly watch the reality of South Korea where the anit-U.S. waves for independence are vehemently surging, stop the play of inciting the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique that is bent on fascism, treachery and division and on suppressing the democratic personages and patriots, including Kim Tae-chung, and immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along all weapons for aggression. The Chon Tu-hwan ring must stop the fascist suppression of the democratic personages and patriots, including Kim Tae-chung, and the treacherous and nation-selling act of leaving South Korea to the U.S. imperialists permanently and step down from power without delay.

In the future, too, as in the past, we will continue to positively support the righteous patriotic struggle of the South Korean and overseas compatriots who, upholding the anti-U.S. banner for independence, are fighting to force the U.S. imperialist aggressors to withdraw from South Korea, end their colonial rule and interference with internal affairs, democratize South Korean society and reunify the country in an independent and peaceful way.

NODONG SINMUN Article

SK182256 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1528 GMT 18 Sep 82

[Text] Pyongyang, September 18 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today comes out with a signed article titled "U.S. Imperialists' Scheme To Put Kim Tae-chung on Political Altar Is Unpardonable" on the lapse of two years since the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique passed a death sentence upon democratic figure Kim Tae-chung.

Recalling that, unable to execute the death sentence on him, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique "commuted" it to "life imprisonment" and then to "20 years in prison," the article says:

The death sentence passed by the Chon Tu-hwan murderous gang on democratic figure Kim Tae-chung and its "commutation" were not its own invention. They were, to all intents and purposes, a political burlesque staged under the manipulation and instructions of U.S. imperialism, its master.

U.S. imperialism is the very one strangling democracy and human rights of the South Korean people and the backstage manipulator of all the brutal repression and murder committed by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique.

The persecution of democratic figure Kim Tae-chung by the Chon Tu-hwan group is also wirepulled by U.S. imperialism. Dismayed at the rapidly growing action of democratic figures including Kim Tae-chung and patriotic students, the U.S. imperialists secretly ordered the Chon Tu-hwan clique to remove Kim Tae-chung from the political scene. "Promptly take a retaliatory step: Arrest Kim Tae-chung and tear off his limbs or throw him into a ditch after killing him." "If Kim Tae-chung is left alone, its all up with us. We must get rid of him. Do away with Kim Tae-chung with the expansion of the scope of the emergency martial law." These orders issued by traitor Chon Tu-hwan to his top-class servants were nothing but murderous orders from the U.S. imperialists.

After faking up charges against Kim Tae-chung through savage tortures, the fascist clique sentenced him to death in accordance with the script of their master.

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique acted upon the script of the U.S. imperialists in "commuting" his penalties twice. This manipulation of the U.S. imperialists was made crystal clear when the U.S. authorities blurted: "The death sentence on Kim Tae-chung must be commuted to life imprisonment to tone down public opinion at home and abroad and save the face of the United States". The "commutation" was a humbuggery which can be committed only by the U.S. imperialists who resort to every conceivable intrigue to maintain their colonial repressive rule over other nations and by the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique who stoop to any infamy in seeking personal ease and pleasure and gratifying their greed for power.

This notwithstanding, the U.S. imperialists feign innocence, as if they have nothing to do with the conspiracy to kill Kim Tae-chung, expressing "regret" and "concern" like a murderer mourning the death of his victim. With no crafty ruse can they conceal their true colour as the very one responsible for the scheme to kill Kim Tae-chung, stresses the article.

NEW YOUTH GROUP IN SOUTH KOREA DENOUNCED

CPRF Information 230

SK181108 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0816 GMT 18 Sep 82

[Text] Pyongyang, September 18 (KCNA) -- The Secretariat of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] made public Information No. 230 on September 17, denouncing the scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique to trump up the "Model Students Corps of the Federation of Youth and Children," an anti-communist fascist organisation, with young students. The information says:

The South Korean puppets started on September 14 the formation of the "Model Students Corps of the Federation of Youth and Children" with primary, middle and high school students. In working hard to form this sham organisation the Chon Tu-hwan group seeks a sinister scheme to use simple-minded youth and children in maintaining the colonial military fascist rule of the U.S. imperialists and realising its wild ambition for long-term office. This group tries to forcibly enlist school children into the fascist organisation and train them into slaves obedient to it from their young age.

The Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland considers this move to be an anti-national crime of benumbing the chajusong (independence) and fighting spirit of youth and children and bringing them up to be colonial slaves of the U.S. imperialists, and vehemently denounces this.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique of traitors should give up at once the heinous scheme to prolong its remaining days and realise its wild ambition for long-term office by making them servants of foreign forces and fascists. The South Korean school children and youth and their parents should not be inveigled into the scheme of the Chon Tu-hwan clique to frame up a "government"-controlled organisation of youth and children, but check and frustrate it.

NODONG SINMUN Commentary

[NODONG SINMUN 18 September commentary: "Traitor's Dirty Farce"]

[Text] On 14 September the South Korean puppets announced that they will organize a students model corps to be composed of primary, middle and high school students through a government-patronized organization called the Korea Youth League. It is said that this organization is to implant the view of the nation among juveniles. The contents of the so-called view of the nation that Chon Tu-hwan has clamored about are already well known to the world.

As has been proved by all facts, the Chon Tu-hwan ring, while trying to imbue the people with anticommunist idea and pro-U.S. and pro-Japanese flunkeyist idea, has noisily told the people that they can survive only by maintaining the posture of North-South confrontation internally and by relying upon foreign forces externally.

The so-called view of the nation that the puppets are clamoring about is, in a nutshell, a trecherous and antinational idea and view to confront the nation and advance hand in hand with foreign forces.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring's attempt to organize the students model corps composed of primary, middle and high school students, clamoring about the establishment of the view of the nation, is a dangerous scheme to forcibly implant its distorted idea of selling the country and the nation even among juveniles. Needless to say, this is an intolerable criminal act. What Chon Tu-hwan has perpetrated thus far in South Korea is only his desperate act to freeze division by kicking off rackets of confrontation against us, while carrying foreign forces on its back.

Today, numerous South Korean youths and students have been forcibly organized into such a paramilitary organization as the Student Defense Corps and have been forced to receive military training to become cannon fodder. All human and material resources have been utilized in the preparations of a war of northward invasion. All of this is an aftermath of the Chon Tu-hwan ring's rackets for confrontation.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring's plot to organize the student's model corps has faced the strong opposition and rejection of the people. The South Korean people, youths and students will by no means want to become the victims of the racket for confrontation. The puppets' talking about "recruitment of volunteers" is nothing but a hurried voice uttered in the face of the resistance of the people, youths and students. By further fanning distrust and antagonism among the nation, making fraudulent use of the name of the nation, the Chon Tu-hwan ring has tried to soothe the ever-growing anti-U.S. sentiment for independence and the movement against fascism and for democracy in South Korea, to freeze the division of the country and to realize its wild ambition for long-term power through the military fascist dictatorship. The schemes to organize the students' model corps are a dirty farce in a bid to utilize young students and juveniles in such criminal plots.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring is the most vicious traitor among the successive puppets and is a group of anticommunist confrontation. In the past, Hitler also fabricated a youth organization and ran wild to implant the Nazi idea of aggression among youths in a bid to realize his wild ambition to dominate the world. But he finally met his doom. Following the case of Hitler, traitor Syngman Rhee was also engrossed in treachery and treason and anticommunist confrontation, clamoring about "Hwarangdo spirit." But he met his doom in the face of the stern judgment of the nation.

Today the Chon Tu-hwan ring is following the footsteps of those who had met their dooms in the face of the judgment of history and the people, calling their departed souls. The Chon Tu-hwan ring must renounce the confrontation schemes of trampling underfoot the intelligence and future of the nation under the mask of the nation. Getting entangled in schemes to fabricate the students' model corps means getting entangled in the treacherous, fascist and war farce of the puppets. Therefore, all students and juveniles as well as men of sense oppose the establishment of the organization. The South Korean people, youths and students will never tolerate the antinational criminal act of the puppets.

HERALD REPORTS PRC FIGHTERS SUPPLIED TO NORTH

[Text] Tokyo (YONHAP) -- Mainland China provided North Korea with more than 20 A5 fighter planes, its improved model of the MIG 21, early this year, the SANKEI SHIMBUN reported Saturday, quoting Japanese Government sources.

SANKEI said China's strengthened military assistance to North Korea might have a large impact on the military situation of East Asia, since it is regarded as part of China's new global strategy connected with Beijing's movements to alter its foreign policy. Among the indications of change are Chinese top leader Deng Xiaoping's visit to Pyongyang last April, Beijing's invitation and "enthusiastic" welcome this time of North Korean leader Kim Il-song, Beijing's allusion to a possible improvement of relations with Moscow and scathing criticism of Japan's militarism.

It was the first time for China to supply North Korea with A5 fighters, the most sophisticated of Chinese aircraft. In 1975, China provided North Korea with 50 MIG-19s of its own making. The newspaper said 45 fighter planes were sent to North Korean air force bases directly from assembling factories in China. The issues was brought up in the last U.S.-Japan security consultative meeting in Honolulu during which Japan projected the number at 20 whereas the United States estimated 40, the newspaper said.

Up to now, China has cautiously provided North Korea with crude oil, AN2 planes and T62 tanks, expressing fears that excessive military strength might prompt North Korea to make adventurous moves. The supply of A5 fighter planes, therefore, is interpreted as a change in China's cautious attitude toward military assistance to North Korea. Japanese military specialists said MIG-21s, though outmoded, are still powerful in launching preemptive strikes, and that MIG-21s are an important weaponry to China which is seeking a modernization of its armed forces. The specialists shared the view that it is unusual for China to provide 20, or half of its annual production of 40 planes, to North Korea. They voiced fears that such Chinese military assistance to North Korea, if continued, would seriously affect the military situation of East Asia including the Republic of Korea and Japan.

This military assistance is deeply connected with China's new global strategy, Japanese Government sources said, noting that China and North Korea have made secret efforts to improve their relations since last year and that China is making moves to improve ties with the Soviet Union.

ROK URGES UN EFFORT TO SOLVE KOREAN QUESTION

SK210313 Seoul YONHAP in English 0254 GMT 21 Sep 82

[Text] Seoul, Sept. 21 (YONHAP) -- The Foreign Ministry Tuesday called upon the United Nations to help create international conditions conducive to the peaceful settlement of the Korean question. "South Korea calls upon the international community to help reduce tension and establish peace on the Korean Peninsula, the ministry said in a statement issued on the occasion of the first International Day of Peace. The establishment of peace in this part of the world will greatly contribute to strengthening international peace and security not only in Northeast Asia but in the world as a whole," the statement said.

Saying that Koreans regard U.N.-declared International Day of Peace as "important" in light of tension on the Korean Peninsula, the statement stressed that "South Korea, which has experienced a fratricidal war, is determined to prevent the recurrence of war in Korea." It further said that Korea wished to join the international community in reaffirming its commitment to world peace and security according to the purposes and principles of the U.N. Charter.

Pointing out that the declaration of the International Day of Peace is very significant because it was adopted for the first time by consensus at the U.N. General Assembly, the statement said that U.N. will be able to play as effective and decisive role as the Charter envisages and to strengthen its capacity to keep the peace. The International Day of Peace was adopted by the 36th General Assembly of the United Nations Nov. 30, 1981.

HUN SEN PROTESTS 'CRIMINALS' PRESENCE AT UN

[Text] On Thursday 17 September, Hun Sen, minister of foreign affairs, sent a telegram to Perez de Cuellar, secretary general of the United Nations, and to Imree Hollai, chairman of the 37th session of the UN General Assembly, sharply protesting against the presence at the United Nations of genocidal criminals and their accomplices in the name of Kampuchea, a presence which he called "immoral, illegal and contrary to the spirit of the UN Charter". Following is, substantially, the text of the telegram:

Knowing that representatives of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan criminals continue to dishonor the prestige of the United Nations with their presence at the 37th session, I would like to express the deep indignation of the more than 6 million inhabitants of the PRK -- the recent victims of these criminals who still pretend to represent them at this august assembly. The so-called "Democratic Kampuchea" is only a genocidal regime hated and overthrown by the Kampuchean people, condemned by and sickening to peace- and justice-loving peoples all over the world who insist on its exclusion from the international scene. Recently, the reactionary forces, their masters, forced them to unite with other traitors to the nation under the new label of the so-called "Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea" hastily set up in a foreign capital to fool international opinion, to hide the criminals' odious face, to maintain tension in Southeast Asia and, in particular, to reimpose this genocidal regime on the Kampuchean people.

For all these reasons, in the name of the National assembly, the Council of State, the Council of Ministers and the entire Kampuchean people, I am taking the liberty of raising a sharp protest against the presence of these genocidal criminals and their accomplices in this assembly.

This presence is immoral, illegal, contrary to the spirit of the UN Charter, contrary to the aspirations and interests of the reborn Kampuchean people, and constitutes an insult to the memory of the more than 3 million Kampucheans savagely massacred and a blow against the universal conscience. In the name of morality, of justice and for its prestige, the United Nations must expel these genocidal criminals as the Nonaligned Movement has done and restore the Kampuchean seat at the United Nations to the People's Republic of Kampuchea -- the sole authentic and legitimate representative of the Kampuchean people.

In this spirit, we insist on the participation of a PRK delegation at this current session. Meanwhile, as proclaimed at the sixth conference of the foreign ministers of the three Indochinese countries held at Ho Chi Minh City on 7 July 1982, the PRK does not insist on the immediate restoration of its right to representation at the United Nations if the United Nations expels the genocidal criminals and their associates.

The so-called "Kampuchean problem" does not exist and is only a plot by the U.S. imperialists and the Chinese and regional reactionaries to interfere in the internal affairs of the Kampuchean people. All resolutions relating to Kampuchea adopted without PRK representatives present are considered null and void and constitute a flagrant and inadmissible interference in the internal affairs of Kampuchea.

I will be grateful to you for the circulation of this telegram as an official document of the 37th session of the UN General Assembly.

Excellencies, accept the assurances of my highest consideration.

He later asked them to do their best to fulfill this season's agricultural production plan and to obtain a good harvest.

He stressed that national unity and close cooperation with Vietnam are decisive factors of the Kampuchean revolution's victory. The so-called "tripartite coalition government" of the traitorous Sihanouk, Khieu Samphan and Son Sann only serves the interests of the Chinese expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists.

Chea Sim called on cadres to carry out agitation work among the people to guide them to consolidate the armed and security forces and to increase their vigilance against the enemy's perfidious maneuvers.

DK FOREIGN MINISTRY DENOUNCES IOC VISIT TO SRV

BK200424 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 19 Sep 82

[Statement issued 18 September by the spokesman of the Democratic Kampuchean Foreign Ministry]

[Text] Recently, when the International Olympic Committee [IOC] visited Hanoi, the Le Duan Vietnamese clique lured this international organization to contact and recognize the Vietnamese aggressors' administration in Phnom Penh in order to use this connection within the framework of their common maneuver to legitimize Vietnamese aggression in Kampuchea.

The Hanoi Vietnam clique has become more bogged down on the military battlefield and is more isolated on the international scene. They are trying to extricate themselves from this impasse by taking available opportunities to stage such dirty tricks.

The Government of Democratic Kampuchea categorically denounces and condemns this new maneuver of the Hanoi Vietnamese. The Vietnamese administration in Phnom Penh is only a shadow of the Vietnamese aggressor's troops in Kampuchea. Various organizations -- political, economic, cultural, sports -- created by the Hanoi Vietnamese clique in Phnom Penh are all instruments to serve their aggression in Democratic Kampuchea.

Therefore, the Government of Democratic Kampuchea would like to appeal to the IOC not to have contacts with the administration or sports organization in Phnom Penh. If any contact between the IOC and the Vietnamese administration in Phnom Penh is established, the Hanoi Vietnamese clique will undoubtedly use this relationship in their propaganda to legitimize their aggression in Kampuchea. The only legitimate organization is the Kampuchean National Olympic Committee subordinated to the Government of Democratic Kampuchea -- a member of the United Nations.

Comrade Souphanouvong expressed his pleasure at welcoming Comrade Stanko Todorov and his party -- the first top-level delegation of the Bulgarian National Assembly to pay an official friendship visit to Laos, a country which has been liberated and is marching toward socialism. He also wished the delegation a happy and successful visit so as to enhance the profound friendship, solidarity and brotherhood within the same socialist family between the two parties, states and peoples of Laos and Bulgaria. Comrade Stanko Todorov expressed appreciation for the friendly and hospitable welcome accorded him and his delegation.

The guest and the host then held talks on issues that reflected the traditions of heroic struggle and the great victories scored by the two peoples of Laos and Bulgaria under the clear-sighted leadership of the genuine Marxist-Leninist parties. Airport Interview

[Interview given on 20 September by Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila to unidentified newsmen at Bangkok airport -- recorded]

[Text] [Sitthi] The prime minister has assigned me to work on many things, including our trade with EEC members and the United States. We have been cooperating with the EEC in the economic field, and the prime minister has asked me to work in accordance with what he had earlier agreed upon with them. During this trip, I will be acting as a representative of both Thailand and ASEAN. I might be questioned about the establishment of the rubber and tin associations. I will also discuss our enrollment in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, tapioca exports and the crop substitution program which is aimed at encouraging our farmers to grow other crops instead of tapioca.

[Question] Would you please tell us about our effort to lobby for support for the Kampuchean Government in the United Nations?

[Answer] The Vietnamese and Heng Samrin officials have also been sent to foreign countries to gather support. I believe we can do better.

[Question] Do you mean Vietnam is trying to keep the Kampuchean seat vacant this year?

[Answer] That is impossible. They can try, but we know all their tricks and have foiled them all.

[Question] What about support from the West European countries?

[Answer] We have gained more support from them. The Netherlands will also vote for us. EEC officials told me on Friday that if the former one-party Kampuchean Government can acquire sufficient votes in the United Nations, the new tripartite coalition government should be able to draw more votes. Take it easy. You wait and see. We have been doing our best.

[Question] What will you discuss with Mr Weinberger?

[Answer] I do not want to talk about this matter because it is a military affair assigned to me by the prime minister and General Saiyut. It will probably pertain to what General Saiyut did during his last trip to the United States.

[Question] For instance?

[Answer] Military aid. We will request an increase in financial assistance.

SRV RELEASE OF THAI TRAWLERS, CREWMEN REPORTED

[Text] Samutsakhon -- Two of the four Thai fishing trawlers captured by the Vietnamese last week have been released along with a total of about 90 crewmen, Samutsakhon Fishery radio centre reported. The centre, quoting radio messages received from Thai trawlers fishing in international waters near Vietnam, said the two Thai vessels already released were the Chaisak Nawi 3 and the Siriphairot 10. They are expected to arrive in this province today. The two vessels and the other two fishing trawlers -- the Lakchai Udomsak 9 and the Thanandon Nawa -- were reported seized by armed Vietnamese vessels last Thursday while fishing in international waters near Vietnam.

The radio message quoted some of the released crewmen as saying that the Lakchai Udomsak 9 and the Thanandon Nawa are being detained at O-B Yai [name as published] Island near Vietnam along with other fishing vessels previously captured by the Vietnamese, the centre said. The crewmen also said it is likely that the captured vessels will soon be released as "the Vietnamese are running out of food to feed their prisoners."

The centre quoted the radio message as saying that one of the trawlers released, the Siriphairot, had to be towed back by the Chaisak Nawi since the boat had been stripped of all equipment and engines by the Vietnamese. The message also said that three crewmen -- two aboard the Siriphairot and another aboard the Lakchai Udomsak -- had been killed when the pursuing Vietnamese vessel opened fire on the trawlers. The Vietnamese later disposed of the bodies by throwing them overboard, the centre said.

SRV REINFORCEMENTS REPORTED NEAR EASTERN BORDER

[Text] Aranyaprathet -- Field military sources yesterday confirmed previous reports that the Vietnamese have moved up more troops and military equipment to reinforce their positions along the eastern Thai border. The sources said they are now sure that the Vietnamese 302nd and 10th Divisions are replacing troops that were pulled out from along the Thai border opposite Prachin Buri, Chanthaburi, and Buri Ram. They said that more heavy weapons, such as 130mm and 155mm cannons, are being brought to the Vietnamese bases there.

On Sunday, heavy fighting erupted between Khmer Rouge guerrillas and Vietnamese forces at Ban Thapsiam, near Phnum Chhat Mountain opposite Ta Phraya District of Prachin Buri.

The two sides exchanged artillery, recoilless rifle and mortar fire from 7:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. According to the sources, three Khmer Rouge were killed and two wounded, while the Vietnamese casualties were not known.

PROJECTS ADOPTED TO EASE TENSIONS WITH MALAYSIA

BK210752 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 21 Sep 82

[Text] The Thai-Malaysian General Border Committee has agreed to carry out three projects to reduce tension along the Thai-Malaysian border and to boost the economy of the border areas between the two countries.

The first project is the construction of a lighthouse worth about 5 million baht at the Golok River to reduce conflicts along the border river. Chief of the Thai-Malaysian Regional Border Committee Col Wirat Malaiwong says the lighthouse will enable fishermen to know whether their trawlers are sailing in Thai or Malaysian waters. Colonel Wirat says that when a crime takes place on the Golok River it will be easy to be known which country will be responsible for the probe into the incident.

The second project is the building of two ferries in Takbai District of the southern Province of Narathiwat. The project will enable automobiles and trucks to be ferried across the river for the first time. It will also help facilitate communications between people on both sides of the river and will indirectly boost the economies of both banks.

Another project is the utilization of a water reservoir in the southern province of Satun and a possibility of Thailand to sell fresh water to Malaysia. A preliminary feasibility study on this project is being conducted with a 1-million baht budget.

GENERAL RULES OUT 'QUIET COUP,' CITES UNITED ARMY

[Text] A ranking army officer yesterday ruled out a "quiet coup" in the coming months, as predicted by well-known political analyst Dr Chaianan Samutthawanit.

Deputy Commander of the First Army Region Maj-Gen Phat Urailoet said he didn't believe there would be a "quiet coup" because "the people do not want it."

Major General Phat, who was named commander of the First Army Region in the recent military reshuffle, maintained that the army was united and fully supported the next army commander-in-chief, Gen Athit Kamlangek. He disclosed that a number of guidelines in combating the communists were adopted during a meeting called last Friday by General Athit of the police, military officials and civil servants.

They include calls for unit commanders to explain to their subordinates the essence of the government's anticommunist strategy and promotion of development projects, particularly those with royal sponsorship.

LE DUC THO DISCUSSES COOPERATIVE MANAGEMENT

Part One

OW071113 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 4 Sep 82

["Part One" of talk by VCP Political Bureau member Le Duc Tho: "On the Question of Developing New Factors and Perfecting the New Management System in Agricultural Cooperatives" -- read by announcer; date not given]

[Text] Comrade Le Duc Tho, Political Bureau member and secretary of the party Central Committee, recently made an inspection tour of Vu Thang, Nong Vinh, Dong Quang, Ninh Quang, Phu Luong, Hai Van, Khanh Phu and Loc Ha cooperatives and of Dong Hung, Hai Hau and Nam Ninh Districts in Thai Binh and Ha Nam Ninh Provinces to study and get a clear view of the management status of agricultural cooperatives. The first part of his talk "On the Question of Developing New Factors and Perfecting the New Management System in Agricultural Cooperatives," given at the end of the tour, follows:

During the past half month, I have toured eight cooperatives and three districts in Thai Binh and Ha Nam Ninh Provinces, primarily to extensively study the status of agricultural cooperatives that are applying the product contract system. Many advanced, average and mediocre cooperatives have applied this contractual system while others have applied the piecework contract system and some localities have awarded contracts without specified quotas. I have obtained some initial results in grasping the general situation. It would be better if I had the time to spend a few more days or a couple of weeks in the villages to meet more people engaged in productive labor.

During this tour, my objective was to study the application of the new management system in grassroots agricultural establishments and concentrate efforts on completing the study of a particular issue. However, I have to start by analyzing the general situation because any issue is related to other issues and to the party's line and policies. At present, an important issue closely related to other issues is knowing where we are along the path to socialism. It implies a thorough understanding of the party's line and the determination of appropriate forms, steps, measures and polcies in the implementation of tasks in each stage.

As pointed out by the fourth party congress, we are now at the beginning of the transition period to socialism. The fifth party congress has determined the steps to be taken during the transitional period of the 1980's. What is this transitional period? What are the characteristics of the present road? I have some suggestions as food for thought.

According to a review conducted by Marxist-Leninist theoreticians, a society's movement from capitalism to communism must go through three periods -- transitional, socialist and communist -- whose contents, steps and speeds are different in each country. The transitional period has many profound and thorough transformations: the emergence and growth of the socialist national economic system, the improvement and perfection of production relations, the intensification of socialist production forces and the conception and development of socialism. It is a period in which socialism appears, but is not completely achieved. As pointed out by Lenin, this period is composed of many years of the most painful difficulties and characterized by the toughest struggle between the socialist and capitalist roads. The special economic character of this period is the existence of many economic components.

Our country has been unified, but has not yet achieved economic unity. There are three economic components in the north and five in the south. All peasants and the bulk of artisans in the north have joined the cooperatives. The majority of peasants and artisans in the south still work separately. We must continue to transform trade in the north and industry and trade in the south. For this reason, we must transform and consolidate production relations, adopt a correct policy toward each component, and strengthen and develop the leading role of the socialist economic components. This is the only way we can avoid leftist or rightist tendencies.

Since there are many economic components, Lenin predicted that a complicated situation could not be avoided. He said that all difficulties and all complexities involving a policy reside in the fact that the special tasks for the transitional period must be taken into account.

Our country is advancing toward socialism by bypassing the period of capitalist development. This can be done because Vietnam's revolution is occurring at a time when the entire world is going through the period of transition from capitalism to socialism under the leadership of the party of the proletariat, and when the socialist system is developing vigorously as a decisive factor in the development of human society. This is the best way to shorten the process of the capitalist development period which is full of hardships. This means that we are advancing toward socialism from a state of backward agricultural production, primarily with the bulk of laborers working as artisans and without a large mechanical industry as a material premise of socialism. We must gradually advance from small-scale production to socialist, large-scale production. In this advance during the transitional period, which is replete with difficulties, we must climb many winding steps. Our country had to conduct the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation after the war against French colonialism. Wartime was coupled with construction. While we are concentrating efforts on gradually overcoming the difficulties in building socialism at present, we must still cope with a many-sided war of sabotage and stand ready to cope with a situation in which the enemy may start a large-scale war of aggression.

We must review this situation to be aware that our advance from small-scale production -- at a time when there are many complicated domestic and international developments -- must encounter many difficulties and hardships in the initial stage of the transitional period. We must also be aware of generalities as well as particulars.

As everyone knows, the process of achieving socialist large-scale production in a small country like ours is quite different from that of other socialist countries. Because we have little experience, we must learn while working. During our advance, we must improve production relations and gradually exercise the working people's mastery in the economic sphere. However, what is decisive is achieving socialist industrialization because socialist large-scale production requires the material and technical bases of socialism, that is, a large mechanized industry which, as Lenin put it, can help achieve agricultural transformation.

Socialist industrialization is the central task for the transitional period. Over the past years, we have exerted efforts in transformation and construction and scored initial achievements. In order to achieve industrialization, we must take the appropriate steps in all stages because a previous step can create a premise and the conditions for us to advance to the next step. Much capital is needed to achieve industrialization. At present, however, we are still unable to be self-sufficient in food and clothing, our revenues cannot cover all expenses, accumulation for our national economy cannot be realized, and, after a protracted war, our people's livelihood is facing many difficulties. The present stage is a necessary time for us to effect a change by stabilizing our national economy, achieving self-sufficiency in food, securing enough money for our expenses, beginning to realize accumulation for our national economy, gradually building material and technical bases of socialism and completing the transformation and consolidation of socialist production relations throughout the entire country. We must grasp these main objectives in order to concentrate efforts on somehow achieving them.

At present, manpower is our greatest asset. Land can be immediately exploited at a low cost and various trades and occupations can be developed. Therefore, we must fully use the labor of each individual and family, as well as the potential of the land, trades and occupations in various localities and throughout the entire country, to develop production and increase the gross social product.

The fifth party congress has mapped out an economic strategy for the first stage which consists of concentrating efforts on vigorously developing agriculture as the frontline; taking a step toward advancing agriculture to socialist large-scale production; stepping up the production of consumer and export goods, continuing to build a number of essential heavy industries, especially energy and machinery industries; and combining agriculture and industry into a rational agroindustrial structure.

We have said that we are building socialist large-scale production. However, a number of our comrades have forgotten that we are advancing from small-scale production, that is, from scattered handicraft production with low labor productivity when we have no accumulation to the initial stage of the transitional period when our postwar economy is facing many difficulties. Failing to thoroughly understand this, we have assessed our economic and social situation during this period on the basis of the standards of successful socialism, wanting to quickly achieve something great when there are no possibilities, and when, as Lenin put it, we pay no attention to the transitional steps and intermediary links. We want to build large-scale establishments without knowing how to combine the large-, medium- and small-scale ones and the mechanized, semimechanized and handicraft installations which must be suitable for each trade, occupation and locality.

Under the present circumstances, when production is carried out largely by handicraftsmen and with agricultural hand implements, and when many places are still short of half of the needed manpower and tools, we must pay more attention to building medium- and small-scale installations and to semimechanization and handicrafts. While building indispensable, rational, large-scale installations, we must learn how to organize in order to combine many small-scale installations into large-scale ones.

In agricultural transformation, we want to swiftly advance to large-scale production at a time when conditions are still not suitable and we have failed to achieve mechanized agriculture in an orderly and synchronous fashion, and, as a result, we must pay a certain price. Therefore, we must promptly gain some experience from this.

Making use of integrated strength, a valuable experience which we have gained, results from the implementation of general and economic policies and from the simultaneous implementation of our party's major policies approved by the fifth party congress. Because we proceed from small-scale production, many sectors and potentials in our economy remain untapped. Therefore, we must have a correct policy for putting all sectors of the economy to use and avoid wasting any force in our efforts to constantly develop the socialist economic sectors; fully use all capabilities; coordinate rudimentary and modern means and the use of manual, semimechanized and mechanized means, and coordinate small, medium and large scales; and coordinate the work of central and local levels and the work of the state and the people. This is the only way we can fully tap all potentials in the use of labor, land and occupations to develop production and build a new economic structure step by step.

To proceed from small-scale production means advancing from an economy where the production of commodities is still on a small scale to vigorously developing the production of socialist commodities, especially agriculture, which yields many consumer and export goods. In our economic mechanism, the state plan must be considered the centerpiece. However, importance must be attached to the economic levers and market relations.

In the economic mechanism, the market is a means for commodity exchange during the period of transition. When an economy remains a multisector economy, the market is the most common place for contact among all sectors of the economy. In the still fairly extensively prevailing free market, a fierce struggle is occurring between socialism and capitalism. Transforming the free market should not be viewed as its pure and simple elimination. Neither should market management be interpreted as consisting solely of countering speculation and smuggling and collecting taxes. In fact, market transformation and management requires the capability to reorganize it, promote its positive aspects and struggle to overcome its negative aspects with economic, administrative and educational measures -- the economic measures being of foremost importance. Only through market organization and management can we properly coordinate planning with market activities and creatively and effectively conduct market relations in the advance toward socialism so that market relations will contribute to promoting production and stabilizing the people's livelihood.

Practicing limitations and restrictions show the failure to understand the objective rules of the multisector economy. However, relaxing control and running after free market trends means allowing nonsocialist sectors of the economy to develop spontaneously and without control. All these manifestations are incorrect tendencies.

During wartime, our economic management system was of the type of a subsidy-based administrative system which was somewhat suited to that particular period. Since liberation, with the restoration of peace in the lives of our people, the subsidy-based administrative system has created many obstacles for production at various levels and in various sectors. Unlike a firmly established socialist economy, our country's economy, which is still proceeding from small-scale to large-scale socialist production, is one with many sectors, many levels of technology and many scales which is experiencing many large imbalances and lacks of effective information system. To match the characteristics of such an economy, we should have an appropriate system of economic management which is lively, creative and capable of eliminating conservatism, sluggishness and rampant subsidization. In the meantime, we should have a contingent of ethical, qualified cadres in charge of management.

A number of resolutions and policies encouraging production have provided a means for all levels and grassroots units to secure more freedom of action. As many new factors have emerged, the old management system has been gradually eliminated. However, the new management system has not taken shape uniformly and concrete guidance is lacking. As a result, manifestations of liberalism have arisen. Thus, while the system of management is still ridden with centralism, bureaucratism and subsidization and while many outdated policies which have created great obstacles in production have not been revised, tendencies toward liberalism, individualism, parochialism and localism -- characteristic of the small-scale production mode and which we must struggle to overcome -- have appeared. The economic mechanism we apply during the transition from small-scale to large-scale socialist production calls for more freedom to develop initiative for the grassroots units and localities, and a bold, uniform decentralization of management for the localities in order to turn each level into a complete planning unit, especially the district level, which is an important strategic unit in developing agriculture and conducting the three revolutions at the grassroots level. Properly training and assigning cadres is the decisive factor for ensuring implementation of the new economic mechanism. In addition, we must ensure that the central level can firmly grasp the major work and tasks that should be managed, exercise strict control, implement contracts among localities and units and ensure correct relations in economic interests among the state, the collective and the worker, between agriculture and industry, between the state and various sectors of the economy, and among localities in order to promote the spirit of mastery in each echelon, each unit and each individual and to boost production.

Before embarking on the agricultural issue, we have tackled some general issues in order to better understand our party's policy and the agricultural issue taken up in the latter part of my talk. In the immediate stage of the transition period when we are still proceeding from small-scale production and when our economy remains a multisector economy, manual production prevails and labor productivity is low, we must have a practical historical viewpoint in assessing agricultural production and management situations and find the proper ways and measures to formulate appropriate policies. During the transition period, many types of new work exist and we still learn through practice. Blunders are inevitable. We should strive to creatively apply party policy, vigorously promote new factors and resolutely overcome the negative aspects resulting from subjective shortcomings. However, there are objective negative aspects that we must temporarily tolerate and seek ways to contain.

Although numerous difficulties remain, our party has a correct policy. In addition, we have gained very valuable initial experiences, our people are a very good people who always closely support our party's undertakings, our country's potential is great and we have secured cooperation and assistance from socialist countries, primarily the Soviet Union. We will certainly overcome difficulties in our advance.

Part Two

["Part Two" of talk by VCP Political Bureau member Le Duc Tho entitled "On the Question of Developing New Factors and Perfecting the New Management System in Agricultural Cooperatives," subtitled: "The Status of Agricultural Cooperativization in the North" -- read by announcer; date not given]

[Text] Now I am going to talk about the status of agricultural transformation in the north. This issue must be reviewed fully in order to discover strong points and shortcomings. Comrades, I am going to present here some observations for you to discuss:

It can be asserted that we were right in encouraging the peasants to join work-exchange teams and cooperatives immediately after carrying out land reform to allocate lands to poor peasants. With the new production relations, the peasants have had the proper conditions for applying advanced technical methods and using their labor more rationally and, as a result, production has picked up, the cooperatives' income has increased and the peasants' living conditions have improved. By organizing the peasants into socialist collective economic units, we have prevented the formation of classes in the countryside for an economy characterized by small-scale production of goods itself gives birth to spontaneous capitalism on an hourly and daily basis.

During the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation, the cooperatives actually served as rear service bases that made it possible for millions of people to set out in the quest for the liberation of the south and national reunification. This is a point that must be asserted.

We have also recognized at an early date the important role of management. With the passage of time, we have come to realize ever more clearly that it is difficult to organize peasants into cooperatives, but it is even more difficult to manage these units and to select the methods of management suitable for an economic organization which, though its production materials are already collectivized, continues to rely on manual labor for production. Cadres who have gained some experience in directing the production efforts of a family on a few hectares of land are now in charge of a production unit working on hundreds of hectares. We have concentrated efforts on improving management for the first and second rounds. More progress has been made in management and distribution has been carried out in a more judicious manner. However, the management system for cooperatives still remains inappropriate in many respects.

I have made inquiries in various units and have found out that, while still small in size, the cooperatives have encountered fewer difficulties in work but negative aspects have already started to surface in management. While the management system has yet to be rationalized, the cooperatives have rapidly expanded in size without exception and cadres are being replaced frequently. This has created many difficulties for the various units. During the period when the entire country was waging the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation with such slogans as "Nothing is more precious than independence and freedom" and "All for the frontline, all for victory," the laboring people were enduring unequal distribution and a hard life in the interest of the entire country's struggle. Nevertheless, managerial work has displayed ever-increasing weaknesses. The practice of liberally logging man-days and work credits developed; economic benefits were low; and corruption, indulgence in parties and a lack of democracy were fairly prevalent. The masses had many questions to ask but, at that time, they tried to suppress their dissatisfaction. In spite of this, not a few cooperatives broke up, especially in the mountainous regions.

Since our struggle ended victoriously with the restoration of peace and the reunification of the entire country, the movement to reorganize production has been expanded. Some progress has been made by a number of cooperatives in the formulation of production programs and plans and in the organization of labor; but many cooperatives have been upgraded to the village level, even though all the conditions were not met and managerial work was still plagued with many problems, especially those concerning the organization of labor and the payment of wages.

We have been slow in revising a number of agricultural policies that are no longer suitable in the new situation. The general situation is that production has ground to a halt; the laboring people have lost their enthusiasm for production; and negative phenomena in cooperative management such as corruption, waste and disregard for the masses' right to mastery have increasingly developed.

While labor is the most valuable asset and the source of all social wealth, the party Central Committee's sixth plenum reported that the laboring people do not engage in production enthusiastically. The truth was that the laboring people, with their inherent virtue of diligence, instead of getting bored with their work, are simply not as interested in working for the cooperatives as they are in concentrating their efforts on other work activities in order to increase their income and ensure their livelihood.

Land is an unreplenishable resource in agriculture, but tens of thousands of hectares are left lying waste or fallow in the Red River Delta. The land belonging to the cooperatives produces low crop yields whereas the 5 percent of land allotted to families of cooperative members has been given meticulous care and often yields an output twice that of the collective. Strictly speaking, the socialist production relations are now weakening, and seriously in some places. Of course, there are a number of progressive cooperatives which have achieved high crop yields, but the number cannot be multiplied as long as the efficiency of a production system as a whole is dependent on the performance of the majority of the cooperatives — say 70 to 80 percent of the total.

Why is this? The reasons vary from locality to locality, but, generally speaking, they can be attributed to the following: Previously, and especially during the war, we received considerable aid and used it primarily in the north. We expanded the electricty network to serve production in many rural areas. The amount of chemical nitrogen fertilizer, most of which we received as gratuitous aid, was twice the amount available at present, and it was sold to the cooperatives at such a cheap price that it was virtually given away free. Agricultural machinery, gasoline and oil were supplied to the cooperatives in fairly large quantities. It can be said that previously, the state had the capability to provide fairly large quantities of technical supplies for agriculture, and with the administrative management system based on subsidization, the cooperatives, especially progressive ones, were provided with whatever they needed.

The current situation is quite different. Gratuitous aid is no longer available. The cooperatives have gradually adopted a profit-and-loss accounting system in conducting their operations. The contradictions that are inherent in the management of the cooperatives have now surged to the fore. In wartime, the spiritual driving force of "All for victory" enabled the peasants as well as the people of other walks of life to readily endure privations and inequities and to be content with having enough to live and fight by. The situation now is no longer the same. In peacetime construction, just distribution is required among the various production units as well as among the peasants, and cooperative members expect that their living conditions will improve on the basis of their ever-increasing contribution of labor to the cooperatives.

Inappropriate organization of management has made it impossible to carry out field work in accordance with the crop cultivation schedule, and the products yielded by the harvest are subject to waste. With the three-contract system, we used to link the end products with each collective but not with each laborer; hence, his failure to uphold responsibility in production. Ineffective business methods coupled with the widespread practice of liberally logging man-days and work credits led to a situation in which man-day value kept decreasing.

The more unjust the payment of wages, the less effective it will be in encouraging the laboring people to work hard and efficiently and to save every dong and every bowl of rice in the course of production. Serious corruption and waste coupled with problems concerning the organization of labor and distribution in the cooperatives, which stem from irrational policies for grain and the prices of agricultural products, make the laboring people lose their enthusiasm for production and prevent them from doing their best for the cooperatives. As a result, land productivity is low, production expenses keep increasing, economic efficiency is poor and income from the collective economy drops; all this contributes to further eroding the laboring people's enthusiasm in production. This vicious circle exists simply because we have been slow to detect and correct shortcomings.

I can say that wherever I went, I asked the cooperatives about their own process of development, and the aforesaid causes are drawn tentatively from what I have already learned. Comrades, these are simply some initial observations. You should review the situation yourselves and focus your attention first of all on the two points concerning cooperative management and agricultural management, and the agricultural policies that have been promulgated so far, in order to draw useful conclusions that may help us advance.

Continuation of Part Two

[Continuation of "Part Two" of talk by VCP Political Bureau member Le Duc Tho entitled "On the Question of Developing New Factors and Perfecting the New Management System in Agricultural Cooperatives," subtitled: "Evaluation of the Application of the New Management System in Agriculture" -- read by announcer; date not given]

[Text] After the party Central Committee's sixth plenum, the state amended a number of agricultural policies. Relations between the state and the peasants have partially been settled. There remain many problems which I will now address, but I cannot yet tackle the issue of relations among peasants.

At that time, the situation was very serious. Many comrades at the grassroots level told me that it was an emergency situation. Although the upper echelon had not yet promptly set forth a policy, cadres, party members and cooperative members had to find a solution for the sake of their livelihood. The most urgent tasks were to organize labor in such a way that rice output would be higher, that there would be more equitable distribution and that laborers' responsibilities would be connected with their benefits in order to encourage everyone to actively product much more social wealth and increase cooperative grain yields. It was all related to the contractual system. Thus, the system was unofficially applied in some places, even in 1977. The system was applied spontaneously; there were different methods of implementing it, and many shortcomings were committed. An inquiry into the matter revealed that the common practice was to contract out a number of tasks to families instead of individual laborers in addition to the application of the system of end-product contracts in order to avoid missing the season for crop cultivation, inadequate care for crops and harvest waste.

The inception of the party Secretariat's Directive No 100 was not in the minds of the party Central Committee members, but was the recapitulation of the masses' suggestions to set forth a new contractual system in agriculture, namely, the contracting out of product quotas to groups of workers and individual workers. The masses have promptly accepted this system because they have come to realize that it is rational and consistent with the practical interests of laborers and can stimulate the development of production. In reality, the new contractual system is based on ensuring the three types of benefits and the legitimate interests of laborers and on linking laborers' benefits with the finished products. Previously, this was not given adequate attention.

Unlike industrial production, agricultural production involves primary and secondary labor forces. The secondary labor force is not small and can do many things. So far, we have feared hardships and regarded family work as individualistic. Why? The new contractual system involves entrusting a family with a number of appropriate tasks in order to associate the collective economy with the family economy. Some tasks assumed by a family are connected with those undertaken by cooperatives and are managed by the collective. This is collective labor.

During my inspection tour of cooperatives where the product contract system was being applied, including the advanced and mediocre ones, everyone reported that with the new contractual system, the peasants have enthusiastically participated in production and labor; land has been resurveyed and used in a better way; the question of proportioning fertile and infertile land has been settled; materials have been used thriftily and more effectively; harvests have been reaped neatly without waste; the peasants have paid attention to applying advanced technical methods to increase productivity and develop production; mediocre cooperatives have greatly increased productivity; advanced cooperatives have also increased productivity; and all cooperatives have been consolidated and management work has been improved, as a result of the correct implementation of the contractual system.

However, some comrades have disapproved of the new contractual system. Not all members of cooperatives that have achieved good results in their work through the application of the system have approved of it. Some people have remained hesitant, but the number of persons accepting the system might account for more than 90 percent as revealed by the Vu Thang Cooperative members.

The new contractual system should be expanded without hesitation because of its obvious strong points. However, we should not attribute all successes to the new contractual system and should guard against exaggeration. There are many reasons for the achievements in production and for the improvement of the people's livelihood. They include weather, the new contractual system, material and technical bases, cadres and state policies. It is incorrect to deal only with the new contractual system because this will lead to disregard for intensifying overall improvement in the management of cooperatives and other links, which, in my opinion, require very great efforts. If we do not take weather conditions into account, we will be embarrassed when we are faced with severe natural disasters and a bad harvest in a particular year. In agriculture, production will not increase rapidly and unceasingly if investments are not increased and advanced technical methods are not applied. This is the key and most basic issue.

The new contractual system is but a link in the management of cooperatives. It stimulates the development of production and helps increase productivity to a certain extent. However, it is a very important link that can directly affect laborers' benefits and responsibilities. This system has contributed to creating advantages, reducing difficulties in production and encouraging people to apply new technical methods. For this reason, it is a truly strong motive force that accelerates the development of production. But it must be fully associated with the three revolutions in order to generate a combined strength with which to constantly increase production.

The new contract system also shows many shortcomings in the organization for implementation. Because of its new application, this system is not yet perfect, which is understandable. We can enumerate many shortcomings in the course of implementing the new contract system in various areas, with the shortcomings being serious in some areas.

So far every change in the size of cooperatives has had an adverse effect on existing material bases. At present, many localities are dividing large-size cooperatives into many smaller ones. In my opinion, we should, generally speaking, make changes in the sizes of production teams in order to cause less trouble and to minimize the loss of property; this is more suitable. Some areas have discarded nearly all existing material and technical bases; others have had many dead buffaloes or have not planted the planned rice varieties; still others have not exercised strict management between the five tasks and three tasks or have failed to exercise strict control.

Many new problems have arisen, which have caused a number of comrades to hesitate to apply the new contract system. We should understand that those shortcomings should be promptly remedied. The shortcomings are due to failure to correctly apply the new contract system, to a cooperative's longstanding inefficient management, or to the weaknesses of a cooperative itself. But there are also shortcomings that are ascribed to higher levels, including the state and the central level. We should have an objective view and should not ascribe every shortcoming to the new contract system.

In pointing out both strong points and weaknesses, we do not mean to seek a balance. We should detect all weaknesses in order to remedy them and in order to realize better achievements. However, we must view the strong points as the fundamental factor and apply the new contract system definitively.

While implementing the product contract system, we must exert strict control to promptly detect shortcomings and must remedy them resolutely. We have not merely begun to apply the new contract system; we have applied it for three seasons.

During the period of transition, any measure or method adopted presents imperfections in some aspects. Also, there are positive and negative aspects in economic life. This is an objective necessity. However, we must prompt detect and solve new contradictions in order to continue to advance.

Opinions differ about new things -- this is understandable. However, we should adopt a unified evaluation method in order to achieve unity of thought. During the transition period in which we proceed from small-scale to large-scale socialist production, positiveness and creativity play an important role. Creativity always stems from the grassroots level and from practical work. Any evaluation of a new fact must be based on party policies. In the present situation, it is important to work with realistic economic efficiency, with the greatest economic efficiency being an increase in gross social product and labor productivity and an improvement in the people's living conditions. There may be many ways to increase the gross agricultural product but, at present, it is very important to use the work force and land fully in order to expand occupations.

Management must aim to carry out set tasks and planning in the right direction in order to achieve high economic efficiency, increase gross social product, ensure, step-by-step, the right to collective mastery of the workers, and constantly consolidate the new production relations. We must promote production, but we also must strive to consolidate the new production relations, firmly control the means of production, and carry out management and distribution according to set principles.

Consolidating the new production relations involves many tasks, the most important of which is to develop the cooperative's production and constantly improve the lives of cooperative members. This will cause the cooperative to adhere to the whole society and cause cooperative members to adhere to the cooperative. We can assert, on the basis of this evaluation standard, the suitability of the product contract policy.

As mentioned in the earlier part of my talk, the new contract system is only a part, but a very important part, of the management mechanism of a collectivized socialist economic unit. A perfect management mechanism includes planning tasks and material, incentive and cadre policies. As part of an entire system, the contract system is related to other parts of the entire system and can operate only in a perfected management mechanism. Therefore, I do not want to use the term product contract, which is limited in meaning. A better term would be new management system, because, in fact, it not only is closely related to many other tasks in a cooperative, but also affects many sectors at the district and provincial levels and is setting in motion many aspects of agriculture management.

Renovating management is aimed both at boosting production and contributing to the building of a new countryside and a new type of cooperative member. Under the socialist system, peasants concern themselves with labor and private ownership. Proceeding from small-scale to large-scale socialist production, we must build, step by step, a new type of socialist man, a man who is conscious of mastership and is capable of exercising it, who adheres to the motto "One for all and all for one." We must simultaneously develop agricultural production and build a new socialist countryside. This undertaking is replete with difficulties and obstacles, but we will certainly overcome them in our advance.

Some comrades are worried about the fact that, with the application of the new contract system in which families are entrusted with some tasks closely related to end-products, private ownership mentality may develop among cooperative members, class division may occur in the countryside, and the mutual affection there may vanish altogether. Their worries may be somewhat well-grounded, but we should make a proper analysis of the situation in order to steady our confidence in the new management policy. [To be continued]

CABINET APPROVES ANNUAL 'BLUE BOOK ON DIPLOMACY'

OW240243 Tokyo KYODO in English 0200 GMT 24 Sep 82

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 24, KYODO -- Japan needs to identify itself much more with the international community to contribute to world peace and stability, particularly in the political, economic and military spheres, according to this year's blue book on diplomacy, released Friday after Cabinet approval. The report called for "internationalization of national life" to cope with Japan's increasing burdens in wrestling with international problems.

The key theme of the annual report apparently reflected recent frictions with foreign nations in trade relations, as well as disputes with neighboring Asian nations over school textbook accounts of Japan's past militaristic history.

The blue book stressed the increasing need to reinforce and develop relations with the United States as the keystone of Japan's diplomacy, while calling for establishing stable relations with the Soviet Union by resolving Japan's territorial claims. The report reconfirmed the nation's policy of helping China in its economic development and to make every effort to promote stability in the Asian region.

The paper reviewed international developments during 1981 and Japan's diplomatic efforts toward individual countries and regions of the world. Analyzing the world situation since the latter 1970's in perspective, it set forth four guidelines to govern the nation's diplomacy:

-- To settle East-West conflicts and work for stable relations on the basis of self-restraints and mutual benefits;
-- To revitalize the stagnant world economy despite protectionist pressures;
-- To stabilize the upheavals in the Third World on the basis of peace and development, and to establish constructive relations between the North and South in the spirit of interdependence and solidarity; and
-- To ensure solidarity and effective cooperation among industrialized democracies in undertaking these tasks, by maintaining and developing amicable relations.

The paper said these tasks are similar to those facing the international community and that Japan is required to make positive contributions. "Our contribution to world peace and stability could bring us pain and require sacrifice in short terms," it said. "But it should be considered as necessary to secure our long-term national interests." It is important "not to avoid our international responsibilities to gain the confidence of the whole world," the paper said.

Referring to frictions created as a result of increasing contacts with foreign nations, the paper cited Japan's own social and economic system and customs as a detriment to further development of international exchanges. Japanese systems and customs should be reviewed and, if necessary, improved to promote the internationalization of the national life, the report said.

In regard to development during 1981, the paper said that the deterioration in U.S.-Soviet relations has not been corrected despite moves for negotiations and talks on arms reduction. Relations were worsened when martial law was imposed in Poland in December, 1981, followed by economic sanctions against the Soviet Union and Poland by Western countries.

Under the circumstances, the paper stressed the need to maintain a balance of power for creating stable relations with the Eastern bloc. At the same time, the report noted that efforts for arms control and disarmament are lowering the balance of power as far as possible.

The paper saw no prospects of peace in the Middle East, as no progress has been made in negotiations for self-administration of Palestinians. The Iran-Iraq war remained stalemated during the year and the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan also continued unsettled, leading to growing international concern about the security of the Persian Gulf, the report said.

As for the Kampuchean issue, no prospects are seen for its settlement, and the situation in Latin America remains unstable, the paper said. Japan should work actively in concert with Western nations and other parties concerned to achieve stability in the Third World, the paper said. It referred to the possibility of Japan sending civilians to engage in U.N. peace-keeping operations and called for contributions toward the economic, political and social development of the Third World through economic assistance.

The annual report noted that the world economy was plagued by inflation, unemployment and low growth in the aftermath of the 1979 second oil crisis. Oil-producing countries were facing worsened balance of payments due to an oil glut and some of them were forced to review their economic development programs.

Throughout 1981, a number of East European and developing countries registered mounting debts which they became hardly able to pay. Snowballing debts have emerged as one of the world's crucial problems, the paper said.

Under the circumstances, the paper expressed Japan's concern about growing trade protectionist moves, saying such moves could jeopardize the Western Allies' basic values, freedom and democracy. Japan should take the initiative to develop the world free trade system as the second largest economic power. To deal with the tasks the international community faces, it is necessary for the Western nations to unify basic strategy in a spirit of solidarity and cooperation, the paper said.

The United States is Japan's most important partner in sharing the international burden in political, economic and security affairs, the paper stressed. The Japan-U.S. security treaty is the pillar of Japan's security, along with its own efforts to build up its defense capability and diplomatic efforts to create a favorable climate for the nation, the paper said. It also called for stronger political and economic ties with the West European nations.

The paper listed Japan's major diplomatic efforts during 1981 as follows:

Asia:

Japan made extraordinary efforts to promote peace and stability in the region. Based on the perception that the maintenance of peace and stability on the Korean Peninsula is essential to the security of East Asia, Japan assisted on the flank to ease tensions in the region. Japan supported a proposal made by President Chon Tu-hwan for peaceful reunification of Korea in January 1981, hoping for negotiations between North and South. With North Korea, Japan has maintained its policy of expanding trade, economic and cultural exchanges.

A summit meeting between Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang was held in October 1981, followed by the second ministerial meeting in December. Economic relations with China have developed smoothly and Japan is making utmost efforts to cooperate in the economic construction of that country.

Japan is supporting the ASEAN countries to develop into a vital cooperative body. Prime Minister Suzuki made a tour of the five ASEAN countries in January. Financial support for ASEAN joint projects was extended.

In regard to the Kampuchean issue, Japan supported the standpoint of ASEAN and worked together with the ASEAN members for reestablishment of peace in Kampuchea. Japan assisted Indochina refugees by providing financial aid, expanded quotas for residence in Japan and providing temporarily sanctuaries for boat people.

The United States:

The need is growing to strengthen and develop friendly and cooperative relations with the United States, which is the keystone of Japan's diplomacy. Through the prime minister's U.S. visit in May, the two countries reconfirmed their close alliance and that their solidarity and cooperation are important to the rest of the world.

Latin America:

Japan promoted further mutual understandings with Latin American nations.

European Community:

Despite frictions due to Japan's huge trade surplus, Japan endeavored to establish stable relations with EC countries, extending the economic relations to industrial cooperation.

Soviet Union:

Japan is seeking to establish stable relations with the Soviet Union by concluding a peace treaty resolving the Soviet occupation of the northern territories. At a meeting between the Japanese and Soviet foreign ministers in New York in September, Japan made its position clear to the Soviet side, but Moscow repeated its standing argument that there is no territorial issue between the two countries.

Middle East:

Japan has made active contributions to economic and social development in the Middle East through economic and technical assistance. Japan made efforts to create an international climate conducive to reach peaceful settlement of Middle East conflicts. In regard to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, Japan renewed its demand for withdrawal of Soviet troops and continued its sanction against the Soviet Union. It also called for early settlement of the Iran-Iraq war and supported international efforts for mediation between the two countries.

Comrade Ma Wenrui said: The industrious and courageous Korean people with excellent revolutionary traditions have turned the Democratic People's Republic of Korea on the ruins of war into a prospering and flourishing socialist country with an indomitable will and devotion under the wise leadership of President Kim Il-song and the Workers Party of Korea, upholding the revolutionary line of independence, self-sustenance and self-reliance in defense.

We firmly believe that the Korean people will attain the magnificent targets of the second seven-year plan under the uplifted banner of the three revolutions, ideological, technical and cultural, and certainly achieve the cause of independent and peaceful reunification of the country and that a more powerful, reunified, independent and sovereign Korea will imposingly rise in the East of the world without fail.

Yanan of Shanbei was the center of the Chinese revolution. Here the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China and Comrade Mao Zedong led the Chinese revolution from one victory to another. After the liberation of the whole country the people of Shaanxi Province under the correct leadership of the Communist Party of China have carried on unprecedented socialist construction by displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and hard struggle, and thereby wonderfully changed the looks of Shaanxi Province.

O Chin-u Banquet Speech

SK230003 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2239 GMT 22 Sep 82

Comrade O Chin-u said: Comrade Deng Xiaoping made a long journey from Beijing to Chengdu by train in company with the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and stayed there together with him, and then Comrade Hu Yaobang came to Chengdu and kindly accompanied him in the long journey to Xian from Chengdu. This clearly shows particular intimacy forged between the leaders of the two countries and powerfully demonstrates how genuine and solid the friendship and unity between the two parties and two peoples is. This greatly delights all of us.

In fact, we have seen, felt and learned a lot of things in the course of our current visit to China. We were deeply impressed by the fine successes achieved by the Chinese people in the building of a socialist, new China under the wise leadership of the Communist Party of China.

We are greatly pleased with the fact that the visit to China by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is successfully going on amid the particular concern and cordial hospitality of the Chinese party, government and people. This visit is now evoking widespread repercussions internationally for its great significance in the strengthening of the Korea-China friendship and the development of the world situation.

The relations of militant friendship firmly forged betwen the Korean and Chinese peoples with fraternity and revolutionary principle are a relationship as inseparable as that between the lips and teeth and a relationship of kith and kin which will never change in any storm. The Korean people will always set store by the traditional friendship with the fraternal Chinese people and will make every effort possible in the future, too, to constantly consolidate and develop it.

[Text] Pyongyang, September 24 (KCNA) -- The Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly arranged a party Thursday evening at the People's Palace of Culture in honor of the delegation of the Bulgarian National Assembly on a visit to our country.

Invited to the party were the members of the delegation headed by Comrade Stanko Todorov, member of the Political Bueau of the Central Committee of the Bulgarian Communist Party and chairman of the National Assembly of Bulgaria, and Ambassador Khristo Kelchev and officials of the Bulgarian Embassy in Pyongyang.

Speaking first at the party, Chairman Hwang Chang-yop said: Today the fraternal Bulgarian people are struggling to fulfill the Eighth Five-Year Plan set forth by the 12th party congress ahead of time and build a developed socialist society under the leadership of the Bulgarian Communist Party headed by Comrade Todor Zhivkov, on the basis of the already made successes.

We, he went on, sincerely rejoice over the great successes made by the Bulgarian people, an intimate class brother of ours, in the socialist construction of the country and express solidarity with them in the struggle against the imperialists' aggression and war policy and for converting the Balkan Peninsula into a nuclear-free zone and ensuring a durable peace and security in Europe and the world.

He expressed deep thanks to the Bulgarian party, government and National Assembly for their invariable active support to the Korean people's cause of national reunification.

Pointing out that the friendly and cooperative relations between the two countries based on the intimacy between the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and respected Comrade Todor Zhivkov are growing stronger and developing day by day, he said: We will as ever make all efforts to further develop and strengthen our friendship and cooperation with the Bulgarian people in the spirit of the agreement reached at the meetings of the heads of state of the two countries in Pyongyang, Sofia and Belgrade.

Chairman Stanko Todorov spoke next. The Bulgarian people, he said, support in every possible way the just struggle of the Korean people against the U.S. imperialist aggressors.

Pointing out that the friendly relations between the Bulgarian and Korean peoples have a voluminous history, he said: The visit of a party and government delegation of the Bulgarian People's Republic headed by Comrade Todor Zhivkov to the DPRK in 1973 and the visit of a party and government delegation of the DPRK headed by Comrade Kim Il-song to Bulgaria in 1975 recorded most shining pages in this history.

Our current visit, we believe, will contribute to the strengthening and development of cooperation between the people's assemblies and peoples of the two countries and to the continued implementation of the points of agreement reached at the meetings between our party and state leaders. We are happy to note that the relations between the Bulgarian Communist Party and the Workers Party of Korea are being strengthened and developed.

The Bulgarian People's Republic and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea are pursuing an anti-imperialist policy, fighting against colonialism, old and new, and supporting the peoples freed from the yoke of imperialism and colonialism. We express full support to the consistent struggle of the DPRK for the peaceful reunification of Korea, he noted, and declared: If Korea is to be reunified peacefully, the U.S. troops must be withdrawn from South Korea.

We stress our principled support to the proposals of the DPRK for the peaceful reunification of the country at all international conferences and on all occasions, he stated.

The party proceeded in a friendly atmosphere.

NODONG SINMUN CRITICIZES CHON'S 22 SEP SPEECH

[NODONG SINMUN 24 September commentary: "Worthless, Rash Act of Bellicose Element Instigating Confrontation"]

[Text] On 22 September in Seoul, the puppet South Korean clique staged commotions by holding a ceremony to mark the seventh anniversary of the founding of the Civil Defense Corps. In his speech, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, which appeared in the farce as the main actor, babbled about the communizing of the South by the use of force and the hackneyed theory on the threat of southward invasion and cried out for confrontation with us on the basis of strength, while putting on to somebody the responsibility for the ever-strained situation on the Korean Peninsula.

Under the name of security and regional defense, he also called for an acceleration of war preparations, babbling as if it were in the nation's interest.

In its speech, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique has exposed its dark nature as a colonial puppet which is seeking survival by executing the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war. At a time when the anti-U.S. struggle for independence and the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland have emerged as an urgent demand of the times and of the nation, the clique encouraged confrontation and war consciousness, running along the road of military adventurism. This is nothing but a traitorous, bellicose and rash act of disturbing peace, impeding national unity and hindering national reunification.

Shamelessly, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique spoke of the policy of confrontation which it has been declaring on the basis of strength as if it were a measure for peace and reunification. This, however, is what has been fabricated by the U.S. imperialists -- fabricated propaganda confounding right and wrong.

South Korea, which has completely been turned into a U.S. colony, a military base and a nuclear base, is ceaselessly shipping in a vast quantity of weapons of mass destruction and stepping up its military forces, while staging large-scale war exercises against us and frequently firing at us along the Military Demarcation Line.

It is not necessary to explain that such a racket of playing with fire at the instigation of the U.S. imperialists on the Korean Peninsula, where the North and South are militarily confronting each other, is a dangerous act which can provoke military clashes and even war at any time.

At a time when we maintain that we should ease the strained situation in order to preserve and consolidate peace on the Korean Peninsula and resolve the question of Korea in peaceful ways and achieve national reunification by way of establishing a confederal state, leaving the systems existing in the North and South, the clique thwarts the people's aspiration for reunification, steps up military forces and stages war rackets. To babble that these acts are for peace and reunification is a stark lie and will convince nobody. Anticommunist confrontation and war maneuvers are incompatible with peaceful reunification.

The traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique's babbling about democratic harmony and democratic reunification in its speech is nothing but a trick to follow the road of war against us under cover of this slogan.

It is preposterous hypocrisy and sophistry that the puppet clique has cried for confrontation on the basis of strength under the pretext of security and urged an acceleration of war preparations designed for fratricide, while saying that these were for the nation.

The traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique's prattling about security, which it camouflaged under the name of the nation and patriotism, is only a dirty product of the policy of aggression by the outside forces and the anticommunist confrontation policy of a colonial stooge which is to execute the outside forces' policy of aggression. The Chon Tu-hwan ring is playing the dirty and shameful role of perpetrator, executing the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war and, in return for this, trying to achieve its ambition for long-term office under the protection of its masters.

The policy of confrontation on the basis of strength, however, is a road of crimes leading to treason and sell-out which will only bring about destruction.

The policy of confrontation on the basis of strength by the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, who turns its back on the nation and runs counter to people's will, is nothing but an act of suicide just like jumping into a fire with a load of faggots on one's back. Those who enjoy playing with fire are likely to die in the flames. The Chon Tu-hwan clique should stop running riot and act judiciously.

CHON'S 'INDEPENDENCE MUSEUM' PLAN SCORED

[Text] Pyongyang, September 16 (KCNA) -- Commenting on the Chon Tu-hwan group's drama of building an "independence museum," NODONG SINMUN Thursday says: This is a burlesque for disguising South Korea as an "independent state" and justifying its pro-U.S., pro-Japanese flunkeyist treachery by misleading the people and public opinion.

Hidden behind the fuss over the building of the "independence museum" is the sinister intention of the Chon Tu-hwan group to lull public opinion and deliver itself out of isolation, notes the signed commentary captioned "Cheap Drama of Pro-U.S., Pro-Japanese Stooge."

It further says: The treacherous color of the Chon Tu-hwan gang is made all the clearer by the contents of the "historical materials" to be displayed in the "museum." The Chon Tu-hwan group, the most faithful stooge of the U.S. imperialists, totally excludes the historical materials on the U.S. imperialists' Korean aggression from the intrusion of the pirate ship "General Sherman" in 1866 to their occupation of South Korea on September 8, 1945, and their brutal colonial rule, and our people's anti-U.S. struggle against them. Moreover, it intends to paint as "independence fighters" political mountebanks and swindlers who sought personal pleasure by collecting "independence donations" from compatriots under the signboard of "independence movement."

This is, indeed, an unpardonable distortion of the history of our people's noble national liberation struggle and an intolerable insult to the patriotic forerunners who fought with all devotion for the sovereignty and independence of the country.

The South Korean puppets are stringing out the high-blown words that the construction of the "independence museum" is aimed at awakening the people to "the history of national distress" and fostering "the spirit of independence" among them.

It is not unknown to anyone that South Korea is a U.S. colony which is under the U.S. imperialists' military occupation for already 37 years and the U.S. imperialists are the real rulers who hold and exercise all powers in South Korea.

How can the puppets, who have sold the sovereignty of the nation to their masters, executing the U.S. imperialists' colonial enslavement policy, dare talk about "memorial of independence" or "spirit of independence?"

It must not be overlooked that they have launched a big "fund-raising" campaign under the pretext of building this bogus "independence museum" for distorting history and making a mockery of the people through a "nation-wide movement." It is a shameless robbery to empty the pockets of the poor population under this pretext. Even if the colonial puppet talks about "independence", he cannot cease to be a puppet, and even if he builds the "independence museum", South Korea cannot be an "independent state."

If South Korea is to restore the lost sovereignty of the nation and enter upon the road of independent development, it must make the U.S. imperialist aggressors hindering it withdraw and get rid of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, which serves as the guide of the U.S. imperialists in their colonial enslavement policy.

The Chon Tu-hwan group must give up the drama of building the "independence museum" for reversing black and white and distorting history and promptly stop shameless plunder of the population.

MINJU CHOSON comes out with a commentary headlined "Despicable Burlesque of Flunkeyist Traitor."

SUCCESS IN RAILWAY TRANSPORT WORK REPORTED

SK130841 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0815 GMT 13 Sep 82

[Text] Pyongyang, September 13 (KCNA) -- The railway transport workers of Korea carried over 18 million more tons of load than the traction capacity in the past 8 months of this year. Through the movement for the creation of "the speed of the 80's" many railway stations have honoured their freight transport plans for this year. Upwards of 100 railway stations carried out their second seven-year plan (1978-1984) assignments ahead of the schedule. Big success was recorded in the modernization of railway transport, too.

The electrification of the Haeju-Sariwon and the Hoeryong-Komusan lines has been wound up in a brief period. Automation or semi-automation has been introduced in 22 railway stations and sections in the Yongdae-Chomaksan line.

In the last two years or so, scientists and technicians in the domain of railway transport have introduced thousands of technical innovation proposals, thereby greatly contributing to the development of the country's railway transport. In this period more than 1,180 machines and installations were devised and manufactured by them to raise the level of technical equipment of railway transport and further perfect the production processes.

COMMUNIST NATIONS TO BE INVITED TO '83 IPU MEET

[By Pak Mu-chong]

[Text] The choice of Seoul as the venue for next year's 70th general congress of the Inter-Parliamentary Union (IPU) is the most striking result Korean parliamentary diplomacy has obtained. Together with the success in winning the right to host the 1988 Olympics in Seoul at Baden-Baden, West Germany, one year ago, the decision by the IPU during its annual session in Rome Wednesday to hold the next meeting here is regarded as the greatest diplomatic triumph over North Korea in the sharp South-North showdown in international forums.

The Korean victory in the Rome meeting of the 98-nation world body of lawmakers was largely due to President Chon Tu-hwan's visits to the five ASEAN member countries last year and four African nations this year. This is well proved by the fact that delegates from Asian and African countries supported to the utmost the Korean effort to stage the next IPU session in Seoul during the Rome gathering.

The outcome of the meeting is sure to provide a great turning point for Korean diplomacy in the days to come, enabling it to maintain steady supremacy over North Korea in various international meetings. The IPU decision has also frustrated North Korea's never-ending maneuvers to twist Seoul's peace formula for democratic unification through national reconciliation in the world community. The vote in the IPU commission, in which each member nation has two votes, was 82-32 with 24 abstentions.

Further significance of the IPU meeting in Seoul is that people from communist countries including the Soviet Union and non-aligned nations will be given a chance to visit Korea. The government has adopted an open-door policy to all states.

Rep. Kwon Chong-tal, head of the Korean delegation to the Rome meeting, said yesterday in a telephone interview that all communist countries including North Korea would be invited to the Seoul session. Noting that the Rome meeting was participated in by 88 member countries, he said: "I am confident that the Seoul meeting will be attended by a similar number of member nations."

HERALD CALLS FOR REVITALIZATION OF UN FUNCTION

[Editorial: "Revitalizing United Nations"]

[Text] The hair-raising story of the massacre of Palestinian refugees in Lebanon and rising world outcries against the possible Israeli role in the atrocities provides a grim backdrop for the 37th General Assembly of the United Nations that opened yesterday in New York. The high ideals and hopes which inspired the charter member nations into forming that international peace-preserving organization have faded to a widespread sense of frustration and impotence after 37 years of its existence.

Disputes and conflicts multiply and become more complicated in contrast to the growing divisiveness and weakness of the United Nations. Facing its current session this year are mountains of issues threatening peace, economic stability, and human rights. A total of 139 items are on the agenda to be attacked by the organization in the coming three months. However, definite solutions are not forthcoming, throwing discredit upon the ability of the organization to manage crises and look after the well-being of the world.

The ranks of the United Nations swelled to embrace 157 member states today, more than tripling the initial membership. In reverse, its authority and power have waned greatly through successive failures to prevent limited wars and settle disputes in many parts of the globe.

Some go so far as to disparage the United Nations as the divided nations. Granting that the world body has fallen far short of our original expectation for a world government as most of its resolutions and appeals have fallen on deaf ears. The organization has made earnest efforts to reduce tensions and fight brush fires. Its mediation role has not been entirely fruitless. It would be too uncharitable to consider the United Nations as little more than a debating society. With all its defects, it still remains the only ultimate international authority to which nations of the world are ready to turn to for judgment and help. The responsibility for rescuing and strengthening the organization rests with its members and the whole of humanity.

No doubt the United Nations made little headway in disarmament and political integration of the world. Its service and achievement in the way of humanitarian and socio-economic activity are more impressive. It has played a vital role in the development of and cooperation in the economic, social, educational and cultural fields as well as in the relief of refugees, the sick and the starved.

The basic mission of the United Nations as chief guardian of international peace and security must be better fulfilled. In this connection, the observance this week of the first international day of peace declared by the last U.N. General Assembly was significant enough. The designation was inspired by Korean educator Chu Yong-sik who first brought up the idea in Costa Rica last year to be later adopted by the world organizatin.

Korea has had close ties with the United Nations. Despite its adherence to the Pacific principles, Korea is denied U.N. membership. Rectification of its membership and revitalization of its functions are needed now to make the stagnant United Nations an effective and going concern.

ASSEMBLY SPEAKERS TO CONCENTRATE ON ECONOMICS

[From the column: "Tidbits"]

[Text] On 22 September the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] decided to designate among its junior lawmakers those assemblymen who will interpellate the government at the plenary National Assembly session. The DKP originally planned to designate them among senior assemblymen, namely, Rep Sin Sang-u, Ko Chae-chong and O Hong-sok. As Rep Ko Chae-chong and O Hong-sok declined to be designated as interpellators, however, the party renounced its original plan and instead decided to designate junior members, balancing with other political parties that have designated their interpellators among their junior lawmakers, it was learned.

It was learned that, of 30 assemblymen who volunteered to become interpellators at the National Assembly session, only 3 or 4 want to interpellate on politics, diplomacy or security and that the rest want to interpellate on the issue of the economy.

Commenting on the senior solons' tendency to decline speaking at the plenary session and the tendency among those designated to speak on the subject of economics, the people within and outside the party said: This precisely reflects today's political reality. They also denounced the party leadership, saying: We cannot understand such an act by party leaders who have sought the restoration of politics.

TASK FORCE INAUGURATED TO INCREASE EXPORTS

[Text] The government inaugurated a task force yesterday to help increase overseas trade and manpower exports. The move is a follow-up to President Chon Tu-hwan's state visits to four African countries -- Kenya, Nigeria, Gabon and Senegal -- and Canada in August.

In this connection, two government-private missions will be dispatched to Africa in late October. Such missions will also be sent to Southeast Asia and North and South America and Oceania, according to the Economic Planning Board (EPB). Headed by the vice minister of economic planning, the task force consists of an overseas cooperation committee and two research teams.

The ad hoc committee will work out measures to effectively realize the binational agreements president Chon produced during his state visits to four African countries, Canada, the five member countries of ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) and the United States.

The committee, also chaired by the vice economic planning minister, will be a watchdog over the on-going business tie-ups between Korean and related foreign countries. The committee consists of first-grade officials (at the level of assistant minister) from concerned ministries, the vice presidents of the Korea Trade Promotion Corporation (KOTRA), directors of the Bank of Korea (BOK) and the Korea Export-Import Bank and the vice presidents of major private economic organizations including the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry (KCCI) and the Federation of Korean Industries (FKI). The special committee, according to the EPB, will hold a regular meeting every month and extraordinary meetings, if necessary.

The first research team on the task force is devoted to studying ways of expanding economic cooperation with developing countries. It will also study measures to expand technical cooperation between Korea and foreign countries. The second research team will conduct region-by-region surveys over Korean enterprises' prospective stride abroad. It is to study bottlenecks to Korean business advances into developing countries. Furthermore, it will study ways of fostering skilled workers in connection with the nation's overseas cooperation activity.

The two research teams will be respectively led by EPB bureau directors. The team will also deal with the dispatch of the envisioned government-private missions to the four regions. The classifications of the Africa-bound teams are based on languages used by them -- English and French. The English language team will cover Kenya, Nigeria and Liberia while the French language team will cover Gabon, Senegal, Zaire and Central Africa.

FULL-FLEDGED OFFSHORE OIL DEVELOPMENT PLANNED

[Text] Seoul, Sept. 18 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Government plans to embark on full-fledged offshore oil development projects beginning next year, an Energy-Resources Ministry official said Saturday.

The first phase of a five-year offshore oil development program envisages that the state-run Korea Petroleum Development Corp (PEDCO) will complete an analysis of seismic surveys of Korea's offshore mining zone Nos. 2, 4, 5 and 6, where oil and gas potential is said to be very high, by next year.

PEDCO concluded an agreement with the Korea Institute of Energy and Research last July to study the seismic survey results and select promising prospecting sites. From 1984 through 1986, the newly-established Korea Drilling Co. will drill two oil wells a year with the country's first oil rig to be built by Daewoo Shipbuilding Co. PEDCO will conduct the oil development projects in a joint venture with a foreign company or under foreign technical guidance, the official added.

FOREIGN MINISTRY RAPS U.S. ANTI-CUBAN CAMPAIGN

OW240827 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1748 GMT 23 Sep 82

["Statement of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the MPR" -- MONTSAME headline]

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, September 23 (MONTSAME) -- The escalation of the anti-Cuban campaign and hostile actions against Cuba by Washington induces growing condemnation of the world over. A bill on the creation of a new radio station for ideological sabotage against the Republic of Cuba has been recently adopted by the Senate commission. The recent adoption by the U.S. Senate of Congress of the so-called "Sims amendment" to the resolution of the budget of the next fiscal year has become an evermore vicious illustration of a "crusade" against the real socialism. This act has the aim to legitimate the use of force by the U.S. administration against the Republic of Cuba.

In this connection the world public is correct to note that the Washington hostile intrigues against the Republic of Cuba have entered a new and extremely dangerous stage. The "Sims amendment" serves also as an evidence of the fact that Washington is creating an atmosphere for the military encroachment of the United States into the countries of Central America and the Caribbean basin under pretence of deterrence of a "Cuban threat". It is of common knowledge that the U.S. pursued the "gun-boat" policy of "big stick" policy in this region and repeatedly denounced armed interventions against Cuba, Nicaragua and the other states. The present U.S. administration follows more impudently and openly this hegemonistic course trying in every possible way to suppress the movement of peoples for national and social liberation and to keep and strengthen its rule in the Western Hemisphere.

The United States have chosen socialist Cuba -- the first to light the torch of genuine freedom on the American continent -- as the main object of their subversive activities in the Western Hemisphere. The successes of the Cuban people in socialist construction and the steady growth of the international prestige of the Republic of Cuba inspire the other countries and peoples of Latin America to the struggle against the U.S. policy of dictate and threat. It infuriates Washington, which by their adventurist steps threaten peace and security not only in this region but the world over. In the interests of their imperial ambitions the United States conducts armed provocations against Nicaragua and the patriotic forces of El Salvador through their obedient military junta. They also pursue the policy of genocide in relation to the Palestinian and Lebanese peoples by the hands of the Israeli fascists and right-wing Christian cut-throats.

The Mongolian People's Republic together with peace-loving forces of the world demand that the United States should stop their undermining acts and a slanderous campaign against socialist Cuba. The MPR once again expresses its steadfast and combat solidarity with socialist Cuba, with the peoples of Central America and the Caribbean basin waging the struggle against the imperialist domination for their national independence and social progress.

FURTHER ON VISIT OF BULGARIAN PARTY DELEGATION

Meeting With Bou Thang

BK230817 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0412 GMT 23 Sep 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 23 Sep (SPK) -- On Wednesday (20 September), Bou Thang, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and chairman of the Propaganda and Education Commission, received in audience in Phnom Penh the Bulgarian Communist Party delegation led by Isvetan Nikolov, alternate member of the Bulgarian Communist Party Politburo and vice chairman of the Bulgarian Communist Party External Relations Committee.

Bou Thang talked about the barbarous crimes of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan genocidal clique, which is still occupying the Kampuchean seat at the United Nations. He is convinced that progressive opinion in the world will condemn this illegal presence and that Kampuchea will recover its legitimate right at the United Nations. He also talked about the propaganda work of the commission in various districts, localities, enterprises, and factories. Furthermore, he presented the development of the Kampuchean revolution, which is due to the tireless efforts of the Kampuchean people under the leadership of the KPRP and to the close cooperation with Vietnam, Laos and other fraternal socialist countries. He thanked the Bulgarian party, government and people for their aid to Kampuchea in various fields, particularly in the field of propaganda.

On this occasion, Isvetan Nikolov emphasized the consolidation of the close cooperation which has tied Kampuchea with Bulgaria since the first visit of Todor Zhivkov to Kampuchea. During his visit, Isvetan Nikolov affirmed that he saw the destruction and massacres caused by the Pol Pot clique, which, he said, constitute an unprecedented fact in the history of mankind. He saw the Kampuchean people's determination to recover their economy and culture, which were completely destroyed. He acknowledged the complete support of the Bulgarian party, government and people for the building of Kampuchea. He related the building of Bulgaria from an agricultural and backward country to an industrialized country thanks to the leadership of the Bulgarian Communist Party and the cooperation with the USSR and other fraternal socialist countries.

The two parties exchanged viewpoints on propaganda work concerning the cooperation between the two countries in this field.

Talks With Heng Samrin

[Text] Phnom Penh, 23 Sep (SPK) -- Today, Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee and chairman of the PRK Council of State, received in audience in Phnom Penh the delegation of the Bulgarian Communist Party led by Isvetan Nikolov, candidate member of the Bulgarian Communist Party Central Committee and vice chairman of the Bulgarian Communist Party External Relations Committee.

The general secretary told his guests about the successes scored by the Kampuchean people in all fields and particularly about the successive defeats of the enemy's maneuvers which are aimed at undermining the Kampuchean revolution. He unmasked in particular the creation of the so-called "Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea" by the Beijing expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and the ASEAN reactionaries, particularly Thailand. This maneuver, he said, is aimed at fooling world opinion, particularly member countries of the United Nations, in order to maintain the presence of the genocidal regime's representatives in this organization.

Chairman Heng Samrin stressed: The Kampuchean people, who enjoy the support of fraternal socialist countries, particularly of the Soviet Union, and thanks to the Kampuchean-Vietnam-Laos strategic alliance, are consolidating their country. Under the clear-sighted leadership of the KPRP and because of the rock-like national union, the Kampuchean revolution will be victorious. General Secretary Heng Samrin expressed his confidence that the multifaceted cooperation between Kampuchea and Bulgaria will be increasingly fruitful.

Isvetan Nikolov expressed his satisfaction with the unceasing development of the Kampuchean revolution and highly praised the good will and peace initiatives of the Kampuchean people. Isvetan Nikolov affirmed that the Bulgarian people are always at the Kampuchean people's side in their struggle for the defense and consolidation of their revolutionary gains.

Men Chhan, acting general secretary of the Council of State was present on this occasion. Simeon Dimitrov, Bulgarian ambassador to Kampuchea, was also present.

VODK: HANOI UNJUSTLY SEEKS TO REMOVE DK UN SEAT

BK231030 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 22 Sep 82

[Station commentary: "As the Aggressors in Kampuchea, the Vietnamese Have No Right To Ask for the Democratic Kampuchean Seat at the United Nations To Be Left Vacant"]

[Summary] Recently, Nguyen Co Thach arrogantly proclaimed in Paris that even if the Democratic Kampuchean seat at the United Nations was left vacant, the Vietnamese are in no hurry to have their lackeys in Phnom Penh occupy it.

Democratic Kampuchea is a UN member and has been recognized as such since 1975. The Vietnamese, ignoring the principles of international law and the UN Charter, have invaded and occupied Kampuchea since 25 December 1978. This is why three successive sessions of the UN General Assembly have passed resolutions demanding that Vietnam unconditionally withdraw all its troops from Kampuchea. "Therefore, if anyone is to be expelled from the United Nations, it should be the Vietnamese -- who are the aggressors -- and not Democratic Kampuchea, the victim."

As the UN General Assembly is about to begin its sourth session since the Vietnamese invasion of Kampuchea, Vietnam has turned around and said it is not in a hurry to have the puppets installed in the United Nations. "This is the plaintive and desperate cry of a severely punished dog which tries to get sympathy from other people." However, no one will fall for these maneuvers, as Vietnam is well known for its "expansionst policy and its ambitions to dominate neighboring countries, create an Indochinese federation and control Southeast Asia." It is also well known that the puppets in Phnom Pehn are just running dogs of Vietnam. No one will allow Vietnam's puppets to have a seat in the United Nations "because to do so would be tantamount to legitimizing the Vietnamese aggression in Kampuchea."

"At the 37th Session of the UN General Assembly, many more countries will unite in condemning the Vietnamese aggression and continue to vote in favor of Democratic Kampuchea, which is the sole legitimate representative of Kampuchea and the victim of barbarous Vietnamese aggression.

PHOUN SIPASEUT WRITES LETTER TO ASEAN COUNTERPARTS

BK240242 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 24 Sep 82

["Text" of 15 September letter to ASEAN foreign ministers from Phoun Sipaseut, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and LPDR minister of foreign affairs, on behalf of the foreign ministers of Laos, the SRV and the PRK]

[Text] On behalf of the foreign ministers of the SRV, the PRK and the LPDR, I am pleased to inform your excellencies of the following:

Recently, as a result of the efforts of the countries in the region as well as those of other peace-loving countries throughout the world, a trend toward dialogue and an atmosphere of detente has appeared in the relations among our countries. The peace proposals made by the foreign ministers of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea at their 7 July 1982 conference and the partial withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea have been welcomed by world public opinion. It especially pleases me to note that the ASEAN countries have seen various new factors and that they have shown their intention to continue studying these proposals.

With a desire to promote agreement and cooperation between the two groups of countries, we would like to explain further the proposals adopted by the three Indochinese countries recently.

1. China's big-nation expansionist and hegemonist policy is a basic threat to the three Indochinese countries and a root cause of the threat to peace and stability in Southeast Asia. Facts over the past 3 years have shown that China has openly striven to oppose dialogue and harmony between the ASEAN and the three Indochinese countries. It has determinedly resorted to military measures by using the Pol Pot clique to oppose the revival of the Kampuchean people. It is China itself which has rallied military forces along the border to threaten Vietnam and Laos regularly. It has fostered Vietnamese, Lao and Kampuchean reactionaries to conduct infiltration and rebellious activities against the legitimate governments of the three Indochinese countries. China has also persuaded and motivated other countries to blockade and isolate the three Indochinese countries while using every possible means to maintain the tense situation in Southeast Asia.

The presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea is aimed at checking the Chinese threat. Certain ASEAN member countries are also aware of the fact that the Kampuchean problem is actually a problem between China and the Indochinese countries, and not a problem between the ASEAN and Indochinese countries. The three Indochinese countries are well aware that the ASEAN countries want Vietnam to withdraw all its troops from Kampuchea. What the three Indochinese countries want is an end of the Chinese threat to them. I feel that the three Indochinese countries and the five ASEAN countries should respect each other's desires and just interests.

Over the past 3 years, the ASEAN side has always demanded that Vietnam unilaterally withdraw all its troops from Kampuchea without considering the security interests of the three Indochinese countries. The three Indochinese countries are prepared to respond effectively to the desire of the ASEAN countries for the total withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. However, the interests of the three Indochinese countries must also be respected, which means the Chinese threat must be ended. The three Indochinese countries have proposed to China that a treaty of nonaggression and noninterference in one another's internal affairs be signed. Unfortunately, as of now, China has yet to give a positive response to the proposal.

2. The Thai side considers the presence of Vietnamese troops near the Kampuchean-Thai border as a threat to the security of Thailand. But, Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos maintain that the use of Thai territory by China, the Pol Pot clique and other reactionary forces to oppose the revival of the Kampuchean people is a threat to the security of the Indochinese countries. Facts over the past 3 years have shown that the presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea has not posed any threat to the security of Thailand.

The Thai side has stated on many occasions that it is not necessary for the three Indochinese countries and Thailand to sign a treaty on nonaggression. This is because there is no danger of aggression against Thailand from Vietnam. On the contrary, the various activities of the Pol Pot clique and of other Khmer reactionaries in Thai territory have posed a serious threat to the security of Kampuchea. They have also caused repeated clashes along the Thai-Kampuchean border.

The formation of the so-called tripartite Khmer coalition government is an act which assists the Pol Pot clique and other Khmer reactionaries to step up activities against the PRK and sabotage the revival of the Kampuchean people. As a result, the situation along the Kampuchean-Thai border has been aggravated. By protecting, supporting and aiding those reactionaries, the ASEAN countries have gone even deeper along the path contrary to their expressed goal of a political solution to the problem. These acts will become a dangerous example of outside interference in the internal affairs of independent and sovereign countries, which runs counter to the principles of the UN Charter and of the Nonaligned Movement.

I feel that it is necessary for both sides to respect the security interests of both Thailand and Kampuchea. to reach this goal, effective measures are required to block the use of one country's territory to oppose another. Based on this stand, in July 1980 the PRK proposed the establishment of a demilitarized zone along the Kampuchean-Thai border. It is regrettable that the Thai side rejected the proposal, maintaining that Thailand cannot withdraw its troops from its territory.

In the recent conference of foreign ministers of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea, the three Indochinese countries considered the Thai stand on the demilitarized zone and adopted a new proposal on setting up a safety zone along the border between Kampuchea and Thailand. The new proposal responded to the Thai stand since Thailand would not have to withdraw its troops from part of its territory. According to the new proposal, only various forces belonging neither to Thailand nor the PRK are to be withdrawn from the safety zone. The three Indochinese countries reiterate that they are always prepared to exchange views and reach an agreement with the Thai side on details of the problem, for example, the width of the safety zone and the distance from the Kampuchean-Thai border the Vietnamese troops are to be withdrawn. In addition, measures will be adopted on removing the Pol Pot clique and other Khmer reactionaries as well as refugee camps far from the Thai-Kampuchean border. The three Indochinese countries feel that a form of international supervision over the safety zone should be set up.

To show its good will, the PRK and the SRV have recently gone one step forward by unilaterally withdrawing part of the Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. If the Thai side positively responds to this good will, the PRK and the SRV will withdraw more troops from Kampuchea. In case Thailand cannot accept the proposal on setting up the safety zone, the three Indochinese countries are prepared to exchange views and reach an agreement with the Thai side in order to put forth measures which can guarantee strict respect for the Kampuchean-Thai border and the form of international supervision so as to guarantee peace and stability along the border between the two countries.

The PRK has stated on many occasions that a decision on this issue has nothing to do with de jure mutual recognition. The PRK will not allow the problem of mutual recognition to be an obstruction to exchanging views and agreeing on the safety zone.

The lessons of the past 30 years show that when the United States and Thailand joined with Vietnam and China in signing the 1961-62 Geneva agreement on Laos and when the United States and Vietnam signed the Paris agreement on Vietnam in 1973, it did not mean that the signatory states recognized each other.

3. The ASEAN countries agreed on an international conference under the framework of the United Nations to solve the Kampuchean problem. This conference was unilaterally organized by the ASEAN countries without paying any heed to the protests of the three Indochinese countries. It was a conference organized only by one side. The three Indochinese countries have proposed convening a regional conference betweeen the two groups of ASEAN and Indochinese countries, but this proposal was rejected by the countries in the ASEAN group. As a result, the regional conference was not held.

Facts over the past 3 years have shown that an international conference will be successful only when all parties directly concerned agree to it and participate in it. The international conference organized by the United Nations in July 1981 has only met with failure.

With the good will to seek ways and means to resolve this unusual situation and by combining the proposal of the ASEAN countries on convening an international conference with that of the three Indochinese countries on convening a regional conference, the foreign ministers of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea, at their recent conference, proposed convening an international conference on Southeast Asia with the participation of the nine countries situated in the region and six other countries outside the region. The nine countries in the region are the three Indochinese countries, the five ASEAN countries, and Burma. As for the six other countries, they are the Soviet Union, the United States, China, France, Britain and India. Said conference will be convened after an agreement is reached among the various countries directly concerned, for example, the ASEAN and Indochinese countries, on the participants, agenda, place and date of the conference. There may be disagreement among the participating countries on elements of the conference, particularly the problem of Kampuchea's representation.

I feel that said problem can be settled through an exchange of views and a decision acceptable to all parties can be reached. This problem should not be allowed to obstruct the convening of the conference. The three Indochinese countries hail the United Nation's contribution to the maintenance of peace and stability in Southeast Asia, but by retaining the genocidal Pol Pot clique, the United Nations has obstructed its own positive role. There may also be disagreement on the conference agenda.

I feel that the conference should discuss all regional problems raised by the two sides on the basis of complete equality. In my view, there are many ways to approach this. For example, the agenda may be agreed upon jointly or may remain unagreed. On the other hand, there may be an agenda consisting both of issues jointly agreed upon and those not agreed upon. Regarding the conference site, I feel that the conference can be held in any country in Southeast Asia or in any neutral country in Asia or Europe, for example, in Rangoon, New Delhi, Paris, Stockholm or Vienna. This would depend upon agreement by the two groups of countries. Regarding the date of the conference, I feel that problems concerning peace and stability in Southeast Asia are very urgent problems, and that the sooner they are solved the better. Therefore, we should convene the conference in the last 3 months of 1982 or in early 1983.

4. Facts in the past 3 years have shown that all the ASEAN and Indochinese countries have great, common interests, namely the safeguarding of peace, stability and cooperation in the region. The disagreements between the two groups of countries can be settled through a dialogue held on the basis of the following principles:

A. The two sides respect each other's just interests.

B. The two sides maintain equality and join in making decisions completely without pressure by one side on another and without any outside interference.

I am elated to note that the dialogue between the two groups of countries in Southeast Asia has now begun. I hope that the two sides will try to maintain and promote the current atmosphere of detente and dialogue, or at least refrain from doing anything that will aggravate the situation. I hope that all other countries outside the region, which desire to see peace and stability realized, will also do everything possible to create favorable conditions for an exchange of views on the basis of gradual harmony and cooperation so as to settle the various problems related to the two groups of countries in the region. I also hope that the United Nations will also make its positive contribution to the cause of peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

In this spirit, I sincerely hope that good understanding will be maintained for the proposals of the three Indochinese countries. I propose that a meeting be held between the countries of the region or between representatives of the two groups of countries to exchange views during the forthcoming 37th UN General Assembly session.

I express my high respect to your excellencies on this occasion.

"The two sides express their determination to put all efforts to contribute to the consolidation of unity and the strength of socialist community and totally support the peoples' struggles for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism".

The press release gives account on the evaluation of the visit saying that it represents an important factor in the development of the Lao-Bulgarian ties of friendship and cooperation which will continually blossom.

The president of the National Assembly of Bulgaria, Stanko Todorov, invited Lao President Souphanouvong to visit the PRB. This has, in principle, been accepted.

It said that the victims were gunned down and their bodies buried in a mass grave in the presence of several Khmer witnesses in Prey Veng Province.

POST: SRV FORCES IN PRK RECEIVE ARMS SHIPMENT

[Excerpt] Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea recently received a large shipment of military supplies, including T-54 tanks and 152-mm artillery guns, a Supreme Command spokesman said yesterday. The spokesman said three freighters docked in Kompong Som seaport in southwest Kampuchea early this month and unloaded an unspecified number of T-54 tanks, 152-mm artillery guns, 140-mm rockets and other military hardware. He also said part of this supply had been sent to Vietnamese troops in Battambang and elsewhere in west Kampuchea. According to the spokesman, Vietnamese and Heng Samrin troops have recruited a large number of Khmer civilians to build bunkers in Poipet, opposite Aranyaprathet District of Prachin Buri Province.

NATION EDITORIAL DISCUSSES KAMPUCHEA ISSUE

BK210303 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 21 Sep 82 p 4

[Editorial: "All Is Not Quiet Over the Eastern Front"]

[Text] There are several factors about, or relating to, Kampuchea, which have recently emerged, tardy as usual, which together must have some logical overall meaning: 1) The United Nations General Assembly began its totally unproductive talkathon last night. 2) About 50 Khmer Rouge guerrillas have been killed by the Vietnamese in western Kampuchea in an unprecedented monsoon offensive. 3) The number of Soviet "advisers" in Kampuchea has vastly increased. 4) The Vietnamese are building a series of helicopter pads in some sort of a leap-frog operation.

Early this month this newspaper reported the high possibility of a Vietnamese first-strike during the rainy season. In an analysis, we said that such an act could be predicated on the UN General Assembly debate on Kampuchea. But how do we tie in the increase of the Soviet advisers? If so far this newspaper's reportage and analyses have been correct, it does not require much intelligence to conclude that the Soviet advisers are necessary to provide the logistics. But of course nothing is that simple and we cannot get away with being simplistic where the Vietnamese are concerned in their strategy for establishing the "greater Indochina federation."

The Russians, from our point of view, have every right to be in Kampuchea, because the Vietnamese are carrying out the Kremlin's policy and the Russians have a supervisory role and secondarily an advisory role. The Soviet Union has every right to be dissatisfied with the Vietnamese performance, but they dare not voice the criticism since the Vietnamese will counter with: "Are you doing any better in Afghanistan?" But the Kremlin strategists are as good as those of any other country and they know that the Vietnamese will be taking a grave risk if Hanoi decided to demolish all resistance in western Kampuchea.
We have always held that the armed forces of Vietnam, indisputably the fourth largest standing army in the world, could make mince-meat of the Khmer Rouge and allied patriotic forces of President Norodom Sihanouk and Prime Minister Son Sann. What Hanoi must realize -- and the Russians must also realize somewhat their own impotence -- is that if the Khmer Rouge are threatened with the possibility of being wiped out, then China may teach Hanoi her "second lesson". During the first lesson of 1979, the Russians are vociferous, but acted the role of bystanders.

So the four facts which we enumerated at the outset not only coalesce, but do point to strategies which we are not too happy about. It is Thailand's policy, and that of her partners in ASEAN, to find a political solution and, to that effect, Thailand will try to get the UN General Assembly to endorse a comprehensive political settlement for Kampuchea. That resolution will pass with a thumping majority with countries like Ukraine and Byelorussia and their cohorts voting against it. So what? Haven't we got a few of those resolutions in our pocket now?

No, these are not questions to tickle anybody's funny bone. If the reality of the developing situation is understood properly now, one is worried that the fighting in Kampuchea is going to escalate, to an extent we are afraid to speculate upon. We know, and our military leaders like Gen Saiyut Koetphon and Gen [title as published] Prasong Sunsiri have warned us of this well in advance. Thailand does not want an escalation of warfare in Kampuchea. Thailand does not want a head-on war between the forces of Democratic Kampuchea and Vietnam in which, anybody can see, the Vietnamese war machine, fuelled by the Russians, will win. And Thailand does not want the Chinese to be teaching a "second lesson" to Hanoi.

But if Hanoi insists on toeing the Kremlin line, there is nothing that Thailand can do about it. Yes, the UN General Assembly can pass resolutions, but those resolutions will only add to the stacks of paper that have already piled up, and over which lots more will pile up. Pessimists will say that it is a "no win" situation for all sides. We wish we could believe that. Optimists will say that a political solution will be found. We wish we could believe that also. But if some serious thinking is done, it can be seen that the war in Kampuchea is escalating, and will continue to do so, and the bottom line is that the Sino-Soviet conflict may spill over. Would somebody like to take a bet that the 12th Chinese Communist Party Congress, concluded last week, did not consider all the options open?

INCREASED SOVIET AID, ADVISERS IN PRK REPORTED

BK200821 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 20 Sep 82 pp 1, 2

[Text] Soviet advisors in Kampuchea have markedly increased to over 800 compared with an estimated 500-600 last year following a pledge by the Soviet Union to provide the Heng Samrin regime with direct economic assistance worth about U.S. $1,000 million (about 23,000 million baht) for 1981-1985, according to an intelligence report. An authoritative source told the NATION yesterday that among indications of the growing Russian presence in Kampuchea was the booming construction of new residential abodes for Soviet personnel in Phnom Penh.

It is not known whether the Soviet advisors include military personnel, but the source confirmed that the Soviet Union has projects to train the Heng Samrin regime's military officers. There are now over 1,000 Vietnamese advisors in Kampuchea, apart from an estimated 180,000 Vietnamese troops in the war-torn country, the source said.

The newly-posted Soviet advisors were believed to be helping the Phnom Penh administration to implement projects to improve public utilities, deep-sea ports, air fields, as well as agricultural and industrial production in the country, according to the source.

Soviet economic assistance to the Heng Samrin regime, which was initially channelled through Vietnam, has been directly reaching the Kampuchean regime through the deep-sea port of Kompong Som, the source said. "The rice purchased by Moscow for the Phnom Penh regime has been shipped to the port for delivery to the Vietnamese-backed government," the source cited as an example. National Security Council (NSC) Secretary General Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri had earlier said that the renovation and extension of the Kompong Som deep-sea port under the supervision of Soviet advisors were accomplished in March, 1980. The port is now directly controlled by Soviet personnel, and not the Vietnamese. The authoritative source noted that the Soviet pledge to provide about U.S. $1,000 million worth of economic assistance to the Heng Samrin government marked an increase from previous years. The value of Soviet aid to the regime during 1979-1981 was estimated at about U.S.$300 million (about 6,900 million baht), the source added. Moscow wants an independent presence in Kampuchea and direct contact with the leadership following reported abuses of aid by Vietnam. The Soviet aid was pledged during ousted Kampuchean Prime Minister Pen Sovan's visit to the country last year. Pen Sovan and Heng Samrin made their first official visit to the Soviet Union during February 1980. Pen Sovan later visited the country during September last year to consult with Moscow economic planning officials about direct economic assistance covering 1981-1985. Sovan also received promises of assistance for the period up to 1980 [year as published] from the Soviet Union.

VNA: SRV SAYS NO AMERICANS STILL BEING HELD

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 23 -- A delegation of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia left Vietnam today concluding an eight-day visit since September 16.

On Sept. 17 and 19, the delegation had working sessions with the Vietnam office for seeking American missing personnel and on Sept. 20 it was received by Vo Dong Giang, deputy foreign minister.

The Vietnamese side reaffirmed that no American is still held in Vietnam and explained clearly Vietnam's humane policy and good will in the search for the missing.

The Vietnamese side considers the settlement of the M.I.A. question a humane question and urges the U.S. Government to avoid any action that may prevent the search.

The Vietnamese side expressed its sympathy for the delegates of the league and of the families of the missing Americans and promised to do all it could to alleviate their worries, thus contributing to promoting the friendship between the two peoples.

The American delegation noted that its working meetings with the Vietnamese side were useful and said it hoped the search for the M.I.A.'s would progress.

ISSUE OF KAMPUCHEAN UN REPRESENTATION VIEWED

NHAN DAN Commentary

OW230845 Hanoi VNA in English 0806 GMT 23 Sep 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 23 -- The Kampuchean people's demand to expel the genocidal Pol Pot clique from the United Nations is a legitimate one, says NHAN DAN in a commentary today on Kampuchean Foreign Minister Hun Sen's message to the U.N. secretary general and the president of the 37th U.N. General Assembly. "This demand," the paper notes, "is totally in line with the present realities in Kampuchea."

"In their nearly four years in power, the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique, henchmen of Beijing, in pursuance of a policy of genocide, killed no less than three million innocent Kampucheans, subjected millions of others to physical and moral sufferings, destroyed the national culture and ruined the national economy. The so-called 'Democratic Kampuchea' was widely condemned for its innumerable genocidal crimes. Following their victory on January 7, 1979, the Kampuchean people have taken their destiny into their hands. The genocidal regime was buried and has no capacity whatsoever to represent the people of Kampuchea."

Under the leadership of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea, the paper goes on, the Kampuchean people have over the past three years overcome all hardships and trials and recorded great achievements in all fields. With the situation in the country having stabilized, the entire people of Kampuchea took part in the general election to elect their own National Assembly which later adopted the Constitution of the People's Republic of Kampuchea. With its foreign policy of peace, independence, friendship and non-alignment, the P.R.K. has become a factor for peace and stability in Southeast Asia, and its international prestige has risen constantly.

NHAN DAN recalls that a larger number of former collaborators of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Kheiu Samphan clique have gone over to the revolutionary administration, and quotes Foreign Minister Hu Sen as saying in a recent interview with the Kampuchean news agency S.P.K.: "For those Kampucheans who are in the ranks of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique or who are collaborating directly of indirectly with them to prevent the rebirth of the Kampuchean people for the benefit of the manoeuvres of the Chinese hegemonists, if they quite the ranks of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique, cease to collaborate with them and respect the Constitution of Kampuchea, then they may enjoy their full civil rights, may stand for election and vote in the free elections as has been stipulated in the Constitution, and foreign observers will be invited to watch the free general elections in Kampuchea."

NHAN DAN goes on: "The lenient policy towards those who have gone astray and now want to mend their ways and return to the people and the fatherland is another expression of the policy of national union and of making use of all the abilities... of Kampuchean patriots for national rehabilitation on the basis of respect for the Constitution. This policy is yet another indication that the Kampuchean situation has become more stable, that the rebirth process has made important steps, and the Kampuchean people are supporting the government policy for national development. At the same time, it also spells out the fact that the new regime has done its best for the people and is enjoying their confidence and love."

"Realities have eloquently proven that the People's Republic of Kampuchea is the only genuine and legal representative of the Kampuchean people and it possesses adequate conditions for undertaking Kampuchea's international commitments and carrying out its duties as a member country of the United Nations organization as stipulated by the U.N. Charter. To oust the genocidal clique from the United Nations and return the Kampuchean seat to the People's Republic of Kampuchea is a correct and necessary action compatible with the real situation and with the aspiration of the Kampuchean people and of the whole progressive mankind and beneficial to the U.N. reputation and prestige.

"Beijing, working hand in glove with Washington and other reactionary forces, has done its utmost to cling to the so-called 'Kampuchean problem'. They have put the label of 'Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea' on the corpse of the genocidal Pol Pot regime in an attempt to deceive the world public and back the Pol Pot clique to retain the Kampuchean seat it has illegally occupied at the United Nations."

The paper stresses: "All resolutions relating to Kampuchea to be adopted without the participation of the representative of the People's Republic of Kampuchea will be completely invalid and constitute a gross and inadmissible interference in the Kampuchean people's internal affairs."

Radio Commentary

BK231128 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 22 Sep 82

[Station commentary: "The Kampuchean People's Legitimate Right of Representation"]

[Text] In his 17 September message to the UN secretary general and the president of the 37th UN General Assembly, Kampuchean Foreign Minister Hun Sen once again pointed out: Whatever the label, the presence of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique at the United Nations is totally illegal. The Kampuchean people's sole legal and genuine representative at this international body should be the PRK.

One year ago, at the 36th UN General Assembly, although the United States, China and other international reactionary forces tried to protect and maintain the illegal seat of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan Clique at the United Nations, they failed to stop the representatives of the various peace- and justice-loving nations in the world from raising their voice of sympathy and support for the Kampuchean people. As the voice of Grenada Prime Minister Bishop is still echoing in our conscience, how can we, the peace- and justice-loving people, allow the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan criminals to sit together with us in this international body?

Not only did the many genocidal crimes committed by Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan -- which were detected last year in Svay Toeur village, Svay Rieng Province, and in many other areas of Kampuchea -- make the Kampuchean people feel more horribly disgusted about Pot Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan, but these crimes also further aroused the indignation of progressive opinion.

In an increasingly desperate position, the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique and those who are regarded by Kampuchean history as good for nothing and who are being directed by Beijing and other international reactionary forces have been compelled to hide themselves under the cloak of a tripartite coalition government in an attempt to deceive the public. But whatever the label, their nature will continue to be that of a stinking political corpse of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan criminals whom the Kampuchean people declared dead on 7 January 1979.

No matter what kind of perfume they may be given to wear by Beijing and their other masters and how beautiful they may be made up to maintain their illegal seat at the current 37th UN General Assembly, they will be unable to fool progressive public opinion. Their presence at the UN forum is aimed merely at giving a helping hand to Beijing in the latter's game of creating tension in Southeast Asia and, more seriously, at reimposing the genocidal regime on the Kampuchean people as desired by the Beijing expansionists.

Foreign observers have affirmed that in reality there is no Kampuchean problem. Only Beijing and the international reactionary forces have purposely created this problem. What is their purpose? Progressive public is well aware of it. They want to distort the revival of Kampuchea. They want to create a political base for the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique and other scum of Kampuchean history to show that they are not a phantom set up in a foreign capital, and that they occupy land and have forces in Kampuchea. They also want to mar the good image of the PRK before public opinion.

Reality, however, does not favor Beijing and the other international reactionary forces' aspiration. The PRK is becoming unprecedentedly strong. Its prestige in the international arena is expanding. On the other hand, the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary genocidal clique and their accomplices, who hide under the tripartite coalition government label, have been increasingly isolated. Those representatives who were forced to vote for them at the 36th UN General Assembly now feel nausea when shaking hands with Pol Pot's representative at the United Nations and want to wash their hands immediately afterward.

At the Thai-Kampuchean border area, those Kampucheans who were forced by the genocidal clique to follow them on 7 January 1979 are fed up and want to go back to live with the other Kampuchean people. This is an indispensable path. The PRK has pursued an open-arms policy for these people. If those Kampucheans who have worked with the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique or who are directly and indirectly collaborating with them against the Kampuchean revival in order to serve the Chinese hegemonist scheme really want to go back to Kampuchea and are willing to respect the PRK Constitution, they are eligible to enjoy citizenship rights as other Kampuchean people.

This policy of the PRK has clearly encouraged an all-people solidarity spirit to restore the country and the comphensive use of the abilities of its Kampuchean patriots. This policy has also demonstrated the increasingly stable situation in Kampuchea and the fact that the revival of Kampuchea has second and continues to score very great achievements.

The Kampuchean people place their confidence in the new regime and the desire to carry out the tasks of the nation and the PRK, a state designed for the people and wholeheartedly supported by the people. This character cannot and will never be inspired by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique and their accomplices.

The legal, genuine and sole representative of the Kampuchean people at the United Nations and other international organizations is the PRK, elected by the Kampuchean people in the May 1981 general elections. All UN resolutions concerning Kampuchea without the consent of the PRK are therefore null and void. The issuance of these resolutions is an act of unacceptable gross interference in the internal affairs of Kampuchea. This has been affirmed in the message by PRK Foreign Minister Hun Sen to the UN secretary general and the 37th UN General Assembly president.

All the sinister schemes of Beijing and other international reactionary forces are surely doomed to failure in the face of the just cause of the Kampuchean people, which is warmly supported by all progressive mankind.

PRC JOURNAL ACCUSED OF 'DISTORTING' HISTORY

BK231343 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 23 Sep 82

[Text] In its 7th issue, the Chinese magazine HONGQI said that Vietnam was not established as a state until 200 BC and that northern and central parts of Vietnam formerly belonged to Chinese territory. This absurd claim demonstrates the evil scheme of reactionary forces in the Chinese leadership. When and how the first state of Vietnam was set up is well written in books of history of Vietnam and also those of China, and this was confirmed by archaeological finds. The Hung kings of Vietnam established the first state called Van Lang in Phong Chau in the year 2000 BC. Another king, Thuc Quan, set up his kingdom at Co Loa just outside Hanoi in the year 300 BC, and between the years 40 to 43 AD, the Trung sisters established their kingdom at Me Linh. By distorting historical facts, the reactionary forces in the Chinese leadership hope to make blackwhite and make believe that Vietnam always has expansionist ambitions. The Chinese magazine HONGQI even went to the length of fabricating history about Vietnamese national history Ly Thuong Kiet, who defeated the Qing invaders from China in the 11th century.

LE MONDE INTERVIEWS NGUYEN CO THATCH IN PARIS

PM231457 Paris LE MONDE in French 22 Sep 82 p 6

[Interview with Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, held in Paris by Patrice de Beer: "Mr Nguyen Co Thach Gives Reassuring Picture of Vietnamese Diplomacy" -- date not given]

[Text] On the eve of his departure for the UN General Assembly, the Vietnamese foreign minister made a brief visit to Paris. Mr Nguyen Co Thach had talks here with [External Relations Minister] Cheysson, who had just had a meeting with the five ASEAN ambassadors. Mr Thach said that there had been "progress" in his talks with his French counterpart, especially in the bilateral sphere, although the question of rescheduling Vietnam's debt is primarily a matter for the IMF. In addition, he confirmed that Paris had been informed back in April of the Vietnamese proposal for a partial unilateral withdrawal from Kampuchea announced in July. He welcomed "French policy which does not recognize the Kampuchean coalition government," and expressed the hope that France will "contribute to the cause of peace."

Criticizing Prince Sihanouk, president of the coalition [passage illegible] who in LE MONDE (14 September issue) had strongly condemned the Vietnamese presence in his country, Mr Thach refrained from final condemnation or injurious statements Of course, he and his delegation will leave the hall when the prince addresses the UN delegates; he described his presence at the head of the coalition as a "sop" making it possible to "vote while holding one's nose" for the Khmer Rouge who, according to him, still control the coalition. He added that the prince was committing "political suicide" by forming an alliance with the Khmer Rouge. But, questioned on whether Mr Heng Samrin's pro-Vietnamese regime or Prince Sihanouk could represent Kampuchea at the international conference advocated by Hanoi, Mr Thach merely replied: "All the positions of the two sides must be discussed." He denied that contacts had been established with the prince's representatives.

That desire by Mr Thach to adopt an open approach, at least in form, was also demonstrated with regard to China. Border incidents have waned -- falling from 100 per month in 1980 to between 15 and 25 this year -- and, he said, "there is a de facto cease-fire on the border. Our offer was officially rejected by the Chinese, but they told us that if we observed it, they would do likewise." That situation has been going on for 6 weeks and, Mr Thach explained, "it is impossible for only one side to respect a cease-fire." He said he is "still optimistic," although "the threat of a second Chinese 'lesson' is still hanging over our heads."

Those remarks may seem surprising at a time when Hanoi, like Beijing, is continuing to report border incidents. What is the real situation in the area? Is Hanoi trying to justify in advance possible concessions on Kampuchea -- whose fate has always been linked with the "Chinese threat" -- by stating that tension has eased on the Sino-Vietnamese border? It is also possible that Hanoi is taking account of attempts at a rapprochement between Moscow and Beijing. Vietnam, Mr Thach said, thinks that "it is a good thing if China adopts the course of detente with its neighbors."

Mr Thach also denied having threatened ASEAN countries in July that he would grant the Soviets bases and reserving a "right of response" against Thailand: "There are no Soviet bases," he stated; the facilities granted by Vietnam are the same as those given by Singapore to other powers. "That does not mean that there will not be any in future. Nor does it mean that there will be. We are keeping all our options open for the good of our country." As regards the "right of response," "it is necessary to envisage all eventualities. Since Thailand and ASEAN are hostile to us, we have the right to defend ourselves, in other words, to do to them what they have done to us. We have not done that. We hope we will not have to do it in future."

As for the partial withdrawl, treated with disbelief by ASEAN and other countries since it is a "unilateral gesture," the number of men withdrawn "may be announced at the appropriate time, if the other side does something." Finally, Mr Thach stated categorically that there would be no new Vietnamese offensive on the Khmer-Thai border, contrary to what Bangkok has been predicting for some time.

On the eve of the UN debate on Kampuchea, Hanoi is adopting a reassuring attitude and preaching negotiation -- "everything can be negotiated," aside from the Khmer Rouge presence, Mr Thach said -- whereas all the indications point to a broad vote in favor of the Democratic Kampuchea coalition.

CONFERENCE TO SUM UP NATIONAL PEACE CAMPAIGN HELD

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 21 -- Fifteen million Vietnamese have so far signed their names in support of the campaign for peace and disarmament.

This was made known in a report at a conference held here today to sum up the nation-wide campaign for peace and disarmament, against war schemes of U.S. imperialism and other reactionary forces, which was launched on July 2 this year by the Presidiums of the Fatherland Front Central Committee and the Peace Committee of Vietnam.

Prof. Pham Huy Thong, Presidium member of the Peace Committee, said in his report: "People of various strata throughout the country have warmly responded to and eagerly participated in the campaign. Almost 15 million people have participated in meetings, marches, talks, teach-ins, and club activities, and signed their names in support of the campaign. The participants included people of all ages, all walks of life, religious sects, political parties, and mass organizations".

Speaking at the conference, Hoang Tung, secretary of the Communist Party Central Committee, noted that through this campaign the Vietnamese people had expressed their ardent aspiration for peace and their determination to oppose the arms race.

Representatives of the Hanoi population, of youth and women's organizations, the Democratic Party, the Socialist Party, the intellectuals, and minority people took the floor, expressing their determination to struggle for peace and against war schemes of U.S. imperialism and other reactionary forces.

The conference unanimously adopted a statement of the Presidiums of the Fatherland Front Central Committee and the Peace Committee, which said among other things: "The Vietnamese people strongly condemn U.S. imperialism and other reactionary war-like imperialist forces which are now seriously threatening peace and security of other nations. We fully support the peace programme and the important initiatives of the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist countries aimed at eliminating the danger of war, fully support the consistent policy of peace of the three Indochinese countries, severely condemn and resolutely foil all schemes and acts of the reactionaries in the Beijing leadership who are attempting to sabotage the Indochinese peoples' peaceful construction and demand that the Pol Pot murderers be expelled from the United Nations. We reaffirm our solidarity with and resolute support for the just and certainly victorious struggle of the Palestinian and other Arab peoples against U.S. imperialism and the Israeli aggressors."

Further on Statement

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 22 -- "Fifteen million people of all walks of life in our country have signed their names in strong support of measures to prevent nuclear war, stop the arms race, and speed up disarmament," say the Presidiums of the Fatherland Front Central Committee and the Peace Committee of Vietnam in a statement here yesterday. The statement, adopted at a meeting to review a nationwide peace and disarmament campaign from July 2 to September 21, says in parts:

"To struggle for peace is now the most important task of mankind. It is closely linked with the revolutionary struggle of the working class and nations. To eliminate the danger of nuclear war, safeguard peace and the existence of nations, and defend man's right to life are the demand and responsibility of everyone in the world. The Vietnamese people, fighting courageously for decades to defeat U.S. imperialism and Beijing expansionism, to wrest back independence and freedom and contribute to the struggle for world peace, yearn all the more earnestly for a lasting, stable peace...

"The Vietnamese people strongly condemn U.S. imperialism and other warlike imperialist and reactionary forces which are stockpiling strategic and nuclear weapons, thus posing a serious threat to peace and security, and confronting mankind with the danger of a devastating nuclear war...

"We fully support the peace programme put forth at the 26th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union. We fully support Soviet President L.I. Brezhnev's statement on the Soviet Union's unilateral commitment not to be the first to resort to nuclear weapons, and the important initiatives taken recently by the Soviet Union and other socialist countries...

"We fully support the peace policies of the three Indochinese countries, and their practical, reasonable well-meaning proposals for friendship and cooperation between Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea and all their neighbours and all other countries in the region, for the sake of peace and security in Southeast Asia. We strongly condemn and are determined to foil all schemes and acts jointly hatched and taken by reactionary circles in Beijing and U.S. imperialism to undermine the three Indochinese people's efforts at peaceful construction and threaten their independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity.

"We reaffirm resolute support for and solidarity with the Palestinian people and other Arab nations in their just struggle against U.S. imperialism and Israeli aggression to recover the territories illegally occupied by Israel, to restore to the Palestinian people their sacred national rights including the right to return to their homeland and there to set up a Palestinian state, independent and sovereign, under the leadership of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO), their only legitimate representative".

The statement supports Soviet President L.I. Brezhnev's proposals for a stable peace in the Middle East. It condemns the Israeli aggressors and their henchmen for massacring Palestinian refugees in Beirut, and demands the immediate withdrawal of Israeli troops from the capital of sovereign Lebanon.

The statement continues by saying that the struggle for peace remains very difficult, and that the Reagan administration's adventurous policy and the collusion between U.S. imperialism and Beijing hegemony and expansionism remain a permanent threat to security and stability (?in) Asia and other parts of the world and a danger to the whole of mankind.

"Favoured by the balance of forces, we are sure to gain still bigger successes through persistent and concerted actions. Peace, the fruition of the common struggle of all nations, can be preserved", the statement concludes.

Cardinal Trinh Van Can Letter

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 18 -- Cardinal Trinh Van Can has extended support for the nation-wide campaign for peace and disarmament launched in July by the Vietnam Fatherland Front and Vietnam Peace Committee. In a recent letter to these two organizations, the cardinal urged all Vietnamese Catholics to pray and act for world peace, particularly peace and prosperity in Vietnam. "In the spirit of Catholicism, I always condemn the reactionary forces for their arms race and their preparations for a nuclear war which threaten peace, independence and security of all nations and would eventually destroy human life", Cardinal Trinh Van Can added.

Mass meetings, teach-ins and signature collections have been organized in Ha Son Binh Province, northwest of Hanoi, and in the Mekong Delta provinces of Kien Giang and Minh Hai in response to the peace campaign.

NHAN DAN EDITORIAL MARKS UN WORLD PEACE DAY

[NHAN DAN 21 September editorial: "Progressive Mankind Resolves To Protect Peace"]

[Text] Today, 21 September 1982, is the Day for World Peace launched by the United Nations. It is also the day on which we end the nationwide campaign for peace and disarmament against the war schemes of the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces which the Presidiums of the VFF Central Committee and the Vietnam Peace Committee jointly launched on 2 July this year.

These campaigns are important political events. They respond to the will and aspirations of our people and progressives in the world who are struggling for a lasting peace on our planet. The policy of the United States, NATO and other international reactionaries is aggravating the world situation. The U.S.-led warlike forces are frenziedly accelerating the race for strategic and nuclear arms. This is very dangerous and unprecedentedly expensive.

This arms race is closely connected with the polices of increasing arms exports, inciting and maintaining conventional military conflicts and intensifying and expanding military pledges and alliances in larger spheres. This arms race is further fostered by a series of extremely reactionary doctrines of peace and war and by many psychological warfare campaigns aimed at distorting and slandering the Soviet Union and the socialist community.

In particular, the Reagan administration is implementing a military buildup plan -- the largest in U.S. history -- to regain military superiority over the Soviet Union. It has purposely interfered with and undermined East-West relations and the process of international liberation movements of nations.

It is the United States that has secretly supported the reactionaries in Poland and Afghanistan. It is the United States that has sided with the Thatcher government to fiercely oppose the Argentine people's sovereignty over the Malvinas archipelago. In particular, it is the United States that has plotted and schemed for the belligerent Israeli ruling circles. The United States has supported and encouraged them to wage an aggressive war against Lebanon and has condoned their extremely cruel massacre of the Palestinian and Lebanese peoples.

By having maintained for years their systematic hostile acts against the revolution in the three Indochinese countries, by condoning and encouraging the Pol Pot clique to wage a cruel genocidal war against the Kampuchean people, by currently fostering this clique, and especially by waging an aggressive war against Vietnam in February 1979, the reactionaries among the Beijing ruling circles have proved to be in fact an ally of the United States and other warlike imperialist forces. Their four modernizations policy -- especially the modernization of their army -- and their policy of maintaining Maoist groups in the Indochinese countries are aimed at serving their expansionist and hegemonist schemes, posing a real and long-term threat to peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

However, the war plans of the United States and other warlike imperialist forces are being prepared under a very disadvantageous situation, at a time when the economy of the world capitalist system is in a serious and profound crisis and when the contradictions among the developed capitalist countries have become very acute. These plans have met with the constant growth of the three revolutionary currents in the world. The general balance of forces in the international arena continues to change to the benefit of peace, national independence, democracy and socialism. There have been powerful integrated forces on our planet to prevent war and safeguard a lasting peace.

Adhering to the nature of socialism, Vietnam and other countries in the socialist community always contend that peace is always closely associated with progress and revolution. They always regard the struggle for peace as a strategically important and urgent task of our era.

The Soviet Union has always taken the lead in making proposals with good will and a constructive spirit for disarmament, world peace and detente in order to stop the arms race and advance toward the limitation and reduction of weapons deployment, especially stragetic weapons, so as to concretely ease world tension.

The principle of peace for the 1980's as set forth by the 26th CPSU Congress has symbolized the sense of responsibility of the Soviet Union toward mankind's future and destiny. The Soviet Union has unilaterally reduced a number of its troops in East Europe. It is the first and sole country to announce that it will not be the first to use nuclear weapons. Recently, President Brezhnev once again made a six-point proposal aimed at seeking permanent peace in the Middle East.

It was mainly in line with the Soviet initiative that the 36th UN General Assembly late last year adopted the historic document on the prevention of a nuclear weapons disaster. Many important Soviet proposals on peace and disarmament have been included in the agenda of the 37th UN General Assembly to be convened today.

Concerning Southeast Asia, Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea have always strived to foil all schemes to oppose, undermine and create tension being conducted by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists. They have also struggled tirelessly to accelerate the trend toward dialogue between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries.

The foreign ministerial conferences of the three Indochinese countries have repeatedly proposed many important initiatives and constructive ideas aimed at easing the tension in the region. They have proposed seven guiding principles in the relations of coexistence among countries in Southeast Asia. The SRV's good will for peace was clearly manifested in its recent decision to partially withdraw troops from Kampuchea.

All peace initiatives of the Soviet Union and the socialist community have had a profound effect on world opinion. Peace movements have taken shape in the West -- Western Europe, Japan and in the United States -- which have demonstrated a common and strong aspiration for peace and the profound indignation of thousands of millions of men to the U.S. and NATO arms race.

More than ever before, the struggle of nations for independence, sovereignty, democracy and social progress is connected closely with the struggle for world peace and security. Never before have the forms and methods of struggle for world peace been so diversified and fruitful as in the recent past.

Always cherishing peace, independence and freedom, our people have contributed their flesh and blood to the cause of peace for mankind. In winning the aggressive wars waged by the United States and the reactionaries among the Chinese ruling circles, our people have disregarded all sacrifices and hardships not only for the sake of their peace, independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, but also for peace in Southeast Asia and the world. Our people have also participated positively in all the movements and progressive campaigns for world peace, friendship and security of all nations.

Warmly welcoming the national campaign launched on 2 July 1982 for peace and disarmament against the war schemes of the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, nearly 15 million people throughout the country have participated enthusiastically in various fruitful activities and have signed letters to support this campaign. Through this campaign, our people of all ages and social classes and strata throughout the country have manifested their high vigilance and determination to struggle against the war schemes of imperialism and other international reactionaries, especially the enemy's multifaceted war of sabotage against our country.

Through this campaign, our people have manifested their determination to implement the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress by striving to build socialism successfully and to staunchly defend the socialist country. Together with the world people, they will struggle to protect peace and oppose the war preparations by imperialist and international reactionary forces.

The struggle for peace and disarmament is a long and complicated struggle. Reason and victory belong to progressive mankind, which is determined to secure a lasting peace for the world.

BK240932 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 24 Sep 82

[Text] The ban has been lifted on Soviet scientists attending conferences in Australia. The president of the Australian Academy of Sciences, Professor (Birch), says the foreign minister, Mr Street, has given an understanding that Soviet scientists will be allowed to attend future conferences.

Professor (Birch) says international scientific conferences in Australia were threatened following the refusal by the federal government to issue visas to two Soviet biochemists earlier this year. The ban was imposed as part of sanctions following the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

FOREIGN MINISTER DISCUSSES PROBABLE UN ISSUES

[From the "Australian Insight" program]

[Text] Australian Foreign Minister Street leaves Australia this weekend for the United Nations General Assembly meeting to be held in New York next week. In Canberra, Street talked to political correspondent (John Lombard) about the trip.

[Begin recording] [Street] The United Nations General Assembly, quite apart from the debate in the plenary session itself, provides a wonderful opportunity to have talks with counterpart foreign ministers from all over the world. In particular, this time I'll be meeting the new U.S. secretary of state, Mr Shultz, for the first time. But I'll also be seeing many other foreign ministers as well. So, in addition to contributing to the general debate, I hope to have useful talks with a wide range of people.

[Question] What do you think are likely to be the major issues coming before the General Assembly?

[Answer] There'll be a number of issues. I would expect the Middle East to be probably the most immediate. And I've no doubt the Falklands will arise at some stage. The events in Afghanistan and Cambodia are still high on the agenda of countries from those areas and still there is the prospect of launching global negotiations. We hope that can be done, and we will work as hard as we can to see that it does come about. But nevertheless there are still difficulties in that respect.

[Question] Well, if I can take some of those issues, what is the Australian position in regard to the slaughter of Palestinians?

[Answer] Our position has been made very clear both by the prime minister and me in the Parliament over the last few days. It's difficult to find words to describe the horror with which we view that massacre, and we hope that eventually a full explanation of what happened and how it happened will be forthcoming. But it's so difficult, of course, to make any judgment because all the reports we have are hearsay reports. We're not there, in fact, ourselves.

[Question] Would Australia support an enquiry into the matter?

[Answer] We would certainly like to see a determination of what the circumstances were. Now, obviously, we would have to look at the terms of any resolution when it came up. We haven't had any forenotice of that as yet.

[Question] You also mentioned the issue of Cambodia. This will come up in the credentials question. What will Australia's position be?

[Answer] It probably will come up. The vote on the credentials has happened over the last couple of years. It's not an automatic thing but I'd expect it probably will come up. And our attitude is this. We're encouraged by the formation of the coalition government in Cambodia. It is yet early days to see how this coalition will operate and how effective it will be. We certainly could not support anything which was merely a front for the Khmer Rouge -- for the Pol Pot forces -- or which turned out to be a vehicle which ended up in the Khmer Rouge returning to power in Cambodia. Nevertheless, we recognize Prince Sihanouk and Mr Son Sann as very distinguished patriots of their country, and you might have noticed that only a few days ago we announced quite substantial support for them. But as for the credentials issue, we'll determine our position in the light of circumstances at the time.

[Question] Your government was criticized for its decision on giving aid to Kampuchea on the grounds that you were giving in to pressure from ASEAN.

[Answer] Oh, not at all. No, not at all. We make no apology whatever for giving aid to Sihanouk and Son Sann. Neither do we make any apology at all for not directing our aid to the Khmer Rouge -- to the Pol Pot forces. This was a recognition of Australia's respect for Sihanouk and Son Sann, as I said, as genuine patriots.

[Question] You mentioned the Falklands -- the Falklands dispute. In what sense do you think that might come up, and what will Australia's position be?

[Answer] Well, we can't determine the position in advance of events because we don't know how it will be handled. But as I said, I'd be surprised if it didn't emerge. As you know, during the Falkland crisis, we gave our strong support to the United Kingdom because of the unprovoked aggression by Argentina. We're very glad, of course, to see an end to hostilities there, and we hope that that can be transformed into something permanent.

[Question] The situation in Poland has been quiet recently. Do you think that's likely to be an issue?

[Answer] I think the quietness or otherwise has been pretty variable. For example, there were some very serious disturbances a few weeks ago at the end of August. And it's clear that the repression of martial law is still very much in force in Poland. It has clear that there is a huge gulf between the population of Poland and the people who imposed that martial law. And our position is quite clearly that martial law should be lifted, that all detainees should be released and there should be commenced again that dialogue which had started between the Solidarity movement and the government and the church prior to the imposition of martial law. And until those three conditions are fulfilled, it's difficult to see the pressures in Poland being reduced.

[Question] Do you think it's likely there would be any discussion on the world economic situation?

[Answer] I think it's almost certain in one forum or another -- in one form or another. I mentioned earlier the question of global negotiations and I'd expect the world economic position to be discussed in that context as well. And particularly in the period where countries are becoming increasingly inward looking where protectionist pressures are increasing. We're certainly concerned about that as a major trading nation and I'd expect the developing countries of the world to be just as concerned because their very life blood depends on the capacity to trade as well. So, yes, I'd expect that to be a fair focus of attention. [end recording]

STREET RAPS DISBANDMENT OF 'HELSINKI' GROUP

[Text] Minister for Foreign Affairs Street has strongly criticized the Soviet Union for disbanding a human rights monitoring group. Street told federal parliament the government viewed with grave disquiet the disbanding of the Helsinki group which was set up in 1976 to monitor Soviet compliance with the Helsinki Accords on human rights.

Street said the government has made it known to the Soviet authorities its concern about abuses of human rights in the Soviet Union and in particular, about the fate of dissidents.

MAHATHIR TO VISIT FIJI, PAPUA NEW GUINEA

BK231531 Kuala Lumpur Domestic Service in English 1130 GMT 23 Sep 82

[Excerpts] The computer system in the Ministry of Defense will be upgraded within the next few months to beef up its logistic capability. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir Mohammed said the minicomputers presently used by the armed forces are inadequate to meet the various requirements of the forces. The prime minister told newsmen this after visiting the central ordnance depot at Batu cantonment in Kuala Lumpur.

The prime minister said he would visit Papua New Guinea on his way home after attending the regional commonwealth heads of government meeting in Fiji next month. He hoped his visit would help pave the way for closer cooperation between the two countries.

MALAYSIA FACING BIGGEST DEFICIT EVER

[Excerpts] Kota Baharu, Malaysia, Sept 19 (AFP) --Malaysia is expected to face a deficit of payments totalling 9,000 million dollars ($3,913 million U.S.) in its 1982 current accounts, Finance Minister Tengku Razaleigh Hamzah said today. BERNAMA NEWS AGENCY, quoting Mr Razaleigh, said that this was the biggest deficit the country would face since it gained independence. At the same time, Malaysia was also expected to face a deficit of about 3 billion dollars ($1,304 million U.S.) in its trade balance, he said. In the first six months of this year, the deficit was 1.5 billion dollars ($652 million U.S.), he added.

The downturn in the two sectors resulted from the world economic recession which was projected not to be able to recover in the next six months, he said. Nearly all of Malaysia's primary exports such as rubber, tin, palm oil and timber were getting poorer markets, he added. He said the price of palm oil had dropped from $1,300 (about $565 U.S.) a tonne at the end of last year to $650 dollars (about $82 U.S.) at present.

He also disclosed that about 30 small tin mines in several states had been forced to close down in the last nine months, causing about 15,000 workers tobe laid off. World demand for timber from Malaysia continued to decline as a result of the stagnant construction industry, he said. He added that rubber smallholders no longer enjoyed the good incomes they had in 1978, 1979 and 1980.

BULLETIN TODAY NOTES GOVERNMENT STABILITY

[By Apolonio Batalla: "Case for Stability"]

The president was asked a number of times in the U.S. about what may happen in the Philippines if something should happen to him. He was asked in New York about stability, evidently because that has something to do with investment decisions. Such questions involve the long-run picture, for businessmen know that the president is capable of keeping things under control. What might happen after him is another matter.

It may be useful to note that the Philippines is not a traditional society with a traditional type of leadership. In a traditional society the people do not elect their leader, and oftentimes leadership is hereditary. As a consequence, the important institutions are headed by relatives or friends of the leader. The army, for example, swears loyalty to the leader rather than to the nation. The institutions are shaped or designed for the preservation of the leader. In some cases, the passing of the leader in the traditional society throws the nation into chaos or anarchy, for when the leader dies the institutions which are designed for his convenience collapse. Sometimes, that does not happen. Still, transition provokes speculation.

In the Philippines, the leader is incidental. One can search in vain in the literature distributed for the armed forces for any indication that the armed forces exist to serve the president rather than the nation. One can look at the records of the AFP [Philippine Armed Forces] for any passage that says they are the personal bodyguard of the president. The armed forces are told the president is their commander-in-chief, but only because he is the president. Another institution is the schools. The children are told to respect the president but they are not told to be personally loyal to him. It is obedience to tradition that students are in the vanguard of protest. There is no way of recasting their minds except to impose a totalitarian government. The bulk of the civilian civil service is sworn to uphold the law and serve the nation. There has been no attempt to reshape it in order to make it loyal to the president alone. In Malacanang itself, the employee is not made to swear loyalty to the president. But every employee in the government swears to abide by the constitution and the laws.

All this means that if something happens to the president, the institutions will survive and will hold the nation together. While most of the government institutions are headed by people close to the president, the institutions are so constructed as to make their respective leaders incidental.

The Philippines is to be distinguished from other countries which have had only a nodding acquaintanceship with the republican form of government before they are overwhelmed by their own radical forces. Because democracy was implanted here shortly after the turn of the century, that form of government has become traditional or habitual. It would take some doing to change the form of government without considerable bloodshed. To would-be autocrats, there would be no alternative to bloodshed, to attain the goal. To people who have lower ambitions, there is no alternative to traditional democracy.

We cannot think of any person of leadership capabilities who is likely to opt for bloodshed in order to change tradition. On the other hand, there are many who would take a crack at power by the constitutionally-mandated methods. Somehow the political culture, developed for close to four-score years, will assert dominance. Still, there are many challenges to long-run stability. For one thing, our elections should be kept free and honest. For another, the rule of law should command more respect. But no democracy is not without challenges.

SUZUKI INTERVIEWED ON SINO-JAPANESE RELATIONS

OW250728 Tokyo NHK Television Network in Japanese 1300 GMT 24 Sep 82

[Interview with Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, "Sino-Japanese Relations and Japan's Diplomacy" by NHK reporter Korehito Obama; participants include writer Yasushi Inoue and former Ambassador to China Heishiro Ogawa, at Suzuki's official residence -- recorded; date not given]

[Excerpts] [Obama] Thank you very much, Mr Prime Minister, for giving us this opportunity despite your busy schedule today. We hear that decisions were made at today's Cabinet session on such important matters as the outline of administrative reform, the issuance of a state of emergency for the national railways, and the freezing of the recommendation for pay raises for government employees by the national personnel authority. The political situation seems to be somewhat tense, but I would like to concentrate our discussions on Sino-Japanese relations in accordance with the terms agreed upon for arranging this interview.

Well, just 10 years have passed since Sino-Japanese relations were normalized. What impressions do you have as you look back upon these past 10 years?

[Suzuk] I think that Sino-Japanese relations have made a marvelous, wonderful development in these 10 years since normalization. At that time, I was the chairman of the LDP Executive Council. As I recall the difficulty I experienced in achieving a consensus within the party, I am filled with deep emotion.

[Obama] Mr Prime Minister, you are scheduled to leave for China the day after tomorrow. What do you intend to ask the Chinese leaders and the Chinese people during your visit?

[Suzuki] This year marks the 10th anniversary of Sino-Japanese normalization. In this memorable year, Premier Zhao Ziyang visited Japan first, and this time I am going to visit China at the invitation of the Chinese Government. As evidenced by this mutual exchange of visits between the prime ministers, friendly, amicable relations between the two countries have made great strides. Japan, for its part, has cooperated with China in various aspects of her modernization effort. I want to see with my own eyes the development China has made in this period. I also want to have full discussions with the Chinese leaders on the question of how to develop Sino-Japanese relations in the remainder of the 1980's and into the 21st century.

Furthermore, the recent 12th CPC Congress adopted China's new leadership setup for the next 5 years, as well as new domestic and foreign policies. I would like to hear more about these matters directly from the Chinese leaders. I will also explain Japan's foreign policy and other matters to them so that both sides can deepn their understanding.

[Obama] Mr Inoue, I understand you are going to go to China the day after the prime minister leaves.

[Inoue] That is right. I am going to visit China to attend celebrations marking the 10th anniversary of Sino-Japanese normalization. I feel very happy. In these 10 years, Japan and China have developed a wonderful relationship, unprecedented in the world. Before normalization, contacts between the two countries had been limited to private-level exchanges. But since normalization, exchanges both on the private and official levels have complemented each other, effecting very good results. In my view, the past 10 years have been a dream-like, wonderful period. I believe it to be our duty to deepen these exchanges and make the ties between the two countries closer.

[Obama] What is your comment, Mr Prime Minister?

[Suzuki] I am completely in agreement with Mr Inoue. When I trace back the 2,000 years of Sino-Japanese exchanges, I can find no time in this history when Sino-Japanese relations were so friendly and stood on such a firm basis of mutual trust as today. At no time did the two countries and the two peoples trust each other and cooperate with each other as much as today. I recall that Mr Zhao Ziyang stressed peace, friendship, equality and reciprocity, and particularly long-term stability. He said that no matter how stormy international relations and other situations may become, Japan and China should develop their friendly and cooperative relations on a long-term basis on the foundations of friendship which they have built so far; I fully agree with him. We would like to build a fruitful Sino-Japanese tie in the future without fail.

[Obama] When we look back on the past 10 years, we feel that things have progressed very smoothly. But recently, over the textbook issue, there has been some awkwardness in relations between the two countries. When you go to China, Mr Prime Minister, do you intend to touch on this issue?

[Suzuki] I feel that I had better personally explain Japan's basic position on the issue. Our government clarified its basic position on this issue some time ago in the form of a statement by the chief Cabinet secretary. The statement said that Sino-Japanese relations will be developed further on the basis of the spirit of the preamble to the Sino-Japanese joint statement, as well as the principle of the Sino-Japanese peace and friendship treaty and that it is necessary to have this intent reflected more correctly and appropriately in textbooks and in education. The statement also says that corrections will be made under government responsibility. I want to clearly state to the Chinese side that the Japanese Government will put into practice with sincerity and as soon as possible what the chief Cabinet minister said in his statement. I also want to explain Japan's peace diplomacy based on her postwar peace Constitution so that the Chinese people can fully understand it.

[Obama] What do you think is behind this dispute?

[Suzuki] The dispute has been settled diplomatically, at least. But the issue is deeply rooted in the national sentiments of the Chinese people. Therefore, I believe that we should not stop at correcting historical descriptions in textbooks but also pay full attention to these sentiments. We should fully explain by word -- and prove by deed -- what position Japan has taken since the end of World War II, how Japan has reflected on its past mistakes, and how Japan was reborn as a new nation, determined not to commit those same mistakes, so that friendly and trustworthy relations can be developed not only between the governments but also between the peoples.

[Obama] I would like to move into the subject of what Sino-Japanese relations and exchanges should be like in the future. What is your basic idea in this regard, Mr Prime Minister?

[Suzuki] As you know, China has been pursuing the four modernizations as its major new goals. We are also very glad that it is building an open China while pursuing a moderate foreign policy. Japan, attaching importance to this policy, intends to render as much cooperation as possible in the implementation of this policy. China has a grand and ambitious plan to quadruple productivity, including agricultural and industrial productivity, by the year 2,000 by successfully implementing its modernization plan. Considerable difficulties will be encountered in achieving this goal, but Japan will stint no cooperation in all aspects, including the funding, technical and managerial fields.

In the past 10 years, the number of people taking part in personnel exchanges has been boosted from 9,000 at the time of normalization to 130,000 at present. In the fields of trade and commerce, the volume of trade has increased from $1.1 billion at the time of normalization to more than $10 billion today.

Inasmuch as China seeks to consolidate her internal system and take concrete measures for modernization while looking forward to the year 2000 on the basis of the foundations built in the past 10 years, I hope this endeavor will succeed without fail. I believe that to make the Sino-Japanese ties still closer through cooperation in China's modernization will not only accord with the common interests of the Chinese and Japanese peoples but also contribute to the peace and prosperity of Asia and the world.

[Obama] As regards economic exchanges, these have followed a rather trial and error process. Mr Ogawa, what is your opinion of this, as seen from your point of view as former ambassador?

[Ogawa] Since China is such a big country with so large a population and has little experience in dealing with the world economy, there have been many trials and errors. As a consequence, China cancelled some plant contracts and suspended some construction projects, to the dismay of the Japanese officials concerned. However, in my view, the trial-and-error process was unavoidable. Japan should look on the process with compassion. I think that, in the future, Japan should take the course of boldly providing aid where China is really in need of Japanese cooperation. Too many misgivings will not be good for cooperation.

[Suzuki] Mr Ogawa, China has a population of over 1 billion, her territory is vast, and she is rich in natural resources. She has various favorable conditions for developing these resources and for building industries and stabilizing the people's livelihood. However, as you have just pointed out, this is a Herculean task. In cooperating in this task, Japan has so far resorted mainly to yen credits and government-to-government trade and technical cooperation through the Export-Import Bank. I think Japan should continue this kind of direct government-to-government cooperation through dialogues between the two countries.

Nevertheless, inasmuch as China plans to carry out this Herculean task by mobilizing people in all walks of life, I think private-level cooperation will become important. I expect private-level cooperation will gain a relatively greater weight. In this sense, China should create conditions favorable to Japanese investments, joint ventures, and technical cooperation. In this connection, the question of signing an investment protection treaty is under discussion between the two countries. Also under discussion is the question of signing a tax treaty. I think it is incumbent upon the two governments from now on to create a [illegible] ironment which will enable private businessmen in the two countries to have genuine tru[illegible] in each other and cooperate without anxiety.

[Obama] I understand you are going to visit the Baoshan steel complex.

[Suzuki] That is right. I hear that China has a plan to further expand that steel mill. I would like to see how the present project is progressing.

[Obama] I think there is also a question of personnel exchanges.

[Suzuki] Mr Ogawa, many Chinese students are in Japan. In addition, cultural and various other delegations visit Japan from China. In this connection, a proposal for building a Japan-China hall has been brought to the fore with a view to providing living accommodations to Chinese students and others. I plan to tell the Chinese side when I get there that the move for this hall is mounting and that the Japanese Government intends to support the move as much as possible so that the plan can materialize. Japanese businessmen and dietmen are busy trying to put this plan into practice. I think that the plan will be put into effect as soon as possible so the hall will become a stronghold for exchanges.

[Obama] I think there are many problems to tackle in the future to promote personnel and cultural exchanges. Mr Prime Minister, when you visit China this time, you plan to deliver a lecture to ordinary Chinese people, don't you?

[Suzuki] Yes, I am scheduled to deliver a 30- to 40-minute lecture. In addition, I will also have a press conference for Japanese and foreign reporters. I want to take that opportunity to tell them frankly what ideas Japan has, what kind of cooperation Japan can provide for the future of China, so that they can understand us in these respects.

[Obama] When we look at the way China is handling international politics, China looks like quite an old hand in some respects. Recently, I hear, there has been a move to restore her relations with the Soviet Union. What is your opinion of this, Mr Prime Minister?

[Suzuki] In his political report to the recent party congress, General Secretary Hu Yaobang touched upon the question of improving Sino-Soviet relations or of repairing them. He seems to have laid down many conditions for this. He proposed that if the Soviet Union settles this or that problem in good faith and demonstrates its sincerity in deed, China will improve her relations with the Soviet Union. Included in these conditions is the demand that the Soviet Union reduce the 50 or more divisions of Soviet troops presently deployed along the Sino-Soviet border and in Mongolia to 21 or 22 divisions, the same level which existed in the Khruschev era. Another condition involves the question of what to do about Soviet support to Vietnam, as well as the question of Soviet military bases in Danang, Cam Ranh Bay, and other places. Another condition involves what the Soviet Union will do about the present state of Afghanistan.

However, in my opinion at any rate, this move seems to be a manifestation of China's intention to cope with international diplomacy from a broad, flexible point of view. At any rate, this is an important issue on which I would like to hear the Chinese leader's views directly. Since this issue will have a great impact on the peace and security of Asia and the future international situation as a whole, I want to hear directly from the Chinese leaders about whether or not there is a change in China's policy toward the Soviet Union.

[Obama] If there is a major change in Sino-Soviet relations, it is bound to have a considerable impact on Japan. Aside from Sino-Jananese relations, let us now turn our diplomatic eyes to Asia as a whole. What is your opinion of Japan's relations with Asian countries?

[Suzuki] In considering Japan's Asian policy, I think it is very important that Sino-Japanese relations are founded on an unshakable relationship of trust and cooperation. Japan has continued various forms of support for and cooperation with ASEAN. How China will deal with ASEAN and how she will work hand in hand with ASEAN in handling the Vietnam and Kampuchean questions will have a profound effect on the peace and security of Asia as a whole in the future.

Recently, President Kim Il-song visited China. Peace and stability on the Korean Peninsula are very important for peace in Asia. In this sense, the fact that President Kim Il-song visited China immediately after the CPC congress to hold talks with the Chinese leaders is bound to have an impact on the future of Asia. Therefore, I would like to have an in-depth exchange of views from a lofty standpoint with Chinese leaders on this subject also.

Since Japan is part of Asia, I think it very important in the interest of peace in Asia for Japan to step up exchanges with Asian countries, such as China, ASEAN, and South Korea and to build friendships with them truly on the people's level.

[Obama] Mr Prime Minister, do you have any plans to make a trip abroad before the end of the year and after your return from China, even though you will be very busy with the LDP presidential election and so forth?

[Suzuki] No, I do not have any.

[Text] Beijing, September 24 (KCNA) -- The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, made a speech at the grand banquet he arranged this evening at the Great Hall of the People in Beijing upon the conclusion of his official state visit to the People's Republic of China. Follows the full text of his speech at the banquet:

Respected Comrade Hu Yaobang, respected Comrade Deng Xiaoping, respected comrades leading cadres of the Chinese party and government, comrades and friends:

Our visit to China which has received particular attention and cordial hospitality from the Communist Party of China, the Government of the People's Republic of China and all the Chinese people is coming to a successful end.

Allow me, first of all, to express deep thanks to respected Comrade Hu Yaobang, Deng Xiaoping and other leading cadres of the Chinese party and government for their presence at this humble banquet we have arranged.

Every day we have spent together with intimate comrades-in-arms during our visit to China has been a very meaningful day which has brilliantly adorned Korea-China friendship and further deepened militant friendship and fraternity between the peoples of the two countries.

Of particular importance are our official talks with Comrade Hu Yaobang and Comrade Zhao Ziyang, and a number of our talks and conversations with Comrade Hu Yaobang and Comrade Deng Xiaoping. At the talks and conversations we have widely discussed the problems of common concern including those of further strengthening the bonds of traditional Korea-China friendship and reached a complete consensus of views on all problems discussed.

During our visits to Beijing, Chengdu and Xian, we have had the pleasure of seeing the new changes that have taken place in the ideological and spiritual features of the Chinese people and in all domains of socialist economic construction since the third plenary meeting of the Eleventh Central Committee of the Communist Party of China. We have also had emotional meetings with the fraternal Chinese people and talked about many laudable deeds recorded in the history of Korea-China friendship.

Everywhere we went the fraternal Chinese people cordially received us and warmly welcomed us as if they were meeting their own blood relatives after a long separation.

Comrade Hu Yaobang and Comrade Deng Xiaoping were kind enough to accompany us and deepen our friendship by taking much time off from their very much schedules to implement the decisions of the party congress.

On this joyous occasion overflowing with the feelings of militant fraternity and friendship, I would like to express deep thanks once more to the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China, the Government of the People's Republic of China and the Chinese people for their hearty and cordial hospitality accorded us during our visit.

On our current visit to your country at this important historic moment in the development of the Chinese revolution, we have witnessed the great changes in China and her people's creative activities and learned a great deal from them.

We have clearly seen a victorious future of China in the vivacious looks of the people of all her nationalities who have risen in the struggle to accelerate socialist modernization with a great hope and firm confidence, closely rallied around the Communist Party of China.

Our people regard the struggle of the Chinese people as their own, actively support it and sincerely wish that all work in China will be successful.

I firmly believe that the industrious and talented Chinese people will certainly achieve a brilliant success in the struggle to carry out the militant tasks set forth by the 12th national congress of the party.

Comrades and friends, we are very much satisfied with the results of our current visit to China, which are excellent in all respects. These results will be a powerful encouragement and impetus to the revolutionary struggle and construction work in Korea and China and display a great vitality in accomplishing their people's common cause of anti-imperialism.

Our party and our people will bring to fuller bloom Korea-China friendship which has been strengthened through our meeting with the Chinese brothers this time and actively strive to expand and advance the cooperative relations between the two parties, two countries and two peoples onto a new higher stage in all fields of politics, economy and culture. Back home, we will convey to all our party membership and people the fraternal greetings from the members of the Communist Party and people of China and tell them about everything we have witnessed and felt here.

Firmly believing that this visit to China will be a historic occasion in bringing friendship and solidarity between the Korean and Chinese peoples to a new higher stage, I propose to a toast, to lasting militant friendship and solidarity between the Korean and Chinese peoples, to the strengthening and development of the Communist Party of China and the prosperity of the People's Republic of China, to solidarity among the world peace-loving people, to the good health and long life of respected Comrade Hu Yaobang, to the good health and long life of respected Comrade Deng Xiaoping, to the health of comrades cadres of the Chinese party and government, to the health of comrades and friends present here.

S. KOREAN FISHERMEN SEIZED 13 JULY TO BE RELEASED

[Text] Pyongyang, September 27 (KCNA) -- KCNA has been authorized to report the following: On 13 July 1982, a naval patrol boat of the KPA Navy checked an unidentified boat which intruded illegally into a spot in latitude 39 degrees 50 minutes north and longitude 132 degrees 50 minutes east in the economic waters of our side in the East Sea.

According to investigations conducted by the relevant institutions, the unidentified boat checked by us is a South Korean fishing boat, Masan-ho No 5, registered in Sokcho harbor, South Korea, and the 35 people aboard are crewmen of this boat.

The Masan-ho No 5 left Sokcho harbor at around noon of 18 June 1982 and was fishing for squid in the South Sea centering around Cheju straits from 20 June.

Finding no fish in the South Sea, the boat began to move to the East Sea on 6 July, continuing to move up to waters in latitude 38 degrees 30 minutes north. Unable to find fish in these waters either, contrary to expectation, the boat moved northward in pursuit of fish on 12 July and at around 1130 on 13 July came to intrude deep into the economic waters of our side in latitude 39 degrees 50 minutes and longitude 132 degrees 50 minutes.

The crewmen of this boat frankly admitted to their crime of intruding deep into the economic waters of our side in the East Sea and illegally fishing there.

Despite the fact that the Masan-ho No 5 illegally intruded into the waters controlled by us, we have decided -- starting from a humane and compatriotic stand -- to treat them magnanimously instead of punishing them, as they are poor South Korean fishermen who came into our waters in pursuit of a school of fish rather than for other, impure, objectives.

The South Korean fishermen spent pleasant and happy days here, enjoying the warm compatriotic hospitality of our people while staying in the northern half of the republic. While witnessing and experiencing the true superiority of chuche socialism provided by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the sun of the nation -- and brightened by our glorious party, the South Korean fishermen toured many cities and rural communities such as Pyongyang in the northern half of the republic, and enjoyed sightseeing in famous places such as Mt Mohyang and Mt Kumgang. Those who had diseases recovered completely from their sicknesses after receiving the benefit of gratuitous medical treatment at special medical clinics equipped with modern facilities.

Thanks to our side's compatriotic measures, the boat and fishing tools of the South Korean fishermen have been mended or repaired. The crewmen of the Masan-ho No 5 have truly been moved by our sincere compatriotic hospitality and measures, and are grateful for them.

As a reflection of the noble aspiration of all compatriots in the north and south to achieve an independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland by achieving national unity under the banner of anti-U.S. struggle for independence and out of a feeling of consanguinity, we will send the crewmen of the Msan-ho No 5 to their homes in South Korea as soon as possible so that they can be reunited with their families.

NODONG SINMUN CRITICIZES SOUTH'S PEACE STATEMENT

[Text] Pyongyang, September 25 (KCNA) -- The South Korean military fascist clique in a "statement" made public on September 21 through the "Foreign Ministry spokesman" ranted that they "are determined" to "prevent the recurrence of war" and achieve "peace" in the Korean Peninsula and they urge the international community to work for the creation of a climate for a "peaceful settlement" of the Korean question. In this connection NODONG SINMUN today comes out with a signed commentary titled "Dastardly Peace Psalm of Warliker."

The commentary says that this is one more ruse designed to conceal their crime in disturbing peace and heightening the tensions by kicking up a war racket together with the U.S. imperialist aggressors.

No one will be fooled by such shameful jargon and cheap trick of the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, it says, and continues:

Now the U.S. imperialist aggression forces, still entrenched in South Korea, are plotting to unleash another war of aggression.

In compliance with the demand of the U.S. imperialists' policy of war, the powder magazine of South Korea is filled with quantities of mass destruction weapons including nuclear weapons, the U.S. imperialist aggression forces occupying South Korea are reorganized and large-scale attack operation exercises simulating an all-out armed invasion upon the DPRK are going on.

Amid the loud cry for "destroy-communism" the combat power of the puppet army 700,000 strong is rapidly beefed up, the militarization of economy hastened and munitions factories, strategical roads, harbours and airfields built or reconstructed on an expansion basis in various parts.

A vicious war maniac who is whetting his dagger with a wicked design to slay fellow countrymen in league with the U.S. imperialist aggression troops, the chieftain of aggression and war, while begging for their presence in South Korea, shamelessly ranted about preventing war and achieving peace. This is an intolerable insult to and mockery of the world's progressive people who love justice and peace.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique think nothing of peace in the country and its peaceful reunification. They are interested only in faithfully executing the U.S. imperialists' policy of new war preparations, their Korean strategy.

In raising a hue and cry as if they were concerned for peace, the puppet clique seek to cover their true colors as despicable traitors, war maniacs who are going against the desire of the Korean people for peace in the country and its peaceful reunification and are playing up to the new aggressive war provocation moves of the U.S. imperialists on the one hand, and to deceive public opinion at home and abroad on the other, to deliver themselves from international isolation. This is the last-ditch efforts.

Before talking about "peace" the Chon Tu-hwan group should take steps for the withdrawal of the U. S. imperialist aggression forces from South Korea, give up the reckless war provocation manoeuvres and step down from power at once.

KCNA REPORTS HARVEST OF RICH RICE CROP

[Text] Pyongyang, September 24 (KCNA) -- Korea has again brought about a rich rice crop by successfully surmounting the unfavorable weather of severe drought through a scientific and technical farming as required by the chuche method of farming.

Rice harvest is at its height now. It is carried out on thousands of hectares every day in South Hwanghae Province, a granary. Many cooperative farms in the province confidently foresee an average of 9-10 tons or more per hectare in rice harvest. The number of the ears per pyong is 190-200 more than last year and the number of the grains of each ear 3-4 more.

Cooperative farms in other provinces such as South and North Pyongan and Kangwon Provinces are carrying on rice harvest at tremendous speed by concentrating machines and manpower on it. Cooperative farms are hastening thrashing along with harvesting.

LIST OF TEXTBOOK CORRECTIONS CONVEYED TO JAPAN

[Text] Seoul, Sep 27 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Foreign Ministry Monday conveyed to the Japanese Embassy a list of 39 items which it wants to be corrected in the Japanese history textbooks accused of downplaying Japan's colonial atrocities inflicted on Koreans, a ministry spokesman said. In conveying the list to Toshio Goto, minister at the Japanese Embassy, the spokesman said, Director-General of the Ministry's Asian Affairs Bureau Choe Tong-chin called for the correction "at the earliest possible date" of the obvious distortions of historical facts relating to Japan's colonial occupation of Korea (1910-1945). The items pertaining to this period included Japan's colonial invasion of Korea and the assassination in 1909 of Hirobumi Ito, a ranking Japanese official, by a Korean patriot, An Chung-kum. Choe suggested that a Korean-Japanese joint research committee be formed for the correction of the items relating to the other period. The 39 items cover both ancient and modern history of Korean-Japanese relations.

Choe also demanded an "appropriate" rectification of the descriptions of post-World War Two Korean-Japanese relations in Japanese history textbooks, saying that those descriptions are feared to damage the friendly relations between the two Asian neighbors.

The Japanese envoy was quoted as saying that the Japanese Government is holding consultations in line with its commitment to correct the erroneous parts in Japanese history textbooks. He also told Choe that he would transmit the Korean Government's list, adding that he also noted Seoul's concern about the description of post-war relations.

In another move, a five-member Korean parliamentary delegation will leave for Tokyo Wednesday to attend a meeting of the Korean-Japanese Joint Parliamentary Committee on Textbook Affair in Tokyo Thursday.

KPRAF ACTIONS AGAINST POL POT REMNANTS NOTED

BK240924 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1200 GMT 23 Sep 82

["Weekly Roundup of KPRAF Activities"]

[Excerpt] It is widely known that the Kampuchean people will never forget the heart-rending tragedy which took place over 3 years ago because there was not a single family which did not lose at least one of its members under the genocidal Pol Pot regime. At present, the Chinese expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and ASEAN countries have frantically established the so-called tripartite Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea, which is a maneuver to continue sabotaging the peaceful life of our people and to maintain the genocidal Democratic Kampuchean seat at the United Nations.

In order to display their power during the 37th UN General Assembly Session, the Pol Pot remnants and Son Sann Sereika elements, with the support and assistance of the Chinese expansionists, U.S. imperialists and Thai reactionary ruling circles, have crossed the border and come through the jungle to intensify their subversive and sabotage activities against the lives and property of the people in a number of areas along the border, particularly under the cover of Thai aircraft, armed boats and artillery pieces.

In the past week, Thai L-19's and helicopters violated our airspace during three reconnaissance flights 1 to 3 km into our territory over the areas of Preah Vihear and Kamrieng and Hill 343 of Koh Kong Province. At sea, Thai armed boats made 279 intrusions into our territorial waters. On 13 September a Thai armed ship which trespassed into our territorial waters was immediately chased back by our territorial waters defense forces. Along the border they fired 105-mm artillery pieces and 100-mm mortars on 70 occasions 5 to 10 km deep into the areas around the Preah Vihear temples and north of Trapeang Kol, including 29 times against Anlung Veng, Thmar Puck, Romeas, Kamrieng, Pailin and Samlot; 22 times against the sector west of Smat Deng, Pursat Province; and 13 times at Hills 343, 199, 172 and 309 in Koh Kong Province. At the same time groups of bandits inside our territory continued to loot our people's rice. However, each of them was duly punished by our armed forces, militia and people.

Constantly vigilant, our armed forces launched timely counterattacks against the adventurous infiltration attempts by the Pol Pot remnants and Son Sann Sereika elements. They succeeded in firmly protecting every square inch of our territory in the border region and in ensuring security for our people's peaceful existence. On 11 September a group of Pol Pot remnants sneaked into the area north of Smat Deng, Pursat Province, but was intercepted by the 13th Battalion of Brigade "Khar," which killed three enemy soldiers and seized 2 AK's, 2 sticks of TNT, 61 detonators and 20 kg of rice. On 14 September, at a point 5 km west of Smat Deng, another group of Pol Pot elements, attempting to plant mines and gather information about the emplacement of our armed forces along the border, was intercepted by our vigilant combatants, who killed two of them on the spot and seized 2 AK's, 100 meters of mine detonating cable and 15 mines. On the same day a group of Pol Pot remnants attempted to destroy a stretch of Route 69, 10 km west of Anlung Veng. Thanks to their alertness on guard duty, our forces pounded the enemy saboteurs, killing three of them and seizing 30 kg of rice. Earlier,on 12 September, two groups of enemy soldiers who were planting mines along Route 58 in the Kamrieng area were intercepted. We killed four of them and seized 2 AK's and 11 mines. Some 15 km west of Choam Khsan, a group of enemy soldiers conducting activities in the sector was smashed by our border defense combatants, who killed three of them and seized two B-40's and a radio receiver.

Our regional forces, militia units and local people closely cooperated with each other in sweeping out the Pol Pot bandits who hide in the jungles and wait for a good opportunity to plunder our people's property. On 14 September a group of isolated Pol Pot bandits trying to loot our people's food and cattle was encircled by our regular and militia forces. One of them was killed, two others were captured and two AK's were seized. On 11 September, in the Phnum area west of Kampot city, six bandits who were looting our people's food were killed on the spot by militiamen in cooperation with regional forces. We seized 4 weapons and 40 kg of rice. In the same region, on 10 September, a group of Pol Pot soldiers tried to loot our people's rice but was intercepted by our militiamen, who killed two of them and seized two weapons before they could commit any crime.

KOMPONG SPEU EXPERIMENTS WITH NEW RICE STRAINS

[Statement to station correspondent by the chief of Kompong Speu Province's agriculture service on planting techniques for and experiments with MTL-36 rice strain -- recorded]

[Summary] "There are many MTL rice strains. The MTL type comes from the IR-36 rice strain which we have received from Kompong Speu Province's sister province of Cuu Long. Hundreds and thousands of tons of IR-36 rice have also been supplied by other socialist friends and international organizations. The Council of Ministers decided to send them to our Kompong Speu Province for experimentation.

"Findings at each planting site show that the long-grained IR-36 strain yields 3 to 6 tons of good husked rice per hectare if the right amount of fertilizer is applied. As for the short-grained IR-36 strain, its yield is classified by the Central Agriculture Service as too low, as it produces husked rice of lower quality. Still, many peasants continue to place high faith in this type of rice because it used to yield 2 to 5 tons per hectare."

Cuu Long Province's agriculture service has given Kompong Speu six new rice strains, namely MTL-36, MTL-30, MTL-43, MN-6-A, MN-8-A, and (IR-Kaizen), which are crosses of IR-36. Kompong Speu Province has experimented with planting these six strains and has harvested the MTL-36 and MTL-30, which yielded 7-8 tons per hectare and 5-6 tons per hectare respectively. "The rest are still under experimentation. There are indications that the (IR-Kaizen) strain will grow and yield even better than MTL-36."

Let me discuss the characteristics of these new rice strains. Their grains are long and planting methods are no different than those for the IR-36. Their stems are a little longer than the IR-36. The more fertilizer we use on them, the better they grow and yield. They do not lodge. The seedbed does not need to be fertile soil, so the sandy soil of Kompong Speu Province suits this purpose well. The bed should be slightly water-logged and the seeds should be completely dried. If they are newly harvested, they should be preserved for at least 1 month before sowing. Soak and incubate them for 24 hours, then give them another 24 hours for germination. Ten ares or 1,000 square meters of seed-bed can accommodate 60 to 70 kg of germinated seeds. This will be enough for 70 ares to 1 hectare of land. As I said, the planting methods are similar to those used for the IR-36 strain.

VODK HITS SRV DISREGARD OF UN VOTES ON KAMPUCHEA

BK250929 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 24 Sep 82

[Station commentary: "In Its Current Fourth Discussion of the Kampuchean Issue, the UN General Assembly Should Take Measures To Pressure Vietnam Into Immediately and Unconditionally Withdrawing All Its Aggressor Troops From Kampuchea in Accordance With the Resolutions of the Previous Three UN General Assembly Sessions, and Should Not Allow Vietnam To Sidetrack and Temporize Any Further"]

[Text] The UN General Assembly first discussed the problem of the Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea in 1979. After holding thorough discussions for several days, the 1979 34th UN General Assembly adopted a resolution requesting Vietnam to immediately and unconditionally withdraw all its aggressor troops and respect the Kampuchean people's right to self-determination free from outside interference. Subsequently, in 1980 and 1981, the 35th and 36th UN General Assembly Sessions discussed the Kampuchean issue for the second and third times respectively and adopted resolutions again requesting the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all Vietnamese aggressor troops from Kampuchea. The 1982 37th UN General Assembly has now begun and will soon hold discussions on the Kampuchean issue for the fourth time.

Three years have elapsed since the UN General Assembly adopted its first resolution on Kampuchea. However, this first resolution has remained on paper only. Not even the smallest part of this resolution or of the second and third resolutions in 1980 and 1981 has been implemented. This is because Vietnam has refused to respect and implement these resolutions. On the contrary, it has rejected and castigated all these resolutions and obstinately and barbarously carried on its war of aggression and occupation of Kampuchea. In particular, before the opening of the 37th UN General Assembly, aside from preparing maneuvers to fool world public opinion in order to lure and make others accept Vietnam's aggression in Kampuchea as a fait accompli, the Vietnamese Hanoi clique has sent tens of thousands of new troops to the Kampuchean battlefields, received a large quantity of weapons, artillery pieces and tanks from its Soviet boss, deployed troops along the Kampuchean-Thai border and prepared networks of air-defense trenches, airfields and helicopter pads along the western border of Kampuchea in order to expand its war of aggression against Kampuchea, put pressure on the Thai border and pose a greater threat to peace and security in this region. All of this clearly shows that Vietnam is not preparing to withdraw its aggressor troops from Kampuchea in accordance with the resolutions adopted by the UN General Assembly in its previous three sessions. On the contrary, Vietnam has made preparations for an advance.

In the face of Vietnamese obstinacy in refusing to respect and implement the UN resolutions of the past 3 years, can peace- and justice-loving countries which uphold the UN Charter in this region and elsewhere throughout the world stand idly by? We are convinced that at the current UN General Assembly, the countries which cherish peace, justice, norms governing international relations and the UN Charter in this region and throughout the world, particularly those countries which voted for the past resolutions demanding Vietnamese withdrawal, will jointly raise their voices in condemnation of the Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea, denounce the Vietnamese aggressors who have obstinately and grossly trampled upon the resolutions adopted previously by the UN General Assembly by refusing to withdraw their aggressor troops from Kampuchea, and jointly demand and pressure Vietnam to immediately and unconditionally withdraw all its troops from Kampuchea and respect the Kampuchean people's right to self-determination free from outside interference by allowing them to choose their own political system through a free election under UN supervision.

Only through Vietnamese withdrawal and respect for the Kampuchean people's right to self-determination can the Kampuchean problem be solved comprehensively and permanently and can Kampuchea again enjoy peace and security and restore its independent, sovereign, peaceful, neutral and nonaligned state, thereby contributing to defending peace and security in the whole of Southeast Asia and peace in the world.

PHOUN SIPASEUT LETTER TO ASEAN MINISTERS HAILED

[Unattributed article: "The Three Indochinese Countries Always Have Good Intentions Toward ASEAN Countries"]

[Text] On 15 September 1982, on behalf of the foreign ministers of the LPDR, the SRV and the PRK, Phoun Sipaseut, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and foreign minister of the LPDR, sent a letter to the ASEAN foreign ministers in the hope of boosting conciliation and resolving problems in this part of the world so as to create an atmosphere of peace and stability.

In his letter, Phoun Sipaseut indicated that China's policy of expansionism and hegemony is the major threat to tranquillity in the three Indochinese countries, and at the same time the major threat to peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

The situation in this region over the past 3 years shows the Beijing ruling clique's hostile intentions against the people in the three Indochinese countries. It has created disturbances in this region and is striving openly to oppose dialogue and conciliation between the ASEAN and Indochinese countries. It is resorting to military means -- through the Pol Pot clique -- to oppose the revival of the Kampuchean people. On the Chinese border, the Beijing ruling clique is mustering a large number of its troops to constantly threaten the SRV and the LPDR. It is fostering Vietnamese, Lao and Kampuchean reactionaries to carry out interventionist and subversive activities against the legal governments of the three Indochinese countries, thereby creating a tense situation in Southeast Asia.

Phoun Sipaseut, in his letter, raised a point to ponder concerning the presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea. The objective of the three Indochinese countries with regard to the presence of Vietnamese troops is to check the Chinese threat. As for the ASEAN countries, they have only asked for the unilateral withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. Yet, the ASEAN countries do not appreciate the security interests of the Indochinese countries. However, the Indochinese countries are willing to respond to the ASEAN side's desire. Nevertheless, the security interests of Indochina must be respected, too -- that is, the Chinese threat must be removed.

Regarding problems with Thailand alone, based on the peace proposal advanced at the meeting of the foreign ministers of the three Indochinese countries on 7 July 1982, Phoun Sipaseut elaborated in his letter on the situation along the Kampuchea-Thailand border as follows:

The Thai side regards the presence of Vietnamese troops near the Kampuchean-Thai border as a threat to Thailand's security. Meanwhile, Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos consider the use of Thai territory by China and the routed Pol Pot clique together with other reactionary Khmer forces opposing the revival of the Kampuchean people to be a threat to the security of the various Indochinese countries. As a matter of fact, the activities carried out by the Pol Pot clique and other Khmer reactionaries from Thai territory have seriously threatened the security of Kampuchea, thus causing a continually explosive situation on the common border. In addition, the establishment of the so-called tripartite coalition government is aimed at increasing assistance for the Pol Pot clique and other Khmer reactionaries to step up activities against the PRK. In giving such assistance and support, the various ASEAN countries will only go deeper on the path that runs counter to their objective of finding a political solution as declared by themselves. Such acts constitute interference in the internal affairs of sovereign and independent countries and a violation of the principles of the UN Charter and of the Nonaligned Movement.

For this reason, Phoun Sipaseut proposed in his letter to the ASEAN foreign ministers that a demilitarized zone be jointly set up along the Kampuchean-Thai border. Nevertheless, this proposal has been rejected by the Thai side.

However, Phoun Sipaseut reaffirmed and elaborated on the principles and methods for setting up a demilitarized zone along the Kampuchean-Thai border. He called on the Thai side to implement the proposal on the setting up of the demilitarized zone in order to serve the two sides' mutual interests.

In his letter, Phoun Sipaseut also clearly elaborated on the proposal on an international conference on Southeast Asia put forth by the foreign ministers of the three Indochinese countries, aimed at easing tension in this part of the world.

The dispatch of Phoun Sipaseut's letter to the ASEAN foreign ministers shows the Indochinese countries' good intentions -- the Indochinese countries are always concerned with and seek to settle the tense situation in the region. The Indochinese countries are trying to make the ASEAN countries understand that the tense situation in the region is mainly caused by the expansionist and hegemonist policy of the Chinese leaders in collusion with the imperialists. This is to reach mutual understanding and practical cooperation in order to ensure genuine peace and stability in this region.

In his letter, Phoun Sipaseut also expressed pleasure at the great and common interests between the ASEAN and Indochinese countries in the past -- that is, to safeguard peace, stability and cooperation in the region.

Meanwhile, Phoun Sipaseut sincerely hoped that there will be more understanding for the Indochinese countries' proposal. He also called on the ASEAN countries to effectively implement this proposal.

SIANG PASASON SUPPORTS PRK'S 'JUST STANDPOINT'

BK241144 Vientiane KPL in English 0937 GMT 24 Sep 82

[Text] Vientiane, September 24 (KPL) -- The party organ, SIANG PASASON, today published a commentary supporting the stand-point and propositions of Kampuchea in view to find a solution to the Kampuchean problem.

Referring to the Foreign Minister of Kampuchea Hun Sen's interview to SPK agency on last September 17, SIANG PASASON said: The firm policy of peace of the People's Republic of Kampuchea aiming to solve the Kampuchean problem was reaffirmed; and furthermore, on September 21st, the foreign minister of the PRK had sent a letter to the general secretary of the United Nations restating the just stand-point on the Kampuchean seat at the UN.

In his interview, the paper related, Foreign Minister Hun Sen, gave a clear recapitulation of the present situation in Kampuchea by saying: The situation in Kampuchea is now stabilized -- Kampucheans firmly follow the present government and actively participate in the national construction and defence, in which they have scored considerable successes in economic as well as in cultural fields, having thus improved step by step their standard of living.

The Government of the PRK now enjoys full support of the population of all strata including the misguided persons who one time had followed the rampant forces of Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan. The presence of Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea, the paper says, does not threaten any third country. In this regard, Vietnam and Kampuchea, last July, jointly took the initiative to partially withdraw the Vietnamese forces in view to promote the normalisation of relations with Thailand.

On the creation of the so-called "tripartite coalition democratic government", SIANG PASASON qualified it as a perfidious maneuver of the Beijing reactionary circles and of imperialists who aim to create tension in Kampuchea, Indochina and other parts of Southeast Asia. The Kampuchean Foreign Ministry's letter addressing to the general secretary of the UN and the chairman of the UN General Assembly vigorously denounced the so-called "Kampuchean Democratic Government", SIANG PASASON adds. The letter also protested against the presence of the author of the Kampuchean genocide at the UN, and requested the UN to hand over the representation right to the sole legal government of the PRK and asked the UN to admit the delegation of the PRK to attend the 37th UN General Assembly.

The letter, SIANG PASASON also added, on this occasion, also reaffirms the position of the PRK's Government issued at the Indochinese foreign ministers' [conference] (July 7, 1982) saying that the PRK at present will not ask for the UN seat and agree to temporarily let the seat [be] vacant under the condition that the UN expels bloody killers Pol Pot group out of its organisation. SIANG PASASON also disclosed that the letter finally declared that there is no Kampuchean problem and stressed that all the UN resolutions which are not acknowledged by the representative of the PRK are null and will only represent interference in the internal affairs of Kampuchea. SIANG PASASON also voiced that the world justic-loving (?people) should appreciate these constructive, logical and rational propositions. This proves once again the just and reasonable foreign policy of the PRK.

The Lao people, SIANG PASASON concludes, firmly support the propositions of the PRK and consider them as the most constructive, reasonable and rational. The Lao people also demand the UN to expell the criminal Pol Pot group out of its organisation and hand back the Kampuchean seat to the people of Kampuchea.

[Press release issued 23 September in Vientiane on visit to Laos by Bulgarian National Assembly delegation]

[Text] At the invitation of the Supreme People's Council [SPC] of the LPDR, a delegation of the National Assembly of the Bulgarian People's Republic led by Comrade Chairman Stanko Todorov, member of the Bulgarian Communist Party [BCP] Central Committee Politburo, paid an official friendly visit to the LPDR from 20 to 23 September 1982.

Comrade Stanko Todorov and his party were warmly welcomed by the SPC and Comrade President Souphanouvong. During the visit to the LPDR, Comrade Stanko Todorov paid courtesy calls on Comrade Souphanouvong, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau and president of the LPDR, and Comrade Nouhak Phoumsavan, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau and acting general secretary of the LPRP Central Committee. During the meeting, the hosts and guest held talks in an atmosphere of cordial freindship. The Bulgarian delegation also visisted some economic establishments, cultural institutes and historical sites in Vientiane.

A delegation of the SPC and the Bulgarian National Assembly delegation met and held talks. The two sides informed each other of the situation in each country and discussed matters concerning the strengthening and development of the close relations and cooperation between Laos and Bulgaria and between the two parliaments. They also exchanged views on various international problems of mutual concern. The talks proceeded in an atmosphere of fraternal friendship and complete unanimity on all issues.

Both sides expressed great satisfaction with the implementation of the treaty of friendship and cooperation signed between the two countries and the extensive development of relations between Laos and Bulgaria, based on the principles of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism.

The two sides reaffirmed their determination to strive for the further development and deepening of the friendly relations and fraternal cooperation between the LPDR and the Bulgarian People's Republic so as to serve the interests of the Lao and Bulgarian peoples and of peace and socialism.

Concerning international issues, the two sides unanimously agreed: Current tension in the international situation is caused by the war policies pursued by the U.S. ruling circles which have stepped up their collusion with the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists and other reactionary forces against peace, socialism, the Soviet Union and against the national liberation movement and progressive movements of various nations.

The two sides highly valued and completely supported the Soviet peace program and various peace initiatives put forth by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev as well as the peace proposals put forth by various socialist countries at different conferences, which serve as a good basis for international detente, for halting the arms race and for disarmament, aimed at creating an atmosphere of understanding among countries for safeguarding peace and security in the world.

The Bulgarian side resolutely supported the proposal of the three Indochinese countries -- Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea -- in Ho Chi Minh City on 7 July 1982 with regard to meetings and discussions between Indochina and ASEAN, aimed at speedily turning Southeast Asia into a region of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation.

The Lao side highly appreciated the correct and unswerving foreign policy of the Bulgarian People's Republic, aimed at making the Balkan Peninsula a zone of good neighborliness, mutual understanding and cooperation and at turning it into a nuclear free zone.

The two sides solemnly condemned Israeli aggression against Lebanon and the violation of cease-fire agreements by the Israelis who are occupying west Beirut and cruelly massacring the Lebanese and Palestinian people. They demanded that Israel immediately and unconditionally withdraw all its troops from Beirut and Lebanon.

The two sides completely supported the proposal for peace in the Middle East put forth by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev on 15 September 1982 and the resolutions of the UN Security Council on a cease-fire and an immediate withdrawal of Israeli troops from Lebanon.

The two sides expressed their determination to do their best to contribute to strengthening the unity and strength of the socialist community. They totally supported various nations' struggles for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism.

The two sides expressed satisfaction at the fine success of the Bulgarian National Assembly delegation's first official friendly visit which constitutes an important factor for the further development of the friendly relations and cooperation between Laos and Bulgaria. Comrade Stanko Todorov, chairman of the Bulgarian National Assembly, invited the SPC to send a Souphanouvong-led delegation to visit the Bulgarian People's Republic. Comrade Souphanouvong accepted the invitation with pleasure.

FOREIGN MINISTRY CONDEMNS BEIRUT MASSACRES

BK251352 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1200 GMT 25 Sep 82

[Statement of the LPDR Ministry of Foreign Affairs, dated 23 September]

[Text] On the night of 17 September and the morning of 18 September, the Israeli fascists and their henchmen inhumanely repressed and murdered several thousand innocent Palestinian people living in the Palestinian refugee camps in west Beirut. Most of the victims were old people, women and children. It was a fascist and genocidal act against innocent Palestinian and Lebanese people, arrogantly challenging the conscience of mankind and inciting unparalleled worldwide indignation.

The Lao people of all tribes who faced numerous tragedies during the U.S. imperialist war of aggression are extremely indignant at the Hitlerite fascist act of the Israeli aggressors and their henchmen against the heroic Palestinian people. We strongly protest the criminal act of the aggressors. The LPDR Government resolutely denounces the genocidal act of the Israeli aggressors supported by the United States, and demands that they immediately and unconditionally cease their criminal acts and totally withdraw their troops from Lebanon and the territories of other Arab countries they have illegally occupied. The LPDR Government calls on the peoples and governments of all peace- and justice-loving countries in the world to promptly check the bloody hands of the Israeli fascist aggressors and to vigorously support the just cause of the Palestinian people. The Lao people and the LPDR Government always stand side by side with the heroic Palestinian people, and firmly believe that under the resolute and unyielding leadership of the PLO, the heroic Palestinian people, highly indignant at the enemies and further forging a spirit of resistance against the Israeli aggressors, will undoubtedly score complete victory in the struggle for their fundamental national rights in setting up an independent and sovereign state of Palestine on their native land.

U.S. STATEMENT ON FURTHER MILITARY AID CITED

[Text] The United States will provide Thailand with an additional $9.9 million (227.7 million baht) in military aid to promote modernisation of the Thai Armed Forces and to demonstrate "the strong security relationship" between the two countries, the U.S. Government said yesterday.

A State Department statement, issued by the U.S. Embassy in Bangkok, said the amount would raise to more than $75 million the amount of guaranteed credits and grants Washington would provide Thailand this fiscal year under the foreign military sales programme, which provides military equipment to "friendly nations" on favourable terms. The statement was issued in Washington after a three-day visit by Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila, who met with high-level officials. He arrived in the United States on Thursday.

U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz, the statement said, reaffirmed U.S. support for the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) on the question of Kampuchea. ASEAN backs the complete withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and the establishment of a neutral and independent government there. Shultz also reaffirmed to Sitthi, the statement said, the "clear U.S. Government commitment to the security of Thailand... and U.S. support for Thailand as the ASEAN frontline state."

INSTITUTE TESTS REMOTE-CONTROLLED MISSILES

[By Thawon Thammachatwichit]

[Text] It pierced the sky with startling speed, while on the ground all eyes were fixed on its progress. The scene was the artillery range in Saraburi last Thursday. The object of attention -- the experimental rocket of the King Mongkut Institute of Technology [KMIT]. The successful testfiring of three KMIT missiles is part of the KMIT's rocket research programme, which is funded by the National Research Council in an attempt to develop the nation's first guided missile, said Engineer Dr Phirasak Worasuntharosot.

The missile, which is remote-controlled, is three inches in diameter and 1.20 metres long. It was launched from a lanky launch-pad and landed about five to seven kilometres away.

Dr. Phirasak said its initial speed was nearly 140 metres per second, and after one and a half seconds the missile broke the sound barrier, reaching a speed of over mach 1. The 10-kg missile, fueled by KMIT-formulated composite solid propellant, emits no smoke and has a price tag of 1,700-1,800 baht.

"This is a break-through in our missile programme because we are able to produce rockets which do not emit smoke, Dr Phirasak said. "Our missile was able to burn for five seconds as compared to the one-second combustion time of other similar missiles."

The vice rector of KMIT, Dr Koson Phetsuwan, reached by telephone on Friday, told the POST that more than 100 KMIT missiles have been test-fired and the institute is now beginning work on guided missiles. "We hope to have these missiles ready by the next fiscal year," he said. Both he and Dr Sitthichai Phokaiya-Udom are working on the missile's guidance system.

According to Dr Phirasak, a guided missile test-launch will be carried out next month. He said the guidance system features a special TV screen with two crossing hairlines with its target focused in the centre.

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, Sept. 25 -- According to foreign sources the Chinese authorities have made contracts with foreign oil companies for the prospection and extraction of oil and gas in the eastern part of the Bac Bo (Tonkin) Gulf, and will conduct geological surveys around the Vietnamese archipelagoes of Hoang Sa and Truong Sa.

VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY is authorized to declare the following: The Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, basing on valid historical and legal grounds, has many times affirmed its sovereignty over Hoang Sa and Truong Sa and the entire territorial waters and continental shelf of Vietnam.

Vietnam will firmly defend its sacred sovereignty, and will not tolerate any encroachment on the resources held in its territorial waters and continental shelf.

Those foreign companies prospecting for oil in Vietnam's territorial waters and continental shelf without permission from the Vietnamese Government will have to bear full responsibility for all consequences arising from their illegal activities.

VNA REJECTS PRC MEDIA REPORT ON KHMER MASSACRE

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, Sept. 25 -- Radio Beijing yesterday quoted an allegation by the Thai Supreme Command that Vietnamese Armed Forces in Kampuchea recently killed more than 100 Khmers at a village in the province of Prey Veng.

VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY is authorized to reject this as a mere fabrication designed to serve the Beijing expansionists' vicious scheme of sowing distrust between the Kampuchean people and the Vietnamese people and undermining the militant solidarity and special relations between Vietnam and Kampuchea.

EX-MEMBERS OF FULRO SURRENDER TO AUTHORITIES

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 26 -- Following are the names of the seven ex-members of the so-called "United Front of Struggle of Oppressed Races" (F.U.L.R.O.) who have recently surrendered to the Vietnamese Government:

1. Narya Duk, alias Ya Duk, 40, K'ho national, native of Lam Dong Province. He was made "first vice-president" and "vice-premier" of F.U.L.R.O.
2. Nayku, 57, Edeh national, native of Darlac, "general" and "military and political advisor" of F.U.L.R.O.
3. Habron, 60, K'ho national, native of Lam Dong, protestant pastor, "advisor" of F.U.L.R.O.
4. Ralanthul, 33, Gia Lai national, native of Gia Lai-Kontum, "captain, regiment chief-of-staff" of FULRO.
5. Trachidin, alias K'din, 27, K'ho national, native of Lam Dong, "deputy chief of province" of FULRO.
6. Ysunier, 30, Edeh national, native of Darlac, "lieutenant-colonel, in charge of administrative affairs of FULRO's third military zone", and
7. Y-Yang K'buc, 34, Edeh national, native of Darlac, "captain, deputy chief of province" of FULRO.

At a meeting with Hoang Tuong Minh, chairman of the Nationalities Council of the National Assembly, in Hanoi on September 25, the above-mentioned misguided highlanders related the miserable errant life led by F.U.L.R.O. remnants hiding [in] the forests, where they suffer from hunger and diseases.

They said that although its members hold military ranks, in fact FULRO is but a handful of people, so is its "government," and its "divisions" or "regiments" barely consist each of 14 to 20 men and the whole group is gradually disintegrating because it is not supported by the people.

They also denounced the Chinese reactionaries for using the Pol Pot genocidal gang to pit F.U.L.R.O. against the Vietnamese revolution.

They expressed gratitude for the government's leniency and for its permission for them to visit Hanoi to understand more about the policy on nationalities of the party and state. They pledged to join people in their localities in persuading other misguided highlanders to return to the people.

PEOPLE IN LAM DONG URGE REBELS TO SURRENDER

[Text] The people of various nationalities in Lam Dong Province have successfully persuaded many of their loved ones who are followers of the Unified Front for the Struggle of the Oppressed Races [FULRO] to return home. In (Non Thon Ha), (Ca Gia) and (Ung Re) villages, almost all of those who had earlier joined the FULRO have now come out of the jungles to be reunited with their families.

Various localities in the province have often invited village elders and priests to attend group meetings to explain to them about the party and state policies on nationalities aimed at rallying all former FULRO leaders to the revolution's side, as well as to tell them about the true nature of FULRO and the crimes this organization has committed against the people. In such districts as Lac Duong and Don Duong, elderly people's committees and cells have been formed in every village and hamlet to establish guarantees for FULRO returnees.

Many village elders have succeeded in rallying a large number of FULRO members, including some leaders, to the people's side. Mr (Ia Pho) went into the jungles all by himself to successfully arrange for the return of five FULRO members and the surrender of 100 FULRO supporters. Mr (Ia Nhiec), Mr (Ia Labua), Mr (Co Giau), Mr (Hotuan), Mr (Horue), and Mr (Hamat) each succeeded in bringing from 4 to 14 FULRO members back to their families.

The Lam Dong Provincial Women's Union has also urged all women whose husbands and sons have joined FULRO to try and persuade their loved ones to return home. Some of these women have even gone into the jungle to bring their husbands and sons home by themselves. Sister (Malieng) in Don Duong District successfully persuaded six FULRO members to come out of the jungle to surrender themselves and their weapons to the revolution. Sister (Hara) has gone into the jungle several times in an effort to talk her husband -- a FULRO leader -- into defecting to the revolution's side. (Nhia Gia) and Nhia Ot) -- two sisters in Dong Duong District -- even managed to disarm and force three FULRO members to surrender when they were collecting firewood in a forest.

ESAKI INTERVIEWED ON FOREIGN TRADE ISSUES

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 21, KYODO -- Beginning with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's visit to Tokyo and U.S.-Japan agricultural negotiations scheduled to resume September 30, Japan and its trade partners are now plunging into a new round of consultations on trade frictions following a summer lull. KYODO's Yasushi Watanabe and Roslyn Hayman met with Masumi Esaki, chairman of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's Special Committee for International Economic Measures, who earlier this year led LDP missions to Europe, the United States and Southeast Asia, to discuss the trade problem. Excerpts follow:

KYODO: During your missions, were you able to achieve understanding of Japan's trade policy?

Esaki: The purpose of each trip was different. With the European Community (EC) and the United States we have the problem of trade frictions to resolve. With the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), it was a matter of deepening our friendship and deciding directions for future economic cooperation. The common point in both cases was that we had a frank exchange of views -- explaining our position and listening to our friends' concerns -- which was extremely fruitful. Especially with the United States, I believe we developed a strong pipeline for communications. After Japan introduced its second round of market-opening measures in May, U.S. trade representative William Brock and Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige both let me know they appreciated the efforts Japan had made.

Q: Were you happy with the Europeans' response?

A: I think they appreciate Japan's reducing nontariff barriers to a level comparable with Europe or the United States and introducing an ombudsman system to deal with trade complaints. But compared with the United States, understanding of Japan in Europe is still low -- and therefore also their efforts to sell goods in the Japanese market. It's a problem of language and distance. For example, there are about 300,000 Japanese living and working in Europe, but only a tenth that number of Europeans and Americans in Japan. This type of trade imbalance -- this "personnel imbalance" -- must be resolved.

Q: It often seems Japan is being made a scapegoat for its trading partners' own economic ills. What can Japan do to overcome this?

A: Gaston Thorn, then head of the EC Commission, told me: "Japanese imports are cutting into Europe like a laser beam." I said: "Aren't you exaggerating things?" Only 2.5 percent of the EC's total imports come from Japan. So I asked him: "How can you claim Japan is responsible for Europe's unemployment and economic slowdown?" What I said was that we should stop talking about "imports like laser beams," and concentrate our efforts on greater industrial and technological cooperation and working to expand manufactured imports.

Q: The Americans and Europeans are asking for a further reduction in Japan's tariff rates for biscuits and chocolates. While the trade volumes may be small, positive action on this could have great symbolic significance. How do you propose to meet these requests?

A: It would be difficult for us to reduce tariffs beyond the levels already agreed on. We have just completed a thoroughgoing round of liberalization measures.

But the problem is not just one of duties. Our local ingredients in Japan -- flour, sugar, powdered milk -- cost double world prices. Joint venture companies, like Meiji-McVitie Ltd. or Kanebo Cadbury Ltd., are making biscuits that suit Japanese tastes and are selling well. Danish manufacturers have introduced good products here after studying what Japanese consumers like and achieved very good sales -- despite high prices. The question will come up during our talks with the Americans in October on beef and orange import quotas. And in the case of Britain, we are thinking of inviting a group of biscuit manufacturers later this year to visit Japnaese manufacturers, supermarkets and so on, and see for themselves what products suit Japanese tastes -- not too sweet, not too buttery, etc.

Q: Europeans are also urging Japan to open its market wider to whisky and cognac....

A: The problem in the case of whisky is distribution, not tariffs. The last time Mrs. Thatcher was here we agreed on reducing the tariff as part of the Tokyo round. One problem is the system of sole agents -- which in the case of whisky and brandy are joint-ventures with French or British firms. The margins to these sole agents averages 61 percent.

The problem is the idea in Japan that foreign whisky sells if it's dear. You drink Suntory yourself and buy Old Parr for your boss. It even gets to the stage where, if you lower the price too far, the imported product won't sell. As a result, we are asking supermarkets and chain stores to work together with agents and stock some of these products at cheaper prices. We have just asked the Fair Trade Commission to examine the sole agents' margin.

Q: How do you see Japan's relations with the Southeast Asian nations?

A: ASEAN, to Japan, is like the Middle East to Europe or South and Central America to the United States. ASEAN supplies Japan with important resources, oil, LNG and so on, and this is one reason Japan has become what it is today. In this sense, Japan must do all it can to transfer technology and cooperate in personnel development and financial assistance with ASEAN countries. Japan must give unstintingly its agricultural technology -- because a sound agricultural basis is essential for development toward modern nationhood -- and maintain its official development aid, which is to be doubled over the current five-year period. Even if it is hard for Japan, this is something we must do. I think that is fundamental in our relations with our neighboring countries.

Q: With the United States facing elections in November, and local contents legislation before the U.S. Congress, there is a wave of growing protectionist sentiment in that country. What can Japan do in this situation?

A: First of all, we have sent a three-man mission from the LDP to study the situation and listen to U.S. complaints, and we are maintaining close dialogue through various channels. But trade imbalance today is a different matter from forcing your products on some colonized territory. If a product is good, inexpensive and has good after-sales service, it's as natural as water flowing downhill -- it meets consumer needs.

Japan itself has a huge market -- 116 million Japanese -- and good products will sell. There's still a lot of room for growth of imports in the Japanese market if U.S. and European exporters will only make the effort. No matter how hard people say the Japanese market is to penetrate, having only one-tenth the representatives here that Japanese firms have in overseas markets just isn't enough.

I think Japanese trading companies should put more efforts into making money through imports -- not just through exports. That would open up the distribution system more to overseas goods. And we have to change the Japanese notion that imported goods are luxuries. The government must make efforts in this direction, and so should the housewives.

CHON'S 'VEIL OF PATRIOTISM' RIDICULED

[NODONG SINMUN 28 September commentary: "Traitor's Trick of Wearing the Veil of Patriotism"]

[Text] According to a report, the Chon Tu-hwan ring started sanctification work, such as excavating the bones of Koreans who were bestially killed by the Japanese imperialists in Hwasong County, Kyonggi Province, during the 1 March Movement, making a grave for them and erecting a memorial tower.

Prior to starting work, however, the puppets noisily spread the anti-Japanese campaign for patriotism by mobilizing government-patronized propaganda tools. The puppets, who are not interested in work, are trying to put on a mask of patriotism through such a propaganda offensive. Contrary to its aim, the acts of the Chon Tu-hwan ring are, however, only arousing public opinion that denounces the brazen traitors of the nation at home and abroad.

This is also natural. As for traitor Chon Tu-hwan, he is an unprecedented traitor worse than the former puppets. Accordingly, he is not qualified to talk about patriotism against foreign force before the people. Everybody knows that, prior to his assumption of the puppet presidency, he called on the U.S. masters and begged for the permanent occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist aggressors.

It is no one but the Chon Tu-hwan ring that arrested, tortured and harshly executed the patriotic students who set fire to the U.S. cultural center, harboring their pent-up national grudge against the U.S. imperialists who, in place of the Japanese imperialists, have exercised colonial rule in South Korea. Referring to the relations with Japan, while the South Korean youths, students and people are waging the anti-Japanese struggle in denunciation of the Japanese reactionaries for distorting the history of aggression in Korea, including insulting the 1 March Movement, the South Korean puppets are suppressing their righteous struggle with bayonets and begging for more economic and military aid, kowtowing to the Japanese reactionaries.

Following the treacherous pro-Japanese road, the puppets held a drinking bout in honor of the pawns of the Japanese reactionaries and committed the shameful act of extolling the bestial acts of the Japanese imperialist aggressors, singing a war chant "Tohiko" that was sung when they subdued Korean patriots. If the martyrs of the 1 March Movement had survived, they would spit on the dirty face of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who is committing pro-U.S. and pro-Japanese acts, and box his ears.

While babbling about memorial work, the traitor Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique is putting its hand on the remains of the patriot[illegible] the 1 March Movement. This is a criminal act[illegible] insulting their patriotic soul[illegible]. [illegible]itor Chon Tu-hwan's act deserves to be rejected by the South Korean people for his criminal purpose.

As is known, the awareness of national independence opposing domination and subordination by outside force is greatly growing among the South Korean people. And the awareness is coming to the surface as the anti-U.S. and anti-Japanese struggle for independence. The South Korean people's struggle against foreign force is expanding with each passing day, being combined with the struggle against the puppet regime introducing foreign force into South Korea, and showing a tendency toward intensification.

Embarrassed by this development, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is running amok in camouflage as if he were against aggressors and subordination. The wildcat scheme cooked up this time is the outcome of the last resort to hide his dirty face as a heinous flunkeyist traitor under the mask of patriotism, to lull the antiforeign force and antigovernment struggle by youths and students and thus to maintain his power.

It is obvious that, however desperately he may perform such a play, the sordid colonial stooge, flunkeyist traitor, cannot be transformed into a patriot. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan cannot hide his nature as a traitor with any trick. Nor can he thwart the South Korean people's antigovernment struggle.

NODONG SINMUN DENOUNCES CHON'S SUPPRESSION OF UIM

[NODONG SINMUN 27 September commentary: "Base Campaign of Colonial Stooge"]

[Text] The South Korean puppet clique is kicking up a dirty racket to ostracize the Urban Industrial Mission [UIM]. According to a report, by mobilizing the residents of Songnam City, the puppets have held a lecture meeting to slander the UIM and performed a farce of making them adopt a resolution. Following this, they have made a row of holding mass rallies to prevent the infiltration of the forces of the UIM into business circles at various enterprises, including Taeyang Corporation.

The Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique's racket to ostracize the UIM is the outcome of its maneuvers to block the South Korean workers' struggle for rights to survival, freedom and independence and against the United States and to further place the labor movement under the government's control.

As had been reported, the workers of a U.S. electronics company in Seoul have recently risen up in the sit-down struggle [as heard] against the United States, demanding increased wages and the reinstatement of their colleagues who were illegally fired. Their struggle has drawn great attention at home and abroad in that it was waged when the anti-U.S. struggle for independence was growing daily among the South Korean people of all walks of life.

Dismayed at this, the puppet clique not only harshly suppressed the workers who rose up in the struggle, but fired them en masse in a conspiracy with the company, closing the factory. It goes without saying that this is a heinous challenge to the just demand of the workers.

When numerous workers lost their jobs and were forced out, the puppets committed various maneuvers to shift responsibility for the result onto the UIM, describing the result as having been caused by the commotion of the workers that was inspired by the UIM.

By imputing responsibility for the closedown of the factory onto the UIM, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is trying to drive a wedge between the UIM and workers and to turn the target of workers' resistance elsewhere, thereby weakening their anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle.

It is never groundless to say that, when South Korea is faced by a serious crisis in colonial rule, the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique runs amok to oppose the UIM. Today, the anti-U.S. and antigovernment spirit opposing the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and the Chon Tu-hwan ring's suppressive and tyrannical rule is rapidly rising among the people from various strata.

Religionists are joining positively with this spirit. With the fascist suppression of the patriotic students, who set fire to the American Cultural Center, as a start, the anti-U.S. and antigovernment movement of religionists has come to the surface. The UIM has been known as a denomination that conducts its activities and adopts doctrines against domination, plunder, oppression and exploitation by foreign monopolies and domestic comprador capitalists, representing the interests of the poor and realizing equality. Originating from its doctrines, the UIM sympathizes with the workers' struggle for rights to survival. Its influence is further expanding among workers. This shows that the South Korean people of all walks of life are uniting in the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle.

Maintaining its life by sticking to dependence upon foreign force and to fascist and tyrannical rule, the Chon Tu-hwan clique fears this, so it is trying to bridge the crisis facing its rule by preventing the UIM from exercising its growing influence over workers and by placing the labor movement under the control of the government.

The racket to ostracize the UIM follows the script written by the U.S. imperialists and is masterminded by them. The closedown of the electronics company was a retaliatory action, taken by the U.S. imperialists, against the workers of the company who rose up in the anti-U.S. sit-in struggle. This notwithstanding, by using the puppets to transfer responsibility for the closedown of the company and for the dismissal of the workers, the U.S. imperialists are trying to turn the arrow of the anti-U.S. struggle targeting them elsewhere and to prevent the flames of the anti-U.S. struggle for independence from spreading into a wide range of workers.

Every fact clearly exposes the Chon Tu-hwan clique as a group of the most faithful executers of the U.S. imperialists' colonial policy and their sordid perpetrators. The plot of the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique to thwart the South Korean workers' anti-U.S. aspirations for independence cannot be realized. The South Korean workers have recognized through practical experience that the U.S. imperialists are neither friends nor supporters, but brazen aggressors and plunderers and that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is an intolerable group of colonial stooges. The South Korean people and workers will sweep away aggressors and traitors and more stoutly fight to realize national sovereignty, rights to survival and democracy.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique should stop its dirty racket that, under the instigation of the U.S. imperialists, it is kicking up to thwart the anti-U.S. struggle for independence.

VRPR REPORTS ANTI-U.S. SENTIMENT AMONG SOLDIERS

SK280026 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 27 Sep 82

[Talk on increasing anti-U.S. sentiment among soldiers from the "Hour for the Armed Forces" program]

[Text] As the day marking the 34th anniversary of the founding of the South Korean Armed Forces draws near, anti-U.S. sentiment is rapidly growing among patriotic officers and men of the armed forces. This can be said to be an expression of the righteous struggle of the patriotic officers and men to reflect on the 34 years of disgrace and crime and to put an end to their disgraceful destinies. We believe that when you look back on the past 34 years, you feel gloomy and sad. How have the officers and men of the South Korean Armed Forces lived? How should they live to love the country and the nation?

The anti-U.S. sentiment rapidly growing among the officers and men of the armed forces today is precisely an answer to the questions raised by the times, the nation and the people.

When the U.S. cultural center in Pusan was burned by patriotic students last 18 March, when students in Seoul and Chunchon waged a vigorous anti-U.S. struggle, shouting "Yankee, go home" and burning the U.S. flag, and disseminating anti-U.S. leaflets, and when clergymen issued an anti-U.S. statement, numerous officers and men inwardly extended sympathy to this and did not spare to extend cheers to the struggle of the patriotic students.

Since then, in the army units where patriotic officers and men are assigned, anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan leaflets, scribblings and unsigned letters of complaints have been found more frequently. The talks on the anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle of the people of all strata have been a focus of topics among officers and men of the South Korean Armed Forces.

These are certainly acts of patriotic officers and men encouraged by such an anti-U.S. struggle for independence of the people of all strata.

The U.S. schemes for aggression against, division of and intervention in the Korean Peninsula and its aggressive global strategy have aroused the anti-U.S. sentiment among the patriotic officers and men of the armed forces.

Seven years ago, the United States had already deployed 1,000 tactical nuclear weapons and 54 planes capable of loading nuclear weapons in South Korea. Since then, the United States has continuously introduced various lethal weapons, including nuclear weapons, into South Korea. The United States has also mobilized the South Korean Armed Forces in various war exercises, including the Team Spirit military exercise.

The heinous design of the United States to mobilize and utilize the South Korean Armed Forces as victims of its strategy against the Korean Peninsula and as a bulletproof shield of its aggressive global strategy has been vividly laid bare to the world.

As the arrogance of the vicious officers of the South Korean Armed Forces who follow the U.S. policy of aggression against the Korean Peninsula has become further unscrupulous and their irregularities and corruption have become further rampant, the conscientious and patriotic officers and men of the South Korean Armed Forces have further intensified their anti-U.S. struggle.

As the day marking the 34th anniversary of the founding of the South Korean Armed Forces draws near, the patriotic officers and men have turned out in the anti-U.S. struggle for independence so that they can get rid of the disgraceful position as hired mercenary troops.

With the founding of the South Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command in November 1978, the legal status, whereby the man who exercises the prerogative of supreme command of the South Korean Armed Forces is the commander of the U.S. Eighth Army, who received directives from the White House and the Pentagon, and the South Korean Armed Forces are the hired mercenary troops of the United States, has been reconfirmed. Not content with this status, the conscientious and patriotic officers and men have tended to neglect the execution of orders and performance of duty. The incidents of desertion and resistance against vicious officers have become more frequent. The conscientious and patriotic officers and men are cursing the criminal path traversed by the South Korean Armed Forces.

This results from their awareness that the U.S. military government was the maternity ward in which the South Korean Army was born and that the 34-year history, in which it has maintained its life, regarding the venom of the U.S. imperialists as life-saving water, is a history of a mercenary army which has been filled with disgrace.

Under the instigation of the United States, the South Korean Army has mercilessly killed 70,000 residents of Cheju Province who rose up in the struggle for independence and sovereignty, has been rallied to the criminal 25 June northward war, has dispatched to Vietnam 320,000 officers and men, victims of the proxy war for the United States and its bulletproof shield, and has been mobilized to suppress the patriotic people of all walks of life who turned out to the struggle against foreign force and fascism.

In May 1980, the South Korean Army was mobilized to massacre the patriotic Kwangju citizens, leaving an indelible disgrace in history. All crimes committed under U.S. instigation are felonies for which the South Korean Army should atone to the nation, the masses and progressive mankind. for this reason, the conscientious and patriotic officers and men of the South Korean Army are joining in the struggle against the American imperialists.

From last March to August various cases, such as scattering anti-U.S. leaflets and scribbling anti-U.S. slogans, have frequently taken place. It has been learned that four cases have taken place in the Sangho unit, five cases in the Chilsong unit, three cases in Pukhansan unit and four cases in (Polma) unit. Recently in the Piryong unit, handbills reading: "The U.S. troops must withdraw from South Korea!", "Long live the struggle for democracy and liberation!" and "Let all of us join in the anti- U.S. struggle for independence!" have been scattered. This had embarrassed the Chon Tu-hwan group.

Officers and men of the South Korean Army, turning out for the anti-U.S. struggle for independence, putting an end to the disgraceful destiny and criminal 34-year history and meeting the demand of times and the aspirations of the nation is a patriotic way in which you can become the independent army of the nation and in which you can live for the nation and masses. We firmly believe that you can further bring glory to your youth on this road.

VRPR SUPPORTS STUDENT DEMONSTRATIONS IN SOUTH

SK260312 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 25 Sep 82

[Station commentary]

[Text] As already reported, amid the patriotic students' massive demonstrations, which have continued day after day against the U.S. aggressive policy, Japan's distortion of history textbooks and the servile nation-selling acts of the Chon Tu-hwan ring which is fawning upon and yielding to this, on 24 September, some 1,000 patriotic students of Korea and Yonsei Universities took to the streets and waged a fierce street demonstration.

Following the annual soccer and basketball games between Yonsei and Korea Universities, the demonstrators who dashed out to the center of the town that night chanted songs and marched along the street in surging waves hand in hand, shouting such anti-Japanese and antigovernment slogans as: "Correction of distorted textbooks!","Pro-Japanese regime, step down!" and "Let's overthrow the fascist regime!" Courageously fighting for as long as 2 hours while standing up to the several hundred suppressive policemen, the demonstrators ardently appealed by shouting "Citizens, join us!"

Prior to this, on 21 and 22 September, Yonsei University students staged struggles of demonstration while shouting such slogans as: "Yankees, go home!","Let's overthrow the Japanese militarists and the fascists!" and "Let's overthrow Chon Tu-hwan!" On 8 September, Korea University students also staged an anti-Japanese and antigovernment struggle. And, in recent days, anti-U.S., anti-Japanese and antigovernment struggles have continued day after day in such universities in Seoul as the Seoul National, Ehwa Women's, Songgyungwan and Tongguk Universities.

The righteous anti-U.S., anti-Japanese and antigovernment struggle by the patriotic students, which has continued day after day, is an explosion of the pent-up sentiment against the United States and Japan. It is an eruption of our masses' deep-rooted grudge and resentment against the Chon Tu-hwan ring. It is a very just, patriotic act.

As is known, our masses can never forget the 36-year-long history of national sufferings of the ruined country under the rule of the Japanese imperialists, during which they had led lives in bitter tears while having imposed on them the fate of colonial slaves -- more miserable than a dog in a house of mourning -- and being deprived of national sovereignty. By the way, dreaming again of the old status of the Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere, the Japanese militarists, who have been revived by the United States, are extending their evil hands of reinvasion deep into this land. In particular, in recent days, by distorting their past history concerning the invasion of Korea, the Japanese reactionaries have further accelerated militarization and their schemes to reinvade.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring is taking a servile, humiliating stance toward Japan regarding the Japanese reactionaries' overbearing and haughty distortion of history and their schemes of aggression. We can well grasp this by the fact that the ring supported the so-called government opinion announced by the Japanese authorities -- which undisguisedly revealed their inner thoughts not to correct the twisted history textbooks -- saying that that opinion fully reflected our people's views and criticism.

This is an intolerable, nation-selling and treacherous act which shows that -- not concerned with how the national dignity is trampled underfoot or how history is twisted -- the Chon Tu-hwan ring is trying to tighten its grip on power by consolidating the South Korea-Japan collusion and begging Japan for a $4-billion loan.

Today, Japan, a defeated nation in the war, has again been revived and rearmed and has extended its evil hands of reinvasion deep into this land. In recent days, twisting history concerning their past aggression in Korea, the Japanese reactionaries are taking an overbearing and haughty attitude. In this connection, the Chon Tu-hwan ring takes a servile and humiliating attitude toward Japan. All this is being done under the patronage and instigation of the United States.

How can anyone who sets store by national sovereignty and dignity watch idly with indifference the stern reality of today and the ring's nation-selling and treacherous acts?

The patriotic students in Seoul, including the students of Yonsei and Korea Universities who staged a fierce street demonstration, have continued recently a day-by-day struggle against the outside forces and the government. This is a very just patriotic act which reflects our masses' unanimous aspirations for regaining national sovereignty and dignity, which have been trampled upon by the outside forces, and building a new world of independence and a new society of democracy free from outside forces and fascism.

This notwithstanding, on 24 September, when the students of Yonsei and Korea Universities staged a street demonstration, the Chon Tu-hwan ring bestially suppressed their righteous struggle and arrested scores of students by mobilizing several hundred suppressive policemen.

This is an intolerable, treacherous act against the nation which only can be committed by a pro-U.S., pro-Japan, flunkeyist nation-seller like traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who has not an atom of national conscience but only tries to maintain wealth and position for himself and his kinsmen and his sordid life by depending on the outside forces.

With the fascist suppression, the Chon Tu-hwan ring is scheming to eradicate those opposed to the outside forces and the government, an opposition which is being fiercely staged around the college campuses day after day, and to maintain its colonial fascist rule. However, this is a silly act.

The youths and students who live in the cause of justice, who are enthusiastic about patriotism and are bold in the struggle, will never tolerate the U.S. occupation of South Korea, the distortion of history textbooks by the Japanese reactionaries and the Chon Tu-hwan ring's servile, pro-U.S. and pro-Japan nation-selling acts. Responding to their righteous struggle, the masses of all walks of life will resolutely wage the pannational struggle against the outside forces and the dictatorship.

[Excerpt] New York, Sept. 27 (YONHAP) -- Korean Foreign Minister Yi Pom-sok met with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz Sunday in New York to confer on matters of mutual concern, including President Chon Tu-hwan's proposal for a summit meeting of Pacific basin countries.

Yi arrived in New York Saturday for a week-long visit and will have talks with top-ranking U.S. officials and foreign ministers from other countries attending the United Nations General Assembly.

Shultz responded favorably to Yi's request for U.S. support to materialize the proposal, saying that the proposal is constructive and important.

The Korean minister also requested more favorable U.S. Government foreign military sales terms.

Shultz said the U.S. will not contact North Korea without consulting Seoul and will actively cooperate with Seoul in international forums, including the United Nations.

Yi addressed the current Korean-Japanese controversy regarding erroneous descriptions of past bilateral relations in Japanese high school textbooks and Shultz expressed his sympathy for Seoul's protest, according to the officials.

Prior to his meeting with the U.S. secretary of state, Yi met with John Holdridge, assistant secretary for East Asian and Pacific affairs in the State Department.

KOREAN DAILY VIEWS JAPAN'S DEFENSE WHITE PAPER

SK250537 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korean 25 Sep 82 p 2

[Editorial: "Japan's Buildup of Its Military Capability -- It Should Be Faithful to the Joint Defense of the Free World"]

[Excerpts] Japan is tilting toward the right. Japan's white paper on defense for 1982 shows this. On 22 September Japanese dailies reported that the Japanese Government plans to build a large airstrip on the Tokyo and Sagami Bays for joint use both by the United States and Japan if needed.

The United States will be informed of this plan at defense ministrial talks to be held in Washington on 30 September between the United States and Japan.

Needless to say, Japan regards the Soviet Union as its aggressor. It is worth to note that Japan's defense white paper for 1982 emphasizes more strongly than the United States the Soviet military expansion and threat.

Although the white paper does not specify the territory of broad-area defense, it underlines this concept, such as patrols in the area around sea routes, alluding to the pledge by Japanese Prime Minister Suzuki to U.S. President Reagan in Washington in May last year to defend 1,000 nautical miles of sea routes. A week before his visit to Washington, Ito, director general of the Japan Defense Agency, said that Japan will independently take charge of the defense of the area that falls into the precinct of 1,000 nautical miles.

Just as the white paper has pointed out, the situation on the Korean Peninsula is unstable because of North Korea's buildup of its military capability on a large scale in the 1970's. Accordingly, we cannot negatively view for the time being Japan's military buildup in response to the U.S. joint strategy against the Soviet Union. However, we believe it wrong for Japan to become zealous in creating a social atmosphere of patriotism and a revival mood on the pretext of increasing its military capability. We believe that the distortion of historical facts in school textbooks is the product of a sense of superiority cherished by the Japanese people and of the trend for militarism.

We demand that Japan's military buildup be devoid of an aggressive desire expressed prior to World War II and that this effort proceed from a desire to participate in the joint cause of defense together with the people of the Free World. We cannot forget the historical fact that Japan's mighty military capability did not benefit us.

THAI, PRC CHARGE OF SRV MASSACRE OF KHMERS DENIED

[Text] Phnom Penh, 28 Sep (SPK) -- On 24 September Beijing Radio quoted the charge of the Supreme Command of the Thai Army that Vietnamese Armed Forces recently massacred more than 100 Kampuchean civilians in a village of Prey Veng Province.

The Kampuchean news agency SPK is authorized to reject this vile lie made up in Bangkok and picked up by Beijing. In uttering such a lie, the Thai Supreme Command is playing into the hands of the Beijing hegemonists who, afraid of the steady reinforcement of the Kampuchea-Vietnam militant solidarity, are looking for any means to break it, including the invention of false information to discredit Vietnam to the Kampuchean people who, in turn, will never forget the merits of those who saved them from the genocide of Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan -- lackeys of the Chinese expansionists.

THAI MILITARY ACTIONS PRIOR TO 23 SEP REPORTED

[Text] Phnom Penh, 27 Sep (SPK) -- On 17 September Thai warships and Thai border guards shelled Hills 237 and 343 in Kampuchea's Koh Kong Province.

According to a military source, during the week ending 23 September, Thai boats entered Kampuchean territorial waters 219 times, between 5 and 10 nautical miles off Koh Kong and Koh Tang Islands. Forty-six mortar shellings against Kampuchean territory were recorded. The sector of border intersection in Preah Vihear Province alone suffered from five Thai artillery shellings. Fourteen other artillery bombardments were directed against Kor Kak, Khvav, Dangkum, Poipet, Thmar Puok in Siem Reap and Battambang Provinces. The area west of Smat Deng, Pursat Province, was bombarded 14 times and Hills 343, 199 and 172 came under Thai artillery fire 13 times.

UN GENERAL ASSEMBLY SESSION, REPRESENTATION VIEWED

[KAMPUCHEA commentary: "For the Prestige of the United Nations and World People's Faith in the United Nations" -- date not given]

[Text] According to the UN Charter, the General Assembly convenes each year in September in order to solve international problems. Without the participation of the Kampuchean people's legitimate representative, the General Assembly -- which began its 37th Session on 21 September 1982 -- placed the so-called Kampuchean problem on its agenda.

For several years, the U.S. imperialists in collusion with the Beijing expansionists have induced the United Nations to embrace the stinking corpse of the Democratic Kampuchean regime. In order to cling to the UN seat shaken by the heavy storm of justice that has blown from all sides, an abortive coalition government was forcibly established on 22 June 1982 in Kuala Lumpur. Picked as president was wicked Prince Sihanouk, who once was an accomplice of the murderous Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique and who has already been condemned and rejected by the Kampuchean people.

The presence at the 37th UN General Assembly of the three reactionaries -- Sihanouk, Khieu Samphan and Son Sann -- in order to act as representatives of the Kampuchean victims who survived the massacre of the Democratic Kampuchean regime constitutes an insult to the memory of the more than 3 million Kampucheans savagely and unjustly massacred.

This presence is illegal and contrary to the spirit of the UN Charter and will further tarnish the prestige of this world body. The so-called Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea [CGDK] is only the genocidal regime in disguise. Everyone recalls Europe's Hitler. Hitler killed only other races, but Democratic Kampuchea's genocidal clique massacred its own people and race at Beijing's behest.

The Kampuchean people and all peace- and justice-loving people throughout the world nurture great indignation at and demand the expulsion of this Democratic Kampuchean corpse from the United Nations. Moreover, this so-called CGDK does not have even an inch of land or people on Kampuchean soil. With only a small piece of land at Khao I-Dang camp in Thailand, the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan troops and a handful of its own troops, the CGDK cannot represent the 6 million Kampucheans living in the PRK. The Kampuchean people who suffered under the genocidal regime and who have been living happily for the past more than 3 years under the PRK regime will never be hoodwinked by the enemies.

Having repented and been encouraged by the generous policy of the PRK, more Kampuchean people who have been misled have returned to join the revolutionary power. They enjoy full rights as citizens of the PRK.

In the past more than 3 years, under the leadership of the glorious KPRP and with the enthusiastic participation of the people throughout the country, our people's republic has consolidated its strength, advanced firmly step by step and succeeded in healing the deep wounds caused by the criminal hands of murderers Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan. The party, government and people are uniting as one under the correct and clear-sighted guidance of the KPRP. Our state power from the central to grassroots levels has been strengthened. Major state institutions, such as the National Assembly, have been elected by the people. The Constitution, which is the supreme law, has been promulgated for implementation by the people, thus ensuring the Kampuchean people's right as masters of the country.

In the name of morality and justice and for the sake of its prestige, the United Nations must expel the genocidal clique as the Nonaligned Movement has done and restore the Kampuchean seat at the United Nations to the PRK, which is the sole legitimate representative of the Kampuchean people.

As clearly stated in PRK Foreign Minister Hun Sen's 17 September 1982 telegram to His Excellency Perez de Cuellar, UN secretary general, and His Excellency Imre Hollai, chairman of the 37th Session of the UN General Assembly, the PRK does not insist on the immediate restoration of its right to representation at the United Nations if the UN expels the genocidal criminals and their associates.

We would like to stress once again that the so-called Kampuchean problem -- which actually does not exist -- is only a dark scheme of the U.S. imperialists, the Beijing reactionary clique and the reactionaries in this region to maintain tension in Southeast Asia and reimpose the genocidal regime on the Kampuchean people. For this reason, all resolutions relating to Kampuchea adopted without the PRK representatives' presence or participation are considered null and void and constitute a flagrant and inadmissible interference in the internal affairs of Kampuchea.

The situation in Kampuchea is not only irreversible, but also is advancing constantly toward permanent victory. Our Kampuchean people have full rights to decide and manage the destiny of their country as an independent nation. We forever hold aloft the patriotic banner and closely adhere to proletarian internationalism, particularly the firm Kampuchean-Vietnam-Laos militant solidarity.

For the sake of its noble prestige, the United Nations must expel the criminal clique from the UN seat in accordance with the aspirations of the Kampuchean people. Any government or any person who continues to recognize the representatives of the Democratic Kampuchean corpse has no right to raise for discussion the problems of human rights and national independence.

VIENTIANE COMMENTS ON MIA DELEGATION'S VISIT

BK271358 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 27 Sep 82

[Article: "The Lao People's Good Intentions Toward the American People"]

[Text] As reported earlier, representing U.S. mass organizations, a delegation of the families of American soldiers missing in action during the war, led by George Brooks, paid a visit to Laos to improve and promote good relations between the Lao and American peoples. The delegation's trip to Laos marks an important step in cementing the fine relations between the two peoples. As for the Lao people, they are always willing to continue searching for the remains of the American soldiers in accordance with the Lao people's actual conditions and capabilities.

To demonstrate and affirm the humanitarianism of the Lao side, despite difficulties and the remoteness of the sites of plane crashes where U.S. soldiers were killed, the Lao side provided every convenience to lead the delegation to inspections of the sites.

In Pakse District, Champassak Province, the delegation was warmly welcomed and received every possible convenience from the local administration. Phouthong Douangboupnaphan, member of the provincial Guidance Committee, welcomed them with expressions of solidarity, love and pleasure and pointed out the difficulties in travelling to see the plane crash sites. He also emphasized the good intentions and humanitarianism of the Lao Government and people toward the American people.

Even though the Lao people of various nationalities were victimized by U.S. bombing during the war, the Lao Government and people are not angry at the American people. They hold to the saying "Let bygones be bygones." Now, what can be done to promote mutual understanding and to take further steps to improve relations between the Lao and American peoples?

When the delegation arrived in the Ban Thong Hi area, which is about 30 km east of Pakse town -- the site of a plane crash -- it experienced some difficulties since it had to go through dense jungle and swampy areas before reaching the site. The delegation searched for the markings and number of the plane on the remaining fragments. Widow (Ann Hart) sorrowfully searched for the remains of her late husband and found the pieces of bone. She asked to take them back for research work. Demonstrating its good intentions, the Lao side did not reject her request and allowed her to take back whatever the delegation wanted.

To further clarify the situation, Uncle La, representative of the villagers who witnessed the crash, recalled what had happened to the plane. He said: The plane dropped bombs to kill the people, thus frightening the people in the area. It was shot down by our people attached to the army on 21 December 1972.

After seeing these facts with their own eyes, the delegation and the U.S. charge d'affaires to Laos, who took part in all of the delegation's activities, acknowledged and realized the righteous spirit and hospitality of the Lao people toward their guests, which contradicts rumors spread in the United States by those having ill intentions toward the new Lao system who said that the Lao people are vulgar, barbarous, cruel and so forth.

Prompted by the good intentions and humanitarianism of the Lao government and people, the delegation pledged to reveal the spirit of the Lao people and the situation in Laos to the American people so that the U.S. Government will adopt an appropriate stand toward the LPDR.

POST: SRV, KAMPUCHEAN TROOPS SEIZE THAI TRAWLERS

[Text] Vietnamese and Kampuchean troops seized six Thai trawlers carrying a total of about 145 crewmen over the weekend, fisheries sources reported yesterday. They said Vietnamese troops disguised as fishermen seized four Thai vessels and about 100 crew members while they were fishing in international waters about 30 nautical miles south of O-B Yai Island on Sunday.

The Vietnamese, believed to be using vessels previously confiscated from Thai fishermen, opened fire on the Thai boats with machine-guns, the sources said. No injuries were reported, but the fate of the crewmen was still unknown last night.

The Thai vessels were named as the Mit Phaibun 1 and Mit Phaibun 4, owned by Mr Kee Sae Ung, and the Chanphen 1, owned by Mr Panya Panyasan, both of Muang District, Samut Sakhon, and the Si Kamontham 8, owned by Mr Prasit Kamontham of Muang District, Samut Songkhram.

Meanwhile, two other Thai trawlers with a total of about 45 crew members were seized by Kampuchean troops of the Heng Samrin regime on Saturday and Sunday, the sources said. They said the vessels were near Kong Island about 25 nautical miles from the coastline when three Khmer boats appeared and seized the Thai vessels and all the crew members. The trawlers were named as the Thanakon Chai 1, owned by Mrs Oraphan Charoensit, and Si-Thai 12, owned by Mr Thawatchai Limthanasan, both of Muang District, Samut Sakhon.

Earlier this month armed Vietnamese vessels seized four Thai trawlers fishing in international waters near Vietnam. Two of them, with 90 crewmen, were released last week.

NEW WEAPONS REPORTEDLY SENT SRV TROOPS IN PRK

BK251413 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in English 1100 GMT 25 Sep 82

[Text] A shipment of new military hardware, reported to include the new type of powerful rocket launchers, were sent to the deep-sea port of Kompong Som early this month for the Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea, the Supreme Command said on Thursday.

The report is that the new shipment arrived at the Kampuchean deep-sea port in three ships, but provided no details about the qualities of weapons. The shipment reportedly included 130-mm rocket launchers which are capable of landing a rocket as far as 10 km away, according to the Supreme Command. A number of 152-mm artillery pieces was believed to be among an assortment of the military hardware, he added.

An informed source says that the military recently believed that the Vietnamese have introduced the 140-mm rocket launchers and the 152-mm artillery pieces to fight against the Khmer resistance forces. Our assumption is based on the size of some craters caused by rocket and artillery explosions, he said. The rockets used by the Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea are of 120-, 122-mm types, says the source, who added that the 122-mm rockets could land as far as 7 or 8 km from their launchers. The newly introduced 152-mm artillery shells have a shooting range of 12 km for the trajectory projectiles, and 17 km for straight projectiles. The artilleries used by the Vietnamese forces now are of the 105-, 120-, 155- and 130-mm types, according to the source.

HENG SAMRIN FORCES SAID BRUTALIZING LOCAL PEOPLE

BK260833 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 26 Sep 82

[Text] According to the Supreme Command Information Office, fighting in Kampuchea is increasingly, affecting the Kampuchean population, and the international community should pay attention to the situation and act to bring the situation under control before the Kampuchean people become extinct.

From the beginning of 1982 the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side organized armed volunteer units to maintain security in Prey Veng and Kompong Cham Provinces. However, the local people have fled to join the Democratic Kampuchean side, forcing the Vietnamese side to regularly send secret agents into the area to monitor the movements of the local people and to punish dissidents.

In mid-August, the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin side took back weapons earlier given to the volunteers. It seized buses from the people in Battambang and Pursat. Vietnamese soldiers reportedly massacred about 100 villagers in a Prey Veng village in front of the local people. During July-August about 1,000 Vietnamese were resettled in Prey Veng and organized themselves separately from other local people in an attempt to assimilate the Kampuchean people as Vietnamese.

The Supreme Command also notes that in early September three ships reportedly berthed at the Kompong Som port to offload new modern weapons for Vietnamese soldiers in Kampuchea. Vietnamese units in Battambang now possess 140-mm rockets which have a 10-km range, in addition to their standard 152-mm artillery pieces and T-54 tanks.

The Vietnamese-Heng Samrin soldiers have stepped up fortification of their positions at Ban Nimit and Ban Soriya in Poipet District. About 200 Kampucheans are drafted daily to work on the fortification effort.

AID TO CGDK, REPRESENTATION IN UN DISCUSSED

[Text] Several European Economic Community (EEC) countries are considering providing material aid to the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea, a diplomatic sources told the NATION over the weekend. The source, however, declined to name the countries, saying that it would not be nice to identify them for the moment, as the governments have not approved the requests, believed to be made by the non-communist groups in the coalition government.

West Germany is the only member of the EEC that has been providing material aid to the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) led by Son Sann, prime minister of the coalition government. The United States, Japan and Australia have agreed to provide or continue providing material assistance to the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea which loosely binds together the Khmer Rouge, the KPNLF and the Khmer resistance groups loyal to Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

The source said that foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) agreed during their meeting in Phatthaya late last year that each ASEAN partner would decide on its own, without having to inform others, whether it would give assistance to the coalition government.

Only Indonesia has made known its position over the issue. Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja has told the NATION that his country was ready to provide non-military assistance to the coalition government at "an appropriate time". Singapore and Malaysia have reportedly agreed to give material aid to the coalition government, but not official confirmation has been made so far from the other two ASEAN countries.

The source said that although some ASEAN partners might have agreed to give the aid, the bulk of the material assistance for the coalition government would come from countries outside the non-communist grouping.

"Giving material assistance to the coalition government is something problematic for ASEAN countries which have to take into account many factors, including the domestic situation of each country," he said. However, he said he believed that the coalition government would become stronger and stronger.

Meanwhile, an informed source in the Foreign Ministry told the NATION that the pattern of the votes on the credentials of Democratic Kampuchea during the on-going UN General Assembly would be the same as last year. He said that despite ASEAN's manoeuvres for support from some of its allies, most of which have abhorred the Khmer Rouge, the increase of the votes of support for the Democratic Kampuchean Government would not be dramatic. "In fact, we believe that the number of the votes of support would be more or less the same as in the previous year," he said.

He said that among countries approached by ASEAN for their votes for Democratic Kampuchea were Australia and the Netherlands. However, the two countries appeared very reluctant to change their positions to vote for the Democratic Kampuchean seat at the UN General Assembly, according to the source.

POST COMMENTS ON PHOUN SIPASEUT LETTER TO ASEAN

[Editorial: "No Peace Formula in Laos Letter"]

[Text] One of these days soon, we expect, we will hear about another great breakthrough on the Kampuchea issue. It seems that the foreign minister of Laos, Phoun Sipaseut, has written a polite letter to the foreign ministers of all five members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations. The letter calls for peace in the area and intimates that Mr Phoun and his government in Vientiane could perhaps be the middleman in this Kampuchean problem.

It is almost certain that some of the lesser-informed people in the world will soon pick up this letter and point to it as a sign that Indochina really wants peace with ASEAN and stop all the bickering over Kampuchea. The gentle language of Mr Phoun's letter will almost certainly delude a few of the least-informed into believing that Indochina is conciliatory and is looking for compromise on the Kampuchea letter.

Mr Phoun, in his seven-page letter, does in fact make two previously unmade points. One is that Indochina is ready to accept international policing of the Thai-Kampuchea border. The other is that Indochina would talk over who could represent Kampuchea at an international conference.

Neither of these points is particularly valid. Neither has the slightest importance. There is no need for troops of any nation other than Kampuchea and Thailand to be at the border. Only citizens of these two countries live there. Get the foreigners out of the area and there would be no problem. There is only one significant foreign group at that border, and it is made up of soldiers from Vietnam. And Thailand and ASEAN need no favours on allowing the Kampuchean government which they recognise has freedom to participate in decisions affecting its nation. [sentence as published]

The rest of Mr Phoun's letter is nothing more than the usual slavishly pro-Hanoi drivel that one has come to expect from the Vientiane regime. Mr Phoun's letter is a reiteration of the Vietnamese view that China is the root of all evil in the world, further proof that Indochina wants peace but only on Hanoi's terms.

Vietnam wants its own puppet in Phnom Penh and refuses to discuss anything else but maintenance of that regime. Vietnam wants to station its troops abroad no matter how other nations feel about this and refuses to discuss any other possibility. Vietnam wants everyone to believe that the Khmer Rouge, Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Son Sann are some sort of foreign invader of Kampuchea, when in fact they are Khmers who are highly concerned about their country. Vietnam wants Thailand to intern all Khmers at the border, including all refugees, and have them moved hundreds of miles away.

The point is that what Vietnam wants, Laos wants. And that is why Mr Phoun has written his letter. One would hope for a serious discussion about peace for Kampuchea, but such hope has yet to be gratified, even by the Laotian letter.

REFUGEE CAMPS TO BE CUT FROM 10 TO 4 BY YEAREND

BK230309 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 23 Sep 82

[Text] Thailand is attempting to reduce the number of its refugee camps from 10 to 4 by the end of this year. The National Security Council [NSC] says that the remaining camps will consist of one for the Lao hilltribes, one for the lowland Lao, one for the Kampucheans and another one for the Indochinese refugees accepted for settlement in third countries. The NSC, however, classifies the Si Khieu camp as the detention center and thus it is not included among those to be dismantled this year. The NSC says the Si Khieu camp now contains about 6,200 Vietnamese boat people and some military defectors from Kampuchea.

Meanwhile, the UN High Commission for Refugees, or the UNHCR, reports that 10 UNHCR-assisted refugee camps in Thailand have already been closed during the past years. The report says that the camps have been closed following the resettlement of 165,000 refugees over the last 2 years. The report says that new arrivals during the last 2 years have amounted to only one-third of those who departed. The report, however, says that a large number of refugees are waiting for the resettlement. It says that by the end of August more than 100,000 refugees will remain on Thai territory.

Thailand has reportedly called for nine Western countries to speed up their intake of the refugees because the country can no longer bear this heavy burden alone. The UNHCR report adds that Thailand has the biggest (?caseload) in Southeast and East Asia, with more than 100,000 refugees at the end of August.

'CONCERN' EXPRESSED ON U.S. SUGAR IMPORT QUOTA

[Excerpts] The United States has allocated to Thailand a market share of 1.4 percent of its global sugar import quota, which for the 1982-83 season starting next month will be equivalent to 42,000 tons of raw sugar, an informed source said.

The Reagan administration introduced sugar import limits since May to help local producers sell their more expensive sugar and save expenses on price supports. Thailand has protested since June that the 1.4 percent market share of the total U.S. sugar imports given to Thailand is not a fair representation of Thailena's sugar exports there, but the U.S. has insisted that the decision is final. The source said that the U.S., however, has agreed to let the quota be used at any time during the 12-month period instead of dividing it into four quarters with the unused quarterly quota being forfeited when the period expired.

Officials have expressed concern that the U.S. sugar import control will seriously affect Thai sugar exports next year as Thai sugar production has increased and the market share calculation formula is not an accurate measure for Thailand. The U.S. has set its global sugar import quota at 2.99 million tons for the 1982-83 season and 381,000 tons for July to September, of which Thailand was allocated 5,345 tons.

ARMY MOVES TO CUT OFF AID TO INSURGENTS IN EAST

[Text] Parts of five eastern provinces will be declared off-limits to unauthorized persons in a new move by the First Army Region to flush out the remnants of communist insurgents still operating in the areas, a senior army official told the NATION yesterday. Maj Gen Wanchai Ruangtrakun, the chief-of-staff of the First Army Region, said the move is also designed to stop large-scale forest destruction by influential people. The decision to clear the areas of unauthorized persons was taken after consultations at all levels of government, including with the governors, police, and forestry officials concerned, he said. He said he expected the commander of the First Army Region, Gen Athit Kamlangek, to sign the order on Monday. It will then take effect beginning October 1.

The areas affected are in Sanamchai Khet District of Chachoengsao, Bo Thong sub-district of Chonburi, Klaeng District of Ranong, Makham, Tamai and Pong Nam Ron Districts of Chanthaburi and Wang Namyen sub-district of Prachinburi. Maj Gen Wanchai said once the areas are closed, communist guerrillas would be denied the support of the masses. "We intend to cut off all aid to the insurgents getting through from the masses," he said. However, he admitted the mesure might have affect on the local people, too. He said authorities of the First Army Region and provincial officials on September 9 discussed steps to be taken to countery any possible effects. Local authorities will be responsible for providing land for people who can no longer go to work in the areas declared off-limits. "But we may still be lenient with people in some areas. They will be allowed into the areas after having their identity cards checked," he said.

Maj Gen Wanchai said that not many communist insurgents were still operating in the areas and that their mobility depends heavily on support from the masses. He said the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) began expanding its operating zones from the northeast to areas bordering Prachinburi and Nakmon Ratchasima in 1976-1977. Following a large-scale military suppression campaign by the government, the CPT, with support from the Khmer Rouge, returned to the areas. He said the communist insurgents also made use of Kampuchean territory as a springboard for operations in Chanthaburi, Chonburi, and Rayong. They established a foothold and have been there ever since. But during the past few years, the government has successfully suppressed the insurgents in areas bordering the five provinces, he said. Maj Gen Wanchai said that after declaring the areas off-limits, the army will use martial law to deal with intruders, particularly those who engage in illegal logging.

2D ARMY REGION CONDUCTS ANTI-INSURGENT DRIVE

[Text] One communist insurgent was killed and 25 captured during a 10-day suppression operation by the Second Army Region at the common border of Sakon Nakhon and Udon Thani Provinces, a spokesman of the Second Army Region said yesterday. A large amount of arms and ammunition was also seized during the operation which ended on Wednesday, he said. VCP RESOLUTION ON CELEBRATING USSR ANNIVERSARY

[Text] On 22 September the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau issued Resolution No 02/NQTU on celebrating the 60th founding anniversary of the USSR. The resolution says in part:

Sixty years ago, following the victory of the Great October Socialist Revolution, on 30 December 1922, under the direct leadership of V.I. Lenin and the Bolshevik Party, the first multinationality worker-peasant state in the world -- the USSR -- was founded. The founding of the USSR was one of the greatest gains of the October Revolution, a vivid symbol of the great thoughts and the correct policies on nationalities of V.I. Lenin and of the Communist Party and the Soviet state, and an historic event of international significance in mankind's struggle for equality and friendship among nations.

After reviewing the great achievements of the Soviet people under the CPSU's leadership in their struggle to defend and build the socialist Soviet fatherland, the resolution says:

Over the past 60 years, together with the emergence and growth of the Soviet Union and the world socialist system as a whole, the national liberation movement has constantly developed, causing the disintegration of the colonial system of imperialism. The ever closer association of the national liberation movement with the Soviet Union and the socialist system as a whole has created a great strength for the revolutionary forces, proving the truth of our time that national independence is closely associated with socialism.

The struggle of the working class and people in the capitalist countries has strongly developed on a large scale, with a high mettle and in diversified forms in the bitter struggle against U.S.-led monopoly capital and warmongering imperialism, against oppression and exploitation and the policy of arms race, and for the rights to life, democracy, world peace, security and cooperation among countries.

The three revolutionary currents of our time have become a combined strength, constantly attacking imperialism and colonialism and neocolonialism and promoting the nations' struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism.

U.S. imperialism in collusion with Beijing expansionism and hegemonism and other reactionary forces are frantically opposing socialism and the revolutionary movement of nations in the world, speeding up the arms race, blatantly making propaganda for and brandishing the threat of nuclear war, and undermining world peace and security.

The peace program for the 1980's put forth by the 26th CPSU Congress and the many subsequent peace initiatives, especially the recent statement of President L.I. Brezhnev in his letter to the delegates to the special session of the UN General Assembly on disarmament that the Soviet Union undertakes not to use nuclear weapons first, are aimed at saving mankind from an exterminating nuclear war. The peace-loving diplomatic activities of the other fraternal countries in the socialist community are becoming a force inspiring nations to struggle for peace, the greatest happiness of nations.

With regard to the Vietnamese revolution, the Communist Party, the government and the people of the Soviet Union have always rendered us their wholehearted, great and effective support and assistance. This is one of the factors ensuring all successes of the Vietnamese revolution. The growing and ever strengthening friendship and cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union have taken a new qualitative step forward with the signing of the Vietnamese-Soviet treaty of friendship and cooperation.

The Fifth VCP Congress has set forth strategic tasks for our country's revolution in the new situation. They are to build socialism successfully and be ready to firmly defend the socialist Vietnamese fatherland. The congress affirmed that solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union has always been the cornerstone of our party and state's foreign policy.

On this occasion, the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau has decided to organize a grand celebration of the 60th founding anniversary of the Soviet Union and launch a nationwide propaganda campaign to introduce to our people the great historic significance of the founding of the Soviet Union. The propaganda campaign is also designed to make our people aware of the brilliant results of Marxism-Leninism and the Leninist policy on nationalities, the Soviet people's achievements in building socialism and communism, the multifaceted development of each Soviet republic, the valuable experiences and examples of devoted struggle and labor of the Soviet people and the peace-loving foreign policy of the party and state of the Soviet Union.

Associated with the task of making the people understand and implement the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress, this propaganda campaign is aimed at heightening our people's confidence in our party's and state's domestic and foreign policies, strengthening friendship and comprehensive cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries and helping our people understand that the great and effective support and assistance given to our people's revolutionary cause by the Soviet people is inspired by the international socialist spirit. It is also aimed at strengthening our militant solidarity with the world revolutionary and progressive forces and motivating our entire party, people and armed forces to bring into full play their creative labor abilities in order to emulate in implementing successfully the tasks laid down by the Fifth VCP Congress and, in particular, the 1982 state plan and in scoring achievements for the celebration of the 6th founding anniversary of the Soviet Union.

Party Central Committee departments, party and state organs performing foreign and information and propaganda tasks and all party committee echelons must work out specific plans for carrying out this resolution.

MARCOS' TALKS WITH U.S. PRESS VIEWED AS SUCCESS

BULLETIN TODAY Editorial

HK271644 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 25 Sep 82 p 6

[Editorial: "President as Defendant"]

[Text] We cannot recall any other visiting head of government who had voluntarily submitted himself to the intensive grilling by the hardboiled members of the U.S. mass media. But that was what the president did. It was as if he sought out the media, notably television, which is the most sensitive of all, in order to present his side of the Philippine picture.

He know, of course, that he would stand as defendant. As what most visiting dignataries do, he could have opted for minimum exposure, such as limiting his appearance to the National Press Club in Washington. For state visits are affairs between heads of government or of state. To give some statements to media is purely optional on the part of the visitor.

If the president decided to subject himself to the intensive questioning of the American journalists in their own offices and elsewhere, it could only have been due to the desire for a dialgoue.

He had long complained of the biases of the hostile segments of the American media. He must have believed that there could be no better spokesman for his administration that he himself.

He also must have believed that by talking directly to the most important officers of the media organization and to the American public he would be able to solve whatever problem of onesidedness existed in reporting on the Philippine situation.

The problem had to be handled that way because the U.S. Government, which has been cooperating with the Philippine Government in the spirit of friendship, has no influence on the press. On the other hand, what the American media report may influence some parts of the U.S. Government.

The moral of the willingness of the president to answer the most embarassing questions from the press is that he has the courage of a leader brought up on the democratic tradition.

For showing that virtue, he should be given credit by the practitioners of the media.

[Editorial: "FM's Detractors Failed To Hurt Him"]

[Text] It was expected from the outset that the American press and political and ideological detractors would harass President Marcos with an unending list of questions or with a continuous barrage of criticisms involving violations of human rights, control of the press and reported on-going corruption in the Philippines.

The purpose was to discredit the Filipino chief executive before the American public and create in the American public mind apathy and even a great dislike for Mr Marcos in the course of his state visit.

But the plan, if it was organized at all, backfired. In Filipino parlance there developed an "overkill" (too much harassment instead of just plain and simple queries with an intention to be clarified). And judging from the viewpoint of many Filipinos here, President Marcos was relegated to the position of an underdog.

That the president weathered the storm is a tribute to his astuteness and full comprehension of the workings of geopolitics, developments in the international field and the thinkings of the Western press. He had all the answers at his finger-tips as soon as the questions were popped. He never stuttered or appeared flabbergasted by the questions. Above all, he had the incanny ability to relate his answers with similar developments in other countries where conditions were anything but good.

From all appearances, Amnesty International (AI), the London-based human rights group, and members of the American press underestimated the president's well-rounded knowledge of developments not only in the country he governs but also in the rest of the world.

The president rose above the pettiness of partisan politics, met his critics and interrogators head on and came out of the encounter that much the greater.

He also gained for himself a supporter in the person of Congressman Larry MacDonald of Georgia who charged Amnesty International, Mr Marcos' bitterest critic, with following a double standard of making sweeping allegations of human rights violations in Free World countries (the Philippines included) which were fighting communism while holding down criticism on communist countries which were notorious in violating human rights.

It would not be too far-fetched to suggest that the next time Amnesty International asks the president to explain certain human rights violations in the Philippines, the president ask AI to direct its query to Congressman MacDonald. AI could get some very interesting answers.

ALLIANCE REPORTED AMONG REBEL GROUPS' TROOPS

HK280140 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 26 Sep 82 pp 1, 11

[By Nelly Sindayen]

[Text] Maj. Gen. Delfin Castro, chief of the Southern Command (Southcom) in Mindanao, revealed yesterday that the military arms of the three major rebel groups have formally organized an alliance.

Speaking before the United Nations Walkers Club, Castro said: "Definitely, there's an alliance" among the Moro National Liberation Front's (MNLF) Bangsa Moro Army [BMA], the Communist Party of the Philippines [CCP] New People's Army (NPA), and the Partidong Demokratiko Sosyalista ng Pilipinas' Sandigan Army.

The existence of the BMA-NPA-Sandigan alliance is revealed in documents seized from both the MNLF and the CPP, the Southcom chief told his audience.

Castro stressed that as a result of this new alliance, "you don't hear of any fighting between the MNLF and the CPP and the Sandigan in Mindanao." The alliance, he said, is possibly headed by a "common leader" whose identity he did not disclose. Castro also affirmed a common military and government belief that MNLF Chairman Nur Misuari is a communist and has always been one since the 60's.

Castro refused to comment when asked if the Libyan Government is giving Muslim rebels any aid. The only kind of support Libya gives the Muslims, he said, is development support through the hospital in Marawi City, Castro said. He added that Libyan Ambassador Mustafa Dreiza has pledged to establish manpower skills training centers for Muslims as well as Christians in Mindanao.

Castro said the MNLF is now divided into three factions: the Misuari faction, the Hashim Salamat faction, and the Bangsa Moro Liberation Organization faction of former Congressman Rashid Lucman.

Despite the continued suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in Mindanao's regions 9 and 12, he said, the military authorities hardly take advantage of the situation. He added that the continued suspension of the privilege has been recommended by the Muslim leaders.

Brig. Gen. Pedrito C. de Guzman, commander of Constabulary Region XI based in Davao City, alerted his men yesterday against possible attacks by Communist rebels to avenge the loss of their top leader. De Guzman informed Gen. Fabian C. Ver, armed forces chief of staff, that they have received intelligence reports that the NPA was planning reprisal actions following the death of Edgar Jopson, 35, No. 1 CPP leader in Mindanao. The NPA offensive would be carried out this month or the first few days of next month in line with the CPP-NPA's "Operation Skylark" or "September movement" to stage strikes, bombings, and assassinations nationwide. Jopson was slain in a shootout with lawmen in his Skylark subdivision hideout in Cataluna Grande, Davao City, last Sept. 20, hours before the NPA was to launch attacks on several targets coinciding with the anniversary of the imposition of martial law.

De Guzman informed Ver that he has also ordered an intensified hunt for Rolly Kintanar, No. 2 CPP-NPA man in the area who is likely to succeed Jopson. Kintanar has a peso 150,000 price on his head.

MNLF Leader's Denial

HK280212 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 27 Sep 82 p 15

[By Nelly Sindayen]

[Excerpt] Nur Misuari, chairman of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF), has denied reports of a formal tieup between the MNLF and the Communist Party of the Philippines' New People's Army. Misuari told the London-published ARABIA magazine that the alleged tieup is being "used as a bogey" to gain more assistance from the United States.

The MNLF chairman's denial came a few days before Southern Command chief, Gen. Delfin Castro, said an alliance has been forged between the MNLF's Bangsa Moro Army and the NPA.

POWER STRUGGLE SPARKED BY CPP LEADER'S DEATH

HK280214 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 27 Sep 82 pp 1, 15

[By Jose de Vera]

[Text] Zamboanga City, Sept. 26 -- Gen. Fabian C. Ver, armed forces chief of staff, informed President Marcos today that the killing of Communist leader Edgar Jopson in a shootout in Davao City has triggered a power struggle among Communist Party leaders in Mindanao. Ver was speaking at the celebration of the sixth anniversary of the southern Philippines logistics base in Malagutay here when the president's overseas telephone call came.

Calling from New York, the president and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who is with the presidential entourage, wanted to keep abreast of developments in the country, particularly in southern Philippines.

Before the anniversary program started, Brig. Gen. Jose P. Magno, Jr., commander of the Central Mindanao Command (CEMCOM), and Brig. Gen. Pedrito C. de Guzman, commander of Constabulary Region XI based in Davao City, briefed Ver on the peace and order situation.

Ver was told of an ongoing power struggle between Rolly Kintanar, No. 2 man in the Communist Party setup in Mindanao, and Benjamin de Vera, former top CPP leader in the area before his capture. De Vera wanted to regain his former post after he escaped from his captors.

Ver was told that the rank-and-file of the CPP/NPA would rather recognize Kintanar as their new leader because they reportedly distrusted De Vera. They suspected that De Vera, who managed to "escape" weeks after his capture, had been "turned loose" to spy for the government on his companions, who have a total pesos 2.2 million price tags on their heads. Magno and De Guzman, who have teamed up in the hunt for the other remaining CPP/NPA leaders, said the distrustful dissidents were even blaming De Vera for Jopson's death at the hands of government troopers.

Another mission of Jopson, it was said, was to organize the military arms of three major rebel groups into an alliance to fight a "common enemy" -- the government. Formation of the alliance was confirmed by documents seized during the raid on Jopson's hideout, Ver was told.

DEFENSE MINISTRY SEARCH ON FOR CPP, NPA LEADERS

[By Jose de Vera]

[Excerpt] Gen. Fabian C. Ver, armed forces chief of staff, sent President Marcos in the United States yesterday a detailed report on the killing of Edgar Jopson, 35, Communist Party leader in Mindanao, in a shootout in Davao City last Sept. 20.

The AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] chief told the president and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile that the killing of Jopson and the capture of three of his men dealt a big blow to the dissident movement in the south.

Meanwhile, the Ministry of Defense renewed its offer of peso 2.2 million in rewards to anyone who can give information leading to the capture, dead or alive, of 15 top officials of the Communist Party of the Philippines and its military arm, the New People's Army.

The peso 2.2 million reward is broken down as follows: Rodolfo Salas, CPP Central Committee chairman, peso 250,000; Rafael Baylosis, CPP secretary general, peso 200,000; Juanito Rivera, CPP Military Committee chairman and commander of the NPA, peso 200,000.

Antonio Zumel, former newspaperman and head of the CPP National Commission on Education and Propaganda, peso 125,000; Ignacio Capigsan, peso 175,000; Benito Tiamson, Noel Etabag (head of the CPP in Western Visayas), Sotero Llamas, Romulo Kintanar (No. 2 man of the CPP in Mindanao), and Prudencio Calubid (No 1 in Eastern Visayas), peso 150,000 each. Santiago Sta. Romana, Ericson Baculinao, Mila Aguilar Roque, Josefina Corpuz, and Roberto Tacbod, peso 100,000 each.

Ver's report was based on that submitted by Brig. Gen. Pedrito C. De Guzman, PC-INP [Philippine Constabulatory-Integrated National Police] commander of Region XI.

De Guzman arrived yesterday from Davao City and briefed Ver on the intelligence operations against the NPA in Davao City.

PRC'S WANG ZHEN MEETS FORMER PRIME MINISTER

OW300329 Tokyo KYODO in English 0323 GMT 30 Sep 82

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 30, KYODO -- Members of a visiting Chinese goodwill mission, led by former Vice Premier Wang Zhen, met with former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda for some 30 minutes Thursday and exchanged views on Sino-Japanese relations. The 15-member mission is in Japan to commemorate the 10th anniversary of Japan-China diplomatic relations. At the meeting, Fukuda said it was important for global peace to maintain friendly ties between the two countries.

Wang agreed with Fukuda's views and expressed gratitude for efforts made by Fukuda in materializing the conclusion of the Japan-China treaty of peace and friendship in August 1978. Fukuda was prime minister at the time.

SOVIET DANCERS BANNED FROM HOKKAIDO TOUR

[Text] Kushiro, Hokkaido, Sept 24, KYODO -- A Russian dance company has been prevented from giving performances in two Hokkaido communities near the disputed northern territories due to pressure from the Foreign Ministry, the Japan-Soviet Friendship Association said Friday.

The Ensemble Leli Dance Troupe, from the city of Magadan on the Sea of Okhotsk, arrived in Niigata Friday at the invitation of the association and other organizations for a tour that is to take it to 10 cities in Yamagata, Fukushima and Miyagi Prefectures, Hokkaido and Tokyo.

However, the ministry reportedly informed the troupe just before it left Moscow Wednesday that visas would not be issued unless Nemuro and Rausu, a small fishing community, were stricken from the tour. Both towns have been involved in territorial confrontations with the Soviet Union over fishing and other activities.

A ministry spokesman said the restriction had been imposed because members of the troupe engaged in activities other than their dance performances during a previous tour to the area in 1979.

Toshiharu Okada, a Japan Socialist Party member of the House of Representatives and director of the friendship association, said he had heard nothing of the alleged activities when he accompanied the ensemble on its previous tour. "The ministry has provided no concrete answer to my inquiries," Okada said. "I am not convinced." The Ensemble Leli has 29 members and performs ethnic songs and dances.

AGREEMENT REACHED WITH IRAN TO START PROJECT

[Text] Tehran, Sept 30, KYODO -- Japan and Iran have agreed to start six-month preparatory work within a month for resumption of construction at a long-stalled petrochemical project in Iran, Japanese delegation sources said Wednesday night. They said, however, that both sides remained wide apart on a critical question of additional funding for the project and only agreed to discuss the issue again in six months.

The Japanese delegation, headed by Karoku Yamaguchi, president of Iran Chemical Development Co. (ICDC), held the fifth round of talks with Iranian partners since September 18 in a bid to break the deadlock over resumption of construction work on the project. ICDC is a five-company investment consortium and Japanese partner in the some dollar 3 billion project.

Speaking to newsmen early Thursday morning, Yamaguchi said it is necessary to dispel mutual distrust gradually so that both parties may find a satisfactory solution six months later. He also said the Japanese side will send some 10 technical experts to Iran within one month for the preparatory work. The Japanese partner has already made it clear it will provide technical aid for the petrochemical project if the Iranians pledge additional investment.

Top executives of Mitsui and Co., the leader of the five-member Japanese consortium, Thursday expressed disappointment over the fact that a solution to the question of additional funding has been postponed. The delegation returns home October 2.

LETTER REVEALING PUSAN ARSONIST'S MOTIVES CITED

[Text] Pyongyang, September 26 (KCNA) -- In his letter to a churchman of South Korea, Mun Pu-sik, a student who set fire to the "American Cultural Center" in Pusan in March this year, said that he wanted to express his will through the arson at the "American Cultural Center" for meting out "punishment to the United States for its historical crimes in this land."

This letter written by him before he was arrested by the South Korean fascist clique was carried in the September issue of the Japanese magazine "SEKAI."

All political voices in South Korea indicate that the United States has always manipulated the dictators, he notes, and goes on: Let us take the Kwangju incident, for example. Why did the United States grant to Chon Tu-hwan, the murderer of defenseless people, the prerogative of the massacre operation against the Kwangju citizens?

It transferred the operational command to the "ROK Army" to slaughter patriotic citizens in Kwangju crying for democracy and freedom and, consequently, a large armed force was hurled to kill them. This historical brutality is known to all generations.

The United States and Chon Tu-hwan are preparing for other evils while trying to justify this brutality with the showy veil of "blood alliance," "friendly nation," and so forth. Therefore, he says, we inflicted a penalty on the United States by means of an arson in broad daylight.

Declaring that he was not "ordered" or "instigated" by anyone to do the arson as the puppet clique alleges, he says: "I myself planned and did it."

In conclusion, he writes: I know that terrible tortures would be inflicted on my small body during the investigation. I make it clear hereby that, even if something other is made public, anything else but my above-said confession is entirely false.

SEPTEMBER STEEL PRODUCTION INCREASE REPORTED

[Text] Pyongyang, September 24 (KCNA) -- Steel production is increasing through the drive for the creation of "the speed of the 80's" in Korea. These days the iron and steel works in all parts of the country are boosting the daily output by 27 per cent in pig iron, 20 per cent in steel and 15 per cent in rolled steel above the daily average in the first half year.

The steel makers throughout the country are effecting unprecedented innovations in production, closely combining the drive for the creation of "the speed of the 80's" with the three-revolution red flag movement and the movement for learning from the examples of the unassuming heroes. The Kim Chaek iron works perfected a new smelting method, thereby upping the daily output of pig iron 37 per cent, steel 42 per cent and rolled steel 34 per cent in September above the daily average in the first half of this year.

Entering September, the Kangson steel complex raised the daily steel output 1.8 times compared with the daily average in the first six months of the year. New norms and new records are being created at the Hwanghae iron works, the September [date indistinct] iron works, the Chongjin steel works and the April 13 Iron works, too.

The iron and steel works throughout the country are vigorously carrying on reconstruction projects on an expansion basis to strengthen the independence and chuche-orientation of the ferrous metallurgical industry and increase production in a prospective way.

CHON WARNS OF INCREASED THREAT FROM NORTH

[Excerpts] Seoul, Sep 30 (YONHAP) -- South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan said Friday: "North Korea has recently beefed up its offensive firepower and improved its irregular combat capability," adding that "the North has concentrated its military units on areas below the Pyongyang-Wonsan line."

In a statement issued on the occasion of South Korea's 34th Armed Forces Day, Chon emphasized that the maintenance of "strong power" is the most effective way to counter "those who turn a deaf ear to the voice of the reason." Chon stressed: "Our commitment to strong power cannot be delayed or hesitated until the North Korean communist regime admits its power inferiority and responds to our peaceful efforts toward reunification." Chon continued to say: "It is unpredictable whether the North will attempt another reckless war as a breakthrough to solve its domestic problems. There is an ever-widening gap between the national power in the South and the North Korean people's political and economic dissatisfaction."

The sources said that Chairman Walter J. Hickel of the Alaska LNG Economic Cooperation Council visited Energy-Resources Minister So Sang-chol Tuesday and proposed supplying 1.5 million tons of LNG a year to South Korea beginning in 1989. So promised due consideration if the Alaskan proposal contains favorable price conditions.

Canada is also considering taking part in the second phase LNG project, and the state-run Korea Electric Power Corp. will soon open negotiations with Ottawa, according to the sources.

The first phase of the project, which started last year, includes the construction of a LNG terminal and pipeline by 1986, and imports of 1.6 million tons of LNG per year possibly from Indonesia until 1988. Negotiations over imports of the Indonesian gas, however, are stalled over price and transportation conditions.

EDITORIAL PROMOTES WORK IN EDUCATION FIELD

[Text] Phnom Penh, 26 Sep (SPK) -- In an editorial on the opening of the fourth school term during 1982-83, the paper KAMPUCHEA noted that "under the banner of the KPRP and the government, the Kampuchean people have bravely faced difficulties and achieved great successes in all fields, including education."

The central organ of the KUFNCD recalled the painful past when the feudalists and capitalists pursued the policy of obscurantism in order to rule and during which only children of wealthy families were educated, and when the Maoist doctrine which was implemented by Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan -- followers of Maoism -- completely upset the nation's educational system.

With the tireless efforts of the people and the devoted assistance of Vietnam, the Soviet Union and international humanitarian organizations, education has expanded in the past 3 years into rural areas, with steadily improving quality. The retraining of teachers has been stepped up so that they have been imbued with the policies and lines of the party and state and transformed into new socialist people who are educated and love their work.

The evolution of the Kampuchean revolution raises new problems for education. The outlying provinces must build primary and secondary schools in communes. It is necessary for schools to be in a position to receive 90 percent of the school-age children in the delta provinces and over 50 percent in hilly or outlying provinces. Boarding facilities should also be made available to secondary school children of minority groups.

The paper KAMPUCHEA said that expanding and consolidating schools and introducing socialist methods of teaching would contribute to the development of new people.

ACCELERATING RAINY SEASON RICE PRODUCTION URGED

[KAMPUCHEA editorial: "Pledge To Vigorously Accelerate Rainy Season Production" -- date not given]

[Summary] In the first three quarters of this year, our people enthusiastically joined in the drive to defend and expand our revolutionary achievements. "On the production front, although our society has just emerged from ruins, although we have suffered shortages of everything and the enemies of all stripes have sought by all means to sabotage and hinder our rebirth; and although the weather conditions, at certain times and in certain places, have been unfavorable, our valiant peasants have most enthusiastically sharpened their will and successfully transplanted 1,066,323 hectares of rice. Kompong Thom, Kompong Chhnang, Kratie, Kompong Som [as heard] and Ratanakiri Provinces achieved 103.9 percent of the plan, while a number of other provinces fulfilled more than half of the plans." The production of subsidiary crops has also been carried out successfully, thus contributing to our efforts to overcome shortages during the transitional period between the dry and rainy seasons and to improve our people's living conditions. All these brilliant achievements have been made possible by our success in building strong forces to serve the national development task, improving the people's standard of living and restoring the national economy. We have strengthened and expanded the organization and control of production solidarity groups and promoted cooperation and mutual assistance. The correct implementation of the economic policy on the management of the forces and supplies and the distribution of land and agricultural products constitutes a great encouragement for our peasants in their production drive, thus contributing to restoring the national economy and ensuring security and public order throughout society. The establishment of the agricultural infrastructure in accordance with the new system has proceeded most effectively.

Farm tool production, communications, transport, material supply and various other sectors have strived hard in serving agricultural production in accordance with the requirements of the party and state. "The armed forces stationed along the Thai border and in the mountainous areas defended and are preparing to effectively defend our peasants' production drive.

"Since this year's rainy-season agricultural production must end in the middle of October, the authorities in all localities must stimulate our peasants to transplant rice more vigorously in order to produce sufficient food supply for consumption and for barter with the state, thus ensuring better living conditions and contributing to restoring the national economy."

By striving hard on the production front at the end of this rainy season, we will achieve successive victories which will create favorable conditions for our beloved fatherland to develop toward prosperity, thus bringing happiness for our people.

VODK ON PREPARING AGAINST SRV 'TOXIC SUBSTANCES'

BK300830 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 29 Sep 82

[Directive of the Supreme Command of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas, dated 25 September, to committees and commanding officers of all battlefields and all units]

[Text] At present, the Vietnamese enemy aggressors are completely in an impasse on the battlefields of their aggression in Kampuchea. Over the past four dry and rainy seasons, they have suffered heavy losses in their army due to low morale, defection, malaria, lack of food and clothing, and frequent quarrels in the ranks.

Together with their expansionist and annexationist policies to include Kampuchea in their stinking Indochinese federation and their aggressive expansionist policy toward the south, the Le Duan Vietnamese aggressors will strive to use all military means to stubbornly continue their occupation of Kampuchea.

In the coming fifth dry season the Vietnamese aggressors will certainly used poisonous substances and toxic chemical weapons even more than in the previous dry season in order to resist the attacks of our national army and guerrillas. Therefore, the Supreme Command of the Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas requests that all committees and commanding officers in every battlefield and unit -- in the front as well as in the rear, and in particular those in western Kampuchea and in the border area -- pay great attention to the use of poisonous substances by the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors in the coming fifth dry season. They should take measures to keep track of these uses and make preparations for the prevention of and treatment against this in accordance with the experiences and measures which we have been adopting.

[Text] As the rainy season draws to a close, Vietnamese and Heng Samrin forces are reinforcing their strongholds in preparation for a new round of battles with the Khmer resistance forces in the dry season, field military sources report. More troops have been moved into areas along Highways 5 and 502, linking Poipet, Battambang and Phnum Malai. Heavy weaponry including 130-mm and 152-mm howitzers, 107-mm and 122-mm ground-to-ground missiles, M-113 armoured personnel carriers and T-54 tanks has been brought in, the sources said. They said new concrete bunkers -- each able to hold 12 men -- have been built opposite Aranyaprathet District in Ban Kup, Phnum Mak Huen, Ban Nimit and Poipet. The sources said fighting between the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin troops and Khmer rebels was reported inside Kampuchea seven or eight kilometres from Ta Phraya District.

Meanwhile, some 1,000 Vietnamese have reportedly been settled in a community in Prey Veng Province, east of Phnom Penh, where fishing is the major industry.

SRV, PRK SAID CONVERTING TRAWLERS INTO GUNBOATS

[Text] Heng Samrin regime forces have seized many Thai trawlers and converted them into gunboats to attack other Thai fishing boats operating in international waters, the Supreme Command reported last night. The announcement said that the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin forces had seized Thai fishing trawlers and equipped them with weapons and telecommunications systems for military use. The converted trawlers had often intruded into Thai territorial waters to attack Thai boats, resulting in deaths of Thai fishermen. The announcement said that the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin forces had meanwhile tried to accuse Thai of intruding into their territorial waters. The announcement also predicted that heavy fighting would erupt soon near Phnum Chhat Mountain opposite Aranyaprathet of Prachin Buri Province. The Supreme Command said that intelligence reports indicated that high-ranking Vietnamese authorities at the 479 command post in Battambang Province planned to crush Kampuchean resistance forces in the area. "It is possible that heavy artillery shells will land in Thailand and there might be incursion into Thai territory again if the Vietnamese-Heng Samrin forces attack the Kampuchean resistance forces," the announcement said.

LAO REFUGEES ESCAPE FROM CAMPS ALONG BORDER

[Text] Several hundred Lao refugees have escaped from refugee camps along the Thai-Lao border in the last three months, and some are on the verge of starvation, military sources said yesterday. The refugees, mostly Mongs, left the camps after realizing that third countries would not accept them and that the camps were to be closed down. Most of the refugees are from the Sop Tuang camp in Mae Charim District of Nan Province, the sources said. They said many of them are still roaming around mountainous areas inside Thailand, but a larger number have sneaked back into Laos.

While refugee camps in the north have been officially closed, there are still several thousand refugees living there, as they have no place to go. A number of those who left the camps have faced starvation, and some have returned to the camps seeking rice from United Nations officials or relatives still living there. A source at the Displaced Persons Relief Organisation of Thailand confirmed the existence of the roaming Lao refugees.

On the subject of Kampuchean refugees, the relief source said that there were more than 100,000 Khmers in the three camps at Ban Sa-ngae, Nong Chan and Nong Samet of Prachin Buri Province. Camps along the Thai-Kampuchean border will be closed this year except for the Khao I-Dang centre, where about 15 international relief organisations will continue to work with the refugees.

PULO GROUP SENTENCED FOR 1977 ATTACK ON KING

[Excerpts] The Bangkok Military (Criminal) Court yesterday sentenced four members of the outlawed Pattani United Liberation Organization [PULO] to heavy jail terms after finding them guilty of trying to assassinate their majesties the king and queen in 1977. Abdul Lomae Dormae Hasong, 23, Lorning Sa-e, 16, Doha Hor-a Lame, 18, and Mae Paju were initially sentenced to death, but this was reduced to long jailterms because their guilty pleas during police questioning were taken into account. Besides the attempted assassination charge, the four were charged with insurrection, belonging to a criminal group and secret society, attempted murder and illegal possession of arms and explosives.

During the trial, the court was told that a gang of PULO bandits, including the four, had planted two bombs near the White Elephant Pavilion in Muang District of Yala Province, where their majesties, together with Princesses Sirinthon and Chulaphon, were to preside over an award-giving ceremony on September 22, 1977. The four men said in court that they were taking part in the celebrations and denied that they planned to kill anyone. The court found them guilty on all counts, except insurrection. A panel of three judges, led by Deputy Chief Justice of the Criminal Court Manot Phiansanong, spent more than an hour reading the verdict yesterday morning. Of the four, Lorning Sa-e received the lightest sentence -- 32 years. The other three received life imprisonment, which was further reduced with Mae Paju sentenced to 60 years, Abdul Lomae to 54 years and six months and Doha Hor-a to 54 years.

CLASH BETWEEN SHAN, BURMESE CP REBELS REPORTED

[Text] Chiang Mai -- One Shan guerrilla and a rebel of the Burmese Communist Party [BCP] were killed when fighting broke out between the two rival factions on Monday in the area of Doi Laem inside Burmese territory.

A Border Patrol Police [BPP] source told the BANGKOK POST yesterday that fighting erupted between a 48-man Shan United Army (SUA) force and about 20 rebels of the BCP under the leadership of A Bi. After about half an hour, the BCP retreated, the source said. Another BPP source said that A Bi and his men are now hiding in the area of Ban Huai Sala of Mae Ai District inside Thailand.

But despite the retreat, BPP intelligence reports said certain drug traffickers such as Lao Su, Ku Wai Min, Pa Pong Kang Sua, who formerly operated illegal heroin refineries under the control of Khun Sa, have left the SUA to join A Bi. Lao Su reportedly has gone into hiding in the area of Ban Pha Laung of Mae Ai District inside Thai territory.

Meanwhile, the SUA force of Khun Sa, which recently seized back the area of Doi Lang, is reportedly building a new stronghold there. Khun Sa often sends small pockets of armed rebels to attack other minority forces in the Doi Lang area, the report said.

A BPP source said there was no fighting between the two rival groups inside Thai territory. Two BPP companies from Mae Sariang, Mae Hong Son, and Nan were sent to reinforce the BPP 1st Company, based in Mae Ai District.

MILITARY REGION 4 COMBATS 'WAR OF SABOTAGE'

BK290934 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 13 Sep 82 p 3

[Text] Military Region 4 has set up many model "safe and victorious" villages, city wards, enterprises, organs and units to counter the enemy's multifaceted war of sabotage.

The military region party committee recently held a meeting with provincial party committee secretaries and heads of provincial propaganda and training boards and security forces to exchange views on and discuss guidelines and measures for the struggle against this war. The military region has strengthened the network of propagandists who have been sent to cities, towns, organs and units to make people understand the requirements for the struggle. This propaganda work has helped people heighten their awareness of the nature, schemes, objectives, tricks and strength of the enemy. It has also helped cadres improve their views on and heighten their responsibility in comprehensively building firm and strong local units so they will take the initiative in countering and defeating the enemy's war of sabotage.

A movement to build "safe and victorious" villages and city wards has been initiated on a trial basis in a number of districts in three provinces, and experiences will be drawn to develop the movement throughout the military region. Almost all districts, cities and towns in the three provinces have improved methods of organization, command and training of militia and self-defense forces. Militia and self-defense forces in Ky Son, Ky Anh, Huong Son, Huong Dien, Huong Hoa and Phu Loc Districts have conducted exercises to deal with the enemy's war of sabotage.

The military region and related provinces have directed districts, cities and towns in launching campaigns against the enemy's psychological warfare tricks and negative manifestations and in organizing forces to track down and punish reactionaries, ruffians, hooligans, smugglers and elements who still poison the people's minds with reactionary cultural works. Eliminating superstition is also one of the objectives of the campaigns. So far, model "safe and victorious" units have been set up in Hai Thuong village (Trieu Hai District) and in 13 other villages and 2 city wards in Binh Tri Thien Province; in Tien Thuy village (Quynh Luu District), Nghi Huong village (Nghi Loc District) and others in Nghe Tinh Province; and in Quang Thanh and Quang Nham village (Quang Xuong District) in Thanh Hoa Province. In the armed forces of the military region, units H06, H83 and M6 of Infantry Group 1 and unit 6 of the local force are model "safe and victorious" units.

SECURITY, SOCIAL ORDER WORK IN MILITARY REGION 3

[Text] While maintaining combat readiness, the armed forces in Military Region 3 have joined the party and administrative committee echelons and people's security forces in the region in intensively educating the people to heighten vigilance, launching mass movements to oppose negativism and ensuring political security and social order and safety.

Such movements as the "bugle sound of three defenses" movement, the "security baton" movement, the "planting of bamboo trees around villages and hamlets" movement, the "participation of all people in guard and patrol work" movement and the movement to ensure safety for localities and units have been launched throughout the military region. The consolidation of militia and self-defense detachments and the establishment of people's security teams in vital areas have also been accelerated.

To date, 89 percent of villages and 77 percent of city wards in the military region have set up security and national defense platoons and squads. Militia and self-defense companies, battalions, regiments and divisions in villages, districts, towns and cities have undergone military training. Border defense forces and full-time militia and self-defense units have been well trained.

They have done a good job in patrolling and controlling the situation in localities, especially key areas. As a result, they have discovered and promptly prevented hundreds of cases of infiltration and sabotage by the enemy and have captured almost all those who tried or intended to flee abroad. Compared with the first 6 months of 1981, violations of security this year have decreased by 34 percent and thievery by 35 percent. Pham Kha village (Nam Thanh District, Hai Hung Province) is taking the lead in the movement to ensure "order and security." Learning from this example, 14.6 percent of villages in the military region have performed this task as satisfactorily as Pham Kha village and 73 percent of villages are rated fairly good in this field. Particularly in Cat Hai District (Haiphong) -- a district which controls many offshore islands -- no serious violation of law has bee recorded since early this year. The district armed force has arrested a number of dishonest elements coming from other places and has captured four Chinese boats and ships which violated our territorial waters. In Yen Loc village (Ha Nam Ninh Province), theft was serious in past years; this year, no serious case has been reported. The village cooperative recently recovered and put into production 12 hectares of illegally owned land. In the cultural domain, the people in the military region have Level I general education background, while cadres and youths have completed Level II general education studies.

The security situati n in the military region is now more stable than in the past. All people have been organized to help maintain security and order. Their assistance is effective and has facilitated discovering and preventing negative manifestations, opposing and refuting the enemy's psychological warfare allegations and frustrating his acts of sabotage. The military region's slogan "Once security is adequately maintained, the people can sleep well" is being carried out.

PHAM HUNG ATTENDS HANOI MEETING ON SECURITY

[Text] On 23 September the Hanoi Municipal People's Committee held a conference to review and discuss coordinated operating measures aimed at stepping up the mass movement for the safeguarding of the fatherland's security among the four sectors, namely the public security service, the armed forces, the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union and the Federation of Trade Unions in the municipality. Attending the conference was Comrade Pham Hung, member of the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of interior.

The conference unanimously noted that in compliance with Resolution No 12 of the municipal party standing committee and with various resolutions and directives of the party and the state, the People's Public Security Force of Hanoi, in close coordination with the people's armed forces and various sectors and mass organizations, especially with the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union and the Federation of Trade Unions of the municipality, has, in the past, motivated a large number of people to participate actively in the movement for the maintenance of public order and security and social safety and for the observance of administrative discipline and the state law, and to contribute to stepping up the emulation movement to engage in productive labor and care for the welfare of the people in the capital. However, negative phenomena in economic and social life continue to develop in a complex fashion. The conference unanimously adopted a program and targets for coordinated action among the four sectors for the period ahead with the purpose of propagating and teaching, on a profound and widespread basis, the armed forces, the Youth Union and office and manual workers to heighten their sense of revolutionary vigilance, unite closely, coordinate actions in satisfactorily maintaining public order and security, be determined to protect socialist property, actively oppose theft from within as well as from without, eradicate all acts of hooliganism, and satisfactorily maintain public order, administrative discipline and social law.

Comrade Pham Hung informally addressed the conference. He warmly praised the people's public security force, the armed forces and various sectors and mass organizations in the capital for their unity and singlemindedness and for their great efforts and coordinated action in stepping up the movement for the safeguarding of the fatherland's security through their resolute crackdown on criminals, which has realized encouraging initial achievements, thus contributing to maintaining security in the capital.

NHAN DAN VIEWS SOUTHERN COOPERATIVE DRIVE

[Text] As many as 27,703 production solidarity teams have been set up so far in the southern provinces. During the first half of 1982 alone, some 2,500 such teams have been consolidated or improved in terms of quality to pave the way for their elevation to production collectives. The organizational work and operational scale and objectives of these production solidarity teams vary. Some have been organized according to a plan for adjacent areas and plots in combination with the activities of the hamlet production committees. Meanwhile, all peasant families help each other carry out production. Some localities have formed interbranch production solidarity teams and work rotation and work exchange teams to ensure mutual assistance and to maintain trade relations with the state on a two-way basis. Other localities have set up work rotation and work exchange teams for each specific job and production program on a temporary basis, or have formed work cooperation teams responsible for the construction of roads and the supply of water, seeds, water pumps and tractors. These organizational methods have helped the peasants and laborers strengthen their solidarity and enhance their sense of organization and collective mastery, thus making it possible for them to assist each other in each specific job and program while creating favorable conditions for them to advance on the path of agricultural cooperativization.

Experiences acquired in the past show that while encouraging the peasants to embark on collective production with such transitional forms, we should not press them to always follow a specific organizational form and scale or to stick to certain transitional forms for a long time, but should actively create favorable conditions for them to set up production collectives. Some localities, because of their failure to firmly grasp the role and effectiveness of these transitional forms, have witnessed laxity in leadership and failed to encourage the peasants to participate in collective production under various transitional forms. Although production solidarity teams have already been set up in these localities, failure to provide them with the necessary operational guidance has made the presence of these organizations a mere formality, as they cannot develop their effectiveness and can even give rise to negativism.

The party Central Committee Agricultural Department is guiding all localities in reviewing experience so as to enable them to perform their work in the transitional stage ever more satisfactorily, thereby creating favorable conditions for the agricultural cooperativization movement in the south to develop rapidly and steadily.

VACANCY OF U.S. AMBASSADORIAL POST QUESTIONED

BK300905 Jakarta ANTARA in English 0812 GMT 30 Sep 82

["Editorial -- SINAR HARAPAN, Sept 25, 1982: 'New U.S. Ambassador?'" -- ANTARA headline]

[Text] For almost a year the post of U.S. ambassador to the capital of the Republic of Indonesia has been vacant. In the tradition of diplomatic relations, such a vacuum can be interpreted from various angles. Among other things, the relations between the two states concerned are cool in all respects or there is a disguised attitude of protest. The fact is that the real situation is different.

The relations between Washington DC and Jakarta are rather close, even though there are some bilateral problems which need to be settled fully, like the application of the archipelagic principle to U.S. warships, the necessity that government goods be transported by Indonesian flag ships, the necessity to purchase Indonesian non-oil and gas commodities in case bids for government projects are won, and probably other problems which the two sides do not consider it prudent to make public. But on the whole, it must be admitted that the relations of the United States as one of the superpowers and Indonesia, the biggest country in Southeast Asia, are rather satisfactory. This was reflected in the brief speech of President Ronald Reagan when he received the credentials of the new Indonesian ambassador to Washington DC, Lieutenant General Hasnan Habib.

But why has the post of U.S. ambassador to Jakarta been vacant so long, after Ambassador Edward Masters left in November 1981 at the end of his term of office? One of the criticisms of the government of President Reagan is the inadequate preparations when it took over power early in 1981. Among other things, important diplomatic posts had to wait for candidates for a long time. When the names of the candidates were announced, they turned out to be old friends of Ronald Reagan from his Hollywood days or business connections from the State of California. Regarding the post in Jakarta, Washington DC actually had enough time to look for a suitable candidate because the incumbent ambassador was retained until a short time before the end of 1981. But what happened?

Now about 15 years after the new order and a relatively stable situation was created in Southeast Asia, thanks to, among other things, the success of the new order in the region, we observe a kind of indifferent attitude in Washington DC. Indeed, official U.S. rhetoric is pleasant to hear, but measured by political realism, the situation in Southeast Asia is judged only as a function of strategic relations between Washington DC and Tokyo and between Washington DC and Beijing.

ISLAMIC YOUTH PROMOTE BOYCOTT OF U.S. GOODS

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, Sept 26 (AFP) -- Esso, Caltex and Mobil products are among the U.S. goods that 22 organisations in Malaysia will boycott in protest against the United States' policy on the Palestinian problem, BERNAMA NEWS AGENCY reported today. This was announced by Sidek Fadzil, the acting president of the Malaysian Islamic Youth Movement (ABIM) -- which initiated the boycott -- at a Palestinian solidarity rally and the launching of the boycott, the agency said.

More than 1,000 representatives of the organisations taking part in the boycott attended the function here today, BERNAMA said. The boycott, beginning tomorrow, would involve more than half a million members of these organisations, it said. Other products include soft drinks such as Coca Cola, A and W Root Beer, Pepsi Cola and 7-Up and cigarettes such as Winston, Salem, Lucky Strike, Marlboro and Kent. Also affected are fast foodchains such as Kentucky Fried Chicken, A and W, Popeye and MacDonald's and financial institutions such as First National City Bank, Bank of America, Chase Manhattan Bank and American Express card.

MALAYSIA MAY AUGMENT UN FORCE IN NAMIBIA

BK290954 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0800 GMT 29 Sep 82

[Text] Malaysia is ready to send 700 infantrymen to augment the UN peacekeeping force in Namibia. Their departure date is to be finalized. Their stay in South-West Africa will be wholly paid for by the United Nations. The prime minister, Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir Mohamed, announced this following talks with the UN secretary general and the UN commissioner for Namibia in New York.

During their meeting Mr Perez de Cuellar sought clarification on ASEAN's stand in the Kampuchean issue. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir told the UN chief that basically members of the association shared similar views in their efforts to help settle the problem. The two leaders also discussed the Iran-Iraq conflict. Mr Perez de Cuellar appreciated the move by the nine-member Organization of Islamic Conference [ICO] peace committee to mediate in the conflict. The UN secretary general, however, felt that such peace efforts should be coordinated with the world body and the Nonaligned Movement. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir, who is a member of the peace committee, said the task was within the context of the UN Organization. As Iran and Iraq were Muslim countries, the OIC had a special role to play in trying to bring about an end to the fighting.

Earlier the Malaysian leader told American experts on Asian affairs and other influential foreign policy advisers in New York that no grand design should be tried purely because it sounded good or that it had worked elsewhere. He said ASEAN as a regional group had produced positive results in terms of economic prosperity and regional stability. The success or failure of any regional grouping did not depend on the concept of neighborly cooperation alone. They depended on the willingness to understand each other and, accepting the shortcomings, to work within the constraints.

On trade, Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said the economic strength of each ASEAN country would have to be built up before there could be real free flow of trade among them. This would ensure that the benefits accruing from the lifting of trade barriers would be mutual and that the flow would not be in one direction. There was no great hurry among ASEAN governments as well as business community to lift tariff barriers. The economic strength of each country must be built up first before they open the floodgate. The prime minister said ASEAN's first and greatest achievement was in the exchange of mutual experience and administrative knowhow which had led to economic growth and stability. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir said it was an acknowledged fact that the ASEAN five had achieved remarkable progress in the world where economic growth had become very limited.

MARCOS RETURNS FROM U.S., CITES VISIT'S SUCCESS

OW300713 Hong Kong AFP in English 0648 GMT 30 Sep 82

[By Teodore Benigno]

[Text] Manila, Sept 30 (AFP) -- President Ferdinand Marcos today described his two-week visit to the United States as an "unbelievably phenomenal success" with more Americans now aware of the Philippines' "strategic importance" for world stability. Returning today to a jubilant welcome by tens of thousands of Filipinos, President Marcos said U.S. President Ronald Reagan "set the tone" for the state visit's success at the White House "by meeting us with the substance of goodwill and brotherhood." The Philippine president said that he and President Reagan "reviewed and discussed the full range of our bilateral relations" and understandings and agreements were reached "where previously there were doubts, hesitations, misunderstandings and even conflict."

The two chiefs of state, he said, took up "security links" aimed at "maintaining peace and security in Asia and the Pacific and throughout the world" and agreed regular ministerial level meetings on security would start next February. "I see in the U.S. today," Mr Marcos told the welcoming crowd at the Manila International Airport, "a growing recognition of our strategic importance as a nation and growing appreciation of the contribution we made to international stability."

The two countries will also review their military bases agreement, which will be up for renewal in 1984, starting April 1, 1983, in Manila. The president, however, was silent on the base rental issue. For use of the Subic naval base across Manila Bay, homeport of the U.S. 7th Fleet, and Clark air base in central Luzon, the U.S. has been paying rental since 1979 of 500 million dollars for a five-year period.

Mr Marcos also pointed out that "the American people and the political leadership now recognize the importance of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) as a trading partner" having just discovered "the U.S. trades more with ASEAN or Asia than with Europe." The president also now expects more American investments in the Philippines "as they now realize that our investment climate is one of the best in all of Asia."

The president ticked off a brace of Philippines-U.S. agreements signed in the U.S. covering taxes, agricultural cooperation, an Export-Import Bank loan for a Philippine nuclear project, typhoon warning and traffic techniques and provisions for continuing dialogue on defense and finance matters.

After the airport welcome, President and Mrs Marcos rode in an open black Mercedes limousine at the head of a motorcade that wended its way through tens of thousands of cheering, waving, applauding Filipinos lining seaside Roxas Boulevard en route to Malacanang palace. The 12-kilometer (7.5 miles) route was festooned with streamers, buntings, flags exceeding the number and level of adulation when Pope John Paul II visited this Catholic country about two years ago. One huge placard even referred to President Marcos as the "foremost leader of the whole of Asia." Another read "I am a Filipino, Marcos is my idol," while the majority of the placards referred to the Philippine couple as "doers and achievers." Two chartered Philippine Airlines planes brought the Philippine delegation back to Manila from Honolulu, the second bearing the 65-year-old president who has ruled this country for 17 years.

PRESS DISCUSSES OUTCOME OF MARCOS' U.S. VISIT

TIMES JOURNAL Praise

HK300208 Manila TIMES JOURNAL in English 29 Sep 82 p 4

[Editorial: "FM's State Visit Boosts RP Prestige"]

[Text] President Marcos returns home this afternoon from a state visit to the United States that has created for himself the image of a controversial but respected leader.

He also left behind in the minds of those who met and talked to him a picture of a highly articulate Asian whose command of the English language and of the means of expressing it clearly made it possible for millions of American listeners and viewers to gain a better perspective of the Philippines, its development and its many problems.

He became controversial when he told Americans, many of whom still believe that the Philippines, the Philippine Government and the Filipino people could be led by the nose, that the empire days were over and that the Philippine Government and its people expected to be treated as co-equals in international relations. Yet in the same vein, the president assured the American Government and people that the Philippines stood four-square behind them as an ally of the West, not only because this country is a democratic state and believed in the democratic system of government but also because it could not and would never tolerate dictatorship or communism. Mr Marcos' singling out of Soviet-backed Vietnam as the biggest threat to the security of Asia clinched this viewpoint.

Despite the barrage of media questions involving violations of human rights, continued detention of ideological and political enemies, and corruption in high government circles, the president hurdled them with apparent ease, to the disappointment of some media groups who still feel that the American press is obligated to tell the Philippine Government and its people what's wrong with them, what to do about it, and just how to do it.

All in all, the manner in which Mr Marcos made his hectic tour of the United States, despite claims that he is sickly and ailing, is anything short of phenomenal. His meetings with members of the U.S. Congress, with delegates of the United Nations General Assembly where he delivered an address appealing for international sobriety, with businessmen-members of the Philippine American Chamber of Commerce in New York City, with the heads of the international fair group in Knoxville, Tennessee, with the editorial boards of THE WASHINGTON POST in Washington, DC, the NEWSWEEK and TIME magazines and THE NEW YORK TIMES in New York City, THE LOS ANGELES TIMES in Los Angeles, California, and the address before the National Press Club remain the high points of the president's visit to the United States.

He won from President Ronald Reagan the full understanding of the Republican administration and the continued support of the United States towards future Philippine development militarily and economically. The various agreements signed by the First Lady and Human Settlements Minister Imelda Romualdez Marcos and other ranking government officials with their American counterparts are proofs of this.

This country and its people can now expect things to hum, as soon as the agreements are implemented and additional pacts are signed. It is obvious that the president's "friendly visit" to the United States was a success.

Welcome home, Mr President, and thanks for a job well done.

BULLETIN TODAY Editorial

[Editorial: "Common Denominator"]

[Text] It turned out that the president's trip to the United States was fruitful in a number of ways. It reaffirmed the friendly ties between the two countries. It provided the occasion for the signing of several economic agreements that will be beneficial to the Philippines. It opened the eyes of more American businesmen to investment possibilities here. It gave an opportunity for the president to confront U.S. media and explain his side in a number of controversies. It also gave the Filippino communities the chance to see the president in the flesh and hear him.

If we are to view the visit in the context of time, its purposes both for the United States and the Philippines have a common denominator -- the promotion of Philippine stability. For the Philippines, like many other developing countries, suffers from the worldwide recession. It is faced with the problem of maintaining stability in the face of grave economic difficulties.

The Philippines is also struggling to preserve its integrity as insurgency nibbles at the fringes of its society.

There is no question the United States, its government and people, prizes Philippine stability, for the Philippines has a form of government patterned after that of the United States, it is a U.S. ally, it is the haven of sizeable investments, and it allows the U.S. Government use of two large military bases. There are a number of other factors, including cultural ones, that make the United States interested in Philippine stability.

How Philippine stability can be enhanced is implied in the visit and in almost all the aspects thereof. The visit cannot, therefore, have a more practical, overarching purpose. We like to believe that the two governments have learned a few things about how that purpose can be fulfilled.

SUZUKI RETURNS HOME AFTER VISIT TO PRC

OW010803 Tokyo KYODO in English 0758 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 1, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki returned home Friday afternoon after winding up his six-day official visit to China. While in China, Suzuki conferred with his Chinese counterpart Zhao Ziyang, Chinese Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang and other leaders.

NO PRIOR CONSULTATION REQUIRED TO DEPLOY F-16'S

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 1, KYODO -- Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa has declared that the deployment of two F-16 fighter-bomber squadrons at the U.S. Misawa Air Force Base in Aomori Prefecture, which Japan has decided to accept, was not subject to the requirement for prior consultation between the two governments stipulated by the Japan-U.S. security treaty.

Speaking at a press meeting Thursday afternoon, Miyazawa said the deployment of two F-16 fighter bomber squadrons did not meet the definition of a major change in deployment necessitating prior consultation, as the verbal understanding reached in January 1960 stipulated that such consultation is necessary only for changes involving a division or more. The verbal understanding was reached between then Foreign Minister Aiichiro Fujiyama and then U.S. Ambassador to Japan Douglas MacArthur II.

Miyazawa also told the press that Defense Agency Chief Soichiro Ito, now visiting Washington to meet U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, notified Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki that he believed Weinberger might urge him to accept deployment of the two F-16 fighter bomber squadrons at the Misawa base. Ito met with Suzuki in Tokyo prior to Ito's departure for the U.S. earlier this month.

Meanwhile, Thursday, the Japan Socialist Party (JSP) issued a warning that the government of Prime Minister Suzuki could be drawn into U.S. strategic involvement against the Soviet Union if it approves the U.S. proposal for the deployment of the two squadrons of fighter-bombers in Aomori Prefecture.

SOVIET TOKYO ENVOY RAPS WESTERN SEA MINING PACT

[Text] Tokyo, Sep 30, KYODO -- The Soviet Union regards an agreement among the United States and three European nations concerning deep-sea mining claims as violating the draft Law of the Sea Treaty concluded last April, Soviet Ambassador to Japan Vladimir Y. Pavlov said Thursday.

Foreign Ministry officials said that Pavlov conveyed Moscow's view to Takakazu Kuriyama, head of the ministry's Treaties Bureau and the Office of the Law of the Sea Conference, when the Soviet ambassador paid a call on Kuriyama. Pavlov made no concrete proposal for any Japanese response, they said.

Kuriyama was quoted as saying that the Japanese Government considered that any deep-sea mining exploration should be conducted within the framework of the Law of the Sea and the resolutions attached to it. The agreement in question, signed in Washington earlier this month by France, the United States, West Germany and Britain, envisages development of the deep-seabed independently outside the Law of the Sea Treaty.

O Chin-u at Embassy Banquet

[Text] On the occasion of the 33d anniversary of the PRC's founding, Zong Kewen, ambassador of the PRC to our country, arranged a banquet at the embassy on the evening of 30 September.

Invited to the banquet were Comrade O Chin-u, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee and minister of the People's Armed Forces; Comrade Kim Yong-nam, member of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee and secretary of the party Central Committee; Comrade Ho Tam, alternate member of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee, vice premier and foreign minister; Comrade Kim Chong-chu, vice premier of the Administration Council; Kim Kwan-sop, Hyon Chun-kuk, Yi Chan-son, Pak Chung-kuk, Chang Chol, Kim Chae-suk, (Yi Yong-kun), Chon Il-chun, Kim Chin-ha, Kim U-chong, Cho Yong-chul, (Won Chol-kap), (Wang Kyong-hak) and other functionaries concerned; and Chon Myong-su, our country's ambassador to the PRC.

Attending the banquet were staff members of the PRC Embassy to our country and Chinese guests staying in our country.

Ambassador Zong Kewen spoke first at the banquet. He said: At a time when the two peoples of China and Korea warmly congratulate Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people and close friend of the Chinese people, on the success in his China visit, we deem it especially intimate and are happy that the Korean comrades, along with us, celebrate the 33d anniversary of the founding of the PRC.

He noted: Organizing and holding a series of functions celebrating this brilliant festive day of the Chinese people for a couple of days, the Korean comrades again displayed the deep friendship of the Korean people toward the Chinese people. We are greatly impressed by this.

He said: On behalf of the CPC, the Chinese Government and the Chinese people, I extend the hearty gratitude to the respected President Comrade Kim Il-song, the KWP, the Korean Government and the faternal Korean people.

He said: By achieving a great victory in the socialist revolution and construction through self-reliance and arduous struggle along the socialist path under the leadership of the CPC since the founding of a new China, the Chinese people have largely changed the looks of China.

He noted: The CPC recently held the historic 12th congress and put forth the programmatic tasks to open up a new phase, in a wholesale way, of the socialist modernization construction before the Chinese people. Today, the Chinese people inspired by the spirit of the 12th Congress of the CPC are dynamically advancing in high spirits and full of confidence toward a new victory in the construction for the four modernizations of socialism.

He said: On reflection of the past 33-year-long history, the Chinese people have undergone many twists and turns. Whenever the Chinese people have triumphantly marched forward or undergone temporary setbacks, the party and people of Korea have always stood together with us and shared joy and sadness with each other.

He then said that the Chinese people are very grateful for such a fraternal sense of duty, which has been embodied by the Korean comrades and exists only between comrades-in-arms.

What particularly delighted the Chinese people recently is the fact that as soon as the 12th Congress of the CPC was concluded, the great leader of the Korean people Comrade Kim Il-song paid an official state visit to China, which has historical significance, he said, and went on: This great event itself is a tremendous support and encouragement to the Chinese people's cause of revolution and construction.

The recent visit further deepened the friendship and further consolidated unity between the leaders and peoples of our two countries and brought the friendly relations between our two parties and two countries to a new stage of development. The recent visit again establishes the fact that no force can break the traditional friendship forged in blood between the peoples of our two countries and that this friendship will certainly be passed on generation after generation and remain forever.

In associating with friends, the most important thing is to understand each other's mind, he said, and continued: As clearly shown by several rounds of talks between Comrade Kim Il-song and the Chinese leaders, the relationship between the leaders of our two countries is, in reality, one in which they open their hearts to each other. Only such a friendship is a precious and genuine one. The Chinese people set store by this friendship. No matter how complicated and difficult the future road may be, they will stand together with the Korean people forever and move ahead shoulder to shoulder, together toward the common goal of socialism and communism.

He said: The Korean people have achieved brilliant successes in the revolution and construction by implementing the principles of independence, self-reliance and self-defense and have carried out the three revolutions -- ideological, technological and cultural -- thereby changing the looks of the country with each passing day, constantly enhancing the international prestige of the DPRK.

He stressed: All the successes of the Korean people are the result of the wise leadership of the great leader of the Korean people Comrade Kim Il-song and the KWP and the fruition of the Korean people's self-reliance and arduous struggle.

He continued: The Chinese people deem it great joy that Korea, their brotherly neighbor, has such a great and outstanding leader, such a staunch guiding force of revolution and such a heroic people. The Chinese people wholeheartedly wish the fraternal Korean people continued new victories under the leadership of Comrade Kim Il-song and the KWP.

The Chinese people have always followed with deep interest and sympathy the Korean people's cause for the country's reunification, he stated, and pointed out: The government and people of China have consistently held that the United States should completely withdraw its troops and equipment from South Korea and stop interfering in the internal affairs of Korea. We fully support the proposal for reunifying the country by founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and oppose any moves to create two Koreas. In their struggle for the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland, the Korean people will always enjoy resolute support from the Chinese people as close comrades-in-arms.

Comrade O Chin-u spoke next. He said: At a time when all of the country is seething with an exalted atmosphere over the grand program set forth by the historic 12th party congress, the Chinese people, today, meaningfully mark their felicitous national festive day. By the authority vested in me, on this day I convey warm congratulations and militant greetings from the Central Committee of the KWP, the DPRK Government and the Korean people to the Central Committee of the CPC, the PRC Government and the fraternal Chinese people.

He said: Thirty-three years ago, the Chinese people achieved victory in the people's revolution through a protracted arduous struggle under the wise leadership of their great leader Comrade Mao Zedong and the CPC and founded the PRC, a genuine people's country -- for the first time in Chinese history. He went on: The victory of the Chinese revolution and the founding of the PRC were important historic events that opened up a new chapter of socialism in China.

Over the past 33 years, the great Chinese people, firmly rallied around the CPC, have rapidly changed the appearance of old China and built a new China vibrant with a new life in the vast land of China by highly displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and arduous struggle. These epochal changes that have taken place in China make a great contribution to greatly advancing the development of human history and strengthening the anti-imperialist, revolutionary forces in Asia and the world.

In reality, the path, which the fraternal Chinese people have traversed since the PRC was founded, has been the glorious one of struggle and advance that has achieved the great historic changes in the revolution and construction while smashing the activities of class enemies at home and abroad. In recent years, the great Chinese people have achieved the stability and unity of the whole country, overcoming the difficulties that cropped up on the road ahead of them, and entered a new historical stage of realizing socialist modernization in all fields.

He said: The fraternal Chinese people are now filled with high determination to vigorously march forward following the revolutionary lines put forward by the 12th Congress of the CPC and every nook and corner of China is forcefully seeting with the revolutionary spirit.

He stated: The Korean people sincerely rejoice, as over their own, over the fact that all things have gone well in China since the Third Plenum of the 11th Central Committee of the CPC and wholeheartedly wish the fraternal Chinese people more shining successes in their struggle to build China into a highly civilized and highly democratic, socialist state by accomplishing the tasks for socialist modernization and construction put forth by the 12th party congress and reunify the whole country by restoring Taiwan to China.

He said: At this moment when we share friendship with the fraternal Chinese comrades, we come to recall warmheartedly and with the greatest joy the days during which the great leader made a visit to China recently. The Chinese party and government attached an important significance to the recent visit to China by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and exerted their sincerity so that this historic visit could bear excellent fruit.

The leading cadres of the party and the government and people of China cordially treated the great leader as the noblest guest and warmly welcomed him with the invariable revolutionary sense of duty and deep friendship toward our party and people. They expressed their firm will to fight along with the Korean people forever under any hardship and storms.

Whenever they received exciting news that forcefully demostrated the indestructible friendship and unity between the two peoples of Korea and China during the great leader's stay in China, our people were seized with endless joy and kept more deeply in their heart the dignity and the pride for which they have forged inseparable blood ties with the great Chinese people in the ordeals of history and for which they have consolidated and developed the ties.

He said: The two peoples of Korea and China fought together shoulder-to-shoulder in the anti-Japanese sacred battles. They are revolutionary comrades-in-arms who fought and shed their blood together in the same trenches in the rigorous Korean war against the U.S. imperialists. They are class brothers who have shared joy and sadness.

He noted: The peoples of our two countries not only shared the fate of life and death along the single road of the revolution in the past, but also are fighting together, while supporting and helping each other, in the common struggle for sovereignty, independence and socialism.

The recent visit to China by the great leader forcefully displayed to the world that the militant unity and friendship forged in blood between the two parties, countries and peoples of Korea and China are indestructible and that no force can break them, he said, and continued: Really, the recent official state visit to China by the great leader is a great hstoric event that beautifully records another most brilliant chapter in the proud annals of Korea-China friendship and places the friendship between the Korean and Chinese peoples on a new track. The Korea-China friendship the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is bringing into fuller bloom together with respected Comrades Hu Yaobang and Deng Xiaoping is a great friendship based on the particular intimacy between the leaders of the two countries and a friendship that will be as eternal as the rivers and mountains of the two countries.

He said: Our people most greatly set store by the great successes made during the recent visit to China by the respected and beloved leader and they are filled with a firm will to bring into bloom forever, generation after generation, the traditional Korea-China friendship by further consolidating and developing it in the future.

He pointed out: With the spirit of the era of great Chollima upsurge and upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's report to the Sixth KWP Congress and the programmatic tasks he put forth at the sixth plenary meeting of the sixth party Central Committee, our people are vigorously waging the movement to create the speed of the 1980's in order to cause again a great upsurge in socialist economic construction. They are also struggling to advance the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification.

He said: On this occasion, I extend deep gratitude to the party, government and people of China, which hold in high esteem the achievements our people are making in the revolution and construction and which always support and encourage positively our people's just struggle to achieve the country's independent and peaceful reunification.

The attendants at the banquet drank toasts to the immortal friendship and unity between the Korean and Chinese peoples, to the good health and long life of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, to the good health and long life of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, to the good health and long life of the respected Comrade Hu Yaobang and to the good health and long life of the respected Comrade Deng Xiaoping.

The peoples of our two countries have always closely supported and cooperated with each other in the course of carrying out the common cause of national and class liberation and socialist construction and are today, too, fighting shoulder to shoulder on the road of the struggle for independence, sovereignty and socialism. We were accorded warmest and sincere, cordial hospitality by the leading cadres of the party and government and fraternal people of China during our recent visit to the People's Republic of China.

Our recent visit to China was an important event which grandly demonstrated to the whole world the indestructible might of the Korea-China friendship which was sealed in blood and has withstood all trials of history.

NODONG SINMUN Editorial

[NODONG SINMUN 1 October editorial: "We Warmly Congratulate the Chinese People on Their National Day"]

[Text] Today, the fraternal Chinese people mark the 33d anniversary of the founding of the PRC at a time when they have started a new significant march upholding the decisions made at the 12th CPC Congress. Marking this day, our people are sending warm congratulations and friendly, fraternal greetings to the Chinese people.

Under the correct leadership of the CPC, the Chinese people achieved brilliant victories for the people's revolution by waging a protracted and bloody struggle against the outside aggressors and domestic reactionary forces and founded the PRC on 1 October 1949. The period of 33 years that the Chinese people have traversed since the foundation of the PRC has been a course of rewarding struggles and shining victories.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The appearance of the old China, which had once been dominated by exploitation and repression and which suffered poverty and starvation, has disappeared for good. Now a new socialist China has emerged in a gigantic shape over the vast Chinese continent, evincing brilliant rays.

The Chinese people, since the founding of the republic, have turned backward old China into a socialist new China pulsating with life in a short period by displaying a high degree of revolutionary spirit, self-reliance and hard struggle, united closely around the CPC. Notably in recent years, the fraternal Chinese people, under the leadership of the CPC, have achieved the stability and unity of the whole country, surmountaing obstacles and difficulties on their road of advance, and have entered a new historical stage of realizing socialist modernization.

The 12th National Congress of the CPC held recently summed up the precious achievements and experiences of the CPC and the Chinese people in the revolution and construction and marked an epochal milestone in further strengthening and developing the party and lifting the revolutionary struggle and constructive work to a high stage in China.

Armed with the revolutionary spirit of sovereignty, independence and self-reliance, the Chinese people are now engaged in a vigorous struggle to implement the new programs for struggle put forth by the 12th congress of their party. They also are struggling to reunify the whole country by returning Taiwan to their fatherland.

The international position of the PRC is rising still higher and its influence is increasing daily. All the changes taking place now in China are a shining fruition of the creative application of the universal principles of Marxism-Leninism to the conditions of China by the CPC.

Our people genuinely rejoice, as over their own, over the successful progress of all work in China and warmly hail it. Korea and China are close neighbors whose mountains and rivers are linked and whose people maintain a specially cordial friendship between them. The peoples of Korea and China have established a blood-sealed militant fraternity and friendship while sharing life and death with each other in the protracted joint struggle waged against imperialists.

The great Korea-China friendship based on a historical tradition has been consolidated and developed into the closest of comradely relations through frequent visits and contacts between the party and state leaders of the two countries and they are being brought into fuller blossom today by energetic activities and deep concern of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and Comrades Hu Yaobang and Deng Xiaoping.

The recent visit to China by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a demonstration of the unbreakable friendship and solidarity between the Korean and Chinese parties and peoples; it was a historic event that decorated a shining chapter in the history of Korea-China friendship, The sincerest hospitality and warm welcome accorded by the Chinese party and government leaders and the Chinese people to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song clearly showed how deep the intimacy between the leaders of the two countries is and how solid and sincere the friendship and solidarity and fraternity between the two people are.

The Chinese party, government and people have always positively supported the just struggle of our people for socialist construction and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

Our people are proud of having the Chinese people as their close comrade-in-arms. The Korean people will make every effort possible to further strengthen and develop Korea-China friendship based on militant fraternity and revolutionary duty through generations.

Our people sincerely hope that the fraternal Chinese people will win brillant victory in the struggle to build a highly cultured and highly democratic socialist power by accelerating socialist modernization.

ITALIAN JOURNALIST NOT ABLE TO MEET PFC WHITE

OW011154 Hong Kong AFP in English 1134 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Beijing, Oct. 1 (AFP) -- North Korean authorities have refused a Western journalist permission to meet the young U.S. soldier who allegedly defected to North Korea, after earlier implying that an interview would be granted. The soldier, Private First Class Joseph White, crossed into North Korea from South Korea at the end of August. The North Koreans have always claimed he defected but have not as yet allowed any verification of this by the U.S. Army.

Returning here after visiting North Korea, the Italian newspaper IL GIORNALE NUOVO's correspondent Fernando Mezzetti told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE that North Korean officials had agreed to let him meet the 21-year-old American, if unspecified "departments concerned" agreed.

He quoted the North Korean officials as saying: "It is in our interest" to let him conduct the interview with Private White, whom Pyongyang authorities say asked for asylum in North Korea. But, subsequently, Mr. Mezzetti was told that the meeting would be impossible, with the explanation that the young American "was touring the country".

WALKER REMARKS ON CROSS-RECOGNITION, DIALOGUE HIT

[NODONG SINMUN 1 October commentary: "Aggressive Absurd Remarks of Governor-General in Colony"]

[Text] U.S. Ambassador to South Korea Walker spoke at a lecture meeting. Speaking about the outdated theory on cross-recognition and the question on the North-South dialogue, he raved that the other countries should help achieve them, that the United States will continue to maintain relations as an ally and cooperate with South Korea and so forth.

Walker's remarks intensively reflect the aggressive policy of the incumbent Reagan golvernment to seize South Korea as its permanent colony and military base by fabricating two Koreas.

The cross-recognition raved about by him is aimed at making two countries of North and South Korea by dividing our nation, and at legalizing this internationally. Thus, the U.S. imperialists' cross-recognition theory has been sternly denounced and rejected by all Korean people and the progressive people of the world.

Walker's reiteration of this theory again exposed the U.S. imperialists' aggressive intention to continue occupation of South Korea by blocking Korea's reunification at any cost. The question of dialogue raved about by him is being put forward with such a vicious intention.

The dialogue between the North and South should seek reunification, not division. The dialogue for reunification can be held only by those who truly wish the nation's reunification. We repeatedly made it clear that we would sit with anyone who opposes the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists and their interference maneuvers and who seeks an independent position, and sincerely negotiate with him on the question of the fatherland's reunification.

Nevertheless, Walker is attempting to send the South Korean puppets to the sacred site to discuss the national destiny on the pretext of dialogue. This is a deceitful act designed to conceal the treacherous, nation-selling nature and crimes of the clique of Chon Tu-hwan -- filthy colonial stooge and vicious splittist. This also embraces a heinous plot to conceal his criminal act to fabricate the two Koreas and to deceive public opinion, pretending he is interested in Korea's reunification.

The U.S. imperialists' attempt to permanently seize South Korea as their colony while outwardly treating South Korea as an independent country is more clearly shown in Walker's remarks that the United States will maintain relations with South Korea as an ally and will cooperate.

It is well known to the world that South Korea is a U.S. colony totally subjugated politically economically, culturally and militarily, and that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a faithful colonial stooge of the U.S. imperialists. The relations between the United States and South Korea, like the relations between the Japanese imperialists and puppet Manchuria in the past, are the master-servant relations between master and colony.

Walker is playing the role of governor-general of a colony under the signboard of ambassador. It is no secret that Walker controls everything in South Korea in accord with the U.S. imperialists' directives. Nevertheless, he babbles about relations of allies, cooperation and so forth. This is indeed ridiculous. His remarks also contain a cunning scheme to embellish South Korea as if it were an independent state, with the vicious, dark intention of strengthening his domination and control over his stooges in every way on the pretext of being an ally.

Walker's raving clearly shows the true nature of the U.S. imperialists as splittist and colonial ruler and their aggressive objective to dominate all of Korea by occupying South Korea. However, the U.S. imperialists' wicked scheme to continue colonial rule over South Korea by permanently remaining in South Korea will never be achieved.

The spirit to demand democracy and independence in South Korean society is increasing every day among the South Korean people and overseas compatriots, who are denouncing the U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea and the puppets' treacherous, nation-selling policy of dependence on outside forces. The U.S. imperialists should immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along all aggressive forces and lethal weapons. They should stop instigating their stooges to fascism, division and war.

CPRF INFORMATION 232 ON STUDENT SUPPRESSION

SK010450 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0404 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 1 (KCNA) -- The Secretariat of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] made public Information No. 232 on September 30 denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique for brutally suppressing and arresting patriotic students who held anti-U.S., anti-Japanese and anti-"government" demonstrations.

Noting that the Chon Tu-hwan clique mobilized hundreds of plain-clothes men and heavily-armed riot police to bestially crack down upon the anti-U.S., anti-Japanese and anti-"government" patriotic struggle of students at Sogang, Koryo, Seoul, Tongguk, Songgyungwan and Ewha Women's and other universities and arrested scores of them, the information says:

Some time ago, the puppets organized such government-sanctioned activities as "protest" and "demonstration" against the Japanese reactionaries' revision of textbooks. But today they are harshly suppressing South Korean students who rose in the real anti-Japanese, patriotic demonstration. This clearly betrays their black-hearted intention.

The Chon Tu-hwan group is a gang of dirty pro-Japanese traitors flouting the people with sham anti-Japanese activities and suppressing the real anti-Japanese demonstration with bayonets. Its "protest" is a trick to wear the mask of "patriotism" by availing itself of the people's anti-Japanese sentiments.

The pro-Japanese flunkeyist treachery of the Chon Tu-hwan group is wholly manipulated by the U.S. imperialists.

Answering questions of reporters as to the Japanese reactionaries' revision of textbooks, Reagan himself said that "the present should be considered more important than the past" and the present relations with Japan be maintained on good terms in disregard of the past crimes of Japanese imperialism.

It is not accidental that the anti-Japanese demonstration of South Korean students which was caused by the textbook issue is now expanding into an anti-U.S., anti-fascist struggle. The puppet clique's suppression of the students' patriotic struggle is a desperate attempt to stamp out the mounting anti-U.S., anti-fascist struggle of the South Korean students and people and maintain the colonial military fascist rule of U.S. imperialism and thereby prolong its dirty remaining days.

VRPR RIDICULES CHON'S TRIP TO AFRICAN COUNTRIES

[Article from column "Echo of Public Sentiment"]

[Text] A documentary film entitled "The People's Great Leap" -- a film on Chon Tu-hwan's trip to five countries -- is being shown at theaters in Seoul. Those who have watched this film say that the screening resembles the display of dog's dung by wrapping it in a satin cloth. Thus, they tell anecdotes concerning Chon Tu-hwan's trip to Africa and Canada. Now, let us consider come of these anecdotes.

During Chon Tu-hwan's visit to Gabon, the Gabonese military band suddenly played the national anthem of North Korea at the airport, causing a great disturbance. Greatly perplexed, Chon Tu-hwan tried to descend from the reviewing platform. Members of the retinue who accompanied him on his trip, totally confused, yelled and ran to and fro, urging officials concerned to stop the performance. Those who watched the scene laughed, saying that it was ludicrous for the retinue members to make a fuss in fear of the president who looked like a jackal.

What became a subject of derision above all was Chon Tu-hwan's behavior. Grunting to Gabonese President Bongo, Chon Tu-hwan threatened him, saying that he would not leave his quarters the next day. The Gabonese president visited him in his quarters and told him that the leader of the military band, who only knew of the DPRK -- a chuche fatherland -- as far as Korea was concerned, was responsible for the incident. Only by repeatedly asking him to show generosity regarding the incident could the Gabonese president pacify Chon Tu-hwan. Hearing this, the Gabonese people contemptuously defined Chon Tu-hwan -- a colonial president of South Korea -- as a nutshell president. They said that it was natural for the powerless president of a country which has no sovereignty to receive such treatment.

Similar incidents took place everywhere Chon Tu-hwan went. During his visit to Nigeria and Kenya, there was unnecessary playing of music at functions held at the airports. In Kenya there was the omission of the first and second measures when the main body of the music was played following an overture.

There was no firing of a salute at the airport in Kenya. In Senegal and Canada only salutes signaling arrival were fired. In Gabon and Senegal, no sooner had Chon Tu-hwan alighted from the plane than a salute was fired. In Nigeria a salute was fired as he emerged from the door of the plane.

What was something to see was not the omission of salutes and the timing of firing, but the frightened look Chon Tu-hwan assumed at the peal of firing. Alighting from the plane in Gabon and Senegal, Chon Tu-hwan tucked his neck turtlelike into his hunched shoulders, frightened at the peal of a salute. His face suddenly turned as pale as white paper. Members of the retinue were sorry to look at him. In Nigeria Chon Tu-hwan quickly hid in the plane when a salute was fired as he was about to disembark. He mistook this salute for shooting at him. He looked like Pak Chong-hui who hid under the rostrum when Yuk Yong-su was shot.

People say that Chon Tu-hwan spent days of uneasiness and anguish during his trip to Africa.

NODONG SINMUN HITS CHON'S 'EMPTY TALK' OF PEACE

SK251042 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0802 GMT 25 Sep 82

[Text] Pyongyang, September 25 (KCNA) -- "Freedom," "peace" and "prosperity" advertised by Chon Tu-hwan the military gangster are an empty talk intended to veil the deplorable reality of South Korea today and conceal his clique's anti-popular crimes in causing it. This is stated in an article of NODONG SINMUN Friday titled "No Sophism Can Conceal Treacherous Color of Colonial Puppet."

Pointing out that the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique changed such empty words in an attempt to veil its ugly color as a despicable colonial stooge of U.S. imperialism and as a fascist murderer, the article says: South Korea is a colony totally dependent on U.S. imperialism. It is the U.S. imperialists who act the master in South Korea. The South Korean people are subject to colonial slavery, deprived of national sovereignty by the U.S. imperialist aggressors. It is a mockery of public opinion to talk about freedom, keeping mum about this reality.

The "peace" trumpeting of traitor Chon Tu-hwan is also a sheer fraud. In South Korea the aggression forces of U.S. imperialism, the chieftain of aggression and war, are hatching a plot to unleash a new war, having deployed even nuclear weapons. This itself denies traitor Chon Tu-hwan the right to talk about "peace."

Worse still, he is an executor of the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war. His "peace" trumpeting is no more than a trick to cover up his clique's crimes in disturbing peace and heightening tension by kicking up war rockets together with the U.S. imperialist aggressors.

As for "prosperity" advertised by traitor Chon Tu-hwan, it is a replica of the outcry for "the building of a welfare society" raised by him earlier. It is a ridiculous distortion of the reality.

The puppet clique's scheme of dependence on foreign forces under the guise of building a "welfare society" has only brought critical results -- depression and bankruptcy of the national economy, price hike, increase of unemployment and so on.

NODONG SINMUN ON STRENGTH OF WORKERS PARTY

[NODONG SINMUN 30 September essay: "The Strength of the Workers Party" -- KCNA identifies this item as a "political essay"]

[Text] Today our people live in the most glorious and rewarding era of the Workers Party, unprecedented in our long history, and are overflowing with the spirit to create a new great history.

Our country is vigorously accelerating the march of remodeling the whole society on the chuche idea in firm unity among the entire party, all the people and the whole army as one under the guidance of the great leader and the glorious party, beating the drum of revolution and sounding the trumpet of the speed battle.

Everyone is full of endless joy and pride in getting born in the worthwhile era of the Workers Party and living and carrying out the revolution in the bosom of the party. Our people are advancing and advancing, firmly convinced of the justness of their cause and clearly seeing the prospect of the revolution and bright future with faith in certain victory and revolutionary zeal.

There are no people or nation in the world like our people and nation that today overflow with pride and confidence and are filled with firm conviction in the future.

Where do today's unprecedented pride and conviction of the Korean people come from? The KWP, founded by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, has an invincible strength, and has inherited the brilliant tradition of the anti-Japanese struggle. The KWP is leading our people only along the road of socialism and communism with unwavering confidence, overcoming all difficulties and trials.

The strength of Korea creating today's new history is the mighty and invincible strength of the Workers Party. The pride and confidence of Korea emerge from the fact that we have the Worker's Party.

The words, "strength of the Workers Party," give our people the faith in certain victory and courage because of their profound significance and greatness. These words always resound amid great faith and romanticism. The words, "strength of the Workers Party," are a proud song of Korea praising the greatness and invincibility of our glorious party -- the organizer, the stimulator and the guide of all our people's victories -- and is the song of surging conviction and faith.

1. Today Korea is ceaselessly advancing and leaping with boundlessly magnificent plans and goals while creating new, great things every moment. The Arch of Triumph was magnificently erected on the hillside of the historic Moranbong in Pyongyang, the capital of our fatherland, reflecting the vivacious spirit and great passion of today's Korea.

Our people raised the Arch of Triumph high to reflect the unanimous wish of national loyalty on the occasion of the 70th birthday of the great leader. With not only lofty significance but also with unique artistic nature and magnificence, the Arch of Triumph of Korea exhibits pride to the entire world. The people who visit the Arch of Triumph are boundlessly moved by the marvelous and mysterious strength that miraculously erected this great monumental creation of our era, with admiration of the great history engraved in the arch. Saying it is an incredibly marvelous fact that such a great creation was raised in only one year, a foreign friend with deep interest asked our secretary guiding the tour of the Arch of Triumph: With what strength could Korea create this miracle?

This was not a question deserving an ordinary answer. If the question were related to such issues as the materials, funds and manpower directed to the construction work, it would not have been a matter of miracle and mystery.

How could we calculate and explain merely with numbers the strength that raised the Arch of Triumph. Therefore, our secretary proudly answered: The great, miraculous and mysterious strength that raised the monumental creation of the era of the Workers Party is the strength of the Workers Party. He added that the Workers Party initiated, organized and erected this monument. The answer that all uncommon phenomena in Korea and the secret to all miracles effected in this land are results of the strength of the Workers Party reflects our people's deep emotion.

Korea has very great strength -- the strength of the Workers Party -- that no other people have. Because we have this strength of the Workers Party, we can raise any great creation and can effect any miracle we want to.

The proud word that our people would like to shout to the entire world whenever we see all the miraculous events and creations taking place in this land shows Korea's pride and today's splendid, national strength.

Our people's enhanced ideological and spiritual state, which all the world's people admire, seething life of the nation and the spirit to implement the revolution, have emerged from the proud sentiment that we have the strength of the great, mighty and invincible Workers Party.

Today a new spirit of upsurge to demonstrate the extraordinary resolution and determination of Korea and its vigorous passion is quickening in this land. Korea, which has been effecting ceaseless miracles and upsurges throughout the entire history of the socialist construction, is rising again full of vigor and courage.

Upholding the party's militant appeal for effecting another great upsurge in the socialist economic construction just as in the great Chollima upsurge period after the congress of November 1956, all the people have risen in the struggle to create the speed of the 80's -- the new high speed.

Those who are registering new exploits in steel production with the unprecedentedly lofty target of increasing steel production by 1.5 to 2 times are not only the workers of the Kimchaek iron works and Kangson steel plant; workers in the large-scale bases of nonferrous metal in our country, including Komdok, Tanchon, and Hyesan, are firmly resolved to attain the target of 1.5 million tons of nonferrous metal. Thus, the entire nation is overflowing with the vigor and spirit for great upsurge in economic construction. This is a great Korean outcry that is vigorously resounding with the trumpet's call to the speed battle at a time when many world nations are suffering unprecedented chronic economic crisis and stagnation, setback and defeatism.

Our fatherland is effecting a greater upsurge and more rapidly advancing with the spirit of adding the speed battle to Chollima. If some ask our people how Korea's spirit soars to the skies, we will proudly answer: Because we have the strength of the Workers Party.

It is said that one of the most difficult problems facing many countries in the world is overcoming the influence of cold fronts. The drought, which has hit our country this spring and continued throughout the summer, was an unprecedently severe one. There has never been such a drought.

This notwithstanding, we have never seen careworn looks on the faces of our peasants. On the contrary, our peasants were in high spirits. It is said that, while looking at a corn field that was well cultivated thanks to irrigation facilities, the members of the Pobu cooperative farm in (?Okchon) County exchanged the following remarks: It makes no difference whether or not the weather is favorable. The cold front is powerless in Korea. Just as they said, a bumper harvest is expected with more than 12 tons of corn yielded per chongbo on the field of the No 1 work team, over which broad laughter was echoing.

Today, our people see no anxiety in pioneering their destinies. They have no anxiety about today, nor do they worry about tomorrow. Our people, who are unperturbed over waves of adversity, are stoutly creating their new lives, firmly trusting their party and are being further united around the party as a harmonious family.

Where does this great confidence that our people possess in their daily lives and in pioneering their destinies come from? If anybody asks what gives them great confidence, our people will proudly answer that they have the strength of the Workers Party.

As a vigorous heart enables an organic body to actively move by continuously supplying nutritive substance for it and a boundless source enables a large river to flow strongly, so a great source enables a people to possess a high ideological and spiritual state. The unprecedented revolutionary passion and confidence of Korea, which advances in a high spirit, fearing no difficulty and being unperturbed at the waves of adversity, is provided by the strong and invincible strength of the Workers Party.

2. There are various types of pride and confidence in a country and a people. A long history and brilliant cultural tradition may be the pride of one nation while a beautiful natural environment could be the pride of another.

When we talk about the high pride and confidence of our nation, we, above all, refer to our own strength, with which we are able to pioneer our destinies in a creative and independent manner. The dignity and glory of a country and nation are obtained and defended by its strength, and its destiny and future are decided by its own strength. There have been not a few nations whose brilliant cultural tradition, beautiful morals and diligence were well known to the world. However, some of them fell or have been oppressed and coerced into disgraceful slavery. The reason was that they did not have their own powerful strength. Because they had no strength, nations were reduced to victims in the survival of the fittest and peoples were forced to suffer from misery and humiliation.

The powerful strength with which a nation can pioneer its destiny in an independent and creative manner is the genuine dignity, glory and great pride of a nation. For this reason, we denounce all unjustifiable and reactionary power that tries to go against the development of history and oppresses the independence and creativity of the masses of the people.

We extol, however, the just and progressive strength that advances history and defends the independence of the masses of the people. Furthermore, we are striving to increase such strength. The strength of the Workers Party is the most powerful and great strength among strengths with which a country and nation can victoriously and independently pioneer its destiny.

The strength of the Workers Party is the strength of consistency and of unity and cohesion with which we can resolve all problems raised in pioneering our people's destinies.

It is said that the greatest might in the world is that of unity. When the people are united and the party is united, this unity becomes an infinite strength that is almighty and invincible. The strength of the Workers Party is the might of unity and cohesion on the highest level in history. It is the might of consistency that has emerged from the firm unity of the party, the leader and the people on the basis of one ideology and one will.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: In our country all people are firmly armed with the party's unitary ideology, are firmly united around the party and move as one in accordance with the command of the party. There is no other such great party and people in the world.

The consistency of the strength of the Workers Party is one in which the entire party, all the people and the entire army act unanimously based on the party's ideology and will, in which the masses unanimously rise up in accordance with the party's signal and in which the whole of the country unanimously advances in accordance with the party's command. The strength of this unprecedented consistency is almighty, showing that when the ideology of people is mobilized, they can do anything. And it is miraculous, showing that, when the party, the leader and the people are united with one will, they can conquer every fortress. Because it possesses this almighty and miraculous strength, our Korea sees no impossibility in pioneering the destinies of our people and independently and victoriously resolving its problems.

Thanks to this almighty strength, though the U.S. imperialists once said that it would be impossible for us to rise up on the ruins, we, like a phoenix, were able to rise up. Moreover, we created the heroic epic of the great Chollima march through which we achieved, in only 14 years, industrialization that took others hundreds of years to realize. Furthermore, we created a history of cataclysmic change in which we filled arid land with life-saving water and built a people's paradise in a land of backwardness and poverty.

Because we have this almighty and miraculous strength, we are effecting unprecedented upswings in industry and agriculture, overcoming the influence of the cold front and of economic crises. We are also creating a mangificent, beautiful chuche world in this land, remodeling and reforming everything, including nature, society and man, in accordance with the will of imbuing the whole of society with the chuche idea.

The strength of the Workers Party, with which we are remaking nature as we want, with which we are making the most of time and our minds and with which we reform the world as we choose, is a great strength that has never before existed. The strength of the Workers Party is the strength of a great and ever-victorious tradition that leads the destinies of our people to a single road of victory under any condition and circumstance. It is said that the most indestructible and consolidated strength is the strength of tradition along with the strength of unity. Tradition, which is perpetuated and cemented generation to generation, is a consolidated strength. As it is difficult to change those having experienced defeat into winners, so too those possessing the tradition of winners possess powerful strength with which they never concede honor and dignity obtained with blood.

Our glorious party inherits the most brilliant tradition -- the anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition. The anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition is a tradition in which we victoriously pioneered the destinies of our people under the worst circumstances and during the most arduous period of our revolution. It is also a tradition of great winners who have been ever-victorious under all adverse circumstances.

The strength of the Workers Party, because it has embodied this victor's tradition, which will develop and grow without a hitch for thousands of years to come, as its inexhaustible source and everlasting habit, is an unrivaled power that knows no defeat, only victory, and is an invincible power that never fails to achieve its goals, never yielding to nor backing away from any kind of trials and ordeals.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Have our people ever failed in winning victory even once during war or in the period prior to and after a war? Never.

The history of our revolutionary struggle, which has been ever-victorious in the bloody struggles waged against all kinds of enemies and in the arduous struggle to explore a new, never-trodden path, has recorded numerous, astonishing heroic epics produced by this great tradition of the Workers Party. Thanks to this great power of tradition of the Workers party, we were able to stand up to the U.S. imperialists when they pounced upon our young republic without hesitation and were able to crush the myth of their strength, achieving victory after victory, crushing at every step all kinds of enemy challenges, vicious blockades and pressures.

Production, study, life -- all in the manner of the anti-Japanese guerrillas! Today's great history is energetically accelerating the march of imbuing society with the chuche idea under this revolutionary slogan that is engraving the brilliant anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition into our bones and flesh and embodying it in the day-to-day practices and activities. From this, we are vividly and emotionally experiencing the great and invincible strength of the tradition of the Workers Party that is achieving only victories and advances without a single failure or retreat, fearlessly and unhesitatingly tackling any kind of ordeals, breaking through barriers and making roads if there are no roads.

There have been many parties and politicians that claimed their own programs for struggle and ideologies and made many declarations and pledges before history and the masses. Some of them have been implemented. However, many of these numerous declarations and pledges have never been implemented and numerous excuses have been offered for the failures. There have been no circumstances in which our party has had to justify failures or admit them. The only party on earth which, never experiencing a single mistake or failure in the course of implementing its lines and policies, has achieved victories in the course of implementing thousands and thousands of decisions without a hitch, is the KWP.

The strength of the Workers Party is steering the fate of our people to victory after victory and to a bright future without succumbing to any kind of trials and tribulations, while remolding nature, reforming society and men and changing them on the strength of the great ideology and will of imbuing society with the chuche idea.

As sung and praised by our people, the strength of the Workers Party never fails in forging anything it wants to make if it is determined, creating any kind of miracle conceivable on earth.

From this invincibility and might emanating from the strength of the Workers Party, our people have come to see the only strength they can absolutely trust and trust their fate to as a whole and have come to have a conviction that they will always achieve victory and glory only by following what is dictated by the party.

3. The strength of the Workers Party is a great strength that has brilliantly achieved our people's aspiration for living a dignified life forever as a people of strength.

In retrospect, our people's 5,000-year history has been replete with ups and downs in which our people prospered because they had strength or were ruined because they lacked it. It was also a history that has taught us a bone-chilling lesson and the philosophical principle that people without strength cannot avoid the ignominy of living a life of slavery. All the sufferings, shame and sorrow of a people without their own country, forced on our people in the past, were none but the sorrows of a people of a small, weak country, the shame and sufferings of a people lacking strength.

On the day our people, who have inherited a history of 5,000 years from generation to generation, became slaves without a country, our people cried: "Today, we greatly lament and weep." This was one of the sorrows, shames and sufferings experienced by our people. The last cry of the members of an army in the cause of justice, who either fell or scattered, and the grudge of the secret envoy dispatched at the end of the Yi Dynasty to The Hague by King Kojong who could not let the world know the name of Korea even after he shed blood and sacrificed his own life, were none but the sorrows, shames and sufferings our people experienced.

How can Korea, which has suffered such hardships in the past, come into existence shining at one corner of the East and evince brilliant rays to every corner of the world?

The history of our people and nation coming to enjoy the dignity and honor of being a truly powerful people began when our people started to bravely steer their fate with their own hands under the great chuche banner and when our fatherland began to display its dignity as a powerful socialist country of independence, self-reliance and self-defense, which became possible thanks to the great, powerful and invincible strength of the Workers Party.

The strength of the Workers Party is invincible because it has assumed the immortal chuche idea as its guidance idea and inherited the anti-Japanese revolutionary tradition.

Thanks to the strength of the Workers Party -- the new, powerful strength of the legendary Chollima and the strength of the Workers Party that is invincible and great because it was added to the speed battle -- our people can display the dignity and honor of being the people with strength not only today but forever. With what can our people's dignity and honor be compared? The strength of the Workers Party is that of Korea and confidence in our party's great strength is that of the people in the Workers Party.

Let us listen to what an old anti-Japanese warrior has joyously said: I endlessly trust our party. I have a clear vision of what will become of our party in the future through the extraordinary organizational power and leadership of our party. Now, nearly 40 years have passed since our party was founded. Has there ever been a time in the past when our party center was successful in uniting the entire party, all the people and the entire army and in driving them to advance as one as today?

Whenever we come to think of the might of our party, I feel very strong at heart and I cannot suppress the surging faith and joy that we can surely reunify our fatherland and consummate socialist and communist cause if only we follow such a great party.

How movingly the song of confidence of our people, who deeply believe in our party, is emerging from the words of this old warrior who has loyally and singlemindedly upheld the great leader in the arduous course of the revolution and even now, unwaveringly upholds our party with passion and energy!

The extraordinary organizational power and power of mobilization of our party -- the outstanding and mysterious power of the leadership which, with dexterity, boldness and firmness, has firmly rallied the entire party, all the people and entire army around a single idea and will and leading the rank of thousands and thousands to the implementation of a single object -- is what makes our people trust, uphold, love and follow the party so much.

Party, in essence, means strength. Warriors organize a party to multiply their strength by a hundred times and the party is born out of class consciousness aspiring for the might of unity. However, as has been proven by history, not every party has commanded great strength.

For the first time in the history of the revolutionary struggle of the working class, our glorious party center has achieved a rock-firm political and ideological unity of the party, leader and people — the highest degree of unity and cohesion -- on the strength of a single idea, the chuche idea, and strengthened and developed our party into a revolutionary chuche party — an ever-victorious party displaying invincible strength by displaying the tradition of the revolution from generation to generation.

Right now, our people firmly believe that as in the past, so too in the future our revolution will forever win victory after victory and our fatherland will be endlessly promising. For our people, today, full of worth and happiness, is also precious. However, what is more precious and important than today is the fate of our revolution's tomorrow and the future prosperity of our nation.

As our people sing "Tens of millions of li following the great leader, tens of millions of li following our party," so too has the path of victory, which we have traversed, been far-off and rugged, and so is the future path, along which we should win victory. Therefore, our people are never content with or self-conceited about today's victory and endless happiness but they foresee, always with a particular class-awakening and burning national sense of duty, the future of our revolution and of the nation.

Above all, our people want themselves to be strong and invincible. Therefore, (?generation after generation) our people have preferred valiant and forceful songs of struggle. They want the party, which struggles, carries out revolution and is strong, to lead us. What a great happiness and glory it is for our people to own the strength of the great, powerful and invincible Workers Party!

Earlier, half a century ago, for the first time in their history of several thousand years, our people greeted the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song, the great sun and the legendary hero. Through his boundless greatness, they saw the might and invincibility of the nation. While glorifying and singing the praise of them by reflecting them in numerous legends of Mt Paektu, our people have acquired endless national dignity, hope and conviction.

Today, obtaining the highest national dignity and pride and a firm conviction in the future, from the strength of the great and invincible Workers Party our people are accelerating the grand march of modeling the whole society on the chuche idea, highly displaying their mettle as [word indistinct]. There is nothing to be afraid of, not even violent winds, rain or an active volcano spurting lava.

The strength of the Workers Party, which gives (?tenacious) dignity and pride and encouragement to our people and friends, gives fear and uneasiness to our enemies. As long as there is that strength, there is no fortress in the world that we cannot seize nor is there any difficulty that we cannot overcome.

With the strength of Workers Party we will create and advance everything in this land that we want and will continue victorious forever.

PRODUCTION UPSWING REPORTED AT KOMDOK MINE

SK271016 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0959 GMT 27 Sep 82

[Text] Pyongyang, September 27 (KCNA) — The Komdok mining complex, a large non-ferrous ore production base, is now bringing about a new upswing in production, upholding the decisions of the Sixth Plenary Meeting of the Sixth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea on attaining the 1.5 million ton target of non-ferrous metals.

Through the drive for the creation of the "speed of the 80's" the miners there are these days boosting mineral production over 1.5 times as compared with the corresponding period of last year. They dynamited at one blast 5-6 times as much ore as before by introducing an efficient comprehensive blasting method. While increasing production, the complex is pushing ahead with the expansion project of pits on a large scale.

Many shafts including the shaft No. 13 with a capacity of millions of tons are under construction at a time. A new cutting face with a rated capacity of 15 million tons is being built in the Nam pit. Big cutting faces are under construction also in the Chongnyon, Ponghwa and Roun pits. The expansion projects of dressing plants Nos. 1 and 2 are progressing apace to create additionally a production capacity equal to a new dressing plant. Dressing plant No.3 under construction will have a capacity nearly 12 times that of the existing ones.

The dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il has built the Komdok District into a powerful, leading non-ferrous ore production base with a far-reaching plan to dynamically promote the upsurge of socialist economic construction as a whole by extensively tapping the underground resources of the country.

The introduction of large-sized, modern and high-speed equipment has been realized in this complex to excavate in three days as much minerals as turned out in one year in the period of the Japanese imperialist rule. Bright is the prospect of this complex. Its production will increase respectively two times and over three times in 1983 and 1984 as against the 1982 state plan.

CHON STRESSES NEED FOR FIRM NATIONAL SECURITY

[Text of statement issued by ROK President Chon Tu-hwan on 34th anniversary of the founding of the South Korean Armed Forces]

[Text] Today, we observe the 34th anniversary of the founding of the armed forces, our resolve to strengthen the national self-esteem and create a self-reliant national security is firmer than ever. Joining the rest of the nation in commemorating this significant day, I extend my congratulations and encouragement to the members of the armed forces who are working diligently around the clock in the front and the rear to carry out their duties, patriotically.

To look back, the armed forces have established a proud tradition by protecting the nation in times of emergency at the cost of many lives. The armed forces heroically repelled the unprovoked invasion by the North Korean communists during the Korean war and have since resolutely crushed their unceasing provocations. The armed forces remain firmly united around the sole resolve to protect the nation and with indefatigable spirit, have achieved remarkable growth and development.

With this, the 34th anniversary, the armed forces have fully matured and are indeed impressive, being one of the strongest in the Free World. The pride of our armed forces stems from highly competent personnel armed with modern hardware and having versatile battle experience. They have trained long and hard and built up an esprit de corps, firm in patriotism and a faith in victory. They are surely the crack forces of the Free World.

It goes without saying that the armed forces owe their development to the dedicated support and contributions of all citizens. We can hardly think of a viable defense without a strong nation, and thus it is the sweat and determination of the people that has nourished the growth of the armed forces by expanding the national potential. I extend my heartfelt appreciation for the support of all of you who have sacrificed to pay defense taxes and contribute to the development of the military and the defense industries. I am also grateful for the cooperation of everyone which has allowed the funnelling of a large amount from the national budget, no less than 6 percent of the gross national product, into the defense of the homeland.

Fellow countrymen, world history has clearly shown the fate of those people who were incapable or lacked the determination to safeguard their nations themselves. Furthermore, in today's cruel world situation, we are witness to the tribulation of countries lacking in a strong defense and the determination to remain secure.

Aware of the hard reality that the cries for peace of the powerless are little more than empty shouts, we must be thoroughly prepared for any contingency lest our land become the target of aggression again. On the other hand, no matter now earnestly we oppose aggression and abhor war, the danger of these will persist so long as the other side fails to comprehend our resolve or miscalculates our abilities.

Right under our noses is the world's most closed, unpredictable and irrational group, the North Korean communists. In an attachment to the daydream of communizing all of Korea by force of arms, they have rejected all our constructive and rational proposals for unification. It is possible that they will attempt another assault as an outlet for domestic problems resulting from the deepening gap in national strength between the South and the North, growing political and economic discontent among their people, and persisting power struggles over the projected hereditary power succession. Lately, North Korea has shown some unusual symptoms. They have built up their offensive firepower drastically and bolstered military mobility while concentrating on bolstering the ability of the irregular troops. They have also massed troops south of the Pyongyang-Wonsan line, especially in the western sector.

In addition, they have scattered seditious leaflets in large numbers and broadcast slander over the public address system no fewer than 700 times a day on the average in a frantic bid to foment tension and fan unrest in the south. They have not relaxed a bit their attempt to test our defense preparedness. They continue to infiltrate armed agents into the South and abduct innocent fisherman.

The best way to cope with the situation is for the people, the government and the military to unite firmly and thereby to maintain a watertight security and promote the expansion of national strength. The most effective way to confront those who ignore the voice of reason is to be very powerful. We cannot relax or falter in our march toward national strength at least until the North Korean communists concede their inferior strength and respond favorably to our peaceful unification efforts.

I expect that you, the men and women of the armed forces, who are fulfilling your respective duties to safeguard the homeland, will redouble your efforts to establish a stronger spirit and discipline and will further refine tactical skills, ever mindful that you are the vanguard sustaining our mighty national strength.

Again, I express my deep thanks to the people for their support for the development of the armed forces and pray that good luch will be with all of those of the armed forces in the days ahead.

EPB MINISTER NOTES 'GRADUAL' RECOVERY OF ECONOMY

SK290215 Seoul YONHAP in English 0204 GMT 29 Sep 82

[Text] Seoul, Sept. 29 (YONHAP) -- With the business warning indicator (BWI) registering an average of one point in August for the first time this year, the South Korean economy is headed for a gradual recovery, Deputy Premier-Economic Planning Minister Kim Chun-song said Wednesday. In a bimonthly report to President Chon Tu-hwan on the state of the nation's economy, Kim said the country's wholesale and consumer prices rose 0.4 and 0.5 percentage points, respectively, in September, bringing the wholesale and consumer price inflation since the end of last year to 2.1 percent and 4.5 percent, respectively. Meanwhile, the top economic planner said, the deficit in the current account stood at 829 million U.S. dollars in August, and the nation's foreign exchange holdings reached 6,072 million dollars.

Exports were rather sluggish in September, totaling 1,167 million dollars as of Sept. 25, a decrease of 1.6 percent from a year earlier. Letter of credit arrivals, considered an advance indicator of exports, also declined 2.2 percent to 982 million dollars.

The total money supply as of Sept. 20 rose 28.9 percent from a year earlier. The construction sector showed a brisk performance with government construction permits granted for 17,761,000 square meters as of Aug. 31, an increase of 27.5 percent from a year earlier. The unemployment rate stood at 3.9 percent, all but unchanged from a year earlier.

ROK-EEC TEXTILE TALKS FALL SHORT OF AGREEMENT

[Text] Seoul, Sept. 29 (YONHAP) -- Korea and the European Economic Community (EEC) ended their third round of textile talks without agreeing on a reduction of Korean textile exports for 1982, a high-ranking commerce-industry official said Wednesday. Yu Tok-hwan, director-general of the ministry's Trade Promotion Bureau, said that the two sides failed to narrow their positions on the rate of Korea's export cutback in sensitive items, such as shirts, sweaters and blouses, in the textile negotiation Sept. 15-24 in Brussels.

Yu was Seoul's top delegate to the textile talks, in which the Korean side insisted on a five-percent decrease of sensitive items from 1981 while the EEC suggested a 10-percent reduction. The two sides, however, agreed in principle to compensate for the reduction of sensitive items with other textile products. The talks are expected to resume after the EEC ministerial conference slated for Oct. 26 but the date was not fixed. Korea's textile exports to EEC member countries stood at 1.14 billion U.S. dollars last year, or 18.5 percent of its total textile exports, and 72.6 percent of the exports to the region last year were made on a quota basis.

MPR EXPANDS TELEVISION BROADCAST SYSTEM

OW290308 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1705 GMT 28 Sep 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 28 Sep (MONTSAME) -- On September 27 the Mongolian television is 15. For the past period it has become an inseparable part of the Mongolian people's every-day life. The volume of the national broadcasts has doubled. Today, about 400 thousand people, in other words, one in every four citizens of the country, regularly watch television.

The construction of the 2,000-km long radio-relay line ushered in a new important stage of the development of the Mongolian T.V. and extended considerably the zone of telecasts. Thanks to this, the inhabitants of the six western aymags (provinces) got the possibility to watch T.V.

At present, receiving stations of the "Ekran" space telecommunication are operating in more than 40 towns and somons of this country. They gave the possibility to watch the central Soviet television programmes.

Another 20 stations of this kind will be put into operation this year. For the current five-year plan period, a new radio-relay line linking Ulaanbaatar with the town of Choybalsan (eastern Mongolia), is to be built. All these will make it possible to increase considerably the T.V. audience and secure stable receiving of both Mongolia and Soviet television in the far-away areas of the country.

Today, Mongolia is a member of the international "Intervision" organisation. It cooperates with the relating organisations of the fraternal countries. They regularly exchange telecasts and television films and make joint telefilms.

BOU THANG DISCUSSES THAILAND IN INTERVIEW

BK291410 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1300 GMT 28 Sep 82

[Interview given by Bou Thang, minister of national defense, to an unidentified SPK correspondent -- date and place not given; read by announcers]

[Text] Question: Recently, the Thai authorities alleged that Vietnam was engaged in a new troop and war materiel buildup along the Thai border in preparation for an offensive against the Pol Pot rebels. What is your opinion of this allegation?

Answer: Before answering this question, permit me to recall past actions by the Thai authorities against the Kampuchean, Vietnamese and Lao peoples:

1. During the U.S. war of aggression in Indochina, the Thai authorities authorized the U.S. imperialists to use their territory so U.S. aircraft could make bombing sorties against the three Indochinese countries on a daily basis. Moreover, they sent their soldiers as mercenaries of the U.S. aggressors to commit aggression in Indochina. In particular, the destruction caused by this aggression left behind indelible marks and vestiges for generations in our beloved Kampuchean territory. It can be understood how painful it was for our Kampuchean people to see their homes, towns, villages and rice-fields damaged and destroyed by the U.S. aggressors' bombs.

2. Following the 17 April 1975 liberation, after the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys were vanquished, the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan traitors, under the instigation of the Beijing expansionist-hegemonists, implemented a genocidal policy, massacring more than 3 million Kampucheans and wreaking complete havoc on the nation. Moreover, they committed aggression against Vietnam, indiscriminately slaughtering the Vietnamese people. Furthermore, they also launched raids against Thailand.

3. The 7 January 1979 victory of our front brought this genocidal regime to a definitive end. It also ended this regime's aggression against Vietnam and Thailand. For this reason, Thailand should acclaim our victory over its aggressors. Instead, the Thai authorities have allowed these criminal aggressors to take refuge in sanctuaries along the border inside Thai territory and have supported them by giving them food, arms and munitions to sabotage the peaceful life of our people. The Thai authorities have gone as far as to directly commit aggression on land, in the sea and by air so as to enable the Pol Pot remnants and other reactionary groups to carry on their troublemaking activities along the border. In the political field, they have painstakingly initiated the farce of setting up the so-called Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea in order to resuscitate the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime by using capricious and power-hungry Prince Sihanouk and old monkey Son Sann as the smokescreen.

At present, as the UN session is underway, Thailand is spending huge sums of money to fool other people into supporting these traitors. Therefore, the Thai authorities are their direct material and political supporters. No one doubts that Thailand does not intentionally follow the policy of the Chinese expansionists in collusion with U.S. imperialism and all stripes of international reactionaries or serve China's expansionist strategy.

The Thai authorities are indifferent to the security of their own people. Instead, they persistently and stubbornly follow the policy of Chinese expansionism and U.S. imperialism in maintaining the Pol Pot remnants and a handful of Khmer traitors to create insecurity along the border while vociferously perpetrating the slander that our Kampuchean revolutionary armed forces are concentrated along the border. This is a ploy to get greater military aid from their masters -- namely, China and the United States. At the same time they have noisily threatened to drive the refugees back so as to get additional humanitarian assistance. Therefore, the accusation made by Thailand was hatched simply and merely in accordance with the tactics of the Chinese expansionists and U.S. imperialists, who seek to perpetuate tension in the region to facilitate their exploitation of the natural and human resources in our region as part of their strategic expansionist policy.

Question: Regarding the frequent Thai violations of Kampuchea's territorial waters, airspace and territory and the hostile attitude of the Thai authorities in providing shelter for the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan remnants and other reactionary Khmers, do you have any measures to take against them?

Answer: As stipulated by the Constitution of the PRK, the foreign policy of Kampuchea is one of independence, peace and nonalignment. We want to coexist peacefully with all countries, near and far, regardless of their political tendencies, on the basis of the principles of mutual respect for sovereignty, nonaggression, noninterference in each other's internal affairs and reciprocal benefit. It is in this spirit that our government has proved to be very patient and has made repeated overtures to Thailand as contained in our proposal in Vientiane in January 1980 and the proposal of the three Indochinese foreign ministers last July. The Kampuchean side has repeatedly proposed that a demilitarized zone be established along the Kampuchean-Thai border. However, the Thai side has rejected this. When we proposed that a safety zone on the Kampuchean side of the border be manned only by Kampuchean forces and that the Thai side of the border be manned only by Thai forces, Thailand rejected this as well. To show our good will, we agreed with Vietnam to unilaterally withdraw a part of the Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea in order to demonstrate our peaceful posture and, if Thailand responded positively to our proposal, we would look into successively withdrawing more Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. However, not only did the Thai authorities fail to respond positively, but they even spurned our good will, distorted the truth about this troop withdrawal, caused insecurity along the border and foolishly continued to provide support for the Pol Pot remnants and other reactionary Khmers in an attempt to sabotage the rebirth of the Kampuchean people so as to please the Chinese expansionists and U.S. imperialists.

Let me stress that it is easy to crush the Pol Pot gang in Thai territory, but we have too much respect for Thai sovereignty. I would like to emphasize that if we had wanted to attack Thailand in retaliation for its attitude, we would have done so during the 1 April 1981 coup attempt, for at that time its troops along the Kampuchean border were all sent to Bangkok. The border was then very open, yet we did not do anything. Thailand must therefore understand Kampuchea's position. It should never forget that its hostile activities badly affect the Thai people's interests because such a policy follows in the wake of the Chinese expansionists in collusion with U.S. imperialism and all stripes of international reactionaries. If this policy does not change, the Thai authorities will certainly be smashed one day by the Thai people.

COMMENTARY VIEWS SIHANOUK'S ROLE IN CGDK

["Commentary: What Role Does Sihanouk Play?" -- SPK headline]

[Text] Phnom Penh, 30 Sep (SPK) -- According to Western sources, Sihanouk will soon speak before the United Nations. In the name of who or what will he speak? In the name of the relatives and parents of 3 million Kampucheans -- among them many of his children, nephews and nieces -- massacred by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime? No. In the name of the 6 million Kampucheans who survived the genocide and who are settling down to rebuild their martyred country reduced to nothing after the Pol Pot gang's reign and to defend it against the return of the murderers? Not them either.

He will represent "Democratic Kampuchea." That is the regime inspired by Maoism, governed by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan gang, and already toppled by the people on 7 January 1979. It is a regime reduced to a gang of criminals living at the Thai border with Beijing's aid in collusion with Washington and reactionary circles in the world.

It is a regime represented during last UN General Assembly sessions by Ieng Sary -- a sinister personage of whom the U.S. delegate hypocritically said: I wanted to wash my hands immediately after shaking hands with him. It is a regime whose henchmen are working to reimpose it on the Kampuchean people.

It is not the first time that Sihanouk has spoken at the UN General Assembly. In 1979, after having just been freed from his gilded cage in Phnom Penh, he shamelessly pleaded in favor of his torturers and the murderers of his people. Some foreign observers thought that he had not yet recovered from his stupor, that he was still a hostage of the Khmer Rouge and that he had to please their masters in Beijing. But 3 years have already passed since then.

During these 3 years, the Kampuchean people have done much to reconstruct their country. The face of the country has changed greatly due to the efforts of the survivors of the genocide. Their determination to defend their gains by peaceful work is more obvious, and the authority of the PRK is growing in the international arena. These 3 years have also marked the failure of Beijing's attempt to turn the situation in favor of "Democratic Kampuchea." It was only because of this that Beijing recently accepted the creation of a so-called "tripartite coalition" dominated by the Pol Pot gang or the Khmer Rouge to prevent "Democratic Kampuchea" from being expelled from the United Nations as it was from the Nonaligned Movement. By agreeing to represent his lame coalition, Sihanouk has lent his mask to hide the bloody face of his people's murderers. In so doing, he has betrayed his people and the memory of 3 million dead, among them his own children. He is only a puppet in the hands of the Kampuchean people's enemies. By serving the "Democratic Kampuchea" of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique, he has completely discredited himself in the eyes of the Kampuchean people because they fiercely oppose the return of this regime under any form.

Without the force of the people's uprising, without Vietnamese internationalist aid, what would the fate of the Kampuchean people be today? As for Sihanouk, would he be alive to deny historic realities and to show his ingratitude?

Is the presidency of a criminal regime, a ghost government which does not have a single inch of territory, so well paid that Sihanouk can forget his own words when he declared: "Only idiots will fall into the trap of the Khmer Rouge's united front." (AP 2 September 1980).

FOREIGN MINISTRY REJECTS HUMAN RIGHTS REPORT

[Text] Phnom Penh, 30 Sep (SPK) -- The spokesman of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 29 September issued a statement rejecting the 8 September resolution of the Subcommission on the Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities regarding the human rights situation in Kampuchea. The text of the statement reads as follows:

Recently, the Subcommission on the Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities transmitted to the Human Rights Commission a resolution regarding the human rights situation in Kampuchea. As an article of bad faith, this resolution constitutes a further flagrant interference in the internal affairs of the PRK and represents a travesty of the realities in Kampuchea.

In fact, through its 8 September resolution, the subcommission pretends to be concerned about the enjoyment of human rights by the Kampuchean people, who have just been liberated from the criminal regime of unprecedented genocide. In reality, it has let itself be used by the mendacious propaganda apparatus of the unscrupulous imperialists and expansionists to cover up their complicity in the genocidal crimes committed against more than 3 million Kampucheans by a gang of criminals in their pay.

This propaganda is aimed at diverting world opinion from the systematic violations of human rights perpetrated by these savages when they were in power and, even now, in the camps of Kampuchean refugees located in Thailand. But it is aimed in particular at putting a layer of cosmetics over the ugly faces of the genocidal criminals so that they can continue to fool world opinion and usurp the Kampuchean seat at the United Nations. The so-called coalition government recently set up in a foreign city -- a product of the dictate passed down by the imperialists, expansionists and regional reactionaries to the three groups of traitors in order to use the name of Sihanouk, the joker prince -- is aimed specifically at this goal.

It is a shame that the honorable delegates who were commissioned to defend human rights have, in reality, done the opposite. Are they aware that by executing the orders of the U.S. imperialists and Chinese expansionists they not only oppose more than 6 million Kampucheans, but they also run counter to the interests of mankind and betray the interests of their own people?

The spokesman of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs strongly deplores the fact that not only has the subcommission ignored the crimes of genocide and systematic violations of human rights committed even today on the Kampuchean refugees in Thailand by the remnants of the army of that accursed regime of the so-called Democratic Kampuchea and the Thai authorities, but it has also very candidly interfered, through the expedient of human rights questions, in the internal affairs of the Kampuchean people, who are being reborn as a nation. Furthermore, these poor refugees were either forced by the remnant army of the traitorous gang to follow them during their flight to Thailand or were lured by the so-called humanitarian aid into becoming cannon fodder for the Pol Pot hangmen's army.

For all these reasons, the spokesman of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs is authorized to reject this erroneous resolution of the subcommission. Morality and justice demand that the criminals be duly punished.

KHIEU SAMPHAN SENDS GREETINGS TO PRC COUNTERPART

BK010648 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 30 Sep 82

[Greetings message from Khieu Samphan, vice president of Democratic Kampuchea in charge of foreign affairs, to Huang Hua, member of the State Council and minister of foreign affairs of the PRC, dated 27 September]

[Text] To His Excellency Huang Hua, member of the State Council, PRC minister of foreign affairs and head of the PRC delegation to the 37th UN General Assembly:

Your Excellency, on the occasion of the 33d anniversary of the founding of the glorious PRC, on behalf of the Kampuchean people and the Government of Democratic Kampuchea and in my own name, I am very glad to send my warmest congratulations and most friendly greetings to you, and through you, to the government and people of China.

The founding of the PRC -- made possible through supreme sacrifice -- was a most important historic event. Following 33 years of brilliant achievements, the PRC is courageously stepping forward in an atmosphere of stability and unity throughout the country and striving to achieve greater victories in accordance with magnificent modernization programs which will certainly transform China into a modernized country in the next two decades.

Although a big country, the PRC has always followed a foreign policy based on equality and mutual respect with every country -- no matter how small -- and has stood firmly on the side of the just cause of peoples in countries which are victims of aggression. This has raised the PRC's prestige ever higher on the international scene. The firm stand of the PRC in pursuing its foreign policy has been tested over many years during its relationship with our Kampuchea, which is only a small country.

At present, while our country is suffering the barbarous aggression of the Hanoi Vietnamese clique, the PRC has again resolutely supported our just national struggle. On this occasion, the people and Government of Democratic Kampuchea would like to express once again our moving gratitude to the PRC. The invaluable support of the PRC and all peace- and justice-loving countries the world over is a great encouragement to us in our present struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors for an independent, neutral and nonaligned Kampuchea which will contribute to the safeguarding of peace, stability and security in the region and in the world.

Would Your Excellency please accept, once again, my congratulations and greetings and wishes for your good health and success in your noble mission.

VIENTIANE REPORTS KAYSONE MEETING WITH BREZHNEV

BK010801 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Text] According to a TASS report from Moscow on 29 September 1982, Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the LPRP Central Committee and chairman of the LPDR Council of Ministers, who is resting [phakphon] in the Soviet Union, met with Comrade Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee and chairman of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet. At the meeting, the two state and party leaders exchanged information on implementation of the resolutions of their respective party congresses dealing with the political, economic and ideological problems which are now being consolidated and perfected by the LPRP, the CPSU and the laboring peoples of Laos and the Soviet Union.

Comrade Leonid Brezhnev spoke of the problem of the implementation of the 11th 5-year plan by the Soviet laboring people, the economic problem and the success of the food program of the Soviet Union.

Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan spoke of the successful implementation of the first 5-year plan, measures to stabilize the economy, and a gradual improvement of the material and spiritual living conditions of the Lao people.

Regarding the problems of all-round enhancement of Lao-Soviet relations, the two leaders stressed it is necessary to increase the efficiency in economic cooperation between the two countries, and to make use of the Lao resources in a most fruitful way. Comrade Leonid Brezhnev pledged to Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan that the Soviet people will, as always, continue to render assistance to the fraternal Lao people in the settlement of various major problems put forth by the Third LPRP Congress.

On international issues, Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan and Comrade Leonid Brezhnev expressed the conviction that in light of the dangerous situation caused by various imperialist aggressors -- first and foremost the U.S. administration -- it is necessary to put an end to or ease the tension which has been created purposely. He also noted the importance of the initiative aimed at reducing the danger of war and the stepping up of effective measures for the prevention of nuclear weapons in the maintenance and consolidation of peace.

The Lao leader hailed the genuinely creative policy of the Soviet Union on disarmament, particularly the bold initiative of the Soviet Union, which has pledged not to be the first to use nuclear weapons. He also expressed the hope that other nuclear superpowers will follow this noble example.

The two sides unanimously agreed that a guarantee of a wide and lasting settlement of the Near East issue is an urgent problem. They also vehemently denounced the aggression and atrocities carried out against Lebanon by Israel with the support of the United States.

The Lao Government fully supports the Soviet views on the principles to realize appropriate and durable peace in this region. The Soviet Union highly appreciates and supports the Lao efforts aimed at calming the situation in Southeast Asia. It also supports the proposals of the conference of the foreign ministers of the LPDR, the SRV and the PRK in Ho Chi Minh City. These are directly related to the proposal to convene an international conference with the participation of the Indochinese countries, the ASEAN member countries, the Soviet Union, China, the United States, France and Britain, together with India and Burma, to discuss the Southeast Asian situation.

The meeting proceeded in an atmosphere of close, fraternal friendship and cordiality. Comrade Konstantin Rusakov, secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, Comrade Andrey Aleksandrov, aide to the general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee, and Comrade (Inpong Soulinthanou), aide to the general secretary of the LPRP Central Committee, also attended the meeting.

PLANE PARTS HANDED OVER TO SRV REPRESENTATIVE

BK011026 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Text] The Foreign Ministry at 0930 today handed over to a Vietnamese Government representative parts from the Vietnamese AN-26 which violated Thailand's sovereignty and landed in Sa Kaeo District, Prachin Buri Province, on 11 February 1982. The deputy director general of the Foreign Ministry Information Department, Saowanit Khongsiri, reported on the handing over to newsmen this morning:

[Begin recording] On 21 May 1982 the Thai Government handed over to Vietnam all 12 crewmen of the crashed plane and the remains of the Vietnamese official who died and was later cremated in a ceremony sponsored by the Thai Government at the request of the Vietnamese Government. On 25 June 1982 the Vietnamese Government sent three Vietnamese technicians to Thailand to consult with Thai technicians on dismantling the wreckage to return it to the Vietnamese Government. As a result of the conslutations between the Thai and Vietnamese technicians, which ended on 13 August 1982, Vietnam requested only those parts of the plane which could easily be transported back to Vietnam, and agreed that the handing over of those parts which Vietnam wanted would represent the symbolic handing over of the entire plane -- the AN-26, serial number 26264 -- by the Thai Government. The Thai Government this morning presented to the Vietnamese Government representative the parts from the plane which Vietnam wanted. [end recording]

SITTHI ACTIVITIES AT UN GENERAL ASSEMBLY REPORTED

Meets Nguyen Co Thach

BK010224 Bangkok BANGKOK POST 1 Oct 82 p 1

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila has told his Vietnamese counterpart Nguyen Co Thach that Thailand is ready to consider and discuss any concrete proposal within the framework of relevant United Nations resolutions on Kampuchea.

ACM Sitthi's statement was made during a 30-minute meeting at the United Nations Headquarters in New York between himself and the Vietnamese foreign minister. The September 27 meeting was arranged at the request of the Vietnamese foreign minister.

ACM Sitthi said he believed the Kampuchean problem would be solved eventually if Vietnam was really sincere about a peaceful settlement. However, he also expressed disappointment over "interference" by the Loatian foreign minister, whose proposals on Kampuchea, he said, had contributed little to improving prospects of a settlement.

During the meeting, Thach said Vietnam was willing to cooperate in searching for a solution to the Kampuchean problem. ACM Sitthi reaffirmed that he would accept Thach's invitation to visit Hanoi at a date to be set at both sides' convenience.

Addresses UN Session

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila lined Thailand up with most Third World nations on all major international political, economic and military issues in an era-breaking address before the United Nations General Assembly in New York yesterday. Air Chief Marshal Sitthi:

1. Extended recognition to the Palestine Liberation Organisation as representing the Palestinian people and unequivocally supported their "right to return to their homes and their properties."

2. Said that "the illegal occupation of Namibia must be unconditionally and immediately brought to an end," and supported efforts of the South-West Africa People's Organisation (SWAPO) to attain independence of Namibia "by all possible means."

3. Said that the "ruthless suppression of Afghan patriots must be brought to an end."

4. Asked the General Assembly to "reiterate its call for the total withdrawal of foreign forces from Kampuchea," adding that "a genuine commitment by the party concerned would be welcomed as a positive step in the right direction."

5. Warned of the possibility of "new waves" of refugees to the Thai-Kampuchean border.

6. Complained that efforts to narrow the gap between the rich and poor nations "have not been satisfactory" and that "our export earnings have been adversely affected by protectionist policies of certain developed countries."

7. Urged that disarmament and reduction of the arms race in both nuclear and conventional weapons remain "a priority issue of concern to this assembly."

8. Called for talks between North and South Korea to bring peace to the Korean Peninsula.

9. Rapped the Security Council which, he said, "all too often finds itself unable to take decisive action to resolve international conflicts," adding that "its resolutions are increasingly defied or ignored by those that feel themselves strong enough to do so."

10. Appealed to UN members to "rededicate ourselves to the principles and purposes of the Charter and to use more effectively the machinery of the UN."

On the Middle East crisis, Marshal Sitthi said: "The military aggression committed by Israel against the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Lebanon...has undermined efforts on the part of the international community to find a just and lasting settlement to the conflict." He joined a call for the "expeditious and total withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon..." ACM Sitthi said that while Israel was "a recognised reality, the legitimacy of Palestinian yearnings for statehood must also be recognised." He expressed Thailand's support for the efforts of the Islamic Conference Organisation to seek a solution to the Afghanistan crisis, which "destabilises the precarious balance in that vital region."

On Kampuchea, he said that "the present situation has interrupted the process of constructive cooperation among countries of Southeast Asia and brought about an intensification of big-power rivalry in the region."

ACM Sitthi dismissed proposals made by Laotian Foreign Minister Phoun Sipaseuth to his ASEAN counterparts for a regional conference and a Thai-Kampuchea safety zone, saying that they had been made before for propaganda purposes.

On a related issue, he said that the Thai Govenrment "is sadly disappointed by the recent sharp decline in resettlement rates in third countries for Indochinese refugees in Thailand." He also urged donor countries to continue relief and aid programmes for 100,000 Thai villagers displaced as a result of the Kampuchean refugee influx.

"The most natural solution would be for the refugees to return safely to their work. The Thai Government, in cooperation with the UNHCR's office, will continue to promote and assist in the programme of voluntary repatriation by land, sea and air," the foreign minister said. "Pending the full implementation of this programme, safe relocation of the Kampuchean displaced persons in the border areas which are accessible to relief supplies seems to be a viable alternative."

On the world economic situation, Marshal Sitthi urged UN members to cooperate "to achieve our worthy common goal of a restructured and equitable economic order for the world community benefiting all mankind."

On disarmament, he said: "Our task must surely be to rededicate ourselves to the principles enshrined in our Charter on non-use of force, non-interference in the internal affairs and respect for the territorial integrity of states, and concurrently seek to resolve international issues by peaceful means."

Further on Sitthi Address

[Excerpts] Thai Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshall Sitthi Sawetsila calls for Vietnam and its allies to join the UN peace process on Kampuchea. Speaking to the UN General Assembly yesterday, the Thai minister said that the Democratic Kampuchea coalition recently formed under Prince Norodom Sihanouk offers new hopes for improving prospects of achieving a comprehensive political settlement of the Kampuchean problem.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila said that the ongoing bilateral dialogues between ASEAN countries and Vietnam have not brought up to now substantial progress or substantive changes in Vietnam's position. He accused Vietnam of delaying tactics in regard to the UN peace process on Cambodia. He said Thailand had received reports indicating the recently announced withdrawal of Vietnamese troops in Cambodia was merely a rotation of troops, with new units arriving since the end of April. The Thai foreign minister rejected the Vietnamese proposal for establishing a demilitarized zone between Thailand and Cambodia.

The Thai foreign minister said that peaceful settlement of the Cambodian conflict would pave the way toward the realization of a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality in Southeast Asia which would provide for orderly development of all peoples in the region irrespective of their differences in political, economic or social systems.

POST Views Address

[Editorial: "A Watershed in Thai Diplomacy"]

[Text] Our foreign minister, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila, could not have done more to make Thailand acceptable as a valuable member of the Third World than by the fighting speech he made at the United Nations General Assembly this week.

The address can be considered a historic watershed in Thai diplomacy since it marks a distinctive turning point in our foreign policy. In the past Thailand has never really been accepted by the Third World as one of their own, much less by the non-aligned nations, as a result of our total commitment to the positions taken by the United States and the West in Korea, Vietnam and other areas of the world and of our participation in the Southeast Asian military alliance known as SEATO. No matter how eloquently we phrased our foreign policy statements to claim an independent stand, our neutrality and non-involvement, and our desire for friendship with all countries, irrespective of their political or economic or social systems, our motives had mostly been considered suspect by many Asian and African countries. Now, with a monumental and inspired surge of plain speaking, he may have swept aside doubts and suspicions and carved for Thailand an honoured place in the Third World.

Never before has Thailand come out so unequivocally and so strongly for people fighting for their independence against imperialist forces in various parts of the world. Marshal Sitthi deserves our admiration for the way in which he has brought to the conscience of the world the plight of the Palestinians, the Namibians, the Afghans and the Kampucheans. Our firm opposition to the Vietnamese invasion of Kampuchea and to the Soviet aggression against Afghanistan has been well-known and we maintain our support of the principles of the relevant United Nations General Assembly resolutions for solving these two conflicts. It is worthwhile at this stage to recall, as Marshal Sitthi did in his speech, that the principles are total withdrawal of the invasion forces and self-determination for the dispossessed peoples.

It is more likely than not that the recognition extended the Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) as representative of the Palestinian people has been precipitated by the massacre in Lebanon, which dramatised the plight of the Palestinians and brought into world focus what Marshal Sitthi described as the right of the Palestinians to statehood. This demonstrates to the Arab and Muslim nations without denouncing Israel's right to continue to exist that Thailand's heart is in the right place.

Less expected was our foreign minister's outright support for the South-West Africa People's Organisation (SWAPO). His call for an unconditional and immediate end to the illegal occupation of Namibia by South African forces "to enable the Namibian people to achieve sovereignty and independence in an integrated Namibia" could not have been more timely. Thailand, which has more or less in the past neglected or ignored such questions in Africa and Asia, now shows it takes great pride in being a Third World country fully engrossed in Third World affairs. Thailand is well on the way to being admitted into the Non-Aligned Movement.

NGUYEN CO THACH MEETS NEW YORK PRESS 29 SEP

OW010915 Hanoi VNA in English 0834 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, Octover 1 -- "Democratic Kampuchea coalition is only cheap cosmetic," remarked Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach at a press conference he held in New York on September 29. Answering questions on the irreversibility of the situation in Kampuchea, he pointed out that "irreversibility means that Pol Pot or Pol Pot with some cosmetics cannot come back to Kampuchea."

Answering a KYODO correspondent's question on the partial withdrawal of Vietnamese Armed Forces from Kampuchea and on the attitude of the ASEAN countries on this issue, Nguyen Co Thach said: "Only July 7, when the Indochinese foreign ministerial conference in Ho Chi Minh City made public the decision on troop withdrawal, some ASEAN countries rejected our proposals and afterward, when we had withdrawn part of our troops, they said that the withdrawal was a rotation. So you can see that from the beginning they want to discredit our proposals because they want to avoid taking the next step, that is, to have no more sanctuaries for the Pol Pot [as received] in Thai territory."

"If the ASEAN countries are serious in this matter we can talk and we can agree on the problem of whether it is possible to withdraw or not," he further said.

Replying to THE NEW YORK TIMES' question concerning "a neutralized Cambodia," Nguyen Co Thach said: "We are for the neutralization of all Southeast Asia, including Kampuchea. We have proposed to the ASEAN countries the same thing they had put forward in the Kuala Lumpur declaration in 1971. They proposed the neutralization of Southeast Asia and now we have proposed the same thing, but the ASEAN countries are not eager to consider it. Why do you only like to neutralize only Kampuchea and not the whole Southeast Asia?"

On the question of Sino-Vietnamese relations raised by the BLACK AMERICAN magazine, he said: "Our door is always open, and I wish that the other [side] also opens its door. I am very optimistic."

Asked about the charge that Vietnamese Armed Forces had used toxic chemicals in Kampuchea, he stressed: "I can officially affirm that there is no such use. It is a pure fabrication just like the Pentagon Papers, just like the incident of the Gulf of Tonkin."

On relations with the ASEAN countries, Nguyen Co Thach said: "There is now an atmosphere for the dialogue between Indochina and ASEAN countries." He recalled the contents of the recent letter of the Lao foreign minister to ASEAN.

To a question put by the American correspondent Gabriel Alexander concerning the UN role in a solution to the Kampuchean issue, he said: "We appreciate very highly the good offices of Mr Javier Perez de Cuellar for peace and stability in Southeast Asia and between China and Vietnam. We welcome his offer and his contribution to the cause of peace and stability. But we can't accept his role as secretary general of the UN while the Pol Pot still have their seat in this organization."

NHAN DAN CITES HOANG LIEN SON ACTIVITIES

[Article by The Nghia in 28 September NHAN DAN]

[Text] Hoang Lien Son Province has launched a political drive among the party organizations of various echelons, sectors and organizations to study and discuss ways to implement the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress. After this drive, these party organizations have realized more clearly the position and responsibilities of a border province in implementing the two strategic tasks -- namely, strengthening national defense and firmly defending the fatherland -- while expoiting the advantages of a mountainous province which is rich in natural resources in order to build the economy.

After being forced to withdraw from the province's seven northern districts and towns, the Chinese aggressors have constantly conducted shellings to harass our border outposts and our population centers in Muong Khuong and Bat Xat Districts. They have daily sent their scouts and commandos to make contact with reactionary elements in the province, kidnap our cadres, bribe, cajole and threaten our people, loot their property and destroy crops in various villages close to the border. All these enemy maneuvers are aimed at undermining the fighting spirit of our compatriots and combatants and weakening our economy.

Fully aware of the enemy's perfidious schemes, the Hoang Lien Son provincial party organization has given priority to the task of building each district and town into a strong fortress. The backbone of the province's defensive line is those army units stationed in various districts. They have achieved close combat coordination with the local self-defense militia force in quickly punishing the aggressors for their nibbling operations, shellings and menacing actions or for inciting riots.

In addition to their combat missions, these army units have joined with the local people in reclaiming wastelands and have participated in planting rice and subsidiary food crops, thus contributing to meeting part of their own food requirements.

The militia force of various villages and hamlets have constantly undergone military training, have stepped up production and have made every effort to protect the lives and property of the compatriots of various nationalities. All the local party organizations have put forward the watchword "every citizen must be a good security agent," and have paid attention to motivating the people to detect those reactionary elements which are abusing ethnic sentiments and family relationships to secretly carry out scouting and targeting activities for the enemy scouts and commandos.

In order to carry out these tasks triumphantly, the province's party organization is paying special attention to increasing the number of capable leading cadres in border districts and towns and resoultely expelling various degenerat. members from the party. The province is also supplying the front area with various kinds of commodities on a priority basis, including consumer goods, foodstuffs and materials. It has gradually improved roads and bridges and built cultural establishments in order to stabilize the people's daily life and support combat and production.

Concerning the economic domain, the province's guideline on economic restoration and development is based on the main targets of the 1982-83 plan, especially the 1983 plan. Many questions have been repeatedly asked as to why Hoang Lien Son, a province with hundreds of thousands of hectares of forests, more than 48,000 hectares of ricefields, almost 50,000 hectares of fertile land and with abundant mineral resources such as coal, apatite, graphite, kaolin and plants for special and pharmaceutical products, has not been able to produce sufficient grain, foodstuffs and consumer goods to meet the people's demands and to fulfill its grain obligation satisfactorily.

Reviewing the implementation of the party organization's resolutions over the past 5 years, the province's party committee noted that one of the key factors which led to this shortcoming was the use of a number of inactive cadres who do not thoroughly understand the central resolutions. Some believed that the failure was due to the province's characteristic of mountainous agriculture, which does not allow an increase in rice output -- these include insufficient investment, backward cultivation methods, poor soil, adverse weather conditions, insufficient labor and limited managerial cadres. The others argued that the main task for border districts and towns is to consolidate and build national defense and that economic development is the responsibility of rear districts. Whatever their opinions, a number of sectors in the province did not assign work to cadres according to their specialized fields. Many cadres and economic specialists were integrated into the province's offices and services and a number of economic advisers have no practical experience. The formulation of plans by various echelons and sectors was not based on the principle of balancing theory, especially with regard to raw material, equipment and available labor. As a result, these plans were difficult to implement. They produced low economic results and required repeated adjustments. This has caused a reduction in labor productivity and an increase in the final product cost.

A number of party cadres and members have not assumed any responsibility or any sense of organization and discipline, to the extent that they have become degenerate and degraded. The shortcomings mentioned above have led to sluggishness in the operations of some economic sectors. Hoang Lien Son produces tens of thousands of tons of subsidiary food crops every year and has tens of thousands of hectares of sugarcane. However, the processing of food crops has not been given the proper attention yet; production management is a mess; technology and equipment are not being improved; and raw material are being distributed haphazardly, resulting in serious wastage. The crop allocation pattern has not been clearly established yet. Some districts have, within the past 10 years, changed their crop allocation pattern as many as 7 times. The collection, purchase and maintenance of crops at harvest time is not well-organized, thus causing losses to the people.

The province has determined its orientations and tasks for exploiting the potentials of every area and establishment, and, at the same time, it has set forth measures for their practical implementation. Through this political drive, the sense of responsibility of the various echelons and sectors has been further enhanced and the province's guidance has become more concentrated. The provincial party committee has laid great emphasis on the tasks of stepping up the production of grain and food along the line of intensive cultivation, developing the breeding of domestic animals, carrying out small-scale land reclamation and expanding the areas for growing rice and food crops in an effort to fulfill the 1982 plan, which calls for a grain putput of 256,000 tons, 258,000 hogs, 110,000 buffalo, 23,000 head of cattle and 30 million dong worth of agricultural products for export. Advancing on the successes of the recent 5th-month spring crop, the province has, in this 10th-month crop season, planted almost 29,000 hectares of rice, scoring an increase of 1,000 hectares over last year. This is a new step forward on the part of the party organization and people of various ethnic groups in the province.

Combining agriculture with forestry, Hoang Lien Son is expanding the areas of both short and long-term agricultural crops; providing raw material for the processing industry, the consumer goods industry and for export; and fullydeveloping crops, livestock and special products.

A pressing task of Hoang Lien Son at present is to organize satisfactorily the preservation of natural and newly planted forests, while exploiting more than 100,000 cubic meters of timber and other types of forestry products for delivery to the state.

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS DIRECTIVE ON CADRE TRAINING

BK301034 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 8 Sep 82 p 4

[VNA report]

[Text] On 1 September the chairman of the Council of Ministers issued a directive on intensively training and improving state administrative cadres at all levels.

The directive said: Training and improving state administrative cadres has been neglected in past years. Most administrative cadres at all levels have not been trained and improved in state and social management, nor have they been educated to understand socialist laws. Because the apparatus of state organs is cumbersome and the training and improvement of cadres is inadequate, the effectiveness of state management is limited. Many places have even violated state laws and regulations and the people's right to mastery.

The directive pointed out: The central administrative school must open regular refresher courses so that from 1983 to 1985, cadres who are incumbent members of provincial and city people's committees, heads of bureaus and services and chairmen of people's committees of districts, precincts, towns and municipalities subordinate to provinces will be equipped with the necessary knowledge of state management. In the immediate future the school must concentrate on educating cadres in essential matters related to state management, state laws, the constitution and recently promulgated decrees. They must also be taught to understand the functions, tasks, powers, work methods and state management work of administrative authorities at all levels as specified in the country's Constitution and laws. The school is responsible for preparing the contents of refresher programs to be submitted to the chairman of the Council of Ministers for consideration and approval. It must coordinate with the Office of the Council of Ministers, the Government Organization Committee and the Ministry of Justice in drawing up study materials for the refresher courses. Meanwhile, it must send cadres to district, provinces and cities where training and improvement work is fairly good to draw upon experiences in state management. Such experiences are necessary to improve the school's students and prepare study materials for administrative schools in provinces, city wards and towns. Village and city ward people's councils must ensure that each of their members attends a refresher course once during his tenure. The central administrative school must also guide provinces and cities in training cadres for grassroots-level administrative echelons and provide plans for improving incumbent officials. Beginning in 1983, this task must be initiated in those provinces and cities where conditions permit.

The chairman of the Council of Ministers instructed the director of the central administrative school and leaders of related echelons and sectors to seek support and cooperation from the Soviet Union in opening a number of refresher courses for state managerial cadres. The school must prepare study programs and other study materials for cadres of all categories at the village, district, provincial and central levels. It must increase the contingent of full-time and part-time teachers and strengthen its material bases, equipment and other facilities in order to fulfill the tasks entrusted.

GOVERNMENT ISSUES DECISION ON CHECKING FUEL USE

[Text] The Council of Ministers on 28 August issued a decision on inspecting the use of coal, gasoline and oil. The decision says: It is necessary to launch a drive to inspect implementation of the norms set for the use of coal, gasoline and oil among various sectors and echelons in order to investigate the use of these supplies in excess of the norms so that petitions for countermeasures can be submitted to various authoritative organs; to investigate and deal with all manifestations of negativism in the management of coal, gasoline and oil which could cause great losses to the state; and to submit petitions to the Council of Ministers for policies, measures and management systems aimed at economizing on the use of coal, gasoline and oil among various major economic sectors.

A steering committee for this drive will be set up with one vice chairman of the State Inspection Commission as its head, one vice chairman of the State Planning Commission who is in charge of supply as its deputy head, and the vice chairmen of the State Science and Technology Commission and the vice ministers of supply as members. The State Inspection Commission will be permanently in charge of the steering committee for this drive. This steering committee will directly inspect implementation of the norms set for the use of coal, gasoline and oil at the Ministry of Power in work related to the production of electricity; at the Ministry of Mines and Coal in work related to the excavation and transport of soil and stone, and the supply of coal in accordance with required quality and quantity for electric and industrial production; at the Ministry of Food Industry in work related to the production and processing of sugar: at the Ministry of Communications and Transportation in work related to the operation of the truck, railway and riverine transport sectors; and the Ministry of Supply in work related to the receipt, storage, transport and delivery of gasoline and oil and the accurate measurement of the norms set for fuel wastage in the process of transportation and business transactions and the actual norms between capacity and weight.

The decision also points out that, based on the requirements of this inspection drive, the heads of various sectors and echelons are duty-bound to conduct inspections in their respective sectors and echelons and to report the results to the steering committee of the inspection drive.

This inspection drive will begin early in September 1982 and will end in late January 1983 at the latest.

Light rain was reported in almost all the districts in Ha Bac, while the amount of rainfall in Hanoi varied from 26-160 mm, with heavy downpours concentrated in Phu Tho District and Son Tay City. There was regular 20-40-mm rainfall in Hai Hung, Thai Binh, Ha Nam Ninh and Ha Son Binh Provinces, and certain areas, such as Kim Chi of Hai Hung, reported 75-mm rainfalls.

With the inundated area caused by previous downpours still relatively large, the current rain is causing more floods in Ha Nam Ninh Province.

Since the monsoon season in the northern provinces and cities from Thanh Hoa northward will soon be over but the monsoon season in provinces from Thanh Hoa southward is just beginning, the Ministry of Water Conservancy urges various localities from Thanh Hoa northward to take precautions against late-season rain if 10th-month rice is to be protected until the harvest. The ministry also urged the localities to take advantage of the receding water levels in various rivers by concentrating on draining floodwater by natural methods and to reserve electricity for use by those localities such as Thanh Hoa and Nghe Tinh, which are being affected by rain-related floods.

COUNCIL OF MINISTERS ESTABLISHES TEACHERS DAY

[Decision of the Council of Ministers on Vietnam Teachers Day, dated 28 September]

[Text] In order to demonstrate the concern of the party and state for teachers, point out clearly the important position and role of teachers in training a class of new men to build socialism and defend the socialist country, and promote our people's traditions of always respecting and treasuring teachers, on 28 September 1982 the Council of Ministers decided to set aside 20 November each year as the Vietnam Teachers Day.

With a view to making 20 November really significant, beginning in October every year, the administration and mass organizations at all levels will hold a conference to review the tasks and activities of teachers in their localities -- what has been done and what is to be done -- in order to mobilize teachers to develop the fine traditions of Vietnamese teacher circles by improving their quality and ability and by setting good examples for students to follow.

Teachers should initiate some forms of activities to enchance their awareness of honor and responsibility in the present society of our country. On this basis, they will struggle to fulfill their noble task even better.

The 20 November Teachers Day will be organized and sponsored annually by the people's committees and the education councils at all levels in coordination with the education sectors and the people's organizations. Authorities of the administration and sectors at all echelons should send leading cadres out to the field to inquire about the teachers' living conditions and to hold cordial meetings with teachers. On such occasions, meritorious teachers may be commended or rewarded.

The Vietnam Teachers Day can be organized solemnly and practically, avoiding all ostentatious forms which might cause troubles for students and their parents. On 20 November each year, the teaching and training tasks in schools may be adjusted to give teachers some rest and a chance to participate in the entertainment activities of the schools and localities.

SUHARTO ADDRESSES OPENING OF DPR/MPR SESSION

BK010919 Jakarta ANTARA in English 0808 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Text] Jakarta, October 1 (ANTARA/OANA) -- Indonesia is resolved to expand cooperation with ASEAN member countries grouping Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand and the Philippines.

This was emphasized by President Suharto when addressing the newly formed House of Representatives (DPR) and People's Deliberative Assembly (MPR) in a joint "commissioning sessions" here Friday. The DPR and MPR are set up following the May 5 1982 general elections.

President Suharto said the ASEAN cooperation is in the light of strengthening national resilience of respective countries as well as regional resilience for the attainment of a peaceful, free, neutral and prosperous zone. Indonesia, he went on, is determined to adhere to her independent and active foreign policy based on independence, durable peace and social justice. The foreign policy will be carried on through forums for bilateral, regional and international cooperation. In that light he mentioned such forums as the Nonaligned Movement, the Islamic Conference organization and the United Nations.

To materialize a new world order into a more just and humanitarian setting, especially in the light of a new international economic order, Indonesia will intensify her efforts to support and foster solidarity and a cohesive attitude as well as intensifying cooperation among the developing countries.

Referring to the world economic recession, the Indonesian head of state said that the situation is adversely affecting that country's economy. But he assured the nation that his administration will do its best to make the effects of the recession on the national economy as small as possible. He said the world economic recession caused concern because there are no signs that the condition will not be slackening.

Referring to domestic affairs, President Suharto described the question of job opportunity expansion as one of the central problems in Indonesia's further phase of development. He said that the nation is resolved to accelerate the rate of development in the next Pelita IV (1984-1989) with consistent continuation of the trilogy of development, cherishing equity in the advancement of social justice, economic growth and sound and dynamic national stability. In the context of expanding job opportunities and of solving the population problem, implementation of transmigration will be intensified. The implementation of family planning, which shows most encouraging results to date, will also be intensified, the head of state said.

Elaborating on the work to be done in next Pelita IV, President Suharto said that the plan has dual aims to be achieved simultaneously. The first is to raise the standard of living, of cleverness and well-being of the entire people, making them ever more just and equitable. The second is to establish a strong foundation for the following phases of development. In doing so, he further said, priority will be given upon economic development with emphasis on the agricultural sector in order to continue the effort to consolidate self-sufficiency in food. At the same time, he added, the nation will step up industrial development so that the country canproduce industrial machinery, both for heavy and light industry.

President Suharto in his address containing the basic ideas of the draft state policy reiterated the co-relation between development and national stability. He said that the consolidation of national stability will strengthen national resilience and simultaneously as practical application and perpetuation of Pancasila which is of utmost importance in consolidating national integration. [sentence as received]

The head of state in that light sees it necessary to affirm that all the socio-political forces use Pancasila as the one and only political principle on consideration that the national development is practical application of Pancasila. As Pancasila accepted as such, he went on, democracy in the country is not fading, nor must differences of opinion die. President Suharto emphasized that Pancasila democracy allows all the socio-political forces to have the widest possible opportunity to offer the best possible programs for the progress and well-being of the people. Religious organizations continue to have rights and honourable place in the Pancasila-based country. Pancasila is not a religion. It cannot replace religion, the chief executive pointed out.

Referring back to the development acceleration, President Suharto said that the work needs considerable funds. As the nation is determined to grow and develop by her own strength, development funds must come primarily from sources of domestic capacities, with foreign sources being only complementary. He said steps must be taken so that the ability of the state and the public to finance development keeps increasing.

The distribution of the burden of development between groups with high incomes and groups with low incomes is felt to be increasingly just, so as to stimulate the equitable distribution of development and the pattern of modest living that is extremely important for strengthening social solidarity.

President Suharto told the new DPR and MPR members that the mobilization of funds from public savings will also be intensified. Domestic investments must be constantly stimulated and its role heightened and foreign investments are still open in specific sectors, he added. The nation must make the national economy grow and spur on development even faster yet, he said. In order to distribute equity widely, regional and rural development will be continued, and greater attention needs to be given to the groups of low income earners such as fishermen, handicraftsmen, landless peasants, small farmers, farm labourers and small entrepreneurs. Attempts will be continued to strengthen and expand the role of cooperatives through the intensification of guidance and assistance.

In order to consolidate dynamic economic stability, the policy of balanced and dynamic budget will be continued and improved, President Suharto said.

Speaking about the appointment of one-third of the members of MPR from the armed forces, President Suharto said that the step is based on the national consensus in the context of constitutionally safeguarding Pancasila and the 1945 Constitution. Article 37 of the 1945 Constitution states that amendments to the Constitution may be submitted if at least two-thirds the number of MPR members are present and may be approved by at least two-thirds of the number of members in attendance. Appointment of armed forces members, amounting to one-third the total members of MPR, then should it happen some time that a general session of MPR is inclined to make amendments to the Constitution on the basis of Article 37, then the members of the armed forces who have been appointed will be able to prevent that intention of the general session of MPR by not attending the sitting, President Suharto explained. Since without the attendance of one-third of the appointed members of MPR it will certainly be difficult for MPR to achieve a quorum of two-thirds of the members, thus the intention of MPR to amend the Constitution will not be carried out.

According to President Suharto, in the context of promoting the growth of democracy, and in connection with the existence of a desire to abolish the provision for the appointment of one-third the members of MPR, another constitutional measure should be found to ensure that Article 37 of the Constitution is not easily used to amend the 1945 Constitution.

President Suharto took some 25 minutes to address DPR/MPR with members consisting of 916 people. The DPR/MPR meeting called "commissioning sessions" will last until Sunday.

SAKURAUCHI REJECTS POLISH REQUEST FOR MORE AID

OW030719 Tokyo KYODO in English 0629 GMT 3 Oct 82

[Text] New York, Oct 2, KYODO -- Polish Foreign Minister Stefan Olszowski has asked Japanese counterpart Yoshio Sakurauchi to improve Japan's economic assistance in the rebuilding of his country, but Sakurauchi turned him down because of the Warsaw government's policy of military rule in the East European nation. The two foreign ministers met at a New York hotel Saturday evening to exchange views on the bilateral and international affairs. The foreign ministers were visiting New York to attend the current United Nations General Assembly.

Olszowski was quoted by a Japanese Government official who attended the meeting as urging the second Polish-Japanese Joint Economic Committee meeting be held at the earliest possible date and direct political consultation between the two governments in order to improve friendly relations and economic cooperation between Tokyo and Warsaw. He was also quoted as telling Sakurauchi that although he highly evaluated the Japanese assistance to Poland made in the spirit of humanitarianism, he expected more assistance from Japan in rebuilding the country's economy.

During the meeting, Olszowski extended an official invitation to Sakurauchi to visit Poland at a convenient time, but the Japanese foreign minister refused to accept it. Sakurauchi insisted Japan could not accept the proposal at present and demanded three conditions should be met before additional Japanese assistance to the East bloc nation could be made, according to the Japanese officials. The three conditions which the West bloc nations are pressing Poland to meet are early lifting of martial law, early release of political prisoners and early holding of a direct dialogue with the independent labor organization "Solidarity" and Catholic Church authorities.

As to the proposed visit to Warsaw, Sakurauchi said he could not make an official visit to Poland, as Japan has joined with other Western countries in economic sanctions against Poland. But the Japanese foreign minister pledged to continue economic assistance based on the spirit of humanitarianism. He also expressed his wish that the Polish Government redouble its efforts to improve relations with West bloc countries at the earliest possible date.

JAPAN-USSR TALKS ON SAKHALIN OIL PROJECT SLATED

Sushkov, Soviet deputy minister of foreign trade, is coming to Tokyo Sunday for talks on Sakhalin oil and gas exploration and development plans for next year and later, it was revealed Saturday. Japan's Sakhalin Oil Development Cooperation Co. said that while here for about two weeks, Sushkov will confer with the company and the governmental Export-Import Bank of Japan.

DEFENSE CHIEF ITO DISCUSSES WASHINGTON TALKS

[Text] San Francisco, Oct 2, KYODO -- The U.S. Government and Congress have pressed Japan to take a much more positive stance on defense buildup, Japan's Defense Agency chief said here Saturday en route home from more than a week's visit to the United States. Soichiro Ito, director general of the Defense Agency, told KYODO news service that U.S. Government and congressional leaders questioned whether Japan could remain as lazy in its stand on defense problems as hitherto. The defense chief said he did not interpret this as a call for an immediate revision of Japan's national defense program outline -- basic long-range defense buildup plan -- drawn up in 1976, but as a call for Japan to "assume a new stance" on defense policy.

Ito said he would convey Washington's strong call for an increase in the fiscal 1983 defense budget to Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Finance Minister Michio Watanabe following his return to Tokyo.

With Japan and the U.S. agreeing to deploy F-16 fighters at the U.S. Air Force base in Misawa, Aomori Prefecture, northern Japan, Ito said, "the time has come when the two countries should study a new plan for joint operations."

An outline of the questions and answers exchanged between a KYODO reporter and Ito is given below:

Q: What about the American call for an increase in the defense budget?

A: I interpret the U.S. call as implying that the rate of increase in Japan's defense appropriations for the next fiscal year should be in excess of that for the current. Not only President Reagan but also the U.S. State Department share the Defense Department's view. (Thus, the entire U.S. Government is calling on Japan to assume) a pretty heavy financial burden (in defense buildup).

Q: The U.S. showed a severe posture in matters of cooperation in military technology. How about this?

A: President Reagan is showing about the same interest in this matter as in buildup in the defense budget. This shows how severe a stand Washington is taking.

Q: Wherein lies the problem?

A: The problem is what to do about Japan's military technological cooperation with the U.S. in the event the latter becomes a belligerent. The U.S. is calling on Japan to continue to accord the same treatment even in case it becomes a party involved in an armed conflict. It is the view of the Japanese Government that if the U.S. becomes involved in an armed conflict, then Japan would not extend military technological cooperation to it. This depends on the "political" judgment of the prime minister.

Q: What do you think is the aim of the U.S. deploying F-16 fighters at the Misawa air base?

A: I do not know. The U.S. claimed that Japan and the U.S. are joining forces to restore the military balance, broken by the Soviet military buildup in the Far East....

Q: Is the military balance broken so much?

A: The U.S. side claims so.

Q: How about the division of roles between the F-16 air wing and Japan's Air Self-Defense Force?

A: Basically, there will be no change (in the role of the Japanese air force). The time has come for the two countries to study a joint operation plan on the basis of the Japan-U.S. defense cooperation guidelines.

Q: The division of defense responsibilities in sealanes inside and outside 1,000 nautical miles from Japan has become clear, hasn't it?

A: Yes. It became clearer at every defense talk. The U.S. is calling for the buildup of antisubmarine and air defense capabilities (in sealanes). We will watch the future course of joint studies on the matter. We wish to start joint studies later in the year.

Q: How about your impressions about your whole defense talks in the U.S.?

A: Washington pins really strong expectations on Japan as an ally. They quizzed me how long Japan could remain as lazy in its stand on defense problems as hitherto. We must assume a new stance on defense, commensurate with our national strength and conditions.

However, it is impractical to discuss a possible revision of the 1976 national defense program outline right now. First of all, we should achieve the buildup target set in the outline by fiscal 1987. To attain that target, we must adopt such a stance as would secure a necessary defense budget for fiscal 1983, the first year for the new mid-term defense buildup plan (fiscal 1983-87).

SAKURAUCHI REITERATES JAPAN'S SUPPORT FOR CGDK

OW030441 Tokyo KYODO in English 0428 GMT 3 Oct 82

[Text] New York, Oct 2, KYODO -- Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi repeated here Saturday Japan's support of Democratic Kampuchea, an anti-Vietnam Kampuchean coalition government officially formed by three Kampuchean resistance groups in July. He revealed Japan's continued support when he met with three leaders of Democratic Kampuchea -- Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who is president of the anti-Hanoi government, Vice President Khieu Samphan and Premier Son Sann.

Prince Sihanouk expressed thanks for the Japanese Government's political support for his new government and humanitarian assistance to the Kampucheans.

The prince told Sakurauchi that the Vietnamese-backed Heng Samrin regime in Phonm Penh has no control in ruling the war-torn Kampuchea and that the Vietnamese forces are isolated and helpless in Kampuchea.

The prince said his government is trying to bring Vietnam to the conference table. If Hanoi should agree to join an international conference on Kampuchea, the relations could be normalized, Sihanouk stressed.

JAPANESE, ROK LAWMAKERS MEET ON TEXTBOOK ISSUE

OW301055 Tokyo KYODO in English 1001 GMT 30 Sep 82

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 30, KYODO -- Thirteen Japanese and South Korean lawmakers met in Tokyo Thursday to discuss "distortions" concerning Japan's past colonial rule of Korea in Japanese school textbooks.

A diplomatic row over the issue was officially settled earlier this month with a Japanese Government statement reiterating Japan's responsibility for sufferings the Koreans underwent during the 1910-45 occupation. But the South Korean Foreign Ministry later released a list of 13 "distortions" in the modern history textbooks, which Seoul wants to see corrected. One correction desired involves Korea's March 1, 1919 national independence movement. South Korea demands that Japan stop calling the movement "rioting" in the textbooks.

The five-man South Korean delegation to the one-day Tokyo meeting, led by Rep. Yi Tae-sun, repeated the correction request. But Ken Harada, a House of Representatives member from the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party, and seven other Japanese delegates said the Tokyo government cannot immediately meet the request because of technical procedures.

Thursday's meeting at a Tokyo hotel was a joint session of the Japan-(South) Korea and (South) Korea-Japan Parliamentarians League. The Japanese and South Koreans agreed to set up a joint study group on the ancient historical relationship between the two countries at the meeting.

AFP: DPRK ARMY PURGED, OFFICERS DEFECT TO PRC

[By Charles-Antoine de Merciat]

[Text] Beijing, Oct. 2 (AFP) -- The leadership of the nearly 800,000-strong North Korean Army was purged early this year, coinciding with rumours that several senior North Korean officers had defected to China, informed sources said today. The sources, who have been closely watching events in North Korea, said that some 10 generals had been removed for unknown reasons at a time when North Korean President Kim Il-song's bid to name his son and his successor designate, Kim Chong-il, as one of the state vice presidents was defeated by the Pyongyang communist regime.

Rumors have been circulating for some time that some senior North Korean officers had defected to China this year. Although the rumors could not be confirmed, they are believed to be true by certain Western diplomats who speculate that the defections may be a result of the purge.

During President Kim's recent visit to China, Chinese Communist Party General Secretary Hu Yaobang caused a sensation by disclosing that he had accompanied China's strongman Deng Xiaoping on a secret trip to North Korea in April. Western diplomatic circles here generally hold that the visit of the two top Chinese leaders to North Korea, a country which seeks to chart an equidistant path between China and the Soviet Union, could have been prompted by problems emerging between Beijing and Pyongyang. However, the warm welcome given to the North Korea president last month in China and even the fact that he had made the visit suggest that the unidentified problems had been dealt with, the diplomatic circles said.

Mr Hu did not say when Mr Deng and he had visited North Korea, a country with a population of 20 million ruled by an extremely strict and closed regime. But according to diplomatic sources, the two Chinese leaders could have gone to Pyongyang after the 70th birthday anniversary of President Kim on April 15, which was elaborately celebrated in keeping with the personality cult of President Kim, whom the Pyongyang propaganda described as "the greatest man ever known in history."

Meanwhile, early in April, the Supreme People's Assembly -- North Korea's parliament -- surprisingly did not elect the president's 41-year-old son as one of the country's three vice presidents, despite the fact that he is his father's successor designate. It was around the same time that some 10 generals were removed, said the sources who have been watching North Korean events closely, noting that a fraction of the army seems to be bitterly opposing the dynastic succession planned by the president. Continuing rumours of purges within the Pyongyang regime circulate from time to time just like in 1978, the year which saw massive purges in the army and the administration.

[Text] Pyongyang, October 2 (KCNA) -- Dailies here today dedicate articles to the 24th anniversary of the independence of Guinea and proclamation of her republic. A signed article of NODONG SINMUN says:

The Guinean people have covered a road of struggle since independence for building an independent, prosperous new country under the correct leadership of President Ahmed Sekou Toure. Many revolutionary changes have taken place in this period. The imperialists' foothold of colonial exploitation was destroyed and industry, agriculture, transport and foreign trade are developing.

Pursuing the non-aligned policy, the Guinean Government is struggling against imperialism, colonialism and racism and for the complete liberation of Africa. The successes made by the Guinean people in building a new society are conducive to the complete liberation of Africa and the accomplishment of the common cause of non-aligned countries. Our people hail the successes of the Guinean people.

Korea and Guinea established bonds of friendship long ago and have consolidated and developed them. The visit of President Ahmed Selou Toure to our country in April for celebrating the 70th birthday of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song following his Korean visit in 1979 and 1980 was a signal event in developing the friendly and cooperative relations between Korea and Guinea to a new, higher stage. The Korean people are proud of having such close brothers as Guinean people in Africa.

Our people will, in the future, too, advance hand in hand with the Guinean people on the same road of struggle for independence, sovereignty and socialism. The Korean people sincerely hope that the Guinean people will gather better fruits in their endeavours for building an independent and prosperous new country.

BK291414 Rangoon Domestic Service in Burmese 1330 GMT 29 Sep 82

[Text] At about 2130 on 28 September 1982, five insurgents, led by Maj (Taw Thi), alias Mahn Ngwe Aung, of the 20th regiment of the 7th Karen National Union [KNU] Brigade hijacked a vehicle at the Insein bus terminal and attacked the radio station on Prome Road and the People's Police Force station in Kamayut with M-72 launchers, M-79 launchers and AK-47 automatic rifles. The insurgents fled after the attack.

Soon after the incident, a joint operation was launched by the Rangoon Military Command Headquarters, the National Intelligence Bureau and the People's Police Force to conduct a thorough search of the insurgents' possible hideouts. Information provided by a worker led to the recovery of the vehicle hijacked by the insurgents. It was found near the Institute of Education's Nawade Hall at about 2200 on the same evening.

A thorough search by the joint operation around Nawade Hall resulted in a clash with two Karen insurgents. At 2230, Karen insurgents Sergeant (Richard) and Lance Corporal (Khin Maung), alias (Reggie), were captured with their weapons.

The two insurgents revealed during interrogation that Mahn Ngwe Aung and his party were hiding in the house of night watchman (Saw Tun Mutu) in the compound of the French assistant commercial attache, Patrick M. Manon, at No. 58-C Inya Road and at (?Bishop home), No. 44 Prome Road. These sites were thoroughly searched.

At 0500 on 29 September, (Khin Maung Lin), alias (Tu Kay), was arrested at (?Bishop home). He was unarmed. At the same time, a search carried out at the Inya Road compound of the French Embassy's assistant commercial attache led to a clash at close range with Karen insurgent Maj (Taw Thi), alias Mahn Ngwe Aung, and Sergeant (Myo Myint). The two were killed and weapons, ammunition and a time bomb were found.

During the operation, two Karen insurgents were killed and three were taken alive. COMMENTARY REAFFIRMS INDOCHINA PEACE PROPOSALS

[Station commentary: "For Peace, Stability and Cooperation"]

[Text] The sincere wish of the three Indochinese countries to contribute to building peace, stability and cooperation in Southeast Asia against the direct threat of the Beijing expansionist-hegemonists is a most appropriate gesture in serving the common interests of the ASEAN and Indochinese countries and peace in the region.

Desiring to coexist in peace with their neighbors, the three Indochinese countries have firmly concentrated their attention on seeking a settlement through negotiations by putting forward successive peace proposals with the aim of easing tension, creating an atmosphere of detente and promoting good relations among the countries in the region. In particular, the peace proposals full of good will of the sixth conference of foreign ministers of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos held in Ho Chi Minh City on 7 July 1982 were warmly received by world public opinion, including a segment of public opinion in the ASEAN countries. This marks the important significance of the exchange of views between the two groups of countries -- Indochina and ASEAN -- just as noted in the 15 September letter of Comrade Phoun Sipaseut, minister of foreign affairs of the LPDR, sent to the foreign ministers of the ASEAN countries on behalf of the foreign ministers of the three Indochinese countries. The letter even more clearly stressed the importance of the three countries' proposals raised previously in order to fulfill the sacred aspirations of the two groups of ASEAN and Indochinese countries which have similar interests and significance.

It is true that the expansionist-hegemonist policy of the Beijing ruling circles constitutes a major threat to the three Indochinese countries and to peace and stability in Southeast Asia. In this case, the two groups of countries must appropriately respect each other's interests. The three Indochinese countries clearly understand the interests of the ASEAN countries, which want to see all Vietnamese troops withdrawn from Kampuchea. However, the interests of the three Indochinese countries are to put an end to the Chinese threat against them.

The three Indochinese countries are always ready to respond to the wishes of the ASEAN countries regarding the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea on the basis of respect for the interests of the three Indochinese countries, that is, an end to China's threat.

The Thai side considers the presence of Vietnamese troops near the Kampuchean-Thai border as a threat to its security. However, Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos maintain that the use of Thai territory by China, the Pol Pot gang and other reactionary Khmers to oppose the revival of the Kampuchean people is a permanent threat to the security of Kampuchea and the other Indochinese countries. Therefore, while Kampuchea respects the security interests of Thailand, Thailand must also respect the security interests of Kampuchea. In this case, effective measures are required to block the use of one country to oppose another country.

Therefore, the new proposal of the three Indochinese countries on the establishment of a safety zone along the Kampuchean-Thai border is a most appropriate and necessary answer. In the safety zone in Kampuchean territory there would only be the armed forces of the PRK, while the Vietnamese forces which are fulfilling their internationalist duty in Kampuchea would not be stationed in this zone. In the safety zone in Thai territory there would only be the forces of the Kingdom of Thailand, while the Pol Pot remnants and other reactionary Khmer forces, as well as the refugee camps, would be completely moved away from this safety zone. If this can be accomplished, security along the border between Kampuchea and Thailand will certainly be ensured.

In connection with this proposal, Comrade Phoun Sipasuet stressed in his letter that the three Indochinese countries are always prepared to exchange views and reach agreement with the Thai side on details of the problem, such as the size of the safety zone, and that agreement on this question has nothing to do with de jure mutual recognition. The PRK will not allow the problem of mutual recognition to be an obstruction to exchanging views and agreeing on the safety zone.

Recently, with the good will to seek a settlement through negotiations, the three Indochinese countries put forward a proposal to convene an international conference on Southeast Asia with the participation of the nine countries in the region -- namely, the three Indochinese countries, the five ASEAN countries and Burma -- and six other countries situated outside the region -- namely, the Soviet Union, the United States, China, France, Britain and India.

In this connection, Comrade Phoun Sipaseut'e letter also added that the conference should discuss all regional problems raised by the two sides on the basis of complete equality. The agenda of the meeting may be agreed upon jointly or may remain unagreed. The agenda may also consist of both those issues jointly agreed upon and those not agreed upon. The conference may be held in any country in Southeast Asia or in any neutral country in Asia or Europe -- for example, in Rangoon, New Delhi, Paris, Stockholm or Vienna -- as agreed upon by the two groups of countries. All differences between the two groups of countries can be completely settled through negotiations or exchanges of views held on the basis of the principles of mutual respect for each other's legitimate interests and complete agreement without pressure or external interference.

We are firmly confident that in the face of this gentle gesture the ASEAN countries will certainly understand even better our good will proposals and will do their best to maintain and promote the present atmosphere of detente and dialogue by refraining from causing the situation to deteriorate.

SIHANOUK TO ASK U.S. FOR HUMANITARIAN AID

[Text] New York, Oct 3,KYODO -- Prince Norodom Sihanouk has said his anti-communist government will ask for humanitarian aid from the United States when he and his colleagues meet with U.S. officials shortly. He made this clear in an exclusive interview with KYODO news service at a New York hotel Saturday, also attended by Vice President Khieu Samphan and Premier Son Sann of Democratic Kampuchea. The prince, president of the anti-Hanoi government, said he is to meet with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz Wednesday and Vice President George Bush Friday. The prince stressed the Kampuchean coalition government will be entering a new phase in diplomatic relations with the U.S., as the forthcoming meetings will mark the beginning of "direct talk" between the two countries.

Since the formation of the coalition government in July, Democratic Kampuchea has been broadening its diplomatic activity, backed by the five member countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). But it is only China that has so far given military and financial assistance to the Kampuchean government. And the prince said China provided his 3,000-member corps with arms only once a few months ago.

The prince stressed the necessity to beef up military resistance until the Vietnamese agree to sit down at a conference table.

He also expressed thanks to the Japanese Government for the political support it gave to his new government and for the humanitarian assistance it gave to the Kampucheans.

On relations with advanced countries beside the U.S. and Japan, the Kampuchean government is trying especially to improve its ties with France, the prince said.

The paper hailed the meeting between the general secretary of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party CC and president of the Council of Ministers and the CPSU general secretary, who is also president of the Soviet Supreme Presidium, L. Brezhnev, in which the latter reassured the Lao leader that the USSR will firmly assist the fraternal Lao people in achieving the tasks as stipulated in the resolutions of the third general congress of the LPRP. "K. Phomvihan," the paper said, "seized this occasion to highly appraise the constructive policy of the USSR on the matter of arms reduction, and the non-deployment of nuclear arms." The paper added the two sides were unanimous in finding out a durable solution in the Middle East. Both sides condemned the aggression and cruelty committed by Israel backed by the USA, and Laos firmly supported the USSR propositions to reach a durable peace and solution in this region, the paper said, and the USSR highly appreciated and supported the principles of Laos and the propositions of the Indochinese foreign ministers' conference with a view to settling the situation in S.E. Asia.

SIANG PASASON, finally, on behalf of the Lao people, reaffirmed that the Lao people will do their best to strengthen the friendship, combatant solidarity and all-round co-operation between the two parties, states and peoples of Laos and the USSR.

[Text] Vientiane, October 1 (KPL) -- Sisomphon Lovansai, Political Bureau member of the LPRP CC, on September 30 received here the visiting Bulgarian delegation led by Tsvetan Nikolov, alternate member of the BCP CC and deputy head of its department for International and Foreign Policy.

Sisomphon Lovansai, who is also vice president of People's Supreme Assembly [PSA], on this occasion highly appreciated the visit to Laos of the Bulgarian delegation which will further contribute to the consolidation of the friendship, solidarity and the fraternal combatant alliance between the two parties, states and peoples. The Lao leader also thanked the Bulgarian people for their material and moral support to the Lao revolution as well as in the present socialist construction.

Touching on current problems in the national construction in Laos, Sisomphon Lovansai informed his guest that thanks to the special combatant solidarity and all-round cooperation between the three Indochinese states and the active support of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, the Lao revolution is continually developed and no enemy can undermine it, stressed the Lao leader.

SUPREME COMMAND SAYS SRV CHARGES 'GROUNDLESS'

BK040253 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 4 Oct 82

[Text] The Supreme Command Headquarters of the Thai Armed Forces said the Vietnamese charges against Thailand were merely part of Vietnam's groundless propaganda. Radio Hanoi on 29 September charged Thailand of violating Kampuchean airspace and territorial waters and firing into a Kampuchean province. The Supreme Command also said that Vietnam charged Thailand of firing F-10 missiles into Kampuchea. The fact is that the Thai Armed Forces have never possessed an F-10 missile before.

The Supreme Command stated that such charges are only Vietnam's pretext to maintain its forces in Kampuchea and to distract attention of the world public from Vietnam's violation of Thai sovereignty.

KHMER, SRV-LED FIGHTING NEAR BORDER REPORTED

[Text] Aranyaprathet -- Khmer Rouge guerrillas and Vietnamese-led Heng Samrin forces engaged in fierce mortar and gun battles near the Thai-Kampuchean border here on Friday night, informed guerrillas and Thai military sources said yesterday.

More than 20 82-mm mortar shells believed fired by the Heng Samrin forces slammed into rice fields in Ban Non Sung and Ban Nong Ian, about 17 kilometres south of the district. However, there were no casualties or serious damage to property. About 200 villagers from Ban Kok Sabang who were attending a temple fair marking the end of Buddhist Lent were forced to take shelter in bunkers during the mortar barrage, which began at about 1830.

A Khmer Rouge officer told the POST that fighting broke out after about 50 guerrillas from the 474th Division attacked an outpost of Vietnamese-led Samrin forces at kilometre marker one of Highway Five near the railway. He said that the outpost which houses concrete bunkers was built early last month. During the clash, he said, the guerrillas were given support by their comrades in Kae Don, opposite Ban Nong Ian, who fired 82-mm mortar shells. He said that no guerrillas were killed in the incident, but claimed that enemy troops sustained some casualties and their outpost was damaged. The officer said that early last week, about 700 Vietnamese troop reinforcements were sent to the Ban Nimit base together with six trucks mounted with "Stalin Organ" 120-mm rockets. He said he believed the rockets were recently sent from the Soviet Union.

Thai military sources and the guerrilla officer agreed separately that fighting inside Kampuchea would escalate as the rainy season is almost over now and that floods on the Kampuchean side are receding.

SRV DEPUTY MINISTER REAFFIRMS TROOP WITHDRAWAL

[Text] A senior Vietnamese official insisted yesterday that Hanoi had withdrawn some troops from Kampuchea and was waiting for the Thai Government to respond to the pullout. Interviewed during a stopover in Bangkok while en route to Geneva, Deputy Foreign Minister Ha Van Lau asserted that the partial pullout was not an ordinary rotation of troops and claimed that there was evidence to substantiate the withdrawal.

"The world knows very well that we have done what we said," Lau told the POST during the interview at Don Muang Airport. He then cited as evidence the recent screening on Japanese television of what purported to be the troop withdrawal from Kampuchea. "We have done our part. Now it's up to Thailand to respond to our move," Lau said, but declined to elaborate on the kind of reaction he expected from Bangkok.

Lau reiterated Vietnam's persistent call for the removal of the "Chinese threat" as a key factor for total withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. He reemphasised that the presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea was in line with the February 1979 treaty of friendship between Hanoi and Phnom Penh.

Lau Declined comment on Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila's rejection of the Ho Chi Minh City communique of the three Indochinese countries which offers what is claimed to be a viable basis for a just and lasting settlement of the conflict in Kampuchea. Lau said that he was yet to get a report on the matter. He said that Vietnam could not take part in any UN-sponsored international conference to seek a solution to the Kampuchean problem "as long as the Pol Pot regime retains its seat in the UN." Such a conference "could never achieve any positive or substantive outcome," he said.

FURTHER ON SITTHI-NGUYEN CO THACH MEETING

Foreign Minister Thach was profuse at his verbal assurances of Vietnam's peaceful protestation and its willingness to cooperate in the endeavour to resolve the Kampuchean problem. Foreign Minister Sitthi expressed welcome for any Vietnamese constructive contribution to the solution. Pledging Thailand's own readiness to consider and discuss any concrete proposal within the framework of the relevant United Nations resolutions and the International Conference on Kampuchea declarations, the Thai foreign minister voiced optimism that the problem could be settled eventually provided Vietnam would be sincere about the peaceful settlement. However, he also expressed unhappiness and disappointment at the recent attempt by the Laotian foreign minister to serve Vietnam's cause by peddling the latter's ideas and proposal on the Kampuchean problem which has actually contributed little to the improvement of the prospect for a settlement. Foreign Minister Sitthi, as a gesture of good will and his sincerity to participate in the common search for peace and stability in Southeast Asia, reaffirmed his acceptance in principle of Thach's invitation to visit Hanoi at a future date to be fixed at the convenience of both sides.

OFFICIALS CRITICIZE FRENCH BARTER DEAL WITH SRV

BK011230 Hong Kong AFP in English 1150 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Bangkok, Oct. 1 (AFP) -- Thai senior officials today criticised a recently concluded barter arrangement between the French Interagra group and Vietnam as a move that "would not contribute to peace and stability" in Southeast Asia.

Officials noted that Thailand and the United Nations had "called and continues to call upon" the Vietnamese Government to withdraw its 150,000-200,000 troops from Cambodia. "The international community should demonstrate concretely their dissatisfaction to Vietnam that this call has not been heeded," they said. "Therefore, the news of this barter arrangement, if true, would not contribute to returning peace and stability to the Southeast Asian region," they added.

The 200 million U.S. dollar deal, the largest of its kind for Hanoi, involves exchanges of agricultural products and equipment. According to Hong Kong sources, Interagra is expected to obtain some 100,000 tons of Vietnam-bound rice from Thailand.

FOREIGN MINISTRY SUPPORTS SIHANOUK ON SKV PACT

[Text] Bangkok, Oct 1 (AFP) -- The Thai Foreign Ministry today supported Prince Norodom Sihanouk's demand for the total withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Cambodia, but stopped short of endorsing his proposed peace pact with Vietnam. Spokesman Saowanit Khongsiri said Thailand supported the prince's proposal for the signing of a treaty of peace and non-aggression between his "Democratic Kampuchea" coalition and Vietnam. The prince spelled out the proposal in an address yesterday to the UN General Assembly in his capacity as president of a coalition that links the Khmer Rouge with his and ex-Premier Son Sann's non-communist groups. Under the proposal, the treaty would be signed after the [passage indistinct]. This, he maintained, would be "possible" only if Vietnam withdrew its forces from that country.

SPOKESMAN CLARIFIES POLICY ON PLO RECOGNITION

[Text] The deputy director general of the Foreign Ministry's Information Department, Saowanit Khongsiri, has stated that reports on the Thai Government's recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization being a change of Thailand's policy might create misunderstanding. He said Thailand has not changed its policy on the Palestine Liberation Organization. Thai Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila's address at the United Nations reiterated Thailand's original stand on its support for the resolutions on the Palestinian issue which require Israel to give back to the Arab countries the land it seized from them, to recognize the rights of the Palestinian people and their right to set up an independent Palestinian state and to have legitimate representation. Meanwhile, Israel will remain an independent state as recognized.

The deputy director general of the Information Department also reported on the Soviet Government's invitation to Deputy Foreign Minister Arun Phanuphong to visit the Soviet Union. No date has been fixed for the visit because Thailand is still awaiting a reply from the Soviet Union as to whether it would agree to Thailand's request that the visit take place during the second half of October.

POST: CZECHOSLOVAK PLANE VIOLATES AIRSPACE

[Text] Royal Thai Air Force jet fighters intercepted a Czechoslovakian aeroplane carrying 170 people when it violated Thai air space near the Lao border on Friday, an air force spokesman announced yesterday. The plane, a Soviet-made Ilyushin-62, was escorted to the air force base at Bangkok's Don Muang Airport and searched before being allowed to resume its flight.

The spokesman said the Czechoslovakian commercial flight crossed into Thai airspace in Nong Khai Province, opposite Vientiane. Two F-5E planes were scrambled from the air base at Korat to intercept it. The spokesman said the plane was on its way to Bombay from Vietnam. All the 170 passengers aboard were believed to be Vietnamese. The spokesman said the pilot complied with instructions to land at Bangkok and admitted he had taken the wrong route. The air force accepted the pilot's explanation and after searching the plane, allowed it to continue to Bombay.

NHAN DAN Greets Visit

BK040609 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 3 Oct 82

[NHAN DAN 4 October editorial: "Close Solidarity and All-Round Cooperation With the Soviet Union Is a Principle, a Strategy and Revolutionary Sentiment"]

[Text] At the invitation of the CPSU Central Committee and the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, a delegation of our party and state led by Comrade Truong Chinh, member of the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of State, arrives in Moscow today to begin an official friendship visit to the Soviet Union.

The Vietnamese party and state delegation is visiting the Soviet Union at a time when the Soviet people are zealously emulating one another in labor to greet the 65th anniversary of the Great October Revolution and the 60th founding anniversary of the glorious USSR, to carry out the important tasks laid down by the 26th CPSU Congress, and to fulfill the 1982 plan and the 1981-85 11th 5-year plan.

Through the delegation, our entire people express their sentiments of solidarity, their trust, their love and their gratitude to the great Soviet people, and their profound and warm revolutionary regards to the homeland of Lenin.

With our tradtional friendship, we extend warm greetings to the fraternal Soviet people who, under the leadership of the glorious CPSU and true to the revolutionary thoughts of Marxism-Leninism, have over the past 65 years set a splendid example in revolutionary heroism, have made extraordinary efforts in creative labor, and have undergone enormous trials and sacrifices to firmly defend the Soviet state, to successfully build developed socialism, to turn the Soviet Union into the leading advanced industrial country of the world, and to vigorously advance to the stage of building the material and technical bases for communism.

As the first worker-peasant state founded after the October Revolution had ushered in the era of victorious socialism, the Soviet Union has always been in the van of the internatinal struggle against capitalism and reactionary forces. As the conductor of the greatest fights in history, it has made important contributions to changing the face of the world and tipping the balance of power in favor of the forces of peace, national independence, democracy and socialism. Born under the slogan of peace for nations and freedom for the oppressed, the Soviet state has now become the most reliable bastion and defender of peace and revolution. The peace program for the 1980's laid down by the 26th CPSU Congress and the peace initiatives of Comrade Brezhnev, the outstanding Soviet party and state leader, have been the greatest contributions to the peaceful life of the peoples of all nations. Following the road charted by the October Revolution, the Vietnamese Communist Party and people have regained the most preciousof all things, namely, independence, freedom and national reunification, and have entered the era of socialism.

The Vietnamese have been extremely elated at the new qualitative development of the militant solidarity and the relations of cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union since the signing of the treaty of friendship and coopertaion between the two countries in 1978.

The September 1961 summit meeting was a new symbol of the solidarity and unanimity between the two parties and the two countries concerning the problem of Vietnamese-Soviet relations as well as the basic issues of our time. On this occasion, Comrade General Secretary Le Duan clearly pointed out: In past years, especially since the signing of the Vietnam-USSR treaty of friendship and cooperation, the fraternal solidarity between our two parties and countries has become even more solid, and Vietnamese-Soviet relations in all fields have entered a stage of brilliant development.

As Vietnam's most powerful and reliable friend and ally, the Soviet Union has resolutely sided with our people and has promptly and generously responded to our needs in the cause of building and defending the socialist Vietnamese fatherland. In the past, close solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union were our deep sentiments. Today, in the minds of our entire people, they have become a matter of principle and a strategic issue. For all Vietnamese generations, they constitute a strong moving force which will help advance our socialist cause to total victory.

The Fifth VCP Congress affirmed that solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union always remains the cornerstone of the foreign policy of our party and state. The current official friendship visit of our party and state delegation is aimed at realizing the spirit and the will of the congress and at continuing to develop the Vietnamese-Soviet militant solidarity and all-round cooperation even more vigorously in the interests of the two peoples and for the sake of the victory of the world peoples' revolutionary cause.

Each step forward in the development of Vietnamese-Soviet militant solidarity and all-round cooperation is a positive contribution to consolidating and reinforcing the socialist system and strengthening the struggle for peace throughout the world. It is also a guarantee of the success of our people's two strategic tasks, namely, defending the socialist fatherland and building socialism. Simultaneously, it helps strongly consolidate national independence and the position of socialism in the Indochina Peninsula as well as peace, stability and security in this region.

NHAN DAN HITS SIHANOUK UN SPEECH, PRC ASIA ROLE

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, October 2 -- By addressing the UN General Assembly in the name of the "Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea," Sihanouk has rushed headlong in a new adventure to cover up the political corpse of the genocidal regime, says NHAN DAN in a commentary today.

The paper notes: "Sihanouk thought that by just appearing as 'president of the coalition government', he could whitewash the heinous crimes committed by the Pol Pot clique who had killed three million Khmers including his five children and 14 grandchildren, as he had himself denounced quite often. Shutting his eyes to the vigorous rebirth of the country under the leadership of the Government of the People's Republic of Kampuchea, he is exerting all efforts to advertise for the defunct regime of Pol Pot, while continuing to heap slanders on Vietnam, and distorting the friendship and solidarity between the two countries, seeing a close brother of his people as an aggressor. One may ask: What would have been his own fate and how many more Kampucheans would have been murdered should (?the) genocidal gang and their master continue to rule in Phnom Penh?"

NHAN DAN notes that over the three years and more since liberation, the Kampuchean people as master of their own destiny have been concentrating on rebuilding their country in independence and peace, and have always wished to establish good neighbourly relations with Thailand and other countries in Southeast Asia.

But the Chinese expansionists have stubbornly countered these efforts, using military measures by the hands of the Pol Pot gang in an attempt to curb the rebirth of the Kampuchean people and overthrow the People's Republic of Kampuchea Government, the sole legal and authentic representative of the Kampuchean people headed by President Heng Samrin. Beijing, which has used the Pol Pot clique to massacre the Kampuchean people and to oppose Vietnam and Laos in its expansionist move to Southeast Asia, is today carrying on this scheme by new tricks. Now as in the past, the permanent threat to Sihanouk's homeland remains the hegemonist policy of the reactionary circles in the Beijing leadership. By virtue of the Vietnamese-Kampuchean treaty of peace, friendship and cooperation, Vietnamese forces have entered Kampuchea at the request of the Government of the People's Republic of Kampuchea with a view to coping with that threat.

The Socialist Republic of Vietnam has shown its good will by withdrawing part of its forces from Kampuchea, and joining the People's Republic of Kampuchea and the Lao People's Democratic Republic in proposing an international conference on Southeast Asia.

"Sihanouk," the paper says, "has made black white and aligned himself with the Pol Pot gang to serve as a tool for Beijing, thus destroying the little influence he still has among certain Kampuchean circles due to his previous opposition to the genocidal gang. He is rushing headlong on the path of betrayal to the interests of his own people".

"As pointed out by the P.R.K. Government, 'the Kampuchea problem' does not exist except that it is a scheme of the U.S. imperialists, the Chinese reactionaries and the regional reactionaries to meddle in the affairs of the Kampuchean people. The presence of the Pol Pot genocidal clique under whatever signboard is immoral and illegal. It runs counter to the Charter of the United Nations, cuts across the legitimate aspiration and interests of the Kampuchean people, and constitutes an insult to the memory of more than three million massacred Kampucheans and a challenge to the conscience of the whole progressive mankind. All proposals and resolutions regarding Kampuchea made without the participation of the representative of the People's Republic of Kampuchea are null and void, and represent an inadmissible brazen interference in the internal affairs of the Kampuchean people," the paper concludes.

ARMY PAPER COMMENTS ON BEIJING 'SLANDER' CAMPAIGN

[QUAN DOI NHAN DAN 1 October commentary by Huynh Mai: "Behind the Noisy Slanderous Campaign"]

[Text] Over the past few days, the psychological warfare mouthpieces of Beijing, Washington and their cohorts have stirred up a slanderous campaign against Vietnam, distorting the situation in Kampuchea.

They have fabricated all sorts of stories, such as Vietnam is bringing more troops and weapons into Kampuchea; Vietnamese troops are advancing to the Kampuchean-Thai border; Vietnam has not withdrawn its troops at all from Kampuchea; many big battles have taken place in Kampuchea and they [Khmer Rouge] have suffered losses because of Vietnam's use of toxic chemicals, and so forth.

Obviously, such tedious slander and distortion of the truth can hardly fool anyone. When reporting this news, the Western press circles in Bangkok had to admit that there was no evidence to support the news reports by Beijing and Thailand and that an independent source of information is not available to confirm these news reports.

These users of Goebbels-type propaganda tricks hope that by repeating the same lie, people would mistake it for the truth. What is their purpose in such a propaganda campaign? This is a trick to cover up their crimes which are straining the situation along the Thai-Kampuchean border. Several times SPK of the PRK has denounced before public opinion the armed provocations staged by the Thai authorities, with the encouragement of Beijing and Washington, which violate Kampuchea's sovereignty and territorial integrity.

They have attempted to counter public opinion that is sympathizing with and vigorously supporting the three Indochinese countries' good will initiatives to bring about peace and stability in Southeast Asia. In particular, Vietnam's move to make the first step by withdrawing some of its units from Kampuchea is being warmly welcomed by the peace- and justice-loving people throughout the world.

The louder the three Indochinese countries' peace proposal and Vietnam's good will attitude resound, the more fully exposed will be the deceitful nature of Beijing and its cohorts, which have long distorted the situation in Kampuchea and Vietnam's foreign policy of peace and friendship. They have tried to fabricate a story about instability in Kampuchea in order to mislead the world public into believing that war is still going on in Kampuchea and the Pol Pot remnants and other Khmer bandits still control some areas in Kampuchea. They have attempted to beautify the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea [CGDK], which was established by them, by making people believe that the bandits also control some population and some land, while in fact these bandits are stationed in Bangkok and in hideouts on the Thai side of Thai-Kampuchean border.

This psychological warfare campaign is aimed mainly at misleading broad segments of world public which are resolutely demanding that the Pol Pot clique or disguised Pol Pot clique be expelled from the United Nations and that this international organization should not harbor the Kampuchean people's executioners and betrayers, whom mankind has despised and insulted.

It was not by accident that along with this absurd slander campaign Beijing has clamorously implored that Kampuchea's UN seat not be left vacant and that Washington is harping on its continued support for Democratic Kampuchea in the United Nations. Nor was it without cause that those of the same feather as Beijing and Washington had uttered a series of allegations, striving to praise the monstrous CGDK and claiming to support it in the United Nations against Vietnam, and opposing the rebirth of the Kampuchean people.

However, this noisy slander campaign only reflects their embarrassment and inability to counter the stand of Vietnam and Kampuchea, which is shining with a just cause and good will. It also attests to their fear that the Pol Pot clique or disguised Pol Pot clique is becoming increasingly isolated in the world. It is clear that they are panicked by the increasingly stable situation in Kampuchea.

The Kampuchean revolution is advancing steadily and irreversibly. The PRK's international prestige and position is being enhanced with every passing day. The Kampuchean people's just cause is winning ever more vigorous support from the peace- and justice-loving people in the world.

FIRST GROUP OF AMERASIAN CHILDREN LEAVES FOR U.S.

The Vietnamese side turned over these children and their relatives to the representatives of seven American charity organisations who had come to receive them. The representatives of these U.S. organisations have expressed thanks for this gesture of good will of Vietnam.

NHAN DAN REBUTS U.S. CHARGE OF SLAVE LABOR IN USSR

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, Oct. 2 -- NHAN DAN today condemns the Reagan administration for starting a slander campaign against Vietnamese-Soviet cooperation. The paper recalls an allegation by U.S. Defence Secretary Caspar Weinberger that "the Soviet Union may be using slave labor -- including Vietnamese -- to build its natural gas pipeline from Siberia to (?Western) Europe" [and] a statement by the U.S. State Department on Sept. 22 that "several thousand Vietnamese may have been coerced into working in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe." "The United States seeks to defame socialism, thereby discrediting the Soviet Union, Vietnam and the socialist community as a whole," NHAN DAN says. It continues: "These are odious allegations... The cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union is one of friendship. It is equal cooperation based on noble internationalism. Vietnamese working in the Soviet Union receive good treatment and heartfelt assistance from the Communist Party and the Government of the Soviet Union. No amount of slander by imperialism and reaction can alter this fact. "The United States," NHAN DAN says, "wants to use this campaign to press its West European allies into stopping supply of pipeline equipment to the Soviet Union." "But in doing so, the Reagan administration is only revealing its failure to check the extension of East-West economic relations and the process of international detente," NHAN DAN comments.

FRENCH BUSINESSMAN SIGNS BARTER ACCORD WITH SRV

[Text] Hanoi, Oct. 3 (AFP) -- French communist-leaning businessman Jean Baptiste Doumeng has signed a firm contract with Vietnam for the sale of a 20 million-franc rice husking-drying-stocking plant, reliable sources said here today. A barter agreement totaling 200 million U.S. dollars was also signed during the "Red millionaire's" five-day visit to Vietnam last week, the same sources said. The rice plant would be installed in South Vietnam, and sources said there was a need for 50 similar plants for the next five years. The barter agreement also called for the delivery in the next five years by Interagra, the group chaired by Mr Doumeng, of 200 million tonnes of fertilizer and 500,000 tonnes of wheat or flour. In exchange, over the next five years, the French group would plan to purchase 2.5 million tonnes of charcoal and 80,000 tonnes of rice in 1983.

FOREIGN MINISTER MOKHTAR ADDRESSES UN SESSION

BK040835 Jakarta OANA in English 0736 GMT 4 Oct 82

[Text] New York, Oct 3 (ANTARA/OANA) -- Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja has stated the situation in Kampuchea has not changed substantially and remains a matter of serious concern, and indeed no meaningful progress has been achieved in seeking a political solution to the problem.

Addressing the United Nations General Assembly Thursday, Mokhtar stated that foreign troops were still in Kampuchea, despite repeated calls by the international community for their total withdrawal. The U.N.-supervised election to enable the people of Kampuchea to determine their own future [had] not taken place. The efforts by the U.N. and the International Conference on Kampuchea to seek a political solution had yet to yield meaningful results. "Despite the lack of progress, however, the national forces of Kampuchea under the leadership of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, which is a clear expression of the will and determination of the Kampuchean people to regain their sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity, it is important to note that the coalition government has pledged to work for the International Conference on Kampuchea." [sentence as received]

Mokhtar stated that it remained the sincere conviction of the Indonesian Government that it would be in the interest of all of the parties to seek a peaceful and negotiated political solution to the Kampuchea problem and that the U.N. and the International Conference on Kampuchea provided the best forum to stimulate the achievement of such a political solution. "The ASEAN countries are committed to seek a just political solution to the conflict [so] that suspicion and mistrust would be removed from the area, thus paving the way for the resumption of a meaningful dialogue and cooperative relations among the states in the region. We could then look forward with greater confidence to the establishment of a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality in Southeast Asia, thereby fulfilling the hopes and aspirations of all peoples in the region for stability, progress and prosperity," he said.

Referring to the Indian Ocean, Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja pointed to the growing apprehension that the region is rapidly becoming the focus of a new cold war rivalry between the superpowers. Indonesia is convinced that the convening of the international conference on the Indian Ocean is an essential step towards the establishment of zonal peace. He remarked it was a truism that the convening of one conference might not suffice to resolve all of the problems pertaining to the Indian Ocean. However, he added, the conference should be a first step to improve the political and security climate in the region.

Speaking about Afghanistan, he said that political solution to the problem of Afghanistan had become urgent. He said the crisis in Afghanistan has also affected the process of detente. "Indeed," he said, "it has exacerbated tensions and anxiety throughout the world and has hindered the resolution of a number of issues of worldwide concern."

In line with the United Nations efforts, the Non-Aligned Movement and the Organization of the Islamic Conference have reiterated the urgent need to seek a comprehensive political solution to the problem on the basis of the withdrawal of foreign troops and respect for the independence, sovereignty, territorial integrity and non-aligned status of Afghanistan.

He pointed out that the UN secretary general had also taken constructive steps in seeking a solution to this problem.

"We believe that any such solution should ensure that the Afghan people will be able to determine their own future free from foreign intervention and interference," Mokhtar said.

Touching on Namibia, the Indonesia foreign minister said Indonesia will firmly oppose any effort by South Africa to impose any fraudulent electoral, constitutional or political (?solution to the) issue that would be in contravention of UN Resolution 435 and which are designed to perpetuate South Africa's domination of the territory. He recalled that at the Arusha meeting the Indonesian delegation endorsed the call for "a Geneva-type conference at which all outstanding issues should be discussed and resolved together in a comprehensive manner". He said the early scheduling of such a conference might help intensify current efforts to overcome South Africa's intransigence. Despite the many obstacles that continued to block the way to securing Namibia's independence, the negotiating process had shown some signs of progress as noted in the secretary general's report. "Every effort should be made, however, to compel South Africa to negotiate in good faith and within the guidelines established by Resolution 435," the Indonesian foreign minister declared.

In another part of his speech, Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said Indonesia appeals to the small number of countries which have not adopted the Law of the Sea convention to reconsider their position so that the convention can become truly universal in nature and application. Mokhtar recalled that on April 30, 1982, the third U.N. Conference of the Law of the Sea adopted a comprehensive Law of the Sea convention, "which is a monumental achievement in multilateral negotiations under the UN auspices". The fact that the convention was adopted by 130 countries and was opposed only by four indicates that it was acceptable to the overwhelming majority of the states in the world.

Regarding the North-South dialogue, Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja called on world nations to give more serious attention to the dialogue which he said was running only at slow pace. He said given the slow pace of the North-South negotiations, the measured progress of collective self-reliance among developing countries is more indispensable now than ever. He said: "Indonesia is committed to this process, not only because it is transforming the patterns of development, but because it constitutes an essential ingredient for the rapid advancement of the developing countries".

He reiterated that Indonesia endorses the results of the review and follow-up meeting of ECDC [Economic Conference of Developing Countries] recently held in Manila. Its recommendation to start the negotiations on a global system of trade preference (GSTP) among developing countries and the development of food security reserves deserve the particular attention of all nations. "In our opinion, the implementation of the GSTP through a gradual approach will ultimately help the efforts for trade expansion among developing countries," he said. Cooperation on food security reserves can best be implemented through sub-regional and regional arrangements, which could then be extended on a worldwide scale, he added. "We in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) have initiated such an arrangement and are in the process of trying to further develop the ASEAN food security reserve cooperation," he reported.

Pointing to the international economic order, Mokhtar stressed that the international economy has plunged to one of its lowest depths in decades. He said the seemingly hopeful signs generated at the Cancun and Versailles summits in seeking a breakthrough in the stalemated global negotiations had proved to be illusory. "We are pleased", he added, "to note that there has been a gradual increase of understanding by some developed countries on the inevitability of interdependence. It is our hope that these countries would be willing to undertake adequate adjustments for achieving this concept (of interdependence)."

The restructuring of international trade is a vital vehicle for achieving self-sustained development. And above anything else, access to markets is crucial. Regretfully, the escalation of protectionist measures practiced by some developed countries has seriously eroded the efforts of the developing countries to expand their exports. The sharp deterioration of their terms of trade continues to aggravate their already serious economic plight.

In this context, the forthcoming GATT ministerial meeting provides an excellent opportunity and historical turning point for the reassertion of fair international trade practices. Such action is imperative for the expansion of trade of the developing countries.

With reference to global problems, Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja declared that it was only by recognizing the interests of the developing countries and their vast potential to contribute to a more peaceful and prosperous world of genuine independence that one could begin to address the global problems lying head.

He also said that as long as the great powers sought to enhance their security in disregard to the interests of the smaller powers so too would the question of universal collective security envisaged in the UN Charter continue to be elusive.

One of the cardinal features of the new international system must, according to Mokhtar, be greater equality and a greater voice in the decisionmaking on vital issues for all members of the international community.

Pointing to the role of the United Nations, he said Indonesia remains convinced that despite its present inadequacies the United Nations still represents the best instrument to transform hopes for a more peaceful, just and prosperous world order into reality.

"Therefore, if our organization is to fulfill the role as the focal point for the global management of the critical problems of our time, it is imperative that a new sense of purpose be installed in its mechanism and procedures so as to prevent it from degenerating into a sterile debating forum.

"My delegation further believes that in this effort the Non-Aligned Movement to which Indonesia belongs could and should give its important contribution, both at the conceptual level and in initiating concrete proposals, as it has consistently done in the past on the global issues of peace, security and international economic cooperation," he said.

Pointing to disarmament, he expressed the hope that the bilateral talks between the United States and the Soviet Union on disarmament would be pursued with a sense of urgency so that it would lead to meaningful limitations and significant reductions in nuclear weapons. He said the nuclear powers should, moveover, recognize that it was no less important to pursue multilateral negotiations by enabling the Committee on Disarmament to discharge the responsibilities and renew efforts to negotiate on the priority issues.

Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said the second special session on disarmament, which was convened with great expectations to follow up on the decisions of the 1978 final document, had become a casualty of the present climate of destruction and tension, and degenerated into a series of platitudes, devoid of substantive commitments.

"Thus, the inability of the session to adopt a comprehensive program of disarmament, regarded by many states, including my own, as crucial to our efforts for an integrated approach, was a great disappointment."

FURTHER REPORTS ON ENDING OF MARCOS U.S. VISIT

Remarks Upon Return

HK040508 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 1 Oct 82 pp 1, 11, 13

[By Brenda P. Tuazon]

[Excerpts] President Marcos, reporting to the people on his arrival yesterday from a 15-day visit to America, said the visit increased U.S. awareness of the Philippines' strategic importance and its contributions to world stability.

The president, whose plane touched down at the Manila International Airport at noon, told welcomers at the airport of the achievements of his visit, including reaffirmation of U.S. and Philippine commitments under the mutual defense treaty and an agreement to hold regular strategic consultations. This will facilitate scheduling of the renegotiation of the military bases agreement next April in Manila, President Marcos said. The president cited the conclusion of economic, trade, scientific, educational, and cultural agreements important to the further development of the country.

He said the visit corrected certain misinformation and misconceptions about the country and its leadership in U.S. media. The mission, he said, also strengthened bonds of friendship with the American people, aside from enhancing ties on the government level.

He said that from the moment President Reagan opened the doors of the White House to him and his party, the warmth of his welcome words "immediately set the seal of amity and meaningful friendship and cooperation" on his visit. He said he will always cherish President Reagan's words which proclaimed, in no uncertain terms, the high value which America attaches to its relations with the Phillipines.

Because of some distorted reporting by the Western media in the Philippines, the president said he gave importance to meetings with leaders of the various media organizations in the United States. "I meant by this to test what I have often feared, that so much of this unfavorable publicity is rooted in the lack of adequate information about us, on propaganda tactics mounted against our country by Filipino opposition groups in the United States and on the evident failure of some of the American media to really understand problems and conditions in the Third World," he declared. The exchanges have been very enlightening, the president said. While the opening of the dialogue could not change the situation overnight, he added, he was optimistic that the foreign media may be persuaded to be more open-minded and objective on what is happening here in the future.

The president said he will give a more detailed report on the "new understanding" between the Filipino and American peoples when he addresses the Batasang Pambansa later.

On the issue of security, the president said that two governments agreed on the importance of the Philippines' role in the maintenance of peace and stability in the Asia-Pacific region. The president said the two governments reaffirmed their respective commitments under their mutual defense treaty and agreed on the holding of regular stratetic consultations on the ministerial level, to start in February between Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Further Comments on U.S. Media

[Excerpts] Manila, Sep 30 (AFP) -- President Ferdinand Marcos said today that it was "unbelievable, shocking but true" that American media did not even know the Philippines had elections, a Constitution, and a Supreme Court.

In his return address at the Manila International Airport after a two-week visit to the United States, the president rapped U.S. media's "unfavorable slant" in reporting on the Philippines, which he blamed on "lack of adequate information."

Mr Marcos explains that this was why he spent much of his two-week visit meeting with U.S. media representatives, who failed "to understand conditions in Third World countries." "They do not even know we have elections, they do not even know we have a constitution, they do not know martial law has been lifted, they do not know we have a Supreme Court," the president said. "In the United States, we had to explain and patiently show that ours is a democratic country," the president said. The president added that American media did not know the Philippines had doubled its gross national product (GNP), succeeded in its agrarian reform program and substantially increased the income of farmers.

KYODO on Manila Demonstration

[Excerpts] Manila, Oct 1, KYODO -- Some 5,000 anti-U.S. demonstrators gathered in downtown Manila Friday to denounce the government of President Ferdinand Marcos and criticize his recent U.S. state visit. Chanting "Marcos, Hitler and dictator," students, workers, priests and nuns burned effigies of Marcos and U.S. President Ronald Reagan in front of the central post office building in a busy section of the city.

"Dismantle the U.S.-Marcos dictatorship," read one large streamer hoisted by the demonstrators. "Stop political repression," said another. Some 1,000 anti-riot policemen with four fire trucks surrounded the noisy demonstrators, who slowed down rush-hour traffic but dispersed peacefully after four hours of radical speeches, songs and plays.

[Editorial: "Helping a Friend"]

[Text] One incontrovertible fact resulted from the president's trip to the United States. The trip made the U.S. Government and important segments of the American public more aware of the Philippines and the importance of its friendship with the United States. In turn, this awareness led the United States to ask more questions about the Philippines.

The agreements signed in Washington and the president's appearance before the Philippine-American Chamber of Commerce in New York reflect the principal Philippine problem and imply U.S. willingness to cooperate in solving that problem, which is how to ease the difficulties in the short run and help rush the development process in the long haul. There is no question the Philippines needs the assistance, and there is no question either that the United States is willing to help in the areas indicated by the Philippine Government; the Philippines is an important ally. But the U.S. Government, confronted as it is with many problem areas, must be made sufficiently aware and it has to be backed by public opinion. What makes assistance urgent is the effect on the Philippine economy of the long recession in the West. The onset of the recession caught the Philippines structurally unprepared because of its heavy reliance on its traditional exports. Although its so-called non-traditional exports have gone up remarkably well despite the recession, those exports make up a small percentage of total exports, unlike the situation in the newly industrializing countries in this part of the world. At the same time, exports have not kept apace with imports, one reason being heavy reliance on imported oil.

But the Philippines is not a basket case, and relatively little is asked to enable it to surmount the current difficulties. This fact should be considered along with the other factors to prove the wisdom of cooperation.

["Free Ward" column by Alfredo Gonzaleve II: "State Visit, Too Long and Becoming Irrelevent"]

[Text] When President Marcos went to the United States last September 14, without being told, we knew it was a friendly call to the American leadership and a chance to exculpate himself from the unfavorable stance of the American media and his overstaying in office and the Philippines' authoritian government foreigners claim is unnecessary.

One of the accusations Mr. Marcos tried to justify by defending his government in public forums covered live in TV circuits is on the issue of human rights on the denial of due processes -- for instance, the sweeping arrests of citizens on the strength of presidential orders bypassing the duties and responsibilities inherent upon our lawful courts which Malacanang chooses to disregard. Examples were the mass arrests of labor leaders suspected in planning to create disorder and terror which should have been given the benefits of doubts in conformity with due processes. For all its credibility, the resources of the Amnesty International, an organization formed to protect human rights all over the world, was questioned by Mr. Marcos. Since the leadership of President Marcos was being accused, his innocence should be extended priorities until proven beyond reasonable doubts. Likewise, we expect the Marcos government to treat local issues on the same range and level. But we can cite an example where and when a presidential directive, Letter of Instruction [LOI] No. 14-A, where and when mass and/or summary dismissals of government workers took effect without protecting constitutional rights of citizens to be accused or charged and investigated. This issue is the fore on the substance on human rights provided for in a democratic Constitution as that in the Philippines. By denying thousands of government employes the venue where they earn their daily bread for their families and loved ones and declaring these innocent victims (because they were not given their day in court) perpetually unfit and disqualified from gainful employment is a grave injustice that will forever besmirch the credibility of the Marcos leadership unless otherwise rectified and/or reconsidered in the very near future. We are just telling the truth because this is of public knowledge and it involves without doubts human rights processes.

When we preach democratic principles as to its applications and remedies, we should by all means treat it to the letter on the whole context of its premises. To let emotions prevail, disregarding the basic tenets of our bill of rights will indeed be reduced to abuse of power and the non-observance of human rights. On this score, we can be invited to relieve President Marcos for any clarification on his doubts on the issue whether "due processes" should be denied citizens as in the case of LOI No. 14-A, which do not carry any criteria on sedition and rebellion or whatnot that involves safety of people and state.

How long should President Marcos be abroad just to pay a social call on the White House and on the side talk about trade and commerce? These are the duties of deputies, but we hope the working vacation of Mr. Marcos will help relieve the tension in seeking fruitful remedies and avenues of greener pastures for the Philippine economy we consider is poor.

GROMYKO CLAIMS ISLANDS IN TALKS WITH SAKURAUCHI

[Text] New York, Oct 4, KYODO -- Soviet Foreign Minister Andrey Gromyko reaffirmed Monday there is no territorial dispute between Moscow and Tokyo, Japanese officials said. Gromyko told Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi the Soviet Union did not take over tiny islands east of Hokkaido by unjust means.

Japan claims these islands -- Kunashiri, Etorofu and Shikotan islands and Habomai group -- were occupied by the Soviets after World War II. The officials quoted Gromyko as saying the islands were Soviet territory.

The two foreign ministers met for about an hour and half at the Soviet mission to the United Nations Monday (early Tuesday Japan time).

Sakurauchi proposed opening bilateral talks to conclude a Japan-Soviet peace treaty after settling the territorial dispute, the Japanese officials said. Gromyko, however, put forth a counterproposal to conclude the good neighborhood and cooperation treaty which Moscow proposed in 1978, the officials said.

No peace treaty has been signed between Japan and the Soviet Union, although the two countries issued a joint declaration in Moscow in October 1956 formally declaring an end to the war. The good neighborhood treaty does not touch on the Soviet-held northern islands and calls, among other things, for barring each country from using its territory for aggressive acts by a third country. The Soviets regard this as aimed against the Japan-U.S. security treaty. Japan has maintained it would (?not) enter into talks for a peace treaty without first settling the territorial dispute. Sakurauchi said the Soviet Union took advantage of a similar treaty with Afghanistan to invade the central Asian state in December 1979, the officials reported.

Gromyko appeared to have no intention to accept a repeated Japanese call for him to visit Japan, the officials said. The Soviet foreign minister told Sakurauchi he would consider the call positively, but there exists no favorable atmosphere in Japan for a visit now. Gromyko said there were moves in Japan to complicate Moscow-Tokyo relations. Japan invites the Soviet foreign minister to visit Japan while sticking to the territorial issue which the Soviet Union regards already settled, he was quoted as saying.

The Japanese officials said Gromyko's remarks represented a setback from previous meetings with Sakurauchi. Last June, Gromyko told Sakurauchi that he would consider the visit to Japan and would consult with Kremlin leaders, they noted. There has been no foreign ministerial visit in either direction since January 1978 when then Japanese Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda went to Moscow. Gromyko previously visited Tokyo in January 1976.

Russo-Japanese relations have cooled since defecting Soviet Air Force pilot Viktor Belenko flew to Japan aboard a top-secret MIG-25 fighter in September 1976. Moscow-Tokyo ties further deteriorated following the 1979 Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, 1980 espionage scandal involving a Soviet Embassy official in Tokyo and the 1981 Japanese decision to designate February 7 as an annual Northern Territories Day.

However, the two foreign ministers did reach agreement to open working-level talks in Tokyo next spring. The meeting will be the third of its kind. The previous meeting was held in Moscow last January 20-22 between Japanese Deputy Foreign Minister Kensuke Yanagiya and his Soviet counterpart Nikolay Firyubin.

Meanwhile, Gromyko promised to study a Japanese request to free 32 Japanese fishermen detained in the Soviet Union, the officials said.

Both Gromyko and Sakurauchi are now in New York to attend the 37th United Nations General Assembly. Sakurauchi, who left Japan last Friday, is scheduled to go to Canada Tuesday and return home Saturday.

SAKURAUCHI SPEAKS AT UN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

[Text] New York, Oct 2, KYODO -- Japan Friday urged the United Nations to strengthen its peacekeeping functions, enhance its functions in the field of disarmament and reinforce its role in the sphere of economic and social development. In a speech delivered to the U.N. General Assembly, Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi said that this is necessary for developing relations of mutual trust among states through the United Nations.

Saying that the world organization has not functioned in sufficient effectiveness to maintain international peace and security, Sakurauchi urged that the authority of the U.N. secretary general be utilized to the maximum extent.

He reminded the assembly of a Japanese proposal that the secretary general promptly send his representative to investigate the facts in areas of dispute and that his authority in mediation and conciliation be strengthened.

The Japanese foreign minister also said that the Security Council has not performed its tasks effectively, although it has the primary responsibility for maintenance of world peace and security. "It is particularly important that its (Security Council's) permanent members recognize anew the significance of their duties and cooperate among themselves," he said. He thus virtually urged the five big powers to refrain from abusing their veto power, which Japanese Foreign Ministry officials say hinders U.N. peacekeeping capability.

Sakurauchi also said that the U.N. peacekeeping activities suffer from the absence of a clear provision in the Charter regarding these activities. He stressed the need to re-examine the peacekeeping operations with a view to enabling them to be carried out speedily and effectively.

The foreign minister reaffirmed Japan's readiness to cooperate with the U.N. transition assistance group helping Namibia achieving independence, by providing civilian observers. According to the Foreign Ministry officials, Japan is planning to send civilians to help supervise the election in Namibia.

On the question of disarmament, Sakurauchi repeated three principles Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki put forward in his speech to be U.N. special assembly on disarmament in June: promotion of nuclear disarmament, utilization of human and material resources released by disarmament, and strengthening and reinforcement of U.N. peacekeeping functions. Saying that progress in nuclear disarmament depends on the nuclear weapons states, Sakurauchi emphasized the primary responsibility of the United States and the Soviet Union and the "absolute necessity" of their efforts toward nuclear disarmament.

As for the United Nations' role in economic and social development, Sakurauchi explained Japan's mental view that revitalization of world economy is essential for the attainment of world peace and prosperity.

He said that Japan would contribute to establishment of better North-South relations, and promote constructive dialogue with the developing countries.

Japan realizes the political significance of the global negotiations on international cooperation for development, and sincerely hopes that every arrangement for launching them will be completed as soon as possible, he said.

The foreign minister said that Japan is demanding the reversion of Soviet-held Japanese northern islands, saying that Japan and the Soviet Union have not yet concluded a peace treaty due to this issue, even though Japan "sincerely hopes to develop stable relations with Soviet Union."

Sakurauchi also renewed Japan's call for immediate withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan.

He strongly urged Vietnam to end its military intervention in Kampuchea, calling for international efforts toward a comprehensive political settlement.

The Japanese foreign minister denounced Israel for its invasion of Lebanon. He added that the recent massacre of Palestinian refugees in West Beirut was "an extremely outrageous act of violence."

On the situation in the Korean Peninsula, Sakurauchi hopes effort toward realization of dialogue between the South and the North would continue, while welcoming and appreciating President Chon Tu-hwan's proposal made in January this year.

TRADE TALKS WITH CSSR END, CHNOUPEK TO VISIT

[Text] Tokyo, Sept 30, KYODO -- Japanese and Czechoslovak industrialists ended here Thursday two-day discussions on expanding trade between the two countries with a protocol pledging to cooperate further in third markets.

It was also agreed that they would meet in Prague for the 10th joint session in the spring of 1984.

A Czechoslovak spokesman said Foreign Minister Bohuslav Chnoupek will visit Japan October 25-28 as an official guest of the Japanese Foreign Ministry.

The discussion centered on ways to increase Japanese import of Czechoslovak machinery and consumer goods and promote cooperation in overseas construction projects.

The 50-member Japanese delegation was led by Eiji Suzuki, president of the Japan-Czechoslovak Economic Committee and chairman of Mitsubishi Chemical Industries Ltd. Jaroslav Marek, chairman of the Association of Foreign Trade Agencies (USOZ), led the 13-member Czechoslovak group.

Karel Houska, Czechoslovak ambassador to Japan, told newsmen that his country hopes to promote economic, scientific and technical cooperation with Japan for the development of nuclear energy and coal since the two countries are similar in that they lack natural resources. Stressing that nuclear power will be a main source of energy for Czechoslovakia's electricity by 1990, the ambassador said that his country is now saving crude oil for use in chemical industry rather than for electricity. The Soviet Union supplies crude oil to Czechoslovakia at a price 30 percent lower than the world market price, he added.

His resignation increased the number of vacancies in the 252-member upper house to six. The Liberal-Democratic Party has 134 members in the House, JSP 47, Komeito 27, JCP 12, the Democratic Socialist Party 11, New Liberal Club and its affiliates 7 and independent groups 8.

BRIEFS

PRC FLOATING CRANE ORDER -- Tokyo, Sept 18, KYODO -- China has ordered two 200-ton floating cranes costing yen 1 billion (dollar 3.8 million) each, using yen credit, from Wako Koeki Co, a medium-sized Japanese machinery exporter in Tokyo, the company said Saturday. The cranes, whose angle is freely changeable, will be used for construction of port facilities in Shijiusuo in Shandong Province, a company spokesman said. Yoshinaga Manufacturing Co. will make and ship the cranes between next May and June, he said. The order followed a similar Chinese order for a coal shipment plant worth yen 10 billion (dollar 38 million) from Mitsui and Co. and Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy Industries Co. (IHI) in June, representing the first contract using yen credit. The plant, with annual capacity of 20 million tons, will be built in Qinhuangdao in Hubei Province. The Wako spokesman said that the comapany would step up efforts to win further Chinese orders in future. Business with China accounts for 80 percent of Wako's annual transactions, totaling yen 45 billion (dollar 172 million). [Text] [Tokyo KYODO in English 0422 GMT 18 Sep 82 OW]

U.S.-S. KOREAN FOREIGN MINISTERS' TALKS SCORED

[NODONG SINMUN 2 October commentary: "Criminal Plot Between Master and Stooge"]

[Text] According to a report, U.S. Secretary of State Shultz met with the South Korean puppet foreign minister in New York and discussed the situation on the Korean Peninsula and international affairs.

Babbling about the threat of the so-called southward invasion by the North, the South Korean puppet implored his master to continue stationing the U.S. imperialist aggressors in South Korea, for more aid to beef up the armaments of the puppet army and for support for the proposal of the meeting by the leaders of Pacific littoral states.

In reply to the puppet's demand, Shultz repeatedly pledged the U.S. commitment to South Korean security. This fact shows that, through the talks between master and stooge, a criminal intrigue to maintain the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists over South Korea and to accelerate preparations for aggressive war against us was mapped out.

The threat of southward invasion about which the puppets have clamored is completely false. The rumor about the threat of southward invasion is nothing but an excuse to slander our policy toward independent and peaceful reunification, to perpetuate the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist aggressors, to maintain the colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists and the fascist regime of the Chon Tu-hwan clique and to justify their maneuvers to prepare for war.

The commitment to security which Shultz pledged to the puppet is a pretext to realize such a heinous plot. This is well explained by the situation developing in South Korea. Frantically kicking up anticommunist rackets in South Korea under the plea of the threat of southward invasion, the U.S. imperialists and the puppets are intensifying their fascist terror of the people and beefing up the armed force of the U.S. troops and of the puppet army by introducing more updated operational means and murderous weapons into South Korea.

In recent days, the U.S. imperialists have decided to offer the puppets $60 million worth of military hardware and parts. Furthermore, they are egging the puppets on to fascism, division and war.

Under the control and instigation of the U.S. imperialists, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is indiscriminately arresting, imprisoning and murdering people of all walks of life who have risen up in the struggle against the United States and fascism and for independence and democracy. And he is inciting enmity and confrontation against us by fabricating various incidents.

Coinciding with this, the puppets, who have waged the Ulchi exercises, the emergency mobilization exercises of home reservists and the Myolgong exercises, including the combined command post exercises, are staging firing exercises daily on the East, West and South Seas.

The reality shows that the threat of war comes from the South and the U.S. imperialists are resorting to every means and method to help the Chon Tu-hwan clique, which is forsaken and rejected by the people, and to maintain the unstable colonial rule.

At the talks with his master, the puppet foreign minister came up with the meeting of the leaders of Pacific Basin countries. This follows the aggressive plan of the U.S. imperialists. As for the question of meeting of the leaders of the Pacific Basin countries, the proposal was not the creation of the puppets, but was set forth by the U.S. imperialists for the purpose of politically and militarily dominating the Pacific region countries. In addition, the proposal was given credence by the Japanese reactionaries to realize their old dream of the Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere.

As the sordid dual stooges of the U.S. and Japanese masters, the South Korean puppets are only playing a role of marionette in accordance with their script.

By making the South Korean puppets take the lead in conducting propaganda on the question of the meeting of leaders, the U.S. imperialists are trying to pretend that South Korea is an independent state, hide their colonial rule over South Korea and help the puppets extricate themselves from international isolation.

No matter how desperately the U.S. imperialists may make last-ditch efforts to rescue the puppets, to maintain the colonial fascist rule and design an aggressive plot against us, such attempts will not work.

Upholding the anti-U.S. banner for independence and the antifascist banner for democracy, the South Korean people and overseas compatriots are vigorously waging the struggle to do away with the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule over South Korea and overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan clique.

The U.S. imperialists must not run amok indiscreetly and must clearly see the development of this situation. The further the U.S. imperialists run mad to maintain their colonial rule, egging the South Korean puppets on to fascism, division and war, the more will such maneuvers arouse the people's denunciation and protest.

NODONG SINMUN CRITICIZES U.S. KOREAN POLICY

[Text] Pyongyang, October 5 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN Monday came out with an article headlined "U.S. Imperialists' Two Koreas Policy and Its Aggressive Nature." Noting that the U.S. imperialists put it forth as the basic strategy of their Korean policy today to create "two Koreas," the author of the article says:

All the policies of aggression and interference of the U.S. imperialists in Korea at present proceed from and are run through with the "two Koreas" plot.

The "two Koreas" policy is an offspring of the U.S. imperialists' desperate scheme to maintain South Korea as their colony and military base. Entering the 1970's, an epochal phase was opened in the solution of the national reunification question by our active initiative and efforts.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forward a policy of wide-range negotiation as a new national salvation step for accelerating the independent and peaceful reunification of the country, representing the demand of the fast changing internal and external situation and the unanimous desire of the entire people of North and South Korea. This led to the publication of the historic North-South joint statement the keynote of which is three principles of national reunification -- independence, great national unity and peaceful reunification.

With the growth of the might of our republic and the creation of a favorable phase for the accomplishment of the cause of our country's reunification, the U.S. imperialists found it impossible to realize their aggressive desire to dominate the whole of Korea from the "stand of strength." Pushed into a position of passive defence under such situation, the U.S. imperialists are working to keep hold on South Korea at least at any cost.

The "two Koreas" policy is an aggressive policy for keeping hold on South Korea as a colony and military base and a splittist policy for leaving our country and nation divided into two forever.

The U.S. imperialists leave no measures untried in pursuing their aggressive "two Koreas" policy. They are trying to legalise "two Koreas" in the international arena by presenting South Korea as an "independent state" and even inventing the "proposal for the simultaneous entry into the United Nations" of North and South Korea and "proposal for cross recognition."

The reunification of Korea is an internal affair of Korea which does not allow intervention and interference of a third party. To argue for "international arbitration" in the Korean reunification question contradicts our people's will to solve it independently and the North-South joint statement, the keynote of which is the three principles of national reunification and the United Nations resolution supporting and welcoming it.

Moreover, the South Korean "regime" is, by origin, not an independent regime worthy of being dealt with by the independent states. The U.S. imperialists' military occupation of South Korea is the lever for their aggressive and splittist manoeuvres. Crying for "equilibrium of forces" in Korea, they are trying to maintain their military domination over South Korea and back the permanent division of Korea with "strength."

The "equilibrium of forces" harped on by the U.S. imperialists is a dangerous slogan not only for underpinning our country's division with strength but also for starting another war of aggression in Korea. The occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist aggression forces is the chief obstacle to peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification, a wanton interference in the internal affairs of our country and a heinous crime against the trend of the times.

Our people will never tolerate the U.S. imperialists' manoeuvres of aggression, intervention and division but certainly achieve the historic cause of national reunification.

SOUTH KOREAN MILITARY EXERCISES DENOUNCED

CPRF Information 233

[Text] Pyongyang, October 2 (KCNA) -- The Secretariat of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] issued Information No. 233 on October 1 denouncing a criminal war exercise staged recently by the South Korean military fascist clique in the South Sea against us.

Pointing out that on September 27 the South Korean puppet clique staged a "combined naval mobile exercise" in the South Sea under an imaginary condition of wartime with the mobilisation of destroyers, high-speed craft, patrol planes and helicopters and various armed forces, the information says:

This war exercise held under the deceptive motto of "Countering the North's attack" was an extremely adventurous play with fire reminiscent of actual fighting for attacking us from the sea and sky and from under water.

This patently shows what a shameless sophism and hypocritical jargon the Chon Tu-hwan group's talk about "peace" and "unification" is. In persistently following the road of military confrontation with us, caught with a war fever, the Chon Tu-hwan group seeks the aim of perpetuating the division of the country in accordance with the U.S. imperialists' policies of aggression and war and intimidating the South Korean people and students who have risen in the struggle against U.S. imperialism and for independence and of realising the wild ambition for long-term office.

The Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique must stop acting as a war servant of the U.S. imperialists, deport itself with discretion and step down from power without delay, as demanded by the people.

The U.S. imperialists must be mindful that it will bring nothing good to them to instigate their stooges to heighten tension and kick up war rackets in Korea. They had better go back to their den, taking along their aggression forces and nuclear weapons before it is too late.

NODONG SINMUN Commentary

[Text] Pyongyang, October 3 (KCNA) -- Commenting on the combined naval mobile exercise staged by the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique in the South Sea, NODONG SINMUN Sunday says:

The puppets claimed that the exercise was aimed at "countering" someone's "provocation." But, it was, in actuality, designed to perfect preparations for invading the northern half of Korea from the sea. The signed commentary says:

This is proved by the fact itself that the exercise was carried out in the offensive form.

Needless to say, the exercise, held at the dictate of U.S. imperialism, was another example of the war frenzy of the Chon Tu-hwan clique, a local shock force executing the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression on Korea. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is faithfully executing the aggressive policy of foreign forces and prolonging his remaining days in reward for this. He is now getting overheated in war preparations on the instructions of U.S. imperialism.

The new war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets increase the danger of war in Korea. There exists in Korea a danger of northward invasion, not a "danger of southward invasion."

The Chon Tu-hwan clique is a despicable colonial puppet of U.S. imperialism, a heinous enemy of peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification and a war maniac. The trumpeting of the South Korean puppets about "peace" and "peaceful reunification" is nothing but a camouflage to veil their true color. Their repeated war exercises are also aimed at diverting elsewhere the attention of the South Korean people and lulling their righteous struggle by creating tensions under the pretext of fictitious "danger of southward invasion." The war manoeuvres of the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique will only precipitate their own destruction.

CPRF INFORMATION DENOUNCES U.S. ENVOY'S REMARKS

[CPRF Information No 234 issued 3 October -- read by announcer]

[Text] According to a report, on 28 September at a lecture commemorating the centennial of the so-called Korea-U.S. treaty, U.S. Ambassador Walker made a long harangue on cross-recognition the alliance with South Korea and so forth.

It is impudent nonsense to give a lecture to commemorate the criminal day when the U.S. imperialists started to invade and subjugate our country. Furthermore, it is despicable to talk about cross-recognition, which no one recognizes and accepts, and alliance with South Korea at the cursed place.

It is another intolerable challenge to and mockery of the South Korean people, who call for the liquidation of the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and for sovereignty and independence and the peaceful reunification of the country, that the very man who had made absurd remarks insulting the patriotic youths, students and democratic personages in South Korea, calling them spoiled brats, talked about cross-recognition, alliance and so forth this time.

Such remarks by the U.S. ambassador, the on-the-spot proxy of the U.S. imperialists, vividly reveal the U.S. imperialists' invariable stance and their aggressive ambition to divide Korea permanently and to hold on to South Korea as their permanent colony. As is well known, South Korea is a complete colony of the U.S. imperialists, and the South Korean puppet regime is a tool faithfully implementing the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and division.

Former U.S. Ambassador to South Korea Gleysteen himself once said that it is unrealistic to argue about equal relations between the United States and South Korea, and that no practical equality can exist in all relations between the two sides. This means that the U.S. imperialists themselves admit that the relations between the United States and South Korea are those of a suzerain state and colony.

Today, the people of the world are raising their voices to curse and condemn the South Korean regime, branding it as a colonial puppet regime without sovereignty and independence and a treacherous and splittist regime.

Realistically, in South Korea today, the U.S. Embassy, the on-the-spot ruling organ of the White House, holds real power and controls all fields -- political, economic, military and cultural. As a result, the South Korean people have been forced to endure the destiny of bondage under the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and their national sovereignty has been mercilessly trampled underfoot.

This notwithstanding, the U.S. imperialists talk about cross-recognition and alliance, intending to disguise South Korea, their vassal state, as an independent state, thereby getting two Koreas legalized internationally and lulling the consciousness of national independence and the anti-U.S. movement for independence growing among the South Korean people, concealing their ugly color as the colonial ruler.

With no honeyed words and crafty ruse, however, can the U.S. imperialists camouflage their schemes to perpetuate the division of Korea and their colonial enslavement policy toward South Korea and evade their responsibility for these criminal acts.

The U.S. imperialists must renounce their anachronistic colonial rule and schemes to fabricate two Korea, withdraw from South Korea without delay, taking along their aggression forces and lethal weapons, and take their hands of intervention off Korea.

VRPR SCORES CHON'S SPEECH ON THREAT FROM NORTH

SK020246 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Station commentary]

[Text] In this hour we will discuss remarks made by the Chon Tu-hwan group on Armed Forces Day. In activities on Armed Forces Day, the Chon Tu-hwan group frantically kicked up rackets by conducting various government-sponsored functions. It made a fuss in the morning by making a show of force and by flying planes. Winding up at the frontline, it made hostile remarks reeking of gunpowder. Chon Tu-hwan appeared before the audience and made a speech.

In his speech on 1 October, traitor Chon Tu-hwan slandered the North from beginning to end, supported a theory of nonexistent southward invasion and stressed North-South confrontation and supremacy of power by telling the lie that North Korea will soon attack the South.

Prior to this, on 30 September Chon Tu-hwan visited the central frontline and made hostile remarks calling for annihilation at the initial stage of warfare, for spiritual arming and for perfect combat readiness. Such remarks by the Chon Tu-hwan ring are indiscreet rackets kicked up by a bunch of military hooligans who resort to swindling, fraud and intrigue in ruling the country, representing the frantic behavior of hostile war maniacs who run amok to make war preparations under the signboard of peace and who maneuver to perpetuate division under the pretext of achieving reunification.

It is ludicrous for Chon Tu-hwan to support the fictional theory on the threat of southward invasion. It is well known that the theory on southward invasion, which he has frequently trumpeted, is a sheer lie. Chon Tu-hwan's habitual clamoring about the threat of southward invasion and reunification through communization with arms is aimed at dampening the people's spirit of anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle, at pacifying their discontent with him and at justifying his preparations for a war of northward invasion. This is proved by history and the situation.

While frantically running amok to make war preparations to attack North Korea by begging for the permanent deployment of U.S. forces in South Korea and by following the U.S. imperialists' strategy for aggression against the Korean Peninsula, the Chon Tu-hwan group is trying to conceal its crimes by absurdly telling a lie that someone's act is unusual and that he has a wild desire for southward invasion. This is a robber's brazen act of shouting, "Stop, thief!"

The ringleaders who have heightened tension on the Korean Peninsula and have increased the danger of war are none other than the U.S. imperialists and the hostile Chon Tu-hwan group -- their stooges.

In his speech Chon Tu-hwan called for assuming a security posture and combat readiness and for fostering national strength. Visiting frontline units, he clamored about training for small units, about night combat training and annihilation at the initial stage of warfare. This reveals the wicked, hostile nature of the Chon Tu-hwan group which has gloatingly sought an opportunity for northward invasion. By a security posture, he meant security for a colonial, fascist terrorist rule in South Korea. By the fostering of national strength, he meant to develop military potential to expand the colonial system in South Korea to North Korea. In short, because the Chon Tu-hwan group is restless, it boisterously conducted government-sponsored functions and made remarks on the 34th anniversary of the activation of the armed forces.

As you know, the Chon Tu-hwan group is now facing a grave crisis. The anti-U.S., anti-Japanese and antigovernment struggle, which has spread throughout the country like a prairie fire, has expanded, developed and been intensified with each passing day. The economic policy of relying on foreign forces and the plunderous labor policy against workers have rapidly increased the discontent of the workers. In addition, the dictatorial Chon Tu-hwan group's treacherous, toadyist act and its antipopular, antireunification and antipeace crimes have further deepened its international isolation. The Chon Tu-hwan ring's isolation has daily deepened at home and abroad.

Traitor Chon-Tu-hwan and his ring in greeting Armed Forces Day increased the sentiment of North-South confrontation by kicking up anti-North and anticommunist rackets and by repeatedly making hostile remarks reeking gunpowder -- this in a desperate attempt to extricate itself from a crisis. It is eager to extricate itself from the present crisis by pacifying the anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle, which has daily developed among the people, by fiercely kicking up anticommunist rackets, by slandering North Korea and by diverting the attention of the people. However, this attempt is a foolish act of trying to dam a large river with a leaf.

Our people will never tolerate the Chon Tu-hwan group's indiscreet maneuvers to maintain the U.S. colonial rule and to remain in power for a long time by taking a pro-U.S. and anti-North stand and will vigorously struggle to banish U.S. forces from this land, to end the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and to overthrow the Chon Tu-hwan puppet group.

CHON'S FOUNDATION DAY SPEECH CRITICIZED

NODONG SINMUN Commentary

SK050413 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2251 GMT 4 Oct 82

[NODONG SINMUN 5 October commentary: "Gibberish of Traitor in the Mask of Nation"]

[Text] On 3 October, the Chon Tu-hwan ring of South Kroea held a ceremony commemorating the anniversary of the Tangun's accession [National Foundation Day].

In the so-called congratulatory speech read by the puppet premier, Traitor Chon Tu-hwan desperately tried to hide his treacherous and nation-selling nature and to camouflage himself as a patriot, making absurd remarks, such as the ancestor's founding ideology or the legitimacy of national history. The puppet traitor raved about unity and the cultivation of strength for survival, groundlessly slandering us by coming up again with the stereotyped rumor of the threat of southward invasion by the North and of its communization of the South with armed force. Such frenzied remarks by traitor Chon Tu-hwan expose the dark intention of the colonial stooge who is seeking his survival by inciting anticommunism and apprehension over a North-South confrontation and by strengthening fascist suppression and war policy.

It is ridiculous for the puppet traitor to camouflage himself under the cover of the nation, babbling about ancestors or nation and using the nonexistent rumor of the threat of southward invasion as a shield to hide his treacherous nature. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is an outrageous military rascal who is not qualified for talking about ancestors or nation, a heinous fascist murderer who was trained by the U.S. imperialists and a sordid betrayer.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan is a matchlessly thorough colonial stooge who is executing the U.S. imperialists' policy of colonial subordination and of war, upholding the U.S. imperialist aggressors as protectors and saviors. Everyone knows that, to meet the aggressive demand of the U.S. imperialist masters, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is playing the role of a war perpetrator, inciting enmity and confrontation within the nation and accelerating preparations for war by introducing U.S. imperialist military equipment into South Korea. He is also a pro-Japanese element who is begging for aid of a military nature, kowtowing to the Japanese reactionary force and intensifying collusion with it.

It is a well-known fact that South Korea is a complete colony of the U.S. imperialists, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist regime is a puppet regime sustained by them and that the U.S. imperialist local governing organs, including the U.S. Embassy under the signboard of diplomacy and command of the U.S. forces, reign over South Korea. Even so, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is trying to hide his dirty nature as a colonial stooge by clamoring about nation or sovereignty in a sham manner.

No matter how desperately he may speak out, traitor Chon Tu-hwan cannot cover up the crimes he has committed before the country and nation or his dirty nature as a colonial puppet. The heinous traitor should have been executed on the gallows by the people as the butcher of the nation and truculent pro-U.S. and pro-Japanese stooge who, by committing the Kwangju massacre, betraying the nation and country and brandishing a sword given by the U.S. imperialist masters, has soaked the land of South Korea in the blood of the fellow countrymen. This traitor dares to wag his tongue about ancestors or nation, an intolerable mockery of ancestors and an unpardonable insult to the honor and dignity of our nation.

In an effort to camouflage the dark reality of South Korea created by his treacherous and nation-selling acts, traitor Chon Tu-hwan clamored about pioneering a new history and about a leap. Today in South Korea, however, instead of pioneering a new history, traitor Chon Tu-hwan is committing a crime of cementing the old Yusin system into a more outrageous fascist system by reviving it under the instigation of the U.S. imperialists, running counter to the development of history. Instead of leaping forward, South Korea is facing a situation in which, under the colonial terrorist rule, national dignity and sovereignty is being trampled underfoot, economy is running to bankruptcy and the people's livelihood is falling into deeper distress.

There is no way that traitor Chon Tu-hwan can hide the miserable reality of South Korea or mock public opinion at home and abroad. The South Korean people will never be deceived by the vicious gibberish of the puppets and will put traitors, who are bent on treachery and betrayal, before the tribunal of history.

VRPR Commentary

SK050013 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 4 Oct 82

[Station commentary]

[Text] As has been reported, in a speech read by another at a ceremony marking the nation's Foundation Day held in the Sejong culture hall in Seoul, Chon Tu-hwan once again fanned war fever and viciously slandered the North. In the so-called speech at the ceremony, he told such lies as the North is attempting to expunge our national history as a whole and it is attempting to communize the South by force, encouraging people to have an anticommunist consciousness and fanning war fever for a northward invasion. Clearly, nothing else could come out of the mouth of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, a faithful stooge of the United States and a war maniac. We cannot, however, overlook the outrageous remarks impudently made by him this time.

In recent months, the Chon Tu-hwan ring, prattling about the nonexistent threat of southward invasion, staged exercises daily such as the Ulchi exercise, all kinds of naval firing practices, alert mobilization exercises of the Homeland Reservist Corps, Civil Defense Corps exercises and blackout drills. Even on Chusok, the clique had a so-called parade of heavily armed combat troops of the three armed forces in a ceremony held in Seoul to mark Armed Forces Day. We do not need to explain that such madness has been designed to thwart our people's anti-U.S. spirit for independence through a war of northward invasion.

As is widely known at home and abroad, it is none but the U.S. imperialists and their stooge Chon Tu-hwan ring who are trampling upon our people's sovereignty, obliterating our people and running riot in preparation for a war of northward invasion. In the 37 years since they occupied this land, replacing the Japanese imperialists, the U.S. imperialists have forced on our people indescribable disasters, pains and miseries and have been playing the master and colonial rulers of South Korea, doing whatever they like.

As was the case with all the preceding puppet stooges in South Korea, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique has been serving the U.S. imperialists as a faithful colonial stooge and as a perpetrator executing the U.S. imperialist policy of obliterating people. On orders of the U.S. imperialists, it is trying to cede the whole of the Korean Peninsula to the U.S. imperialists as a colony, while running riot for a permanent division of the country, and trying to provoke a war of northward invasion. To this end, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique is cruelly executing and massacring our people who fight against U.S. colonialist rule. This has clearly been manifested in the bloody tragedy of Kwangju in which the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique had the heavily armed, murderous special warfare corps indiscriminately kill men, women, the old and young by stabbing them, running over them with tanks, gouging their eyes out or cutting off their breasts.

It is, therefore, preposterous and also an intolerable insult to the nation that the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique -- a faithful puppet colonial stooge of the U.S. imperialists, a murderer of the nation and fascist tyrant -- should dare rave about national history and about the nation's independent spirit.

Then, why is the Chon Tu-hwan ring emphasizing anticommunist confrontation and war preparations more in recent months than ever? This stems from the seriousness of the crisis facing the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique in recent months. Today, the U.S. imperialists' colonial ruling system in this land has been weakened from its foundation owing to the strong anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle of our people.

Awakened to the serious fact that they will not be able to extricate themselves from today's pain and misery unless they bring an end to the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and achieve their national sovereignty, our people are now engaged in an anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle with slogans such as "The United States is not a friend of the Korean people," "Yankee, go home" and "Let us overthrow the surrogate regime of Chon Tu-hwan," driving the U.S. imperialists and their stooge Chon Tu-hwan ring to a serious crisis. The Chon Tu-hwan ring is trying to find a way out of the crisis by suppression of the patriotic masses who have risen in the national liberation struggle, by vicious anticommunist rackets and by provocation of a war of northward invasion.

The purpose of the war provoking commotions staged in the so-called ceremony marking the nation's Foundation Day on Chusok is to threaten our people who have risen under the banner of anti-U.S. struggle for independence and to keep their colonial rule in the face of a crisis by diverting the people's attention. However, this is nothing but a foolish daydream.

Our people will continue the national liberation struggle under the banner of anti-U.S. struggle for independence. The more frenzied the U.S. imperialists and their stooge Chon Tu-hwan ring become, the higher they will raise the banner of struggle. The Chon Tu-hwan group, a faithful colonial stooge of the U.S. imperialists, will certainly never be able to avoid an ignominious end along with its U.S. masters because of our people's strong struggle.

VRPR STATEMENT ASSAILS STUDENT SUPPRESSION

[Statement issued 29 September by RPR spokesman -- read by announcer]

[Text] The Chon Tu-hwan treacherous clique has recently turned out to the road of imposing bloody suppression on the patriotic youths and students who have risen up in the anti-U.S., anti-Japanese and antifascist resistance struggle for democracy.

On 27 and 28 September, the fascist hangmen committed the outrage of suppressing with bayonets the students of Sogang University who issued a statement denouncing the U.S. imperialists' colonial policy and the Chon Tu-hwan ring's pro-U.S. and pro-Japanese treacherous acts and staged a fervent demonstration on campus and in the streets, shouting slogans reading: "Yankee, go home," "Down with Chon Tu-hwan," "Correct the distorted textbooks," "Away with the pro-Japanese government." And then the fascist hangmen arrested tens of students.

Prior to this, the Chon Tu-hwan ring committed bestial acts of arresting and imposing inhuman torture and suppression on numerous students of universities in Seoul, including those of Seoul University, Yonsei University, Songgyungwan University, Ehwa University, Korea University and Chungang University, who had turned out to the anti-U.S., anti-Japanese and antifascist struggle since the opening of the new semester.

Such suppression of South Korean students by the Chon Tu-hwan ring is a stifling of patriotism by treachery and an unpardonable criminal act against justice and democracy.

As for the Japanese reactionaries' revision of textbooks, it is a foolish trick to justify their criminal acts of rushing along the road of militarization with the old dream of the Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere and of stretching the tentacles of reinvasion deep into South Korea by embellishing and whitewashing the crimes of the Japanese imperialists against our nation in the past.

Today, world public opinion is bitterly denouncing the Japanese reactionaries' revision of textbooks and anti-Japanese struggles are taking place one after another in the world. This is a logical result.

Having supported the revival of the militarization of the Japanese reactionaries and opened wide the road leading to their reinvasion of South Korea, following the directives of the U.S. masters, the treacherous Chon Tu-hwan ring, ever since the textbook issue was raised, has connived at and protected the Japanese militarists' revision of textbooks and harshly suppressed the anti-Japanese struggle by patriotic and democratic forces, while holding government-patronized functions to lull mass public opinion.

Because they can neither sit idly by looking on at traitor Chon Tu-hwan's sordid treacherous and nation-selling acts and the Japanese reactionaries' haughty and insolent attitude nor tolerate the heinous maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists instigating them, the hot-blooded students have resolutely raised the torch of struggle. This is natural patriotism.

This notwithstanding, traitor Chon Tu-hwan has bestially suppressed the hot-blooded youth and students. This is the most despicable treacherous act that can be committed only by such a traitor as Chon Tu-hwan clinging to the coattails of the U.S. and Japanese masters.

In harshly suppressing hot-blooded youths and students who have risen up in the patriotic struggle, the Chon Tu-hwan clique of traitors has once again revealed its nature as a gang of murderers who have no scruples about slaughtering tens of thousands of fellow countrymen at a time for their masters.

Sternly denouncing the Chon Tu-hwan gang for committing the fascist suppression of patriotic youths and students, the Revolutionary Party for Reunification asserts as follows:

1. The Chon Tu-hwan gang of fascists must immediately release the illegally arrested and detained students.

2. The treacherous Chon Tu-hwan clique must immediately step down from power in accordance with the unanimous demand of students and the people and be sternly punished by the people.

3. The Japanese reactionaries must promptly correct textbook distortions and apologize to our nation.

4. The United States must stop its criminal acts of encouraging the militarization of the Japanese reactionaries and their reinvasion of South Korea and of protecting and controlling the Chon Tu-hwan fascist ring and go back to its hangout.

5. By responding to the appeal of the hot-blooded youths and students to join in the patriotic resistance struggle, the people of all walks of life should bravely rise up in the anti-U.S., anti-Japanese and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle -- the road of patriotism -- holding aloft the anti-U.S. banner for independence.

The attendants drank toasts to the solid friendship and solidarity between the parties, peoples and party organs of Korea and Poland, to the good health and long life of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and to the good health and long life of Comrade Wojciech Jaruzelsi, first secretary of the Central Committee of the Polish United Workers Party and chairman of the Council of Ministers of the Polish People's Republic.

GFTUK HOLDS PLENARY MEETING IN TANCHON 28 SEP

[Text] Pyongyang, September 30 (KCNA) -- The Fourth Plenary Meeting of the Central Committee of the General Federation of Trade Unions of Korea was held on September in Tanchon.

The plenary meeting discussed tasks facing trade union organizations in the struggle for thoroughly implementing the programmatic teachings given by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the Sixth Plenary Meeting of the Sixth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea.

After a report was delivered by Kim Pong-chu, chairman of the GFTUK Central Committee, speeches were made by many attendants at the meeting. They stressed that the teachings of the great leader given at the Hamhung plenary meeting of the party Central committee were a programmatic guideline for attaining ahead of schedule the vast ten long-range objectives of socialist economic construction set forth at the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea and successfully realizing the chuche-orientation, modernization and scientization of the national economy to accelerate the cause of building socialism and communism.

The meeting pointed out that the trade union organizations at all levels should discharge their honorable duty as a reliable helper of the party, staunch defender and executor of the party's policy of vigorously struggling to hit the 1.5-million-ton target of non-ferrous metals ahead of schedule, introduce press and stamp-forging methods and make revolution in welding and insulated material production in the domain of engineering industry in hearty response to the call of the party and the leader.

WALKER SPEECH, ISSUE OF NATIONALISM DISCUSSED

Lawmaker Comments

SK031321 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 1 Oct 82 p 3

[Article by Nam Chae-hui, National Assemblyman of the Democratic Justice Party: "Understanding and Misunderstanding Nationalism"]

[Excerpts] On 28 September I attended with great interest a lecture given by American Ambassador to Korea Richard L. Walker on "Korean-American Relations: The Challenges That Lie Ahead," on the occasion of the centennial of the establishment of Korean-American diplomatic relations.

In the past, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and former U.S. Ambassador to Korea Marshall Green gave lectures in Seoul. Former U.S. Ambassador to Korea Gleysteen also gave a lecture in Washington. These lectures aroused great interest. However, in the light of his status as the incumbent ambassador to Korea representing the United States, I felt that Mr Walker's lecture constituted the final word.

Ambassador Walker's speech was generally satisfactory. But I could not repress disappointment at his assault on Korean nationalism. I felt that if the U.S. conservative forces linking President Reagan, Senator Jesse Helms and Ambassador Walker have the same feeling about Korean nationalism as voiced in Walker's speech, this is a serious problem.

Not long after he assumed his present post, and at a time when national sentiment against Japan in connection with the distortion of Japanese textbooks was not seething, as it is today, Ambassador Walker, in a speech at the Korea-U.S. Association, already warned of possible deviations in Korean nationalism. But this time he bitterly criticized only the negative aspects of nationalism, without referring to its positive side. Furthermore, this time he took nationalism as the keynote of his speech concluding the functions commemorating the centennial of the establishment of Korean-American diplomatic relations. This draws our attention and makes us feel gloomy.

Why did Mr Walker intentionally criticize and warn of Korean nationalism again and again? Is Korean nationalism really deviating? Hasn't Mr Walker forgotten, for instance, the tragic end and lesson of the Vietnam war, which tended, in a sense, to be a struggle for nationalism? Isn't he turning a deaf ear to the desire for national reunification on the divided Korean Peninsula? I had many questions, including the above, to ask him at the lecture. But I could not ask them because of time.

Former Secretary of State Dulles once said that "neutrality is immoral." I wonder if Mr Walker felt like saying "nationalism is also immoral" at the lecture. If Ambassador Walker had referred to the positive aspects of nationalism even a little, we would have taken his statement on nationalism as one on a general theory on nationalism, because nationalism has, by nature, two aspects -- namely, the positive and the negative. It was indeed unkind that the ambassador to a divided country only criticized nationalism.

I think that Mr Walker's worries about Korean nationalism are nothing but baseless anxiety. Korea is not a big country, but a small one. It has been divided into two parts. It has an economy dependent on exports, with a society and politics open to the international community.

When the 4 July North-South Joint communique was issued, referring to the phrase "without the interference of foreign forces" in the communique, Prof Yi Ho-chae of Korea University in Seoul, talking about the distinction between "good foreign forces" and "bad foreign forces," said that we should cooperate with good foreign forces and utilize them properly. I agreed with this. The United States is our "good foreign force." If someone asks me about Japan, I would hesitate to answer. But I think that Japan is still an ambivalent foreign force to us.

Therefore, I do not hesitate to agree with Mr Walker's statement in the speech that anti-U.S. sentiment is limited to only a small number of people. An absolute majority of Koreans still have an image of the United States as Santa Claus.

Our nationalism is a modus vivendi and wisdom for the survival of our people. Our country, though they call it a semi-developed country, is still developing. On top of that, our country is divided. Should I explain why Korea needs nationalism under such circumstances? Our nationalism is a philosophy we need to establish national self-reliance, to consolidate national unity and achieve national unification. In essence, our nationalism is, unlike Ambassador Walker's suggestion, not offensive or xenophobic, but defensive. What is more, we refuse to be a closed society like Burma. Our nationalism is an open and international one that seeks cooperation in the international community.

Communism always schemes to make nationalism choose sides with it. Communism in Communist China and Vietnam is a good example. We do not need to explain. The combination of communism and nationalism is always short-lived, strategic and false. We have watched the developments in Czechoslovakia and Hungary, and we are presently watching the situation in Poland. Nationalism should unite with democracy. The combination of nationalism and democracy is what should be pursued by Korea.

I presume that Ambassador Walker must have read (Selig Harrison's) "Widening Abyss -- Asian Nationalism and U.S. Policy," an old book published in the United States, but I recommend it to him for reference. I also want to recommend a book published in Korea, "Treatise on Korean Nationalism," coauthored by Song Kon-ho and Kang Man-kil. Though I do not agree with their opinion, I believe that reading the book will certainly help Ambassador Walker refocus his view of Korean nationalism.

Our nationalism is for internal rather than external use. Some Americans, comparing Korea to Vietnam, say this or that about Korea, but Korea is fundamentally different from Vietnam. Nonetheless, we are trying to make the best use of the dear lesson taught by Vietnam in correcting what is defective, if anything, about our nationalism. Our effort to sweep away the residue of the Japanese imperialist colonialism is one thing in question. Let us try to see the better side of the residue of colonialism that has been inevitable because it was necessary for anticommunist struggles following our national liberation. Now is the time to correct the distortions of national history in all fields.

We are presently raising funds for building an independence hall whose purpose is to renew our determination. Some have launched an enlightenment campaign called "campaign to overcome Japan" to awaken our nation. The aim of these movements is to build a prosperous country with tightened belts, while maintaining our identity. I do not see any deviation or excess of Korean nationalism, do you? I cannot understand why Ambassador Walker is so jittery about our nationalism. The deviation of nationalism suggested by Ambassador Walker is maintained by only a small portion of Koreans, as is the case with anti-U.S. sentiment as understood by Ambassador Walker. I think it is correct to view our nationalism as still generally insufficient.

Responding to an attendant who, during the question-answer session, said that the United States is hardly trustworthy, Ambassador Walker humorously said: "Isn't asking if Korea can trust the United States for its security like Adam, who answered Eve's question, 'Do you love me?' by asking, 'Who else is there?'" The point of the anecdote is an undeniable factor in U.S.-ROK relations, but aren't there other "secret devices [kimi]" such as delicacy?

I believe that the majority of Koreans will want Ambassador Walker, a scholar specializing in China affairs, to make a contribution to deepening understanding and to strengthening ties between Korea and the United States, with a much broader view than career diplomats.

[Article by Kim Hak-chun, professor of the Department of Politics at Seoul National University: "Antiworld Nature of Antinationalism -- My View on U.S. Ambassador Walker's Misunderstanding"]

[Excerpts] If it was primarily aimed at drawing the Korean people's attention, U.S. Ambassador Walker's speech was successful. In his 28 September lecture, under the theme "Korean-American relations -- The Challenges That Lie Ahead," sponsored by the United States Information Service to celebrate the centennial of the establishment of Korean-U.S. diplomatic relations, Ambassador Walker, whose remarks have caused controversy several times in Korea, frankly disclosed the U.S. Government's position toward the future of the relations between the two countries. In his speech, he showed a tendency to regard Korean nationalism as dangerous. For this reason, his speech is drawing a keen reaction from Korean intellectuals.

Ambassador Walker's speech involves not a few questions we hardly understand. What we cannot understand, in particular, is his contempt for and prejudice against nationalism. No former U.S. ambassador to Korea has viewed nationalism as a disturbing idea. In a word, his speech was filled with abhorrence of nationalism.

Of course, I do not completely reject the validity partially shown by his logic in "declaration of antinationalism." Everyone knows that today's international system is characterized by mutual dependence. To peacefully maintain this mutually dependent world, it is necessary for us to have harmonious cooperation and wise coordination. There is no need to reemphasize this. However, it is not desirable to ignore national individualism or nationalism only by singling out the nature of mutual dependence in international relations. To be frank, ignoring nationalism is tantamount to haughty advice that powerless countries and developing nations should blindly submit to an international political, economic and legal order in favor of the powerful. This is nothing but a high-handed diplomatic attitude intentionally forcing the big powers' view of international order onto small powers.

We are in a situation in which we have not formed a unified state. In other words, we remain at the pre-unification stage in which we have not finished the work of national construction. Demanding that our fellow countrymen, who are in such a situation, abandon nationalism is no different than the advice that our nation commit suicide. Our nation is at the stage of historical development in which we should make continuous efforts to consummate the cause of building an independent nation-state, deeply cherishing the passion of nationalism aspiring for unification. Ambassador Walker should recognize this point once again.

Finally, I wish to point out that Ambassador Walker's assault on nationalism was characterized by undiplomatic and stinging rhetoric. His technique of using symbolic terms seemed to make us feel as if nationalists were a group of chauvinists. In addition, he showed boldness in using undisguised and threatening expressions -- "Today, it is impossible for countries not to interfere with each other."

In his preliminary statement, by referring to the date of his lecture, falling on the anniversary of the recovery of Seoul, Ambassador Walker reminded attendants that General MacArthur liberated Seoul from communist rule. Thus, it seems that he tried to silence the nationalistic trend in Korea, taking advantage of the hand of "the liberator United States." If this was true, his remarks only reflect his incorrect judgement.

Korea wants to maintain an alliance of equality with the United States. The Korean people are well aware that the U.S. troops in Korea are indispensable not only for the security of Korea, but for the U.S. policy toward East Asia, that is, for the national interests of the United States. The task that we should engage in for the continuous development of the relations between the two countries, above all, is establishing the correct U.S. understanding of Korean nationalism. Without a genuine understanding of Korean nationalism, U.S. policy toward Korea will result in failure.

[Editorial: "Nationalism and Korea"]

[Text] One of the interesting ironies produced in the ceremonies held to mark the centennial of the establishment of Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations, in which well-intended remarks were abundantly made by the attendants, both Korean and American, is that many people stressed that the United States was not necessarily a reliable ally to Korea before the Korean war. In their dissertations and in a series of newspaper articles and radio and television talk shows, scholars and journalists pointed to the fact that the United States approved of Japanese rule of Korea through the so-called "Katsura-Taft" secret agreement in 1905, and the ignorance and lack of concern over Korea on the part of the Roosevelt administration in the course of dealing with remnants of World War II were the main cause of the division of Korea. Because these facts have given us important material and an opportunity to refocus our vision of the United States, the ceremonies held to mark the centennial of the establishment of Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations have been successful, more than mere festivities. In light of the degree of our dependence on the United States following national liberation,when we say our view of the United States has been refocused, we mean our people have been awakened to self-reliance in the affirmative sense. Such a phenomenon, coupled with the controversy over human rights in South Korea, the issue of phasing out U.S. troops from South Korea, the Pak Tong-son incident and trade friction between Korea and the United States, might have appeared in the eyes of the Americans as nationalism working against the relations between the two countries.

Delivering a lecture entitled "Korean-American Relations: The Challenges That Lie Ahead" on 23 September, Richard Walker, U.S. ambassador to Korea, expressed concern over our country's expressions of national self-centeredness, attracting our attention. This is not irrelevant to the active reevaluation of the relations between Korea and the United States that has taken place during the last year.

Noting that Korea and the United States face a very hard task in maintaining open and free trade and economy, Ambassador Walker said that the advantage of the free enterprise system can be undermined by the sentiment of nationalism, by assertions of trade protectionists and by ephemeral considerations of certain interest groups. He expressed his concern that the Koreans, justifiably proud of their achievements in recent years, could be tempted toward expressions of national self-centeredness that might undermine the very positive image they have created in the United States and elsewhere in the world.

We want to express our gratitude to the noted scholar of political science turned diplomat for this friendly concern. However, we cannot help refuting his opinion that the economic growth our people achieved during the 1970's might drive our people to a counterproductive xenophobic and emotional nationalism.

We are dependent on the United States for our security. Our economy is thoroughly export-oriented. Politically speaking, because of the reality of the confrontation between North and South, our country cannot take the road of independent lines or self-support. A reality such as this does not allow our country to take the road of xenophobic nationalism suggested by Ambassador Walker. It is even less likely that we allow extreme nationalism or the unrealistic attitude of detesting foreigners, saying they have no place in our country. Ambassador Walker further noted that such perspectives on world affairs as "Third World," "Nonaligned Movement" and "theory of subordination" are perceptions framed in active but unproductive, obstructive thinking. However, contrary to his concern, we are not worried that such perceptions will restrict our country's external relations in the form of expressions of national self-centeredness. They are only things that we try to understand. The theory of subordination, in particular, is viewed with a critical eye in our country.

Few, if any, will object to Ambassador Walker's assertion that we should reject xenophobic nationalism. Nonetheless, we want to stress that nationalism is not incompatible with reciprocity and mutual cooperation needed in today's advance-oriented and productive international community and, in particular, with the mutual dependence and cooperation required in the relations between Korea and the United States.

It has been our country's reality and traditional way of thinking not to adopt frenzied national self-centeredness even after our country had entered the ranks of the advanced countries. However, nationalism that has as preconditions and stresses an open society, mutual dependence within the international community and cooperation among allies is what we must positively strive to achieve. This means that we maintain national dignity and pride, respect those of other countries and follow the road of cooperation in the international community.

[Editorial: "A Nationalist Tendency in the ROK -- We Should Reject a Dogmatic, Radical Idea of Internationalism Without Nationality"]

[Excerpts] A lecture given by Richard Walker, U.S. ambassador to the ROK, to commemorate the centennial of the establishment of the Korean-American diplomatic relations, was very useful and meaningful to us. This lecture reminded us of things which we had been liable to forget and was very informative on U.S. policy toward the ROK. However, we were dismayed when he said that Koreans could be tempted toward expressions of national self-centeredness.

Our internal and external efforts to achieve independence and self-development are in no way the manifestation of self-centered nationalism. Accordingly, there is no possibility that these efforts will undermine existing ties with our allies. Basically, these efforts proceed from the principle of cooperation with foreign countries. We believe that the United States will understand that our effort for cooperation with developing countries -- for South-South cooperation -- is not intended to lead to confrontation with developed countries.

The majority of our people fully understand that, thanks to U.S. aid, we have been able to maintain security and achieve development over the past 30-odd years. It is certain that, despite the distorted view of the United States on the part of the majority of thoughtless radicals and dissidents, our awareness of blood ties with and of gratitude to the United States will not waver and change. This is particularly true when we think of the rapidly expanding and developing friendly relations between the peoples of the ROK and the United States.

Saying that those who overeagerly emphasize nationalism -- that is, political activists -- or those who are fanatic nationalists are tempted to demand absolute independence, Ambassador Walker expressed concern that, when demand for such absolute independence increases in the ROK, it will jeopardize ROK-U.S. relations. As Ambassador Walker is well aware, however, the number of people demanding absolute independence in this country is very few, if any.

The international situation is destined to change. Therefore, the international situation surrounding the ROK and the United States will change. To firmly protect an open social system from the enemy and to firmly maintain the political systems of the two countries, which emphasize human rights and freedom, the relations of alliance between the two countries should be solidified, as we see today despite change in the situation surrounding us. To continuously maintain such solid relations of alliance, the two countries should cope with the surrounding situation with a mature attitude of extensively understanding the internal situation of their counterpart.

Accepting friendly advice from Ambassador Walker, our people should reflect on ourselves to some degree. We should above all not forget that, since the arson incident at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan, the United States has become very nervous about the sentiment of our people toward the United States. Needless to say, the United States must have been greatly dismayed at this unprecedented incident. It might have mistaken the incident caused by a minority of thoughtless people as one denoting that the sentiment of our people toward the United States has changed for the worse. Our people should consider this.

Another question our people should reflect on is the attitude of internationalism without nationality. This attitude is liable to cause trouble to our allies with regard to our internal affairs. We cannot deny that a minority in our society assume an indiscreet attitude of internationalism without nationality.

Considering the situation which the ROK is facing, we believe that our people should develop their nationalist consciousness. However, excessive nationalist sentiment will result in our allies misunderstanding us, handicapping our country.

We urge the people and the government to make efforts to prevent a verbal dispute between the ROK and the United States over remarks made by Ambassador Walker.

[Editorial: "Reconsideration of Nationalism -- We Ponder Over the Correct View on Nationalism on the Anniversary of the Tangun's Accession [National Foundation Day]"]

[Excerpts] Today, our observance of the anniversary of the Tangun's accession makes us ponder over the identity of the nation and our status in the world.

The culture of the Tangun Choson Dynasty has been handed down to us through various dynasties. In the process, our ancestors have assimilated neighboring cultures, such as Buddhist, Taoist and Confucian cultures, and, more recently, have introduced the Western spirit, which is based on science.

There have, however, been serious debates on how to harmonize our own culture with foreign cultures. Today, in particular, when we live in the global village, the target of the most acute debate is the way in which we should correctly realize national independence. This question becomes not only a subject of domestic discussion about the correct road of nationalism, but an object of international discussion about relations between nationalism and mutual dependence. In this regard, we should point to the fact that nationalism has often been misunderstood, misused, confused and distorted. This has caused unnecessary conflict regarding the question of how to define the term "nationalism" and brought about the fallacy wherein desirable nationalism is confused with undesirable nationalism. In the 1980's, unlike the 1950's, nationalism is being defined as self-identity, independence and various other values. As a result, the demand for nationalism is being justified as a fait accompli. This notwithstanding, the more nationalism is justified, the more complicated becomes the answer to the question regarding the correct view of nationalism. We can say that the friends of our nation warned us concerning our nationalism because of their lack of understanding.

On a worldwide scale, Western powers should correctly understand the aspirations of developing nations for economic and cultural reciprocity and equality. The Soviet Union should not oppress the just self-expression of its minorities and of the peoples of East Europe.

The relations between Korea and Japan, whether or not cooperation between the two countries will be successful, as the United States expects, totally depend upon the decision of the Japanese ruling circles. There will be no problem as long as Japan does not commit unjustifiable acts causing the Korean people's anti-Japanese national sentiments to explode, such as an attempt to justify their old colonial rule. The Korean people's recent anti-Japanese nationalism is not xenophobia based on mere sentiments against Japan, but a nationalism opposed to the other nationalism that is misused by the Japanese ruling circles and based on their ideology of advance. The most important task we now face is doing away with various kinds of confusion, ambiguity and misuse that are attendant on nationalism by clearly outlining our own type of civil and democratic national ideology at the earliest date.

It goes without saying that our civil and modern nationalism was born from the national movement at the end of the Yi Dynasty and in the period of the anti-Japanese struggle and, since then, it has grown. What we should do is lay the groundwork for the most reasonable and intellectual nationalism being associated with the world by firmly linking the spirit of the national movement to the free democratic system. This is our preparation for the nationalism that we should pursue in the period of unification.

ROK, JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTERS MEET IN NEW YORK

[By Kim Tae-ung, KOREA TIMES correspondent]

[Text] New York -- Foreign Minister Yi Pom-sok and his Japanese counterpart, Yoshio Sakurauchi agreed here Saturday (Oct. 2) to hold the ministerial conference between the two countries within this year in positive efforts to improve their relations marred by recent controversies. The two foreign ministers, who are here to attend the U.N. General Assembly, met for an hour and a half from 8:30 a.m. local time at the Pierre Hotel, accompanied by two ranking officials each. Their discussions covered a wide range of bilateral issues, including the Japanese history textbook question, and international affairs of their mutual interest.

Minister Yi told reporters after the meeting that Minister Sakurauchi informed him of the contents of Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's conversation with Chinese leaders on the relations between Beijing and Pyongyang during his recent visit to China. As to the bilateral matters between Seoul and Tokyo, the two ministers agreed to make "all necessary diplomatic efforts to establish good neighborly ties," Yi said. The substantial action in this direction will be the convening of the ministerial talks, Yi explained. The date and place of the talks will be decided through diplomatic channels, Yi said. Korean officials expected that the conference would be held between late November and early December because of the Japanese schedule for the election of the prime minister.

Yi said that Minister Sakurauchi assured him that the Japanese Government was resolved to make efforts with sincerity to correct the controversial parts in Japanese high-school history textbooks concerning its relations with Korea as clarified earlier by Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa.

As to the question of economic cooperation, the two ministers agreed that it was desirable to explore ways to reach a satisfactory settlement, taking more time to consider developments in economic situation, Yi said.

During the meeting, Yi explained to Sakurauchi on President Chon's recent state visits to African countries. Sakurauchi was quoted as saying to Yi that he "sincerely congratulates the success" of the president's African tour.

Yi expressed his satisfaction over the result of the talks with Sakurauchi, saying that he believed the meeting helped iron out much of the differences that had existed between the two countries during the recent days.

MONTSAME INTERVIEWS DALAI LAMA DURING MPR VISIT

OW050039 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1725 GMT 4 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Ulaanbaatar, October 4 (MONTSAME) -- At invitation of the head of the Mongolian Buddhists Hambo Lama, Kh. Gaadan, Dalai Lama visited this country from September 17 to 26. During his stay in Mongolia he granted an interview to a MONTSAME correspondent.

Question: This is your second visit to Mongolia. You have been to Darkhan and Erdenet and some other parts of the country. What impressed you the most during your present visit to Mongolia?

Answer: My impression which I got this time is first, the general people's expression towards me which touched me very much. It indicated that despite the many changes, the long history, there are still traces of that long history, of close relations between Mongolia and Tibet, which are very much alive in the Mongolian people's heart. When I see these things, I am very touched and very happy and moved. Then I was in some places, Erdenet and as well as Darkhan. You see, they are a sort of complex new towns, townships, and also a sort of new generation, young people, hard-working and bright. Within a short period, I should say, the achievements are quite significant. I am very impressed with these interesting developments and also the people's living standard. It seems good and education and health seem very nice. Of course, Mongolia has a very vast land, and you are facing a shortage of manpower. In any case, your big farms -- mechanised, also dairy farms are using machines, which is very nice. So I hope and pray for every success in future. Mongolians and Tibetans are almost like twin brothers. In the daily way of life there are many similarities. There is much in common, racially, culturally and religiously.

Question: In what ways can durable peace and security be established in the Asian continent and all over the world?

Answer: Unfortunately, despite the progress of science and technology in human society, the general atmosphere of distrust, suspicion, cheating, bullying, these kinds of things are happening in many places. So now what we are lacking is, I feel, real warm human feeling, warm heart and mutual trust and mutual respect. In other words, real genuine recognition of oneness of mankind, humanity. There are differences in nations, differences in races, different country, different faith, different ideology and system -- these I believe are secondary and the main thing and the most important is that all are the same human beings. Everyone wants happiness and do not want suffering. And everyone (?ought) to be happy. So you see, the recognition of that sort of thing and harmony is mutual respect and mutual help. That is most important thing and that is based on real sense of brotherhood and sisterhood. So through the uplifting of compassion and love, we can create individual peace and through that real, genuine lasting world peace can be achieved.

Question: What are your views on the proposal of the M.P.R. to draft and sign a convention on mutual non-aggression and non-use of force in relations among the states of Asia and the Pacific?

Answer: Yes, that is very good, very noble task and from the Buddhist viewpoint, it is real add of the Dharma [as received]. In any case, every effort for world peace is a noble task. Everyone who wants real peace, who wants happiness, should make attempt, should support the solution of noble task.

COMMENTARY CRITICIZES SIHANOUK ROLE IN CGDK

BK020444 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1300 GMT 1 Oct 82

[Station commentary: "The Kampuchean Revolution Always Advances Firmly"]

[Text] With the manipulation of the Beijing expansionists, the spokesman of the Democratic Kampuchean corpse, Sihanouk, in his capacity as the president of the so-called Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea (CGDK], has been installed in the shaky seat of the 37th UN General Assembly in order to recite whatever his boss dictates.

It is general knowledge that following the liberation on 7 January 1979, Sihanouk was one of the many people released from the prison of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique by the Kampuchean revolutionary army and the Vietnamese forces. But Sihanouk did not accept this fact. On the contrary, he knelt down and bowed his head to serve the Chinese big-nation hegemonists' expansionist policy and turned against his own people. At that time, Sihanouk, who once again became a puppet, was ordered by the Beijing expansionists to represent the Pol Pot murderers at the United Nations, where he strongly condemned the Kampuchean revolutionary army and the Vietnamese forces who saved him from prison. Moreoever, Sihanouk shamelessly begged the United States and the West European countries for money to be used to buy weapons for opposing the rebirth of the Kampuchean land and people. But due to successive defeats, the Beijing Chinese have installed Sihanouk in a dishonorable post as president of the so-called CGDK in which he must cooperate directly with traitors Pol Pot, Ieng Sary, Khieu Samphan and Son Sann.

Sihanouk has sold himself cheaply to Beijing and continued to raise his voice in order to maintain the shaky seat at the United Nations for the Democratic Kampuchean genocidal clique -- lackey of the Beijing expansionists. Until now, Sihanouk has had no significant role, except for being a parrot that recites only the words of its boss. As a matter of fact, Sihanouk has bowed his head to serve the Beijing expansionists' policy in opposing both the Kampuchean fatherland the rebirth of the Kampuchean people. Thus, Sihanouk is a person who has committed an unpardonable, most heinous offense against Kampuchea and the Kampuchean people.

It should be recalled that Sihanouk -- one of the victims detained and tortured by the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique -- has been saved from prison for just a few years. In the past, Sihanouk had complained about Pol Pot's atrocities in killing a large number of his children and family members. But at present Sihanouk has turned a deaf ear to the truth and put himself in the service of the murderers who killed his children and more than 3 million innocent Kampucheans. It is a universal truth that no one can cover the rays of the sun with a palm. Likewise, whatever Sihanouk might say at the 37th UN General Assembly will not affect the Kampuchean fatherland and the Kampuchean people.

The Kampuchean revolution is advancing firmly toward prosperity; no reactionary force can reverse the situation in Kampuchea. During the past more than 3 years, under the correct and wise leadership of the KPRP and with the valuable support and assistance of Vietnam, Laos, the Soviet Union and the socialist community, our people have scored great revolutionary achievements in all fields and succeeded in building a Kampuchean society which is far better than the previous societies. In the future, we will be even better.

SURRENDER OF SEREIKA MEMBERS TO AUTHORITIES NOTED

BK041034 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0410 GMT 3 Oct 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 3 Oct (SPK) -- During the last half of this year, several hundred men of "Sereika" (armed organization of the traitor Son Sann), who took refuge in Thailand, surrendered to the (?people's revolutionary authorities) in various localities of the border province of Battambang, about 300 km northwest of the capital.

The returnees revealed that their manpower is decreasing following desertions, which are increasing every day because, according to Eng Veng, 48 years old and "battalion commander" of Sereika, "I myself, as well as many other 'Sereika' men suffered a lot under Pol Pot. My wife and children were barbarously killed by his henchmen."

Eng Veng, former lieutenant under Lon Nol, left for Thailand after 7 January 1979 because, he said, "I did not have confidence in the revolution." Concerning the formation of the "tripartite coalition," he realized that "to associate with the Pol Pot gang is to lock oneself in the tiger cage" and that "to collaborate with them is to lend assistance to the hangmen of genocide."

"The realities in Kampuchea are completely different from the propaganda in Thailand," Eng Veng noted. "The development in all fields, even in remote regions, and the joy of children who go to schools in communes and villages removed my distrust and now make me determined to contribute to the building of the country." "The formation of the tripartite government," he continued, "is only to cover the corpse of the Pol Pot genocidal regime and to reinstall it in Kampuchea. The reactionaries forced refugees to enroll in their forces."

Phe Sary, 35 years old, native of Ponley commune, Prey Kabbas District, Takeo Province, surrendered to the revolutionary power with other Sereika at the beginning of September. He said he "decided to return after realizing the false propaganda of the enemy. Other repatriates had the same fate as mine. Life in the camp was humiliating, and oppression became more vigorous. I had had enough with these "bandits' and the population, who were taken by force, are using any means possible to return to Kampuchea."

At present, Eng Veng, Phe Sary and other returnees are living with their families, completely enjoying their civil rights in an independent and democratic state. They are working to rebuild a new life.

During the last dry season (November 1981-April 1982) 6,185 Sereika and Pol Pot men who took refuge in Thailand or clandestinely operated inside the country surrendered to the people's power after realizing the progress of the country in all fields.

110 FOREIGNERS SAID KILLED AT TUOL SLENG UNDER DK

[Text] Phnom Penh, 1 Oct (SPK) -- According to documents displayed today during a press conference in Phnom Penh, 85 foreigners, including 13 women, were imprisoned, tortured and executed at the Tuol Sleng high school under the "Democratic Kampuchea" regime of Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan between April 1975 and November 1978. To this figure, add 25 children, including 5 girls.

The lists, compiled by the responsible officials of the school-prison -- which has now been transformed into a museum -- according to the documents established by the Pol Pot warden, show the names, surnames, places of arrest, nationalities, occupations, dates of entry into Tuol Sleng and even dates of executions.

There were 31 Thai, 24 Pakistanis, including 8 women, 14 Indians, including 3 women, 5 Americans, 4 Lao, including 2 women, 3 Frenchmen, 2 Australians, a New Zealander and an Englishman. The 25 children slaughtered were of Indian nationality.

Frenchmen Rovin Bernand, Harard Bernard and Cotigner Andre Gaston were transferred to Tuol Sleng on 15 April 1976; Americans James William Clark and Lance MacNamara were imprisoned on 23 April 1978; Michael Scott Deed and Christopher Edward DeLance on 26 November 1978; and Stuart Glass on 13 August 1978. New Zealander Barry George Hamill was imprisoned on 13 August 1978, at the same time as Englishman John Dawson Dewhirst, whereas Australians Ronald Keith Dean and David Lloyd Scott were incarcerated on 2 November 1978.

According to the documents, Thuch Rin, who is at present the Khmer Rouge delegate for cultural affairs in the so-called tripartite coalition presided over by Sihanouk, was one of the men responsible for the arrests of these foreigners.

Many journalists and foreign diplomats accredited to Kampuchea attended this press conference in the presence of Him Chhem, assistant to the minister of information and culture of the PKK.

The "Tuol Sleng Extermination Camp" is the new name given by the present government of the PRK following the 7 January 1979 liberation to the "Tuol Svay Prey" high school, transformed after 1975 by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique into a prison called "Security Center S21." The detainees were tortured there before being killed, whether they were high-ranking cadres, old people, children or mere citizens. The hangmen used bludgeons, subjected the victims to electric shocks, peeled off their finger nails, poured water into their noses and mouths, or plunged them into barrels filled with water. They did all this until the victims admitted to crimes they had not committed.

According to the figures recorded by the services of Pol Pot, 14,499 Kampuchean adults were kept there are killed between 1975 and June 1978. If the number of children, including babies, and the victims of massacres perpetrated from July 1978 to January 1979 -- whom the documents do not account for -- are taken into account, the figure would be about 20,000 victims. On the day Phnom Penh was liberated -- 7 January 1979 -- the last 14 victims of the regime were found on the torture beds. Fetters, instruments of torture, the "regulations" that the victims had to observe during torture, heaps of clothes taken from the detainees and mass graves were discovered there.

The paper says the signing of this 25-year treaty of friendship and cooperation between Laos and GDR in Berlin by Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party CC and chairman of the Council of Ministers, and Erich Honecker, general secretary of the German Unified Socialist Party and president of the State Council, is the fruit of continuation of the long tradition of relationship between the two countries. POST: SON SANN FORCES KILL 12 SRV SOLDIERS

[Text] Armed Forces loyal to resistance leader Son Sann killed 12 Vietnamese soldiers in fighting late last month opposite Aranyaprathet District of Prachin Buri, a resistance spokesman said yesterday.

A press release by the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) said Kampuchean forces began an operation against Vietnamese positions between Sisophon and Poipet towns north of Highway 5 on September 20 and that heavy fighting was continuing. Resistance sources said Vietnamese vorces had moved into the area with fresh troops early last month, and that KPNLF troops had begun an operation to try to dislodge them. The KPNLF spokesman said three resistance soldiers were killed and 22 wounded in the fighting.

The spokesman claimed that the guerrillas captured four rifles, a machinegun and assorted other military equipment, and had dismantled 2,500 metres of Vietnamese telephone communication lines.

Meanwhile, the Phnom Penh regime said yesterday that "hundreds" of soldiers from the Son Sann forces have surrendered to the pro-Vietnamese administration during the current rainy season. Official SPK news agency also claimed that between last November and April, 6,185 members of the anti-Vietnamese resistance turned themselves in under an amnesty programme run by the Heng Samrin regime. The agency quoted a man who said he was a Son Sann battalion commander who quit the resistance after Son Sann aligned himself in the Democratic Kampuchea coalition with the Khmer Rouge.

NATION REPORTS CGDK LEADERS TO MEET EARLY NOV

BK020304 Bangkok THE NATION REVIEW in English 2 Oct 82 pp 1, 2

[Text] Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan plan to fly here early next month to attend the second round of cabinet meeting of the Democratic Kampuchean Coalition Government inside Kampuchea, a reliable diplomatic source told THE NATION last night. The source said Prince Sihanouk, president of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea (CGDK), will shuttle between Thailand and Kampuchea for about 10 days on his second trip to this country after the formation of the coalition government.

The three Khmer resistance leaders are now attending the UN General Assembly in New York, during which the CGDK's credential is expected to be challenged by Vietnam and other communist countries in the orbit of the Russian influence.

The source said that the cabinet meeting would be held under an agreement of the three Khmer resistance factions that the cabinet will meet every three months. The cabinet met for the first time in early July following the formation of the three-party coalition government in Singapore in June. The source, however, declined to disclose the agenda of the second round of meeting.

Another informed source told THE NATION that Prince Sihanouk would leave the leadership of the CGDK delegation at the UN forum to Prime Minister Son Sann to meet some of his friends in the United States before the end of the General Assembly. Vice President Khieu Samphan, leader of the Khmer Rouge, is also in the delegation.

A source in the CGDK, meanwhile, said that Vietnam will certainly raise objection to the UN's resolution on the recognition of CGDK in the UN General Assembly, although it is convinced that it will lose again this year. He confirmed earlier speculations that CGDK would receive more supporting votes from the assembly than the previous year during the credential battle. "The question is how much more the votes of support will be," he added.

Referring to the situation inside Kampuchea, the source admitted that Vietnamese soldiers appeared to have stepped up their military operations against Khmer resistance forces nationwide. He said the fighting during the rainy season is more fierce than the previous ones, claiming that over 100,000 Vietnamese soldiers have been thrown in at the battlefields in the war-torn country.

About two-thirds of the forces were, however, used for transporting logistics supply from the Vietnamese major military installations deep inside Kampuchea to the forefronts, as the Vietnamese are suffering the problem of logistic supply, according to the source. He said the Vietnamese soldiers had to be used to transport the logistics supply, as the Khmer resistance guerrillas have been successful in attacking and frequently cutting off the logistics routes through Highway No 5 and No 6. "Another reason is the flooded terrains during the rainy season," he added.

The source also noted that the Vietnamese seemed to have changed their tactics by using smaller units of troops in their nationwide campaigns against the Khmer resistance guerrillas. He cited as an example of the escalated fighting the Vietnamese attack on the Khmer Rouge stronghold on Phnom Chat Mountain, opposite Ta Phraya District of Prachinburi, but did not provide the scale of the fighting and the casualties on both sides.

SITTHI DISCUSSES REFUGEE ISSUE IN UN ADDRESS

[Text] In his speech to the UN General Assembly, Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila said the turmoil in Indochina, particularly the armed conflict in Kampuchea, has resulted in large numbers of people fleeing to seek food and shelter in neighboring countries. Since 1975, over 1 million people from Indochina have sought temporary refuge in Thailand, a country of first refuge in Southeast Asia.

Although the numbers have been reduced and many refugees have been resettled in third countries, the situation remains one of grave humanitarian concern to the international community. There are still over 150,000 Vietnamese, Lao and Kampuchean refugees in Thai holding centers. Furthermore, with the fighting in Kampuchea, there is every possibility that new waves of refugees and those displaced persons now numbering some 200,000-300,000 along the Thai-Kampuchean border will spill over into Thailand.

Therefore, countries upholding humanitarian principles should give serious attention to the need to expedite resettlement of refugees and increase resettlement opportunities in third countries.

The foreign minister said the needs of the Kampuchean people remain real and apparent along the Thai-Kampuchean border as well as in Thai holding centers. The influx of Kampucheans, as well as Vietnamese incursions into Thailand and cross-border shellings, have also displaced nearly 100,000 innocent Thai villagers. Therefore, we urge donor countries to continue to support the humanitarian programs of the United Nations along the Thai-Kampuchean border and in the holding centers in Thailand and to assist the Thai Government in the relief and rehabilitation of the affected Thai villagers.

ATHIT DENIES RESHUFFLE INTENDED TO BUILD SUPPORT

[Text] General Athit Kamlangek has issued two orders reshuffling 80 middle-ranking officers following his installation as army commander-in-chief on Friday.

The reshuffle was interpreted by observers as a move by the new army chief to strengthen his influence in the army following the annual military reshuffle late last month, which saw several officers who can cooperate with Gen Athit being promoted to important posts.

However, the new commander-in-chief denied that he was building up his military base and said he would not dare to tread the same path taken by Gen Prem Tinsulanon, as claimed by some critics. He said that the reshuffle proposals were submitted by division commanders with the approval of all regional commanding generals. "I did not work everything out alone. There are hierarchical duties and responsibilites which are to be honoured, although the transfers did not please everyone," he said. Denying that there is a rift within the army, Gen Athit said that the army's stability and efficiency are the highest priorities.

GENERALS SPEAK ON SUCCESS IN WAR AGAINST CPT

BK280137 Bangkok THE NATION REVIEW in English 25 Sep 82 pp 1, 2

[Text] The masses of the armed combatants of the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) are expected to start streaming out of the jungles next year because of the serious conflicts within the party and their vanishing faith in the armed struggle, a senior army official declared yesterday. Director of Operations Maj Gen Chaowalit Yongchaiyut told a press conference that the government is prepared to accept them back into the society where they can fight through peaceful means. He said the CPT had been toeing a wrong line of revolution and been ignorant of their mistakes. "Its fourth congress was just nonsense. It was a self-destroying congress because they did not recognize their mistakes," Maj Gen Chaowalit said during the press conference after a high-level meeting to report on the government's success in fighting against communist insurgency during the past six months. He said the continuous defections by high-ranking communist members are a clear indication of the seriousness of the conflicts within the outlawed party.

Maj Gen Chaowalit, who is to become assistant army chief of staff in October, said the CPT is disintegrating either because the masses have disowned the party but the leadership still wants to pursue their struggle, or because the leadership has given up but the masses still want to continue fighting. "Right now, the communist insurgents are preparing to lay down their arms... I expect to see the masses of the armed combatants of the CPT stream out of the jungle in 1983," he said.

Speaking at the same press conference, Assistant Chief of Staff for Operations Lt Gen Prayun Bunnak said the government had won the war against the CPT, which was weakened to the point that the party could no longer use forces to seize state power. Lt Gen Prayun said the government had during April-September concentrated on weeding out the remnants of the communist insurgents in all parts of the country. He said the army will continue keeping military pressure on the CPT until it is wiped out. "But they may continue creating chaos through subversive activities," he warned. All the major strongholds of the CPT have been destroyed and its arms seized by the government forces, while its sympathizers had been declining, he said.

Maj Gen Chaowalit attributed the government's success in its war against the CPT to the famous policy No. 66/2523 and disclosed that the government is stepping up its "political offensive" through all levels. "It is imperative that people at the highest level of the government must understand the problem," he said.

The meeting yesterday was attended by several high-ranking government authorities with Premier Prem Tinsulanon as chairman. Army Commander in Chief Gen Prayut Charumani, Secretary General of the National Security Council Prasong Sunsiri and governors of all provinces were among those present.

Further on Prayun Remarks

[Text] The government has scored a "complete victory" over the outlawed Communist Party of Thailand and has virtually stalled its armed revolution, said a high-ranking army officer yesterday following a top-level meeting to evaluate anticommunist operations. "Six months ago we said we were winning the war against the communists. Today we want to confirm that we have won the war completely," said Assistant Army Chief of Staff for Operations Lt Gen Prayun Bunnak at a press conference. The meeting at the Chunlachomklao Military Academy was chaired by Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon and attended by more than 500 high-ranking government officials, including cabinet members, members of Parliament, and high-ranking personnel from the armed forces, police, ministries and various departments concerned.

Lt-Gen Prayun attributed the government's victory to successful implementation of political and military campaigns starting in 1980. "We can say now that the CPT is no longer in a position to topple the government by force," he said. He added that the CPT would need three major factors -- organisation, united front members and sufficient armed men -- if it wanted to stage a large-scale revolution. However, all of these factors do not now exist as a result of campaigns launched under Government Order No. 66/23, which grants amnesty to those communists who surrender voluntarily to the government, he said. He said most of the CPT's armed factions have been crushed and a large number of military supplies seized, while major rifts have taken place within the CPT itself, as clearly seen by the many defections. The united front members, mainly villagers, have also withdrawn their support for the communists, thus isolating them, he said, adding that "it is likely all their members will finally surrender." He admitted, however, that the CPT was still capable of staging sporadic attacks, sabotage and other action aimed to create unrest in the country, but he said the government was not unduly worried as long as it had the cooperation of the people. Lt-Gen Prayun pinpointed major regions where suppression campaigns have met success:

-- Major CPT bases at Doi Pha Mon, Doi Yao, Doi Phachi, Phu Miang, Phu Khat, Hin Longka, and South Umphang in the north were destroyed and large amounts of military supplies were seized.

-- In the northeast, all major Red strongholds at Phu Sang and Phu Khiao and the adjoining zonal line of the Second and Third Army Regions have been wiped out in the past year. Pressure is now being exerted on small armed groups.

-- In the central plains, the First Army Region has destroyed bases in Kanchanaburi, Phetchaburi and Prachin Buri Provinces and has been successful in reducing communist influence over the villagers. The First Army also met success with the CPT's united fronts, particularly with its schemes to develop the city's slum areas.

-- In the south, the Fourth Army Region seized a major CPT stronghold, Camp 508 in Surat Thani, and the Communist Party of Malaya base at Khao Namkhang.

On the same topic, the director of the Army Operations Department, Maj-Gen Chaowalit Yongchaiyut, said Prime Minister Prem emphasised the government's political campaign as a continuing measure against communism during yesterday's meeting. He said the premier gave special attention to the government's policy to improve the political and socioeconomic systems as the next step in its fight against communism, especially the kindling of the people's faith in democracy and free enterprise.

NATION REVIEW SAYS CPT LEADERSHIP DISINTEGRATING

BK290327 Bangkok THE NATION REVIEW in English 29 Sep 82 p 4

[Editorial: "CPT Leadership Shows Signs of Disintegration"]

[Text] The Communist Party of Thailand, or rather we should say communist insurgents in Thailand, have been at the crossroads many times, but at present they seem to have very little choice as to which road they have to take.

It is very easy to disclaim that the military authorities in Thailand -- the Supreme Command or the Internal Security Operations Command, or whatever -- are pulling a fast one and that communist insurrection that has been with us for over 2 decades is being steadily downgraded in order to boost the prestige of the military. But at this time, that does not seem to be the case.

There are too many variables involved to come to such a conclusion through logical argument. However, the main points can be enumerated as the continuing number of defections increase and the success which our armed forces have achieved in suppressing insurgency continues. But at first we must consider what the leadership of the CPT and its ranks and file are composed of. They are not people who are ideologically committed, people who have read and been convinced by Marx, Engels and Lenin. The most reading they may have done is the "little red book" of Mao Zedong's thoughts.

Without any real ideological orientation, they have been manipulated by outside forces because they are mainly those who have hated autocratic governments, or who have some personal dissatisfaction to work out, or who have read about revolutions and thought them to be glamorous, or just plain antisocial elements. Such a grouping is totally amorphous and, so long as outside authority was exercised on them, they had some reason to fall prey to propaganda about military dictatorship.

But steadily, since 1978, they began losing their raison d'etre. To put that thought in other words, they had almost nothing to fight against. The leadership -- and we are talking about CPT's Thai leadership -- could see that China was becoming more and more friendly to Thailand on a government-to-government level. And, further, they were in a better position to understand what Vietnam was doing in Kampuchea and in Laos, then even those of us in Bangkok.

From all the news that has been appearing in the newspapers during the past month, and from what responsible persons have been saying during that time, it is clear that the CPT leadership has cracked -- worse, it has disintegrated. The question whether Humpty Dumpty could be put together again is purely rhetorical. There was a threat voiced by Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach in Singapore not too long ago that his country will take over the leadership of the CPT and create troubles for Thailand if this country kept on supporting the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea. But, from today's point of view, that is an idle boast because taking over a disintegrating leadership in the CPT is neither easy nor can it be done within a short space of time.

Of course the Vietnamese would like to take over the CPT leadership, but that is not so easy since contacts are very tenuous. China, at least, has openly said that it is and it will maintain party-to-party relationship with the CPT and has been doing so. Several of the leaders who have defected have complained that the Thai in the CPT leadership have little say in important matters, while it is the Chinese who are always in overall command. It is too late in the day for the Vietnamese to try to cut for themselves a piece of the cake -- because there is no cake.

Almost everyone in Thailand has realized that there is a certain calmness in the country. And calmness, bordering on indifference, is not something which insurgents can exploit.

BREZHNEV FOREIGN POLICY REMARKS IN BAKU CITED

[Text] According to TASS, on 26 September in Baku, Comrade Brezhnev, general secretary of the CPSU central committee and chairman of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, presented the Lenin Order to the Azerbaijan SSR in recognition of the great achievements recorded by Azerbaijan in implementing the 1976-80 5-year plan.

Speaking at the order presentation ceremony, Comrade Brezhnev stressed the ever-increasing contributions made by Azerbaijan to the Soviet economy and welcomed the great efforts undertaken by this republic to carry out the national grain program.

On foreign relations, the comrade pointed out: Generally speaking, in its international activities, the Soviet Union supports the promotion of those countries that have been freed from colonial and semicolonial domination and are embarking on the road of independence and progress. We believe that the policies of these countries may satisfactorily influence the world situation. For this reason, like other socialist countries, the Soviet Union actively supports the consolidation of peaceful cooperation, unification and solidarity among Asian, African and Latin American countries, and the strengthening of the prestige and effectiveness of the organizations of these countries such as the OAU, the Arab League and so forth.

For many years and even for decades, the Soviet Union has strived for international detente. To us, detente is a very profound and broad concept. First, it is the common trend of those nations and their leaders who do not want to prepare for war and create hostility with other nations, and who desire peaceful cooperation with other nations. It is normal contact among countries and nations, strict respect for the standards of international law, respect for each country's sovereignty and nonintervention in each other's internal affairs. Last, it is the continuing desire to contribute, through practical actions, to preventing the arms race from spreading throughout the world, and the desire to consolidate security on the basis of strengthening mutual trust ever more deeply, in accordance with principles which are equitable and common to both parties.

From a general point of view, detente is a historic achievement of all nations. Whatever the circumstances, we must not allow it to be trampled upon by the bigoted and egoistic policies of imperialism. It must be protected, developed and consolidated and it will be the victory of human conscience over dangerous and frenzied warlike acts. We are convinced of such a victory, because we trust in human intelligence and in the self-preservation instinct of all nations.

[Text] President Leonid Brezhnev has reaffirmed the Soviet people's desire to live in peace with all nations and to concentrate all efforts on building the country.

Speaking in Baku on Sunday, the Soviet president said: Detente is the historical gain of all nations. In any case, it should not be trampled upon by narrow-minded and selfish politicians of imperialism and it must be defended, consolidated and developed.

He considered the normalization and gradual improvement of relations between the Soviet Union and China, on the basis of mutual understanding, respect for each other and mutual benefit, a very important problem. In addition to our present friendship and cooperation with Asian countries, this will be a good contribution to the consolidation of peace and stability in Asia as well as in the whole world, Mr Brezhnev added.

VNA REJECTS THAI CHARGE ON TROOP DEPLOYMENT

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, October 4 -- Thai army officers, quoted by Radio Beijing yesterday, said that a great number of Vietnamese troops with heavy weapons had been deployed along Highway 5 and Highway 502 linking Poipet, Battambang and Phnum Malai in Kampuchea, in preparation for a new offensive.

VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY is authorized to completely reject this fabrication. As we have already pointed out, slander of this kind is aimed at distorting Vietnam's good will, belittling the significance of the partial withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Kampuchea, and furthering the dark designs of Beijing expansionism and hegemony.

JOURNAL DISCUSSES POLITICAL WORK AT BORDER POSTS

[September 1982 TAP CHI QUAN DOI NHAN DAN article by (Bui Nguyen): "Political Work at Forward Positions Set Up To Counter the Enemy's Nibbling Operations"]

[Text] The fifth party congress pointed out in its resolution: Our country is now in a situation wherein it enjoys peace while having to face a kind of multifaceted war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists acting hand in glove with the U.S. imperialists and, at the same time, having to stand ready to cope with the possibility of a large-scale war of aggression started by the enemy. The war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionist and hegemonist clique is quite different from the war of destruction launched by the U.S. imperialists -- with the support of their navy and air force -- against the northern part of our country in the past. It is a war of sabotage in all aspects -- economic, military, political, psychological, cultural and social.

In the recent past, along with intensively sabotaging our economic and daily life and frenziedly conducting psychological warfare and espionage activities, the enemy has continuously expanded its military activities which are characterized by many armed nibbling operations against various heights and vital positions along the northern border. In view of this, party work and political work at all forward positions must undergo changes so as to effectively cope with the enemy's schemes and tricks. Efforts must also be made to equip our cadres and soldiers with a strategic outlook so that they study and assess correctly and adequately the enemy's nibbling operations in its overall plan for the current war of sabotage.

To carry out political work satisfactorily at all forward positions along the northern border, we must, first of all, make our cadres and soldiers profoundly understand all the schemes and the nature of the war of sabotage waged by the enemy and, on that basis, assess most adequately the significance of its armed nibbling operations. This is necessary to enhance their vigilance and fighting will so that they can stand ready to fight the enemy and hold fast to their forward positions, thus firmly defending every inch of territory along the border.

The enemy's armed nibbling operations are not accidental or spontaneous activities; they have become a new strategic measure aimed at achieving new military objectives under the strategy of the Chinese reactionary clique's multifaceted war of sabotage against our country. In nibbling at various forward positions along the northern border, the Chinese reactionaries aim at occupying part of our territory to build fortifications and roads for maintaining direct links with their rear areas and consolidating and strengthening the deployment of their forward forces, as well as establishing new springboards to continue their nibbling operations or launch a large-scale war of aggression when conditions permit.

Through their nibbling operations, they also hope to detect our advantages and weaknesses or loopholes in each defensive area as well as along the entire defensive line, and to study our intentions and preparedness in all aspects. They also use these operations as an alternate training measure to familiarize their troops with realities on the battlefield even though they still cannot launch a war of aggression on a large scale. Moreover, by conducting these nibbling operations, the Chinese reactionaries hope that they can gradually achieve their objectives without having to face protests from public opinion in their own country and in the world and without affecting their four modernizations plan.

It is most important to carry out political work at various forward positions in such a way as to ensure that all cadres and soldiers know how to defend these positions and other defensive areas under their responsibility, as well as how to annihilate enemy troops and smash their nibbling operations.

It is the stability of each forward position which will help to create the common stability of each group of forward positions and each defensive area. To contribute most positively to the fulfillment of this task, we must carry out party work and political work in such a way as to make all cadres and soldiers thoroughly understand their duties so that they can take the initiative in preventing and countering the enemy's nibbling operations and uphold the spirit of fighting independently in annihilating the enemy to defend their forward positions and defensive areas without having to depend on or wait for reinforcements from the rear areas.

It is necessary to make all cadres and soldiers clearly understand the role of forward positions and firmly grasp the specific tasks assigned to each of them and to their units so that they will understand what they should do to help defend these positions firmly and how to do it. It is also necessary to instill in each of them a high degree of fighting will so as to enable them to hold fast to their positions, stand ready to annihilate the enemy, and fiercely counterattack their nibbling operations.

Efforts should be made to ensure that everyone is ready for all eventualities so that they can defend their forward positions resolutely and successfully against enemy nibbling operations, no matter how big or malignant. For this reason, it is even more important to make each forward portion display the spirit of fighting independently so that it can assume all combat duties and fight gallantly on its own.

If every forward position can develop its strength fully and vigorously in order to fulfill its duties satisfactorily without having to depend on reinforcements from other units or from its higher echelon, we will be able to make our defensive line ever stronger while successfully maintaining secrecy about the status and firepower deployment plans and systems at all forward positions, thus making it difficult for the enemy to detect and assess our advantages and weaknesses.

We must closely combine party work and political work with other political assignments at all forward positions. This is aimed not only at carrying out ideological work, but also at closely observing the performance of organizational work and combat preparation and combat duties. It is action which shows whether or not ideological work is tremendously effective. Therefore, we must closely combine ideological work with organizational work and must use the results obtained during the actual daily activities of the cadres and soldiers to inspect the performance of ideological and political work at various forward positions.

Even before the struggle against nibbling operations was launched, party work and political work played an active role in helping various forward positions formulate combat plans and making everyone -- from cadres to soldiers -- understand these plans thoroughly. We must vigorously develop the creativity of everyone in discussing and providing views for the revision and improvement of combat plans aimed at diminishing the enemy's vital forces while firmly defending our forward positions with minimum losses.

Suitable contingency plans for combat are usually available at every forward position. However, under all circumstances, political work must be focused in particular on making the cadres and soldiers recognize the most applicable plan along with enabling them to prepare themselves both ideologically and organizationally for the most difficult and decisive eventuality. All cadres and soldiers are required to hold fast to their forward positions, no matter what the combat plans. They should know how to act in order to help annihilate the enemy and defend their forward positions.

It is the duty of all forward positions to remain constantly combat ready and to prepare continuously for all combat activities. In view of this, political work at all forward positions should be focused vigorously on that duty. It is necessary to use the combat plans and the results of the work in preparing to implement these plans to train, motivate and direct the masses in how to act.

In conducting combat activities at forward positions, it is necessary for everyone to be familiar with the terrain and to firmly grasp the firepower and barricade networks. Every cadre and soldier must know how to use well all types of weapons and equipment provided and must be familiar with the enemy's weapons so that they can use them when necessary.

Political work is not only aimed at closely observing the way each component or individual prepares for combat, but is also aimed at closely observing every aspect of the work so that any issue involved which needs reinforcing or correcting can be promptly detected. It is always necessary to use the requirements of the contingency plans designed for the fiercest counterattack under the most difficult conditions to inspect readiness in all aspects. Only by combining a high degree of fighting will and good combat tactics with adequate preparation in terms of material and technical equipment can we ensure success and make our cadres and soldiers firmly confident.

How can we fight independently or for any length of time according to the combat plans if we have guns but not sufficient ammunition, if our guns and ammunition do not match, if our combat trenches are not connected and up to technical standardsa, and if we have weapons and equipment but not enough rice, food, water and medicine due to lack of effectiveness of our logistics and army medical services?

Thus, combat preparation work is extremely painstaking. It can be said that this is a continuing process which is subjected to constant replenishment and improvement. The better the preparatory work, the greater our combat achievements will be. This is the duty of those in charge of procurement, logistics and technical work. This is also a part of the party and political work at forward positions. It is necessary to focus ideological and organization activities as well as all other political activities concerned on comprehensively accelerating combat preparation work at forward positions.

We should use the results of our struggle to improve the fighting strength of all forward positions and evaluate our actual effectiveness. Countering the enemy's armed, nibbling operations is always the foremost and permanent duty of all forward positions along the northern border defensive line. Those assigned to these positions should always remain in a state of combat readiness. That is the objective requirement and the special characteristic of operational law at places where we confront the enemy face to face.

We must launch successful counterattacks against enemy nibbling operations and, despite their efforts to cause constant tension, we must organize life at these forward positions rationally to be able to carry out our tasks regularly and on a long-term basis. That is why the normalization of life at forward positions is very important to and has great effect on the morale of the soldiers. That is also an objective of party work and political work at forward positions.

Normalizing life at forward positions does not mean optimism or, for instance, relaxation of vigilance, but it means to relax with the understanding that we must always be in a state of combat readiness. To achieve this goal, we not only have to standardize all combat readiness procedures, but also create favorable conditions for the successful organization of a happy, healthy and vigorous life suitable to the actual conditions at each forward position.

We should not allow life at forward positions to exist on a daily basis just because we have to maintain combat readiness and fight the enemy strenuously. On the contrary, we must, on the basis of firmly ensuring all combat readiness procedures, quickly put life -- including the spiritual and cultural life -- at all forward positions in good order. Realities at many forward positions show that this should and can be done.

Despite numerous difficulties at forward positions, many companies and battalions have already built their own clubs and two-room cultural houses.

Although it is located only 100 meters from the enemy line, the 1st Battalion is still able to conduct physical training at its forward position. All forward positions have arranged sufficient space for such activities as table tennis, volleyball, single bar routines, parallel bar routines and even soccer.

The song and music movement has also flourished vigorously at various forward positions. Many companies have formed their own bands, using mainly self-made instruments such as flutes, single-string guitars and two-string violins. Many forward positions have also paid attention to organizing and improving the material life of their cadres and soldiers. At those forward positions situated on 300- or 400-meter-high hills along the northwestern border, cadres and soldiers have even defied difficulties to install pipes to bring in water from as far away as 2 or 3 km for their daily consumption. Some units have sought to secure a source of fresh food for their daily diet right in the hills by raising fish in various natural ponds and lakes while many others have raised chickens and hogs and grown vegetables and beans, almost enough to satisfy their needs, thus helping to alleviate an important part of their logistics problem.

Developing the advantages of the localities in which they are stationed, many units have collected timber and bamboo from the forests to build mess halls, living quarters, clubs and conference halls, as well as to make furniture such as office desks, beds and personal lockers.

Normalizing life at forward positions is a task which conforms to the objective requirements of our combat duties as well as to the legitimate aspirations of our cadres and soldiers. All nibbling operations of the Chinese expansionists have not been conducted on a separate basis; they have, in fact, been carried out in combination with other activities in the strategy of their war of sabotage in the border areas.

As pointed out by the resolution of the fifth party congress, faced with the present situation, countering the war of sabotage waged by the Chinese reactionary clique is the main objective of the struggle for national defense and the responsibility of our entire party, people and armed forces. To achieve this we must closely combine the struggle against the enemy's nibbling operations with the struggle against their sabotage activities in the economic, political and psychological fields. We must also combine the strength of our armed forces with that of all localities concerned in order to form a great combined strength to fight and defeat the enemy in all fields.

To carry out political work at forward positions, we must know how to rely on the combined strength of the localities in which our troops are stationed, and must know how to combine this work closely with all the activities of the local administration and mass organizations against the war of sabotage, which are placed under the centralized and unified leadership of various party committee echelons.

In addition, we must make careful plans and must regularly brief cadres and soldiers on the enemy's schemes and activities in areas where our troops are stationed and on the intentions of the concerned localities. On the other hand, we must make all of them clearly understand the duties assigned to each of them and each unit in the common struggle against the enemy's war of sabotage by various localities and armed forces along the northern border.

MOKHTAR SAYS THACH TO VISIT JAKARTA 'THIS MONTH'

[Text] Jakarta, Oct 4 (AFP) -- Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach will visit Jakarta this month, Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said last night. The date of the visit had not been officially set, Mr Mokhtar said on his return from New York where he had attended the U.N. General Assembly. Vietnamese Embassy sources here said Mr Thach would most probably visit Indonesia during the last week of this month.

Mr Mokhtar said he had held a meeting with Mr Thach in New York to discuss the Cambodian problem, and the proposed international conference on Cambodia. "There is still a gap of difference between Vietnam and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) on the proposed conference," he said. Vietnam wanted the conference to discuss everything but ASEAN urged that the conference whould deal with the Cambodian problem alone, he added. Mr Mokhtar told the U.N. General assembly that the situation in Cambodia had not changed substantially and remained a matter of serious concern. He reaffirmed that the ASEAN countries (Singapore, Thailand, Malyasia, the Philippines and Indonesia) were committed to seek a just political solution of the Cambodian problem. "Suspicion and mistrust should be removed from Southeast Asia, thus paving the way for the resumption of a meaningful dialogue and cooperative relations among the states in the region," he added.

On East Timor, he said he was hopeful that Indonesia would gain more supports on the Timor issue, which would come up in the assembly debate probably before the end of the month. Several U.N. members of former Portuguese colonies put forward a resolution every year opposing Indonesia's annexation of East Timor which has become Jakarta's 27th province.

VOMD EDITORIAL GREETS PRC NATIONAL DAY

BK031414 (Clandestine) Voice of Malayan Democracy in Malay 1215 GMT 30 Sep 82

[Editorial: "May the People's Republic of China Be Prosperous and Strong"]

[Summary] October 1st is the 33d anniversary of the founding of the PRC. On this occasion, as the heroic Chinese people celebrate their National Day in rousing socialist development, all nationalities in Malaya are also elated with the victories of the PRC, which is moving forward step by step toward attaining prosperity and strength.

"Peace and stability in this Asian region, particularly Southeast Asia, are very closely related to the resolute attitude of the 1 billion Chinese people against any threat of foreign aggression and their desire to develop their own country peacefully. It is a fact that it is unimaginable to maintain a peaceful and relatively stable situation in many countries located between the Philippines and Afghanistan without the resolute and impressive capability of the PRC against Soviet ambition and aggression. The great achievements of the Chinese Communist Party and government in improving the fate of the common people and its continued contribution to world peace and stability in this region and the whole world have been acknowledged and appreciated by many more governments and people throughout the world."

"Now many people are paying very careful attention to the fact that in view of [words indistinct] some ASEAN nations are vigilant against Soviet-Vietnamese plots while actively supporting the formation of a coalition government of Kampuchea comprised of the three anti-Vietnamese factions. However, the compromise and appeasement by the ruling cliques in Malaysia and Singapore remain a fact. All people know that as the Kampuchea coalition government became established, both the Malaysian and Singapore ruling cliques particularly cultivated one of the factions in order to pressure and [words indistinct] the other factions. [Words indistinct] they are suspicious, afraid and hostile to the revolutionary struggle of the Chinese people. This led them to their inability to see objectively who the main threat to this region is. The Malaysian and Singapore ruling cliques obstinately refused to recognize the fact that the Democratic Kampuchean army and people are the real and most impressive force in resisting Vietnam's aggression and in preventing Vietnam from spreading the flames of war. Furthermore, they could not bear to see the military strength of Democratic Kampuchea grow from day to day. They entertained the illusion that through persuasion and compromise the Soviet Union and Vietnam would be willing to withdraw their forces from Kampuchea. With hidden motives they expressed the view that Vietnam could be pulled out of the Soviet embrace with economic bait and by turning the direction of Vietnam's aggression and agitation northward.

"It is indeed because of this that the Soviet Union and Vietnam are taking advantage of the views of the Malaysian and Singapore ruling cliques. Using all kinds of tricks, they have exploited the different views to strain the friendly relations between ASEAN and China by creating the so-called China threat. However, the people entertain an entirely different view than the ruling reactionary groups. The progressive circles and army and the revolutionary people at large of all nationalities in our country hold the view that the development and consolidation of the socialist system in China is a great boost for the people in this region in their struggle to safeguard the independence of the country and national liberation."

Our people know well that the establishment of the PRC in 1949 not only marked the victory of China's new democratic revolution, but also opened a new page in the history of the overall destruction and decline of colonialism in Asia and Africa. Without the victory of the Chinese people's revolutionary struggle and without the strong blows by the Chinese people against the U.S., British, Japanese and other imperialist forces, the direct dark colonialism in Southeast Asia might not have been completely ended.

"The Malaysian and Singapore ruling cliques are uneasy about the possibility of China exporting revolution to this region and shaking their positions because they are afraid that the complete eradication of class exploitation and repression in China will open the eyes and strengthen the conviction of our people on the democratic national revolutionary course that should be launched.

"Actually, whoever studies history and the facts without political prejudice should know that socialist China, as one of the main promoters of the five principles of peaceful coexistence, has thus far been honest and frank and has been tested in its diplomatic relations. Socialist China has always been willing to coexist peacefully with countries having different social systems and has never interfered in the internal affairs of other countries.

"In the past few years, for the sake of peace, stability and prosperity in Asia in general and the Southeast Asian region in particular, the PRC Government has launched a series of efforts which have been appreciated by many nations and people in the regions concerned. The Chinese leaders have repeatedly asserted the PRC's call that the social and political system of a country should only be chosen and determined by the people themselves without foreign interference. Their statements are reliable and their deeds have been tested.

"However, the Malaysian and Singapore ruling cliques strongly (?interpreted) the phrase non-interference in the internai affairs of other countries as meaning the Chinese Government and people must abandon [word indistinct] aid and even moral support to all oppressed and repressed countries and peoples. This is simply an unrealistic illusion as everyone knows there is no force in this world which can sever mental relations and feelings among people of various countries having a common ideology, not to mention the militant friendship among revolutionary people who believe in socialism.

"The U.S.-Soviet contention for world hegemony has created disorder in many countries throughout the world. The Soviet-Vietnamese hegemonism and aggression in Southeast Asia will not be limited to Kampuchea and Indochina. In the face of such a serious situation, countries in Southeast Asia and all peace-loving countries should strengthen their cooperation and take strong measures to prevent aggression and maintain peace. Peace and stability in Southeast Asia calls for a prosperous and strong socialist China which resolutely opposes hegemonism. We are of the view that the mutually friendly relations in all sectors between the two sides -- Malaya and China -- not only reflect the people's wishes but are also a necessity for the development of the situation. Therefore, statements and steps which are deliberately aimed at obstructing the proposal for strengthening the relationship between Malaya and China should be erased and opposed."

The struggle of the Third World countries in the international economic field also needs the participation and active support of a prosperous and strong China. China is concentrating its attention on the attainment of socialist modernization and has attained visible results.

In conjunction with the 33d anniversary of China's National Day, we wish the PRC prosperity and strength.

MARCOS URGES JAPANESE ACTION ON BILATERAL ISSUES

HK050553 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 4 Oct 82

[Text] President Marcos yesterday requested the Japanese Government to expedite actions on pending problems between the Philippines and Japan. The president conveyed this request through Ambassador Hideho Tanaka who called to congratulate him on the tremendous success of his state visit to the United States which will contribute greatly to the stability in Southeast Asia. The president cited among pressing problems between the two countries: 1) the request of the Philippines for a $120 million advance for the copper-mining industry; 2) the 20 percent reduction on tariffs on Philippine bananas and the question of Philippine-made corrugated cardboard boxes; and 3) the pending air agreement. The president told Ambassador Tanaka that during his visit to the United States, he had said the Philippines was depending on Japan for support in the copper-mining industry. The president pointed out that it was to the advantage of Japan that the mining companies continue operations; otherwise, Japan would lose 40 percent of its copper ore sources.

PONCE ENRILE CRITICIZES AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has hit four international groups. He said yesterday the London-based Amnesty International and the World Council of Churches have Marxist leanings. The defense minister denounced the two international organizations during a friefing for members of the defense press corps on the recent state visit of the president to the United States.

Defense Minister Enrile said his assessment of the leanings of the two organizations, particularly in democratic and developing Third World countries, including the Philippines, was confirmed by a report published in the October issue of the READER'S DIGEST. The defense minister feferred to an article entitled "Karl Marx or Jesus Christ?" by Joseph Harris in the magazine's October issue. He said the article's analysis was an eye opener.

Enrile criticized the Amnesty International report on alleged violations of human rights and its attempts to interfere in the affairs of the Philippine Government. Enrile said Amnesty International is even recommending that the government repeal the Judiciary Reorganization Act of 1981 and restore security of tenure in the judiciary.

Enrile said that members of the Amnesty International, through their local representatives, came to the Philippines in 1975 with the list of persons to be interviewed. Among those in the list were Father Idisio de la Torre, Renato (Precipe), [name indistinct], Julio Segun, Reynaldo (Ilaw), Reynaldo Guillermo, (Cenon) [name indistinct], Charlie (Palmarve), Allan (Naswides). Enrile said: De la Torre later disappeared, and the Catholic hierarchy blamed this disappearance on the military. But Enrile said after 6 months, De la Torre turned up in Germany with a woman, supposedly a nun, with whom he had eloped.

General Ver's Comments

HK040844 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 1 Oct 82 p 5

[Text] Gen. Fabian C. Ver, armed forces chief of staff, said yesterday more countries are interested in buying Philippine-made armaments as he announced the AFP's [Armed Forces of the Philippines] initial export earnings of P17 million. The export earnings were generated from the AFP's export of radio communication sets and mini-cruisers from August 1981 to July 1982, he said.

"Inquiries from various countries have been received to buy our locally manufactured M-16 assault rifle, mortar tube, mortar ammunition, caliber 5.56 mm ammunition, rifle grenades, gun barrels, M-16 magazine, air force practice bombs and our 110-kilogram bomb," Ver said. Ver said these items are promising nontraditional export commodities.

He also said the AFP's self-reliance defense program [SRDP] has provided employment for 2,202 skilled and semi-skilled workers. Through self-reliance, he said, "the country has saved P45.3 million, not to mention the dollar savings that were realized as a result of the cost difference between a locally manufactured item and the imported equivalent."

Ver said that "aside from the economic advantage it has gained through the implementation of the SRDP program, the country's defense capability has been enhanced." The country has been producing its own armaments since 1974, such as the M-16 rifles, rifle grenades, mortars, gunboats and other defense items. As a result of the successful SRDP program, Ver recently released P91.6 million to finance on-going self-reliance projects in various units of the AFP.

Col. Jose C. Bello, Jr., acting deputy chief of staff for material development, said the SRDP is in line with the pronouncement of President Marcos "for an imaginative effort in making use of our indigenous resources to achieve the objective of self-reliance."

"It is also aimed to develop allied civilian industries to enable them to extend meaningful assistance to the national effort in terms of producing our own defense equipment and armaments," he said.

MIYAZAWA ON U.S. TREASURY SECRETARY'S REMARKS

OW060407 Tokyo KYODO in English 0350 GMT 6 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 6, KYODO -- A top Japanese Government spokesman said Wednesday there would be no wonder cure for the yen's recent depreciation. Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa was commenting on an overnight remark on the depreciation by U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, who attributed the yen's decline chiefly to the Japanese economy facing a crisis. Miyazawa said: "It is important for the government to make every effort to eliminate its deficits and stabilize commodity prices for some time to come."

OW060645 Tokyo KYODO in English 0625 GMT 6 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 6, KYODO -- The first group of 148 Chinese students arrived in Japan Wednesday to take Japanese university graduate courses with Chinese Government scholarship aid. Of the total, mostly majoring in science and engineering, 66 landed in Osaka to enter universities in the Kansai District, and the rest came to Tokyo. They are newly graduated elite sent to Japan following six-month preparatory studies in China. They had entered universities throughout China after passing the country's first nationwide uniform entrance examinations since the Cultural Revolution and graduated last January.

The Chinese will enter 38 Japanese state and other public universities including the University of Tokyo, Kyoto University and Tokyo Metropolitan University as research students for a period of six months. They will take examinations next spring for two-year master courses.

The program to accommodate Chinese students sent by the Chinese Government got under way in 1979. A total of 1,049 Chinese came to Japan under the program as of May 1 of this year. There are 780 Chinese currently studying in Japan.

PRC TRADE OFFICIAL VIEWS ECONOMIC RELATIONS

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 6, KYODO -- A senior Chinese trade official predicted Wednesday Sino-Japanese economic and trade relations would "achieve a greater development" in the next 10, 20 years. Noting Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang had exchanged visits in recent months, Dai Jie, director of Import and Export Bureau, Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade, said these "marked a new chapter in the Sino-Japanese economic and trade relations," whose future would be very bright. Dai was speaking at the opening ceremony of the China exhibition in Tokyo, describing it as "of great help to the promotion of Sino-Japanese economic and trade relations," on the heel of the 10th anniversary of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Trade balance between Japan and China turned into the latter's favor last year for the first time in five years, but China is concerned about deterioration in the trade environment resulting from a slump in the international economy. China has instructed its sectors concerned with trade to achieve annual export targets, which have not been disclosed so far.

Jade carvings, pottery, inkstones, cloisonne, accessories such as necklaces, and industrial crafts such as woven fabrics and embroideries are among some 370 items on display at the show being held at the exhibition hall of the semiofficial Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO) in the World Import Mart building in Ikebukuro, western Tokyo. The exhibition, lasting until December 25, is sponsored by JETRO and the Foreign Trade Bureau, and the Import and Export Bureau of the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations and Trade.

ECONOMIC TALKS WITH ROK POSTPONED TILL 1983

[Text] Tokyo (YONHAP) -- The Japanese Ministry of Foreign Affairs is said to have concluded it is impossible to resume economic cooperation talks and hold an annual ministerial meeting with Korea within this year. A ministry source said Tuesday they will have to be postponed to next spring, pointing out both countries' busy political schedules. It will be impossible to hold the meeting as well as to reopen negotiations on the loan package of $4 billion because the Korean National Assembly is in session and the Japanese Diet plans to have an extraordinary meeting while the Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) elects its chairman, he said.

Another source said the resumption of economic talks would invite misunderstanding now that the anti-Japanese movement triggered by the textbook dispute is intensifying in Korea. A recent foreign ministers' meeting in New York failed to make a breakthrough in revitalizing the strained relations between the two countries, he said. The textbook controversy, though diplomatically settled, may flare up again if the Tokyo government fails to redress the Korean people's ill feeings when revising the disputed textbooks.

His schedule will be worked out by working-level officials of the two countries, the Japanese officials said.

NODONG SINMUN HITS CHON REMARKS AT AIR BASE

[NODONG SINMUN 6 October commentary: "Rash, Reckless Acts of Warmonger"]

[Text] Traitor Chon Tu-hwan's war frenzy is reaching a very reckless stage. According to a report, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, abruptly appearing at an air force base on the central front on 3 October, inspired war frenzy at the direction of the U.S. imperialists. That day, traitor Chon Tu-hwan raved about establishment of a perfect nighttime mobilization posture, the importance of early morning and so forth.

Today, military exercises are being staged in South Korea one after another to mobilize all potentials for the execution of war and conspiracy for war is being repeatedly held between the U.S. imperialists and the puppets.

The bellicose acts and remarks of the Chon Tu-hwan clique are very ominous and are of a very dangerous nature. It is not difficult to understand the meaning of the long-term raving on a perfect nighttime mobilization posture, importance of early morning and so forth made by the Chon Tu-hwan clique during its tour of military bases. Recklessly raving on the extermination of communism and so forth whenever they find time, the South Korean puppets are accelerating reinforcement and modernization of the puppet army to reach a complete war preparation posture and intensifying the military provocation maneuvers against us.

Every day since traitor Chon Tu-hwan usurped power there has been a continuation of powder-reeking war preparations and military exercises against the same people. The instigation of war by the traitor puppet's tour of the puppet army units is clear evidence showing that he is going to trigger a war against the northern half of the republic at last and that he is watching for the right time.

We cannot think of the puppets' war maneuvers as distinguishable from the U.S. imperialists' aggressive policy toward Korea. The U.S. imperialists, bringing the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique to the front, are attempting to permanently seize South Korea as their colony and military base and to achieve their ambition to invade all of Korea. The U.S. imperialists are strengthening U.S. forces occupying South Korea and their forces of aggression around the Korean Peninsula. They are continuously bringing in modern lethal weapons. At the same time, they are instigating the South Korean puppets to the road of military adventure. The remarks of U.S. Secretary of State Shultz made on commitment for security to the South Korean puppets some time ago are aimed at driving the puppets to war.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, attempting to find a way to survive by depending on outside forces and waging war rackets, runs amok to faithfully execute the U.S. imperialists' aggressive policy. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, faithy colonial stooge of the U.S. imperialists, is not interested in the nation's peace and peaceful reunification; he only seeks to achieve his ambition for power and to live in splendor at the cost of executing the U.S. imperialists' Korean strategy.

A strained situation in which war could break out at any moment persists on the Korean Peninsula due to the new war preparation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets.

The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique is indeed the enemy of peace and peaceful reunification and is the culprit faithfully executing the policy of war and colonial rule of the U.S. imperialists -- vicious aggressors and warmongers. It is ridiculous that such a rascal should rave about peace and reunification, the people and independence. The anti-U.S. spirit for independence and antifascist spirit for a struggle for democratization are increasing further among the South Korean people. The U.S. imperialists' colonial rule over South Korea and the puppets' barbarous terrorist rule are arousing strong denunciation and protests by the people at home and abroad.

The rash, reckless acts of traitor Chon Tu-hwan, scheming to find a way out from a deepened crisis at home and abroad by waging war rackets at the instigation of the U.S. imperialists, are foolish acts similar to digging his own grave.

The U.S. imperialists should stop the anachronistic occupation of South Korea and abandon the policy of war. They should discontinue instigating the puppets to war. If the Chon Tu-hwan clique continues running down the criminal road of executing the U.S. imperialists' policy of war against fellow countrymen as a filthy puppet of the U.S. imperialists' colony, it cannot avoid stern judgment by history and the people.

Noting that recently the Israeli aggressors patronized by the U.S. imperialists are committing without hesitation aggressive acts for stifling the Palestinian revolution, violating the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Lebanese people and menancing the security of Syria and the Middle East and brutally massacred defenceless, barehanded Palestinian people in West Beirut, Comrade Chong Chun-ki stressed: We scathingly denounce with towering anger the brigandish aggressive acts of the Israeli aggressors in the Middle East.

The Arab Socialist Ba'th Party and people of Syria, he noted, have registered great successes in the building of a new society, holding aloft the banner of anti-imperialism and independence after the "corrective movement" in November 1970.

Your party and people are waging a resolute struggle for the just cause of defending the dignity of Arabs against the U.S. imperialists and Israeli aggressors, the speaker said, and continued: We sincerely rejoice as over our own over the successes achieved by the resourceful and courageous Syrian people and wholeheartedly wish them a new success in their future struggle.

Our party highly estimates the great successes and victories achieved by the Korean people in all domains, the speaker said, and added: They are common successes and victories of all peoples struggling for liberty and unity.

The Syrian people, he said, under the leadership of Comrade Hafiz al-Asad, the leader of advance of the Syrian people, are fighting side by side with your people on the common front against the U.S. imperialists and the Zionists, their stooges.

We, he stressed, will certainly drive the aggressors out of the Arab soil by the resoluteness of our people and with the support and encouragement of the forces of progress and liberation standing on our side.

The attendants of the banquet drank toasts to the militant friendship between the Workers Party of Korea nad the Arab Socialist Ba'th Party and between the Korean people and the Syrian people, to the good health and long life of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, to the good health and long life of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il and to the good health and long life of His Excellency President Hafiz al-Asad, the outstanding leader of the Syrian people.

KIM IL-SONG INSPECTS LOCK GATE, CROP FACILITY

[Text] Pyongyang, October 6 (KCNA) -- The great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song on October 5 inspected the Maekjon lock gate in its finishing stage and the industrial crops treating facilities built on the Todok cooperative farm in Samsok District.

He was accompanied by First Vice-Premier Kang Song-san, Chief Secretary of the Pyongyang Municipal Committee of the party So Yun-sok, Vice-Premier Kong Chin-tae, Vice-Premier Kye Ung-tae, Vice-Premier Choe Chae-u, Secretary So Kwan-hi, Vice-Premier Hong Song-yong, Vice-Premier Kim Chang-chu and Vice-Premier Kim Pok-sin. After inspecting the Maekjon lock gate and the industrial crops treating facilities, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song gave programmatic teachings which would serve as a guideline in stepping up the grand nature-remaking for completely changing the appearance of the country and in increasing the production of industrial crops and their treating capacity. He went round the modern Maekjon lock gate splendidly built at the time-honoured Maekjon ferry of the Taedong River.

After acquainting himself with the construction of the lock gate, he noted with deep satisfaction that it had been well built ideally. He expressed thanks to the entire constructors who had successfully built the Maekjon lock gate, another great edifice of the Workers Party age, in a short period of one year and a half by carrying to shining materialisation the policy of speed campaign put forward by our party.

With the construction of the modern Maekjon lock gate, he said: It has become possible to further develop the water transport on the Taedong River and the natural scenery around it has been rendered more beautiful to turn into a wonderful site of cultural rest for the working people. He said that it is an earthly paradise for the people.

He taught that orchards should be created on the hills around the lock gate, effective readjustment projects including embankment be carried out and more holiday homes for the working people be built at the foot of the mountain at the ferry where a lake has now taken shape.

He taught that the lock gate builders should continue their vigorous struggle to construct the Tongam and Hadang lock gates by 1985 and effect a radical change in the water transport on the Taedong River.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song went round the industrial crops treating facilities of the Todok cooperative farm. He saw first of all the operation of an industrial crops harvester on the farm and expressed deep satisfaction over the removal of one more toilsome manual labour of farmers and extended thanks to the workers and technicians who had designed and manufactured the modern and efficient new farm machine.

He put forward a task to produce and supply a larger number of modern farm machines to the countryside and raise their utility rate to actively mechanize the cultivation and harvest of industrial crops.

Then he inspected the new industrial crops treating ground built by this farm and indicated concrete tasks arising in processing and treating industrial crops in large quantities. Saying that it is necessary for further increasing the production of industrial crops which is of weighty importance for the improvement of the people's living and raising the capacity of their processing and treatment to rationally organise production and actively stimulate peasants zeal for production so they might increase the production of industrial crops, he indicated a concrete direction and ways for this.

The Maekjon lock gate builders and the entire agricultural working people of the Todok cooperative farm are filled with a firm determination to effect a new upsurge in the building of lock gates and production of industrial crops by thoroughly implementing the on-the-spot teachings of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

programmatic tasks advanced at the Hamhung plenary meeting of the party Central Committee, we are today holding this meeting of national heat control workers.

They stressed that this meeting will be an opportunity for a new turn in smoothly meeting the increasing heat energy demands in the national economy by improving and strengthening the work of heat control. Heat is basic energy in modern industries like electric power. Therefore, we can say that production proceeds from the work of heat control. Based on his scientific analysis of the position and importance of heat energy in socialist economic construction, the great leader has elucidated a way of independently solving the heat energy problem by setting forth a policy to build and firmly organize heat energy bases and to improve the heat production and management in an independent manner.

Those who made reports and participated in discussions said: The ideological indoctrination work among heat control workers has been carried out in depth, closely linking it with the implementation of other revolutinary tasks, while placing priority on indoctrination work in loyalty to the party and the leader and indoctrination work in the unitary ideology. As a result, all heat control workers have come to more firmly arm themselves with the party's unitary ideology and have reliably defended their assigned posts with the revolutionary spirit of unconditionally and thoroughly implementing the great leader's teachings and the party's policies.

They also pointed out the success attained in making heat control work chuche-oriented through the vigorous waging of the technical revolution.

Noting the great leader's policy to produce modern boilers in conformity with the realities of our country and to develop the production of heat energy with our own raw material resources, those who made reports and participated in discussions stressed that this policy has opened a broad way which can smoothly meet the increasing demands of heat energy in the national economy by comprehensively utilizing the heat resources of the country.

They also said that the great leader has taken concrete measures for utilizing low calorie coal and has wisely led us to develop and strengthen the self-reliant and chuche-oriented ferrous metal industry of our country by developing the metallurgical industry dependent on our country's resources.

Those who made reports and participated in discussions pointed out that the glorious party center, which has brilliantly implemented the far-sighted plan of the great leader, has wisely led in actively introducing those boilers using low calorie coal -- which is abundantly available in our country -- and in effecting constant innovations by enhancing the role of the technical innovation shock brigades.

They also pointed out that the glorious party center has brought about a new turn in freeing heat control workers from arduous and difficult work by letting them raise the beacon fire of overall automation.

They also said: Thanks to the wise leadership of the great leader and the glorious party center, the local demand for heat energy has been smoothly guaranteed through the widespread introduction of new boilers in all fields of the national economy. As a result, epochal success has been registered in strengthening the self-reliant and chuche-oriented nonferrous metal industry.

They said: Various valuable suggestions for technical innovation have been actively adopted in the field of heat control, heat facilities have been scientifically managed and operated, coalyards have been effectively maintained and a movement to economize on coal has been vigorously unfolded. As a result, the task of economizing on coal, given by the great leader at the meeting of national heat control workers, has been brilliantly carried out.

They also said: With the modernization of boilers and their facilities and the mechanization of arduous work that requires a great deal of strength, the task for labor economization has been successfully carried out and the production bases for modern boilers and heat insulating materials have been firmly built.

Those who made reports and participated in discussions emphasized that the glorious party center, which has always paid deep concern to heat control work, has shown a great deal of care for heat control workers so that they can lead their lives cheerfully, in good health.

Those who made reports and participated in discussions said that all proud successes attained in the field of heat control, since the meeting of national heat control workers held 10 years ago until today, are totally the brilliant fruition of the wise leadership and great care of the great leader and the glorious party center. At the same time, they extended the utmost glory and warmest thanks to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party center, along with the unanimous loyalty of all participants of the meeting.

Saying that today the heat control field is faced with the militant task of smoothly meeting the increasing demands for fuel and heat by the national economy, the meeting of national heat control workers stressed that all functionaries and heat control workers should improve and strengthen the technical management of heat facilities and heat production and consumption processes in conformity with the demands of making the national economy chuche-oriented, modernized and scientific with the spirit of unconditionally and absolutely carrying out the great leader's teachings and the party's policies, and that they should vigorously push ahead with scientific research activities and a technical innovation movement for economization of heat energy.

The meeting stressed that heat control workers should not only further demonstrate their communistic attitude toward labor, but also improve their labor organizational work and strengthen their technical innovation movements and that they should increase production with less effort by mechanizing and automating heat control work.

The meeting also stressed that all reserves and potential should be fully mobilized and utilized so as to further increase the production of modern boilers and their spare parts.

The meeting also stressed that to successfully carry out the task assigned to the heat control field, all heat control workers should be more firmly prepared to become the communist revolutionaries of a chuche type who are boundlessly loyal to the great leader and the glorious party center.

The meeting stressed that, to improve the heat control work, heat control workers should be assigned to plants and enterprises on a permanent basis and their technical level should be enhanced.

Saying that the struggle to increase the production of heat energy by improving and strengthening heat control work and to economize on fuel and heat is a honorable and rewarding struggle to brilliantly implement the far-sighted plan of our party, the meeting stressed that, by vigorously waging the movement to win the red banner of the three revolutions and the movement to follow the examples set by unheralded heroes, linking them with the struggle to create the speed of the 1980's, functionaries and heat control workers should effect a new turn in heat control work and thus repay with loyalty the high political trust and care of the great leader and the glorious party center.

The meeting adopted a letter of pledge.

CHON PLEDGES TO EXPAND TIES WITH PACIFIC NATIONS

National Assembly Address

SK040754 Seoul YONHAP in English 0737 GMT 4 Oct 82

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 4 (YONHAP) -- South Korea's President Chon Tu-hwan declared Monday that the Korean Government would try its best next year to expand cooperation with Pacific countries to open "a new era" of the Pacific region.

In an address at the regular session of the National Assembly dealing with the fiscal 1983 budget scaled at the equivalent of 14 billion U.S. dollars, Chon said his government would concentrate its efforts on realizing his proposed Pacific summit at an earliest possible date.

In the budget message outlining overall domestic and foreign policies for 1983, Chon said his government will push for a policy to help Third World friendly countries to share Korean experience and technical expertise acquired in the course of Korea's economic development and modernization.

Touching on Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations, Chon said the Korean Government would continue to develop a substantial partnership with the United States in various sectors of bilateral cooperation, including security matters.

Reviewing diplomatic relations between Korea and Japan, Chon said that it is important for both countries to develop bilateral cooperative relations in the spirit of reciprocity and mutual respect. Expressing regrets over "distorted" descriptions in Japanese history textbooks of past Korean-Japanese relations, Chon committed continued efforts through diplomatic channels to urge the Japanese Government to take immediate and responsible measures for the revision of "erroneous" accounts in Japanese textbooks.

Emphasizing that Korea would continue to keep an open-door policy toward communist countries based on the spirit of mutuality, Chon called for reciprocal responses on the part of communist countries.

Commenting on the reunification issue of the Korean Peninsula, Chon said Seoul would launch a "rational and magnificent" policy next year to induce Pyongyang into becoming responsive to the South's consistent efforts to reunify the divided halves of the Korean Peninsula by a peaceful means.

The Korean chief executive said Korea would maintain a solid defense posture to protect national security and peace from any outside threat. To this end, he said, Korea would establish a mass-production system for highly-sophisticated weapons as well as bolster combat-ready capacities through various substantial military exercises.

Chon said Korea would increase economic cooperation with countries rich in energy resources, diversify sources of energy to decrease its dependence on crude oil, and explore domestic continental shelves as well as overseas oil fields. He also said Korea would launch a pan-national energy-saving campaign next year, continuing to accumulate enough stockpiles of oil and coal aimed at stabilizing the country's demand and supply of energy.

Chon pledged that the government would exert every possible effort to materialize a second economic take-off next year for the national development.

Economic Growth Predicted

SK050048 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 5 Oct 82 p 1

[Text] This year's economic growth is expected to be about six percent with the commodity price rise pegged at five percent, President Chon Tu-hwan predicted yesterday. He said these economic achievements will be possible although the exports increase has dropped to about five percent this year, far below the annual average growth of 20 percent.

The economic growth for this year is three percentage points below the original target of eight percent. The government envisaged the wholesale commodity price rise of 10-14 percent for this year.

The president made these and other remarks in a speech made at the National Assembly upon submitting a supplementary budget bill for this year. Prime Minister Kim Sang-hyop read the speech on behalf of the president.

The president said the international balar e of payments position has been improved thanks to stabilized prices and economic growth. In view of this economic picture, he said, the government will emphasize "qualitative" growth of exports rather than "quantitative" increase, reinforce the competitive power for heavy and chemical industries, and achieve a "substantive" increase for wages and salaries.

Political Parties' Reaction

[Text] The ruling Democratic Justice Party yesterday welcomed President Chon Tu-hwan's budget message while the two major opposition parties were rather reserved in making a positive comment.

Rep. Kim Yong-tae, spokesman for the ruling party, welcomed the message as the one which reflects the government's strong will to realize another takeoff by pushing ahead with economic growth and promoting public welfare. "President Chon's determination to achieve another economic leap will boost public morale," he said.

Highly praising the government's policy toward the opening of a new Pacific era, expansion of the medical insurance system and the improvement of educational and sports facilities, Kim said the government and ruling party will endeavor to establish an atmosphere favorable to development in all fields of state affairs through political and social stability.

The opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) said the government's plan to revamp the industrial structure in a way to encourage export activities is "appropriate." Rep. Kim Chin-pae, the DKP spokesman, however, said it is to be regretted that there was no detailed mentioning on having democracy take a firm root in the country.

Meanwhile, Rep. Yi Sung-il, spokesman for the Korea National Party, commented that the message is "somewhat" insufficient in manifesting the government's attempt to achieve national strength and unity. It is regrettable that the message seemed to have not been made based on "thorough analysis into the political inertia, economic difficulties and social distrust," he said.

KOREA HERALD Editorial

[Editorial: "Policy Blueprint for '83"]

[Text] Commitment of all national resources and energy to a second economic takeoff and stronger defense through sustained stability and growth keynoted the blueprint of government administration for 1983 delivered to the National Assembly yesterday in a presidential message. The generally low-keyed and substantive tone of the address may assure us that the government is aiming not too high, but it means to do what it says it will do.

Coming in the form of a budget message on the occasion of launching parliamentary debate in the regular autumn session, the presentation from the chief executive is comparable to the state of the union message of the United States President to Congress. As such, it is a most important address setting out guidelines of administration policies and programs for the coming year.

President Chon Tu-hwan touched on the whole range of areas of administrative concern from economy to foreign relations, from welfare to sports. Cutting across all the proposed blueprints are a firm sense of self-reliance and active pursuit of development with maximum openness toward the outside world.

In submitting estimates for the budget scaled at 10.5 trillion won, the president projected a steady growth rate of 7 to 8 percent, while holding fast to price stability. He sees that much of growth in real terms is necessary to absorb the yearly increment of nearly a half-million work force.

The administrative policy speech read by the prime minister on behalf of the president stressed the need for acquiring an adequate reserve of petroleum and coal, in addition to accelerating the exploration of oil fields overseas and diversifying the sources of energy supply. Greater efforts were pledged to expand economic ties with resource-rich countries.

The government envisioned consolidation of cooperation among nations of the Pacific community to usher in an era of the Pacific Basin. Toward materializing his proposal for a Pacific summit, President Chon promised to take initiatives so that it may be called as soon as possible.

Seoul, according to the president, will continue its open-door course for all, including ideologically unfriendly communist countries. It is ready to share with Third World nations the skill and experience Korea gained from its fast economic gorwth and modernization. North Korea again was invited to respond to Seoul's bid for reconciliatory dialogue.

The determination of the administration to uphold law and order is reassuring, as its drive for reform of social ethics and bureaucratic rationalization has only begun to bear fruit. Any change in statutes and institutions will hardly produce good results unless the nation regenerates a wholesome civic and political culture. Streamlining administrative procedures and holding bureaucrats accountable to the people are required to straighten out many of the irregularities that still persist.

Parliamentary interpellations and discussions will follow the administrative policy address of the president. In the entire course of legislative action on the budget and other bills, the basic requirement of growth in stability should be the guiding principle.

ROK TO IMPORT 200 MILLION BARRELS OF CRUDE IN 1983

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 4 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Energy-Resources Ministry has projected 1983 crude oil imports at 200 million barrels, a 1.6 percent increase over a year before. Ministry officials said Monday the ministry put the estimate of the 1983 domestic petroleum demand at 194 million barrels which is 1,000 barrels more than this year. Korea's crude oil import had been on the rise since 1968 at an annual rate of more than 10 percent until the two oil crises shrank the domestic demand. The ministry recently revised its mid-term energy supply and demand plan for 1982-85 period by readjusting the originally projected 8.3 percent of annual increase rate of domestic demand to 4.4 percent.

Coal Import Reduction

[Excerpt] Seoul, Oct 6 (YONHAP) -- South Korea's anthracite coal imports are expected to total 2,436,000 tons by the end of the year, 1.6 million tons less than in 1981, the Energy-Resources Ministry said Wednesday. The ministry also planned to cut anthracite imports by half to 1.42 million tons next year, on the anticipation that the government-stockpiled smokeless coal will amount to 8.86 million tons by the year end. Domestic consumption of the smokeless coal totalled 12.45 million tons, 59 percent of the year's supply, as of the end of August.

KPRP ISSUES CIRCULAR ON PATRIOTIC EMULATION DRIVE

[KPRP circular on organizing and leading patriotic emulation drive to build and defend the fatherland -- date not given]

[Text] Revolution is the cause of the people as well as of cadres and armymen. Therefore, it is necessary for the people to actively join in and effectively carry out the revolutionary movement. Following the overthrow of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary regime and the liberation of the country, under the correct leadership of the party, our people's revolutionary movement has developed gradually and acheived great victories in succession. However, the cause of national defense and construction is an extremely protracted and noble cause. Thus, it is necessary to organize a more extensive, enthusiastic and incessant emulation drive throughout the country in order to stimulate the great and powerful strength of the people to fulfill all revolutionary tasks successfully.

1. Emulation means patriotism and love for the people means increasing physical and intellecutal strength in order to most effectively fulfill the tasks of defending and building the fatherland.

2. The significant points of the emulation drive are: to fight the enemy effectively; carry out work well; fulfill all duties toward the state; have a high sense of conscience and thrift in maintaining and protecting the property belonging to the state and the people; and consolidate well both internal and international solidarity.

3. The objective of the emulation drive is to enable the state to enjoy firm independence and the people to enjoy freedom, a good livelihood and happiness.

4. For this reason, each sector, locality and unit and every cadre, combatant and individual must join in the emulation drive.

A. The people emulate in launching production, practicing thrift, defending collective property, fulfilling duties toward the state, searching for and crushing hidden enemies who launch slanderous propaganda against or speak ill of our revolution, criticizing and developing cadres and publicizing and implementing well the policy of national and international solidarity.

B. The units, cadres and combatants in the KPRAF and the police force emulate in building and improving qualities in political and specialized fields, carrying out well the combat and mass stimulation movement, enhancing solidarity with and learning well from the VPA, crushing enemy elements effectively, persuading large numbers of enemy troops to surrender and return to the revolution and stimulating the drive to increase production and improve the standards of living.

C. The state institutions, factories, schools, cadres and the state workers and personnel emulate in fulfilling tasks well; heightening revolutionary vigilance in defending their respective units and the fatherland; maintaining and protecting state property well; practicing thrift; studying hard; behaving humbly toward, enhancing affection for and assisting the people; and consolidating well internal and international solidarity.

D. Villages, communes and production solidarity groups emulate in increasing production, practicing thrift in using the property belonging to the state and the people, providing good living conditions for the people, successfully fulfilling the tasks assigned by the state, fighting against the enemies effectively, properly maintaining security and public order in villages and communes and participating in building the armed forces in their localities.

5. Names of prestige to be bestowed upon outstanding units or individuals in the emulation campaign:

A. Among the revolutionary armed forces: Units of regular, regional, guerrilla, militia and police forces may receive the following three categories of names of prestige: "vanguard combatant" and "vanguard unit"; "resolute to win combatant" and "resolute to win unit"; and "heroic combatant, and heroic unit, of the armed forces and police forces."

B. There are three names of prestige for cadres, workers and personnel of state-run enterprises and for those of collective labor organizations belonging to the citizens: "vanguard worker" and "vanguard unit"; "model worker" and "model unit"; and "heroic worker" and "heroic unit."

6. The organization and leadership of the campaign:

A. At the central level: Set up a Central Emulation and Recommendation and Reward Council to be presided over by a comrade vice chairman of the Council of Ministers. This council will have the comrade minister attached to the cabinet of the Council of Ministers as its permanent vice chairman and the comrade vice chairman of the Central Organization Commission, the comrade vice chairman of the Central Propaganda and Education Commission, the comrade chairman of the Federation of Trade Unions, the comrade chairman of the Kampuchean Revolutionary Youth Organization and the comrade chairman of the Women's Union as members to assist the party and government in leading the emulation campaign and deciding on giving of rewards throughout the country. An emulation and recommendation and reward department is set up in the cabinet of the Council of Ministers to assist the Council of Ministers and the Central Emulation and Recommendation and Reward Council in examining and studying all systems for emulation and recommendation and reward policies and in deciding on nominations for recommendation and reward.

In each specialized sector, each level, each establishment and each unit there should be an emulation and recommendation and reward council which is made up of representatives of the authorities and mass organizations to assist the party and state in leading the emulation campaign and examining and deciding on recommendations and rewards in the specialized sector, locality, institution and unit concerned. At the same time, a number of cadres should be assigned specifically to assume the emulation and recommendation and reward duty to assist the emulation and recommendation and reward council of each specialized sector, level, institution and unit.

B. Based on the duty assigned to them for each given phase, the specialized sectors, localities, institutions and units should work on and put out specific traits, characteristics and emulation periods for each institution, unit and individual to implement. Every year, the emulation campaign should be launched in two phases: the first from July to December to celebrate the founding anniversary of the front and the 7 January independence day, and the second from January to June to celebrate the founding anniversaries of the party and army and the anniversary of the signing of the Kampuchea-Vietnam friendship treaty. From now until the end of 1982, launch a new emulation drive to celebrate the national independence day in the near future as the kick-off of the campaign and as a springboard for the nationwide emulation drive.

C. Inculcate into cadres, combatants and people the idea that to emulate is to be patriotic and to be patriotic is to emulate. Continue to imbue oneself with and uphold the sense of patriotism, love for the people and mutual affection, solidarity and mutual assistance in order to advance shoulder to shoulder toward progress and carry out revolutionary tasks.

D. Through each phase of the emulation campaign, try to discover and recommend good persons, good work performances and good units so as to exemplify heroism and draw lessons for other people and units to learn from and emulate, and also in order to find good cadres for the revolution.

E. The government should use common sense in enacting the recommendation and reward policy for citizens, institutions and units having accomplished many emulation achievements.

F. The Council of Ministers and specialized sectors at all levels should closely study this circular, give advice on its implementation and take concrete actions in order to foster this emulation drive and, for the time being, the emulation phase at the end of 1982.

PRC 'PROVOCATIONS' ALONG NORTHERN BORDER CITED

[Report: "Oudomsai Today"]

[Excerpts] Oudomsai is a province situated in the middle of the five northern provinces. It serves as both a political and a military base. It is noteworthy that in the past this province was considered a rear area, while now it is considered a frontline area.

Oudomsai has a common border with China. This border is full of all-round danger because the Chinese ruling clique has recently taken advantage of the border areas to create disturbances and conduct sabotage activities under various forms. It has carried out military schemes by encroaching upon territory and threatening Laos while sowing division between the army and people, conducting psychological warfare and so forth.

During the first 6 months of this year, the Chinese reactionaries have paid attention to developing exile forces and mobilizing them to conduct activities in Oudomsai, Paktha and Na Mok Districts. In Paktha District alone, they sent exiled Lao reactionaries to carry out activities on four occasions. However, these reactionaries were wiped out or captured. The prisoners of war revealed that all of them received military training in China and that they were sent back to persuade and buy off youths to follow them in preparing an uprising and fight to seize Oudomsai. According to them, they planned to wage this type of warfare for as long as 4 years. China has mobilized the 93d Chiang Kai-shek Division and the Maoist Thai forces to join in this warfare.

On 18 May 1981 China sent its forces to conduct activities and fire at our Lao border defense forces in a barbarous manner. Worse still, they have sabotaged our construction of socialist agricultural cooperatives. Occasionally, they have sent exiled soldiers to gather along the border and threaten and conduct provocations against Laos. In addition, they have engaged in deceitful propaganda aimed at disrupting the solidarity between Laos and Vietnam and between Laos and the Soviet Union.

Actually, the people of Oudomsai as well as the people of all other northern provinces have never suffered from starvation. While China is making deceitful propaganda claiming that China has plenty of rice and food, each day the Chinese people living along the border on the Chinese side beg for rice from the Lao people.

All schemes and tricks of the Chinese reactionaries have been systematically checked and defeated by the people of Oudomsai Province. The Oudomsai armed forces and people have also suppressed the exiled Lao reactionaries, thus preventing them from engaging in activities. The armed forces and people have united closely and are prepared to fight to defend the country.

POST REPORTS DEFECTION OF PHNOM PENH OFFICIAL

[Text] A high-ranking official of the Vietnamese-backed Heng Samrin regime, his wife and two escorts defected to Thailand last month, informed sources in the Thai Supreme Command told the BANGKOK POST yesterday.

The sources named the official as Di Lamthal, who earlier this year was head of the General Department of the Kampuchean Foreign Ministry in Phnom Penh. He is believed to be the highest ranking defector so far from the central government. The sources said Di Lamthal, his wife, Mrs Seda, and two escorts whose identities are not yet known disguised themselves as refugees and traveled on foot from the Kampuchean hinterland to a refugee encampment in Ban Nong Samet which is controlled by troops of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front who are loyal to Son Sann. The four defectors surrendered to the Khmer Serei troops and were later transferred to Khao I-Dang holding centre in Ta-Phraya District, Prachin Buri Province, where they are now under the custody of the Thai military. The sources said the four told Thai military officers during a preliminary interrogation that they could not tolerate the Vietnamese-style administration in Kampuchea and that they wanted to go to a third country.

Di Lamthal is thought to be aged between 38 and 40. During the Lon Nol administration, he worked for World Vision, the U.S.-based voluntary agency, and later he managed to survive Pol Pot's regime of terror in Kampuchea.

He first came to public attention in the early part of 1980 as a personal secretary to Foreign Minister Hun Sen. In mid-1980 the Heng Samrin-controlled SPK radio [as published] described him as head of the Political Department, but there are doubts whether this is really accurate. At some point, probably in late 1980, Di Lamthal was sent to study in Eastern Europe, and he was next seen in Phnom Penh in November 1981 where he had become head of the American and Western European desk at the Foreign Ministry. From there he is thought to have moved to the General Department. His brother is working in the Planning Ministry in Phnom Penh.

NATION ON UN DISCUSSION OF KAMPUCHEA, PLO

BK020222 Bangkok THE NATION REVIEW In English 2 Oct 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Khmer Problem: New Dimension Might Develop"]

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila and President Norodom Sihanouk of Kampuchea made the keynote speeches about the country to our east in the United Nations. They said nothing new, just as British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym and U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz said nothing new, either. Addressing the UN General Assembly for the first time -- Sihanouk was addressing it for the sixth time -- Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamed decided to speak about the internationalization of Antarctica -- quite an exciting subject.

We are not trying to be blase about the speeches in the United Nations General Assembly, but desperately trying to find something new that has come up. Sitthi is said to have announced that Thailand has recognized the PLO, but IF HE DID SAY THAT [passage published in italics], it comes in rather as an affront to the PLO than as a dramatic change in Thailand's foreign policy. Sure enough, our foreign minister said that "while the state of Israel is a recognized reality, the legitimacy of Palestinian yearnings for statehood must also be recognized." Is that a change in Thai foreign policy?

However, we do admit that now that the PLO has lost its stronghold in Beirut, there is an added significance. It has been the policy of Thailand, which has been again and again reflected in these columns, that peace in the Middle East is impossible without a Palestinian homeland. Yes, Palestinians do not have a homeland, while right next door to us a country called Kampuchea or Cambodia is being raped. Prince Sihanouk made a stirring speech about his people -- we use the word 'his' because he was once the king of Cambodia -- and the so-called president of the UN General Assembly, a Hungarian whose name is quite unimportant, preferred to be absent. Possibly, if he had been present, he would have been hounded by the secret police of his own country.

Sihanouk, despite all his charisma, did not set the UN General Assembly on fire. As a matter of fact, we wonder what would set the General Assembly on fire. If country X threw an atom bomb on country Y, the chances are that the General Assembly will vote on it and there will be more absentees and abstainers than the voters. Sihanouk, despite his reputation for using superlatives and hyperboles, made a logical presentation of the case for the coalition government which, we hope, would be able to bring about a political solution.

In this, ASEAN is at variance with China, which has not deviated from its policy of a military solution based on the oft-repeated intention of "bleeding Vietnam white." But what Sihanouk has logically argued, as Sitthi did before him, is that a political solution is still possible with a neutralist (in the best sense of the term) Kampuchea in the offing. The problem which Vietnam now faces is the failure of ASEAN to find a political solution, since that would leave only the Chinese solution as the viable alternative.

Like all the speeches at the UNGA are predictable -- except for Singapore's "fire and brimstone" -- the outcome is also predictable. The United Nations General Assembly will vote for all "foreign troops" (not Martians) to leave Kampuchea and Afghanistan. It has happened before, but does the Soviet Union, Vietnam or the president of the General Assembly -- we've checked up his name -- Imre Nagy, sorry, Imre Hollai, care a fig?

But we do believe -- or should we say hope? -- that some sort of a consensus is being formed among the richer countries of the world to give ample non-military aid to the coalition government in Kampuchea, a factor that may tilt the balance and may eliminate the Chinese formula.

POST CRITICIZES FRENCH FIRM'S TRADE WITH SRV

[Editorial: "Doing a Deal With Vietnam"]

[Text] Big business and socialism supposedly do not mix, but that's only the theory. Good communists often in fact find themselves doing business with good capitalists, and quite often they are good at it. The Soviet Union drains millions of dollars away from capitalists with its shipping policies, which are to get the business by charging lower rates. The communists in Beijing shamelessly exploit "foreign friends" by charging them many times the amount paid by local citizens for hotels and transportation.

Now Vietnam has joined hands with a capitalist in a U.S. $200 million deal. The fact that the capitalist happens to be a "fat cat" socialist makes it no less extraordinary. Still unable to feed its own people, nor even to predict when it can feed its own people, Vietnam is going to sell off some of its assets.

Hanoi has set up a barter deal with French businessman Jean-Baptiste Doumeng, the essence of which is that Vietnam will trade off some of its property -- high-quality rice, tea, coffee, charcoal and the like -- in exchange for low quality rice, fertiliser and some other foodstuffs.

This is not just some interesting deal which we in Thailand will watch from the sidelines. For one of the products involved is Thai rice. Specifically, Mr Doumeng reportedly has promised to deliver 100,000 tons of broken Thai rice to Vietnam as part of his deal with the communists.

We should be asking ourselves if this is in Thailand's interests. Food is a strategic weapon and should be treated as such. We should pay attention to where our excess food goes, to be sure that it does not become a weapon in the wrong hands. Mr Doumeng could undoubtedly obtain the rice -- and may indeed be planning to do so -- outside Thailand. Vietnam itself, and the Soviet Union, have bought tens of thousands of tons of Thai rice in Singapore in the past two years for shipment to the hungry people of Vietnam. Recently, of course, Thai authorities have authorised rice exporters to sell Vietnam-bound rice simply because they were losing deals to the Singaporean merchants who were making money while simply acting as middlemen.

But if Mr Doumeng comes to Thailand asking for rice, our authorities should look at his request very carefully indeed.

PRASONG NOTES RESPONSE TO REFUGEE AID APPEAL

BK021458 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 2 Oct 82

[Text] According to Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, secretary general of the National Security Council, Thailand's appeal for third countries to accept more refugees has received a good response. Several countries have notified the UN High Commission for Refugees [UNHCR] that they would resettle more refugees in their countries. Prasong noted that after Thailand described its refugee burdens to the UNHCR, UNHCR representatives called on him on two occasions to explain UNHCR assistance programs and to inform him that the United States hopes to resettle more refugees from Thailand. The number the United States can accept will be known next week.

Prasong disclosed that the Canadian ambassador confirmed to him that Canada will keep its pledge regarding the refugee matter. An Australian refugee affairs official also called on him this morning to confirm his country's refugee assistance program.

Prasong said a Thai delegation composed of himself, Thai Ambassador to the United Nations Pracha Khunakasem; Deputy Interior Under Secretary Charoenchit na Songkhla; and Internal Security Operations Command and Supreme Command representatives will participate in the UN-organized refugee conference in Geneva from 11-20 October. At the conference Thailand will bring up the reduction in the number of refugees being resettled from its camps. After the conference the delegation will visit the World Food Program offices in Rome to discuss food assistance for the Thai-Kampuchean border areas. The delegation will return to Bangkok on or about 25 October.

SUPREME COMMAND RELEASES REFUGEE STATISTICS

BK301001 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 29 Sep 82

[Statement by Supreme Command Information Office on Indochinese refugees and illegal immigrants in Thailand -- date not given; read by announcer]

2. The number of refugees and illegal immigrants awaiting departure for third countries at various transit centers is 32,835 -- 15,251 at Phanat Nikhom center in Chon Buri Province and 17,584 at Phraya Kamphut center in Chanthaburi Province.

3. From November 1980 to August 1982, a total of 24,651 refugees returned to their homelands under the voluntary repatriation program.

4. There are about 290,000 Kampuchean people living in Kampuchea opposite the Thai border from Ubon Ratchathani to Prachin Buri Provinces.

5. There are 1,898 Vietnamese along the border areas.

6. The number of Indochinese refugees under the Interior Ministry's control is 87,194 -- 79,355 Lao, 856 Kampuchean and 6,983 Vietnamese.

7. From 1975 to June 1982, a total of 399,521 refugees were resettled in third countries. Participants at the annual conference on assistance for Indochinese which was held in Bangkok on 15 and 16 July and the meeting of donor countries in New York on 26 July agreed that there are only two solutions to the refugee problem. The first is to resettle refugees in third countries, and the second is to repatriate them to their countries of origin. Therefore, Thailand has sent a number of refugees back to their home countries and hopes that this is one way to solve the problem. However, it is also necessary to send refugees to resettle in third countries.

RECALCITRANT DON SAWAN REFUGEES TO FACE ARREST

[Text] Nong Khai Governor Kuson Santitham said yesterday that any of the 1,842 Laotian refugees who refuses to leave the Don Sawan camp here and check in today for transport to their new camp in Ubon Ratchathani Province will be arrested. Yesterday was the deadline for all the refugees, including those living with Thai relatives in the province, to move out of this northeastern provincial camp. Supplies of food were halted yesterday as a means of forcing the refugees to move to their new camp. The chief of the Nong Khai provincial office, Wit Limanonworachai, told the POST that there were only 55 refugees yesterday who said they would defy the order. Prior to the deadline, many of the 1,842 refugees had actually moved out of the camp and were living with their Thai relatives, Wit said, adding that they could, however, return to the camp for food. But Governor Kuson said the checking-in procedure applies to those refugees living with their relatives as well. Many of the refugees had escaped the camp for fear that they might be transferred to other holding centers. According to one of the refugees, they became more reluctant to leave the camp when they learned of the sudden appearance of Maj-Gen Thonglit Chotbengboun, former commander of the Laotian Fifth Army Region. The refugee alleged that Maj-Gen Thonglit is planning to form a government-in-exile with other military men.

COMMUNIQUE ON PRC 'HOSTILE ACTIONS' RELEASED

[Text] A communique was released here today in connection with hostile actions taken by China against Vietnam in July, August and September. The communique, issued by the Commission for Investigation of War Crimes of the Chinese Expansionists and Hegemonists, says:

In July, August and September 1982, the reactionaries in the Chinese leadership resorted to perfidious moves in continuing their hostile policy against the Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

While ceaselessly spreading the contention that China actively develops mutually beneficial relations of friendship and equality with other countries in the world, that China constantly unites and cooperates with all Third World countries and, together with other peoples, persistently struggles against hegemonism, in defense of world peace, and that China wants to improve its relations with Vietnam on the basis of the five principles of peaceful coexistence, the reactionaries in the Chinese leadership have, in reality, feverishly stepped up criminal activities against the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. The following are a number of their actual activities:

They have not only maintained the existing army units, military bases and battlefields close to the Vietnam-China border, but also brought more special force units to areas opposite Muong Khuong, Hoang Lien Son Province; Meo Vac and Dong Van, Ha Tuyen Province; Tra Linh, Ha Quang and Trung Khanh, Cao Bang Province; and Loc Binh, Lang Son Province; moved more artillery pieces to the area opposite Chi Ma, Lang Son; and actively consolidated and reinforced their battlefields and military communication lines.

They continue to occupy the Hoang Sa Archipelago and some parts of the Truong Sa Archipelago of Vietnam, and have signed contracts with foreign oil and gas companies on the exploration and exploitation of oil and gas in the eastern part of the Gulf of Tonkin and carried out geological surveys in the vicinity of the Hoang Sa and Truong Sa Archipelagoes, which belong to Vietnam.

While making shameless slanders about Vietnamese troops' armed provocations, including shellings into Chinese territory, Chinese troops in fact carried out 32 shellings and 62 intrusions into areas in Binh Lieu and Quang Ha Districts, Quang Ninh Province; Loc Binh and Trang Dinh, Lang Son; Bao Lac and Tra Linh, Cao Bang; Dong Van, Meo Vac, Quan Ba, Vi Xuyen and Xin Man, Ha Tuyen; Muong Khuong and Lao Cai town, Hoang Lien Son; and Phong Tho, Lai Chau, killing or wounding many Vietnamese civilians, killing a number of cattle, destroying many dwellings and taking away many persons.

Chinese armed vessels disguised as fishing boats made thousands of intrusions into Vietnam's territorial waters from Quang Ninh to Nghe Tinh, carrying out espionage activities and disrupting Vietnamese fishermen's normal activities.

Chinese fighter aircraft made thousands of flights along the Sino-Vietnamese border. One such flight was carried out about 10 kms inside Vietnamese airspace over the Vinh Thuc coastal area in Quang Ha District, Quang Ninh Province, and another flight 10 kms inside Vietnamese airspace over Loc Binh District, Lang Son Province.

The Chinese authorities continued to smuggle spies and armed bands into Vietnamese territory to make contacts with their agents to build reactionary bases for psychological warfare activities, to sabotage Vietnam's economy and organize reactionary armed groups.

By resorting to all propaganda means such as leaflets, clandestine activities of their henchmen, newspapers, radio broadcasts and diplomatic statements, the Chinese rulers continuously spread psychological warfare allegations to divide the Vietnamese people, drive a wedge between Vietnam and ASEAN and the world as a whole, instigate opposition, and lure Vietnamese into illegally leaving the country; slanderously charged Vietnam with invading Kampuchea and Laos; and threatened to wage a war against Vietnam [VNA in English at 1548 GMT on 5 October, in a report on the communique, renders this phrase as "threatened to invade Vietnam"] if the border situation failed to improve.

These criminal acts against the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, together with similar acts against Laos and Kampuchea, have proven that the reactionaries in the Beijing leadership have not given up, but stepped up their war of sabotage in many fields to weaken and eventually subjugate the Socialist Republic of Vietnam and the other two Indochinese countries.

The Commission for Investigation of War Crimes of the Chinese Expansionists and Hegemonists Against Vietnam vehemently denounces before domestic and foreign public opinion the above-noted plots and crimes of the Beijing authorities and calls on the Vietnamese peoples and peace-loving and justice-loving people throughout the world to heighten their vigilance and step up their struggle for an immediate end to China's hostile plots and acts against Vietnam and Indochina as a whole and to demand that China respond to the constructive proposals for normalization of the relations between Vietnam and the other two Indochinese countries and China, thus bringing peace and stability to Southeast Asia.

VNA REJECTS PRC 'COOKED-UP STORY' ON PROVOCATIONS

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, October 5 -- Radio Beijing on October 10 alleged that Vietnamese Armed Forces on October 1, 2 and 3 "fired in provocation" at different places on the Sino-Vietnamese border.

VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY is authorized to reject this cooked-up story. It was a deliberate move on the part of the Chinese authorities in the face of Vietnam's fair proposal that the two sides refrain from armed activities and other hostile actions along the border on the occasion of the two countries' National Days. The move is also aimed at misleading public opinion, which welcomes Vietnam's good will and wishes for peace on the Sino-Vietnamese border.

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, October 6 -- A mass meeting was held at the ball bearing factory in Moscow yesterday to welcome the Vietnamese party and state delegation on a visit to the Soviet Union. The meeting was jointly organized by the Moscow City Committee of the Communist Party, the Union of the Soviet Societies for Friendship and Cultural Relations With Foreign Countries, the Soviet-Vietnamese Friendship Society, the Soviet Peace Committee and the Soviet Afro-Asian Solidarity Committee.

The cultural palace of the factory was richly decorated with the flags of the two countries and banners praising the unshakable fraternal friendship and cooperation between the parties and governments of the Soviet Union and Vietnam.

Taking part in the meeting presidium where V.V. Grishin, Political Bureau member of the C.P.S.U. Central Committee and first secretary of the Moscow party committee, and P.G. Gilashvili, vice-president of the Presidium of the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet.

Speaking at the event, G.S. Titov, president of the Soviet-Vietnamese Friendship Society, said: "The friendly relationship between the Soviet Union and Vietnam is characterized by a common sincere concern over each other's victories and their mutual support and assistance in carrying out their tasks of socialist construction."

"The Communist Party and the Government of the Soviet Union", Titov went on, "highly value the principled stand of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam of further consolidating its militant solidarity and close relations with the Lao People's Democratic Republic and the People's Republic of Kampuchea, and enhancing their good neighbourhood and mutually beneficial cooperation with the other countries in Southeast Asia. The Soviet people firmly believe that the enemy's schemes against socialist Vietnam will fail".

A worker of the factory, labour heroine N.M. Motova, on behalf of the factory's workers, took the floor to wish the working class and the entire people of Vietnam still greater successes in socialist construction.

Addressing the meeting, the secretary of the Moscow Leninist Young Communist League, V.N. Arkhipov, stressed that "the Muscovite youth and the entire Soviet youth will do their best to develop the fraternal ties between the youth of the two countries, will work untiringly in the interests of the socialist world and will continue giving Vietnam full and all-round support".

Addressing the meeting, President Truong Chinh said: "over the past 25 years, the Soviet people have bravely surmounted many difficulties and hardships, and accepting great sacrifices to defend the Soviet power, winning resounding victory in World War Two and saving the whole mankind from the fascist danger. They have also successfully built developed socialism, continually improved the people's material and cultural standard, while fully discharging their international obligations. The Soviet Union is the firm mainstay of peace and socialism as well as of world revolution".

About the relations between the two countries, he said: "Even in the first days of the Vietnamese revolution the Soviet people already extended to them their loyal friendship, expressed their sympathy with and support for the Vietnamese people, shared with the latter the fruits of their labour, and sent to Vietnam great and timely material aid, thus contributing in a large measure to the Vietnamese people's victory over the aggressors".

"Today", President Truong Chinh went on, "at a time when the reactionaries in the Beijing ruling circles in collusion with the U.S. imperialists are conducting a war of sabotage in many fields against the Vietnamese people who are building socialism from a backward economy, without going through the stage of capitalist development, the support and assistance from the Soviet Union constitutes a decisive factor for the Vietnamese people's socialist construction and national defence.

"The treaty of friendship and cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union signed in 1978 marked a new stage in the development of the Vietnamese-Soviet relations".

"To consolidate and develop the fraternal friendship between our two countries is both an obligation and a revolutionary sentiment of the communists and working peoples of Vietnam and the Soviet Union. The communists and the entire people of Vietnam, prompted by genuine patriotism and proletarian internationalism, will do their best to cultivate this great friendship and make it everlasting", President Truong Chinh said.

Brezhnev Banquet Address

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, October 6 -- Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union Central Committee and president of the Presidium of the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet, delivered the following speech at the banquet in honour of the Vietnamese party and state delegation:

"We are really happy to receive here, in Moscow, Comrade Truong Chinh, and the party and state delegation headed by you, the representatives of the communists and working people of fraternal Vietnam.

"The result of our friendly meetings has been, as always, very clear. It has confirmed the identity of our views and our objectives. It is a new and concrete contribution to the development of the Soviet-Vietnamese relations.

"Our multifarious cooperation is based on the glorious traditions of Soviet-Vietnamese fraternity. This has been proven in the defence of socialism as well as in our peaceful creative labour. The treaty of friendship and cooperation serves as an effective base of our relationship. The Soviet people have always united and will continue to unite with the Vietnamese people.

"We admire this people who, after long years of heroic struggle against the aggressors, are today building a new life in difficult conditions.

"With their heroism and their firmness, the Vietnamese people have earned the profound esteem of all mankind. We are confinced that socialist Vietnam's active contribution to the safeguarding of peace and the building of peaceful cooperation in Asia and the world as a whole will further raise its high prestige on the international arena.

"We know very well that nothing can shake the will of the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea to build a new life. They have on their side loyal and reliable friends, among them our Leninist party and our Soviet state.

"Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation today has extended to all domains of the political and economic life. Its prospects are considerable. We note with pleasure that our two parties have profited more and more by this cooperation. Let us, therefore, consolidate and multiply by all means the efficacity of our bilateral relations.

"While concentrating their forces on peaceful construction and on improvement of the people's life, our peoples must also be prepared to defend their homelands and socialism. This is no easy task. But we have accomplished it well with you in the past, and we will do so in the future.

"The world situation has been dangerously aggravated. The forces of aggression of imperialism, especially U.S. imperialism, are launching a nuclear arms race on an unheard-of scale. They have announced a 'crusade' against socialism and against the liberation struggles of the peoples. They have openly allied themselves with the reactionaries and the butchers almost throughout the world. They have cynically meddled in the internal affairs of other peoples and threatened their security and independence.

"All this has placed a great responsibility on all those who have peace at heart and who are not indifferent to the future of mankind.

"Our talks have once again confirmed that the Soviet Union and Vietnam share common views on international issues, on ways of struggle to ease tension, to prevent the arms race, and to consolidate peace.

"Among the important topics we have discussed today with the delegation led by Comrade Truong Ching has been, of course, the question of our relations with the People's Republic of China.

"On this question, too, we share a common view: We are for the normal relations of good neighbourhood with China, for friendship with the Chinese people. Such is the line of the congresses of the C.P.S.U. and the VCP, and we will strive to apply this line consistently. This is not easy given the weight of the past. However, as we have indicated, this is possible if we tackle it with calm, without prejudices, and on the basis of real and genuine reciprocity. In so far as we are concerned, we are for such an evolution.

"To build a sound climate in Southeast Asia is an imperative necessity. The aspiration of the martyred peoples of this region for an enduring peace and for security has found its expression in the proposal to create a zone of peace there.

"We think that the development of the dialogue between the countries of Indochina and of A.S.E.A.N. will serve well the maintenance and consolidation of peace in Southeast Asia.

"An international conference on Southeast Asia as proposed by Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea would be an appropriate forum for the discussion of the outstanding problems and for the adoption of mutually acceptable decisions.

"We unreservedly support the other constructive initiatives formulated last year by the foreign ministers of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea. The Soviet Union, like other peace-loving countries, wholeheartedly wishes the millions of people living in Southeast Asia an enduring peace and prosperity".

Truong Chinh Speech

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, October 6 -- The following speech was made by President Troung Chinh at the banquet given for the Vietnamese party and state delegation he was heading, by the Central Committee of the Communist Party, the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, and the Government, of the Soviet Union, in the Kremlin yesterday:

I sincerely thank the Central Committee of the C.P.S.U. and the Presidium of the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet for their invitation to a Vietnamese party and state delegation for a visit to the great Soviet land, and we thank them for their big, warm welcome. I also thank Comrade L.I. Brezhnev for his heartfelt words about the revolutionary cause of our party and people and about the friendship binding our two peoples.

It is fortunate for us to be in the Soviet Union, the land of the great Lenin, at the peak of a labour emulation movement by the labouring people in anticipation of the 65th anniversary of the October Revolution and the 60th anniversary of the U.S.S.R. On the occasion of these great days in the Soviet Union, which are also festive events for labouring people throughout the world, I am happy to extend to the communist and other citizens of the Soviet Union the fraternal greetings and best wishes from the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam, the Council of State and the Council of Ministers of the S.R.V., and the Vietnamese people. Led by the wise leadership of the C.P.S.U. and loyal to the ideals of the revolution initiated by the great Lenin, the fraternal Soviet people have worked with creativeness for 65 years. They have made extraordinary efforts with very great sacrifices in an extremely valiant struggle, firmly defending the first socialist state of the world and building with success a developed socialist society.

Beginning as an agricultural country besieged by imperialism, the Soviet Union has become a leading industrial country in the world. It is giving full play to the superiority of socialism and is playing a leading role in this era, the era of victory of socialism on a world scale.

The U.S.S.R., made strong by the strength of this era, proved its invincibility right in its infancy, and has never ceased to gain in strength. Today, with its unchanging Leninist peace policy and its wonderful achievements, the Soviet Union not only is a rallying banner, but also has big economic and military potentials. It is the bulwark of world peace, a reliable supporter of the nations struggling for peace, national independence, democracy and socialimsm.

No force of imperialism, war and reaction can check the advance of this first socialist country and of the three currents of revolution in the world. It has been proved so by life in the past and at present, and will remain so in the future. No amount of slander and distortion can belittle the great contributions made by the Soviet Union to peace, national independence and social progress under the leadership of the glorious C.P.S.U. headed by respected Comrade L.I. Brezhnev, the worthy Marxist-Leninist continuator of Lenin's immortal cause and a famous fighter who has tirelessly struggle for world peace and for friendship among nations. The fraternal Soviet people, ardently patriotic, nobly internationalist, intelligent and resourceful, will successfully carry out the resolutions of the 26th party congress and the great programmes in the 11th five-year plan for economic and social development, to take Lenin's country towards new peaks of communism.

The Socialist October Revolution brought the light of Marxism-Leninism to the Vietnamese people. The historic victory of the Soviet Army in World War II created very good conditions for the victory of the August revolution in Vietnam. The role played by the Soviet Union in the world and selfless Soviet assistance to Vietnam have greatly contributed to our people's success in liberating themselves and in building a free and happy life.

I take this opportunity to express, on behalf of the VCP Central Committee, the S.R.V. Council of State and Council of Ministers, and the Vietnamese people, our sincere gratitude to the C.P.S.U. Central Committee, the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet and Council of Ministers, and the fraternal Soviet people.

We know that many difficulties are still ahead of us. Yet we firmly believe that the Vietnamese people, under the leadership of the VCP led by General Secretary Le Duan, and by coupling their own efforts with the great assistance of the Soviet Union, the other fraternal countries in the socialist community, and friends throughout the world, will take all these difficulties in their stride, and will satisfactorily fulfill the two strategic tasks set by the Fifth VCP Congress: to make a success of socialism and firmly defend socialist Vietnam from all hostile schemes and moves of Chinese expansionism and hegemony in collusion with U.S. imperialism, while actively contributing to the cause of peace and the revolutionary struggle of the world's people.

We will consistently treasure the long-standing friendship between the Vietnamese people and the Chinese people. We are all for normalized relations between the Socialist Republic of Vietnam and the People's Republic of China based on mutual respect for independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity, on non-interference in each other's internal affairs, on respect for each other's legitimate interests, on equality and mutual benefit, and on peaceful settlement of disputes.

In this spirit, we have made a series of logical, reasonable proposals, which have won the support and sympathy of the Soviet Union, the other fraternal socialist countries, and the peace-loving public in the world. Unfortunately, none of these has received any response from China.

We welcome the statement made by Comrade L.I. Brezhnev in Tashkent that the Soviet Union's policy regarding Europe [as received],is one of peace and cooperation and of resolute opposition to the enemy of peace and cooperation. We highly value the Soviet support for the proposals of the three Indochinese countries concerning peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

We strongly condemn the Reagan administration's policy of stepping up the arms race, creating tension, threatening war and aggression in the world. We fully support the peace programme advanced by the 26th C.P.S.U. Congress and the important peace initiatives made by Comrade L.I. Brezhnev himself.

Our talks today were conducted in a warm atmosphere of militant solidarity and fraternal friendship. They were an expression of our complete identity of view on all matters on the agenda. We reaffirmed our determination to follow up the success of the comprehensive cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union on the basis of the treaty of friendship and cooperation signed in 1978. Mindful of President Ho Chi Minh's instructions in his last testament, the Vietnamese people will be always grateful to the Soviet Union, and will guard their friendship with the Soviet Union as jealously as they guard their own eyes. They will make every effort to ceaselessly consolidate and develop this friendship as a permanent determinant of the victory of their own revolution.

[Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese at 1100 GMT on 6 October carries text of Truong Chinh speech, adding the following at this point: "In the jubilant atmosphere of Vietnamese-Soviet friendship and greeting the Soviet people's big festive days, I propose a toast:

["To the great friendship, militant solidarity and comprehensive cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union; to the successful building of communism by the Soviet Union; to Comrade Brezhnev's health; to Comrade Le Duan's health; to the Soviet party and state leaders' health; to the Vietnamese party and state leaders' health; to the health of all of you comrades at this banquet."]

AUSTRALIA

FOREIGN MINISTER MEETS WITH SIHANOUK IN NEW YORK

BK051052 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 5 Oct 82

[Text] The minister for foreign affairs, Mr Street, has refused to say how Australia will vote on the question of who should represent Kampuchea at the United Nations. The deposed Pol Pot regime currently holds the Kampuchean seat in the UN General Assembly. The UN Credentials Committee will tomorrow begin considering whether Kampuchea should be represented by the Vietnamese-backed Heng Samrin administration, which is in power in Phnom Penh. Last year, Australia abstained from voting on the issue.

Mr Street has held talks in New York with the former Kampuchean head of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, leader of the newly formed coalition of Kampuchean resistance groups which wants to represent Kampuchea at the UN. Speaking after the talks, Mr Street said Australia would continue to help Kampuchean refugees and opponents of the Heng Samrin government. He said Prince Sihanouk was convinced that if free elections were held in Kampuchea under UN auspices, 90 percent of the people would vote against the government. The foreign minister said he was convinced that Prince Sihanouk was absolutely sincere in his wish to ensure that Kampuchea was a truly neutral, independent country. But Mr Street would not say whether Australia would vote at the UN for the coalition led by the prince.

A Radio Australia correspondent in New York, (Jim Middleton), says diplomats at the UN believe Australia will once again abstain from voting.

NEW CALEDONIA

FRENCH GOVERNMENT ADOPTS REFORMS FOR TERRITORY

NC052319 Paris AFP in English 2305 GMT 5 Oct 82

[Text] Paris, Oct 5 (AFP) -- A series of measures to reform the French Pacific Ocean territory of New Caledonia -- notably concerning land distribution -- were adopted today by the French Government. Drawn up by Overseas Territories Minister Henri Emmanuelli, in conjunction with new Caledonian High Commissioner Christian Nucci, the most important of the new statutes will see tribal land rights recongized under the new law. This has been a major demand of the island's independence movement, which in the last elections won 35 percent of the vote.

A land office, representing the state and local European and Melanesian residents, will decide over what land rights will be exercised. Local land rights commissions will be set up and a rural lease established so Melanesians can carry out modern farming techniques. A second statute adopted today sets up a development office whose aim is to decentralize the territory, thus closing the gap between the capital, Noumea, with its 60,000 inhabitants, and the many other islands with a population of 80,000. The third measure established a scientific, cultural and technical office which will promote Melanesian culture identity. A fourth reform will appoint tribal assessors to the civil and appeals courts.

The list of reforms for the territory will be completed when a further two statutes concerning energy and mineral police are adopted before the end of 1982.

The French Government has proceeded by statute with the territory's reforms, to put an end to what Mr Emmanuelli called "unacceptable injustices."

Sudharmono, before boarding the plane, told reporters the president during these visits intends to exchange thoughts and views on the world situation with the leaders he will meet. Among others he will meet with President Ronald Reagan of the United States in Washington. He said the president also hopes to bring about an enchancement of relations between Indonesia and the four countries he is visiting.

SUHARTO ADDRESSES ARMED FORCES DAY CEREMONY

[Text] Madiun, Oct 5 (ANTARA-OANA) -- President Suharto said here Tuesday, on Armed Forces Day, that the change from the older to the younger generation now going on in Indonesia will determine the future course of the nation's history. Soon, he said, the older generation who fought for the birth and freedom of the nation will recede into history. He was speaking as the inspector of ceremony at the 37th anniversary of the Indonesian Armed Forces held here Tuesday morning.

The succeeding generation, the generation of development, will now come forward to carry on the struggle to bring into reality the ideals of the fight for independence which had been paid with sacrifices by the people, the president said.

To the younger generation within the rank of the armed forces, he urged for preparation for the urgent task of shouldering a historical duty with the deepest sense of responsibility. "Make yourself a better generation then the previous generation because the growth and the stoutness of a nation always demand the emergence of a better younger generation," he said.

The concept of the dual function of the armed forces has to be implemented with the greatest sense of responsibility with the full understanding of its meaning and spirit as set down in the state defence and security law, he said. The president said implementation of the armed forces' dual function in the future will be no less heavy than what had been done by the armed forces since the war for independence till now; the future development of the nation will become more complicated in step with the demands of progress. He said the armed forces' younger generation should meet this challenge with a full sense of responsibility and a great self-confidence.

He said: "Together with the armed forces our nation has undergone various historical tests in the past, and we have come out of these tests safely and becoming stronger."

The president said the existence of a strong armed forces is a sure guarantee for the survival of a nation. The Indonesian defence and security system, he said, is built on the support of the whole potential of the Indonesian people, with the armed forces acting as the backbone. "Because of that, as the capability of the armed forces continues to get better in years to come, we should also help build the general capability of the Indonesian people as the basic component of the defence and security system."

In his address, President Suharto said that the current domestic security situation and condition in general was favourable. However, according to the head of state, the physical and spiritual tranquillity of the people had frequently been disturbed by various criminal offences taking place among the society. "That is intolerable," President Suharto said.

He called on the society and the police to intensify efforts to cope with the crimes saying that the attitude of the people themselves was decisive to the increase or decrease of crimes. President Suharto also stressed the importance for eliminating the fundamental sources of crimes through acceleration of development.

In other parts of his speech, President Suharto also touched the integration between armed forces and the people which he said had enabled the nation to carry out the recent general election in a direct, general, free and confidential manner.

President Suharto said militarism, authoritarianism and totalitarianism could be avoided only if all the elements of the nation, without exception, were fully loyal to the Pancasila state ideology.

Concluding his speech, President Suharto also elaborated on the newly enacted bill on state defence which was described as one of the nation's efforts to make the Indonesian struggle a success. Through the act of state defence, the military members can, together with other social forces, participate actively in the efforts to substantiate independence. However, President Suharto said, the spirit of those enforcing the act of state defence was more decisive.

The 37th ABRI (Armed Forces) anniversary celebration was attended by certain ranks and files next to invitees from throughout the country.

NEGOTIATIONS WITH IMF TO RESUME IN NOVEMBER

HK060336 Manila BUSINESS DAY in English 5 Oct 82 p 3

[Article by reporter Conrado R. Banal III]

[Text] The Philippines' negotiations with the International Monetary Fund for standby credit arrangements -- the facility through which the IMF finances economic restructuring programs of member-countries -- will resume next month, Prime Minister Cesar Virata told BUSINESS DAY. If the negotiations succeed, the country will be able to tap the facility next year, he added.

Virata also said the country can borrow this year from the IMF compensatory financing window, the facility through which countries can borrow to cover deficits in their international payments. The government expects a huge deficit in the country's current account -- foreign trade and invisible transactions such as earnings of Filipino workers overseas.

The compensatory financing line may be insufficient to meet the country's deficit in international payments. The government is seeking a $180-million loan from the IMF compensatory financing window, while the payments deficit is expected to reach about $720 million this year. Other means available to the country to finance such a deficit are the use of its international reserves (both of the CB [Central Bank] and of the commercial banks) and getting commercial loans.

CB Governor Jaime C. Laya said the country has enough foreign currency reserves to finance the deficit, with the CB alone having $2.6 billion. Around $525 million of commercial loans can also be drawn, he added.

Reports are that foreign bankers believe the Philippines' credit worthiness had declined, and that they would be willing to lend to the country only at high rates. Asked whether the country would have to pay high lending rates, Laya said, "Hindi naman siguro." He said the CB has always proved wrong previous reports about poor chances for the CB to get good rates.

Laya said a big portion of the country's payments deficit was because of oil imports, which are "not immediately payable." The country's revolving credit for oil imports, which can be renewed automatically upon maturity, are usually for six months, he added.

Virata is also confident about the country's ability to obtain "good credit terms," noting that the demand for loans has been relatively low in recent months. "Besides, what bankers say they want is one thing; what they give is another," the prime minister said.

EXTRADITION TREATY'S STATUS IN CONGRESS NOTED

HK060338 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 5 Oct 82

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said that the United States and the Philippine Governments stand to benefit from the proposed exportation treaty involving the two countries. Enrile stressed that the proposed treaty is not a one-way street. The defense minister emphasized this as he disputed allegations that the measure was directed mainly toward getting political dissenters sanctuary in the United States. The proposed exportation treaty will cover Filipino fugitives in the United States facing serious charges in the country. Once ratified by the U.S. Senate, the treaty will enable the Philippine Government to ask for the immediate deportation of Filipino criminals from the United States. In equal measure, the U.S. Government can also ask for the exportation of American criminals who seek sanctuary in the Philippines.

AUSTRALIAN PRIEST ARRESTED FOR ABETTING REBELS

HK010424 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 30 Sep 82

[Text] A Negros Occidental judge has issued a warrant of arrest for a Columban priest. The move came following a raid on the priest's office last week with seizure of various ammunition and explosives. The warrant of arrest for Father Brian N. Gore was issued by Judge (Akawa Kasataya) of the Kabankalan Municipal Court.

Report reaching the Defense Ministry yesterday said the task force (Kalon) is awaiting the issuance of another warrant based on complaints of civilians against the priest for multiple murders.

Father Gore's office was earlier raided by elements of the army stationed in (Rinal) Kabankalan. The government troopers acted on a tip that the priest's office would be used as a meeting place between him and NPA [New People's Army] terrorists.

Denial of Charges

HK040904 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 3 Oct 82

[Text] The head of the Columban papal society in the Philippines yesterday denied involvement by an Australian priest, the Reverend Brian Gore, in subversive activities and said military charges against him must have been based on misinformation. The Reverend Paul Cooney, vice superior of the Society of St. Columban in the Philippines, said in a signed press statement that Gore has never incited people to acts of violence or associated with people who see violence as a solution to the problems of our day. The military held Gore for questioning last September 24 after troopers raided his parish convent in Negros village of Oriental, supposedly because of a tip that he was to meet with Communist New People's Army leaders. The military claimed seizing a hand grenade, five bullets and subversive documents from Gore's office.

AFP Report

[Excerpt] Manila, Oct 3 (AFP) -- The Roman Catholic missionary group Society of Saint Columban (SSC) today strongly denied government allegations one of their priests was a subversive and consorted with Communist rebels. Father Brian Gore, 38, was briefly detained by the military and his house in Oringao village, Kabankalan town in Negros Oriental Province in central Philippines, raided on September 23 and 24. The military alleged they seized subversive documents, a grenade and ammunition in the raid.

Father Gore, from Perth, Western Australia, "has never incited people to acts of violence or associated with people who see violence as a solution to the problems of our day," Columban vice superior in the Philippines, Father Paul Cooney, said. "Father Gore is deeply involved in the welfare and problems of the people, but he never worked against the government," he added.

The Ireland-based society's justice and peace office also issued a statement condemning the military actions against the Australian priest who had been working in Negros since his arrival in the Philippines in July 1969. The charges were a "great slander (and) the raids and alleged evidence from a group of Kabankalan residents shows every evidence of an orchestrated campaign against Father Gore," the office added.

Earlier, the association of superiors of major religious orders in the Philippines, a grouping of heads of Roman Catholic orders of priests and nuns, said the charges were "harassments and an attempted frame-up". The society, however, could not confirm local press reports that military have already filed the charges, but added that Fr Gore was ready to answer all charges any time.

The society, in denying allegations of fraternization with the Communist New People's Army (NPA) said to be operating in the mountainous locale of Oringao parish, labelled it "the greatest slander against Father Gore". They said the Australian missionary, one of the 300 non-Filipino Columbans working in the Philippines, "is well known for his uncompromising preaching of justice and condemnation of wrong, perpetrated either by the military or NPA".

HABEAS CORPUS RESTORATION IN MUSLIM AREAS FAVORED

[Editorial: "Habeas Corpus in South"]

[Text] Responsible Muslim leaders have been recommending the restoration of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in regions 9 and 12. These are the predominantly Muslim regions. They say that the continued suspension of the privilege makes people fearful of arrest and indefinite detention without charges. Our view is the recommendation should be examined closely in relation to the prevailing conditions.

It is evident that the conditions have vastly improved. In recent months important military officers have been saying that because of the improvement in the peace and order conditions many military units have been moved from Mindanao to other parts of the country. It is also clear that the people in the two regions clamor for normalcy.

Trouble is reported from time to time, but it is of a scale that to our minds does not warrant the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus -- an extraordinary measure imposed during an emergency. One of the diffculties posed to the decisionmakers is the impossibility of quantifying the effects, under certain circumstances, of a restoration or a suspension. There is no assurance that restoration will lead to the improvement of the peace and order conditions because there is no precise measurement available. It is, then, normal to fear that restoration of the privilege might lead to the deterioration of the conditions.

However, another way of looking at it is the restoration of the privilege will give a psychological lift to the population. And the vast majority of the population is peace-loving. Restoration will boost government popularity and hurt the cause of a relatively few anti-government elements.

If we grant that insurgency is a battle for the minds of the people, the restoration of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus will undoubtedly be a powerful weapon for the government.

BANK OF JAPAN GOVERNOR REGRETS REGAN REMARKS

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 6, KYODO -- Stressing the basic strength of the country's economic fundamentals, Bank of Japan Governor Haruo Maekawa expressed regret Wednesday about U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan's alleged negative remarks about the Japanese economy. He said that maintaining the stability of currency markets is "a common responsibility" of major countries such as the United States and Japan. If Regan's remarks turned out to be as reported, the governor said, "it would increase the instability of the market and it is regrettable."

Maekawa said the yen's continuous decline in value against the U.S. dollar was "too extreme," adding the situation should be rectified as early as possible. "I don't see any new factor in the Japanese economy" which has caused the yen's depreciation, he told a news conference. He stressed that Japan's fundamentals are basically sound, although other countries may be gradually realizing thorny issues the Japanese economy has been confronted with. Maekawa said his central bank is watching developments in the money market "with great interest." He predicted that the yen's drop in value would greatly affect prices and corporate profits.

Economic Crisis Denied

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 6, KYODO -- A senior Finance Ministry official said Wednesday U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan's remarks blaming the yen's depreciation on an economic crisis in Japan are based on misunderstanding. The official, who declined to be identified, told reporters the Japanese economy is not in crisis. "Japan is still running ahead of other countries in terms of such basic economic factors as economic growth, inflation, unemployment and the balance of payments," he said. "Regan's view linking Japan's budget deficit to an economic crisis in a short-circuit manner is based on misunderstanding," he added.

DEFENSE CHIEF QUERIED IN DIET ON F-16 DEPLOYMENT

[Excerpts] Tokyo, Oct 7, KYODO -- The Defense Agency said Thursday the planned deployment of U.S. F-16 fighters at Misawa U.S. Air Force Base in Aomori Prefecture is intended to restore military balance in the Far East and strengthen the U.S. deterrent against the Soviet forces in the Far East. The agency also said F-16 fighters' main task is to carry out ground attacks and its sphere of action covered the Soviet Maritime Province, southern Sakhalin and southern Kurile Islands.

The agency told this in answering interpellations made by Socialist Takahiro Yokomichi and other Socialist dietmen in a session of the House of Representatives Ad Hoc Committee on Security Affairs.

Defense Agency Chief Soichiro Ito, who recently visited the United States for summit talks on defense, told the committee that the U.S. expected Japan to make greater defense efforts and that Japan has to make its defense buildup efforts with the U.S. expectation in mind.

Yokomichi claimed the deployment of F-16 fighters at Misawa would increase tension with the Soviet Union and warned against Japan's involvement in the U.S. strategy.

Ito said Japan consented to F-16 deployment in the belief it would be in its interest.

Haruo Natsume, head of the agency's Defense Bureau, said the deployment of F-16 fighters is intended to improve military balance in the Far East to cope with the Soviet military buildup, confirm the U.S. commitment to peace and security in Japan and the Far East and to strengthen the U.S. deterrent power.

Yokomichi also questioned about the Japan-U.S. joint study on sealane defense and said there was perception gap between the two countries about Japan's defense of sealanes up to 1,000 miles from its shores. Natsume said sealane defense is a cumulative combination of strait defense, harbor defense, wide-area patrol and air defense on the sea. He also said there is no perception gap on the matter between Japan and the U.S. The agency also rejected the idea of dividing the northwestern Pacific into two zones to be defended separately by Japan and the United States.

Ito also said his agency wants a 7.346 percent increase at the least in the defense budget for fiscal 1983.

A Foreign Ministry official also said the Soviet Maritime Province is not within the Far East mentioned in the Japan-U.S. security treaty, but F-16 fighter sorties to the area in case of emergency in the Far East would pose no problem.

SUZUKI PLEDGES IMPLEMENTATION OF MARKET OPENING

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 7, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki pledged Thursday Japan will steadily implement market-opening measures and encourage foreign enterprises to sell their products in the Japanese market. Additionally, he called on the nation's traders to increase imports of manufactured goods to help resolve the trade problem with the United States and Western European countries.

Suzuki made the remarks before the first high-powered trade conference in 11 years at the prime minister's official residence. The prime minister was briefed by his trade minister, Shintaro Abe, on the aggravated U.S. sentiment which Abe warned could lead to a resurgence of trade friction in the face of rising unemployment in that country. Abe later told a news conference the prime minister was very attentive to his report on his recent trip to Washington but did not make much comment during their meeting prior to the start of the trade conference.

Suzuki told the conference his government is prepared to "steadily implement" market-opening measures that it announced late last year and early this year. While calling for expansion of imports of manufactured products which accounted for about 24 percent, dollar 34.8 billion, of the nation's total imports in 1981, the prime minister urged "foreign enterprises to make aggressive approaches to our country's market."

During the hour-long meeting, Suzuki, who chaired Thursday's conference, other Cabinet ministers and about two dozen Japanese business leaders heard an ominous report forecasting the first year-to-year drop in Japan's exports in three decades. Renzo Taguchi, the Ishikawajima-Harima heavy industry advisor who presided over the conference's coordination council that prepared the report, said the country's exports and imports will drop by some 6 percent to 7 percent in the current fiscal year to dollar 140 billion and dollar 130 billion. Yoshizo Ikeda, an advisor to Mitsui and Co., a leading trading company, proposed that the government should make efforts to "impress Japan as an open market on other countries." Ikeda was also quoted as saying foreign traders should be more patient in penetrating the Japanese market and making profits, citing his firm's 100-year-old expertise as an example.

Tatsuzo Mizukami, chairman of the Japan Foreign Trade Council, who attended the previous trade conference chaired by the late Premier Eisaku Sato 11 years ago, urged the Suzuki government to map out a policy calling for overall expansion of both domestic demand and exports.

[Speech by O Chin-u, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee and minister of the DPRK People's Armed Forces, at 5 October banquet arranged by the Ministry of People's Armed Forces in honor of the Seychellois military and youth delegation -- read by announcer]

[Text] Today, we are very pleased to welcome the military and youth delegation of the Republic of Seychelles headed by His Excellency Ogilvy Y. Berlouis, minister of youth and defense of the Republic of Seychelles, that is visiting our country with warm friendly sentiment toward our people and People's Army soldiers, and we warmly welcome your visit to our country. This visit will mark and important occasion in developing the friendly and cooperative relations between the two peoples and armies.

The peoples of Korea and Seychelles, who established friendly ties in the joint struggles against imperialism and for independence, have supported and cooperated with each other for the realization of common goals and a common idea. The historic meeting between the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and respected His Excellency President France Albert Rene was an epochal event in developing the relations of friendship and cooperation between our two peoples and armies. We regard it as the utmost pleasure to have the Seychellois people and army as true friends in the Indian Ocean.

Korea and Seychelles are both nonaligned countries striving to build a new society, free and prosperous. We express full support to the just struggle of the Seychellois people for repulsing the subversive activities and sabotages of the imperialists and their stooges, defending the country's sovereignty and turning the Indian Ocean into a peace zone, and sincerely wish them a new success in their struggle to build a new society.

It is our people's supreme national aspiration to achieve an independent and peaceful reunification of the country. The Seychellois Government took a just and determined step of severing its diplomatic relations with the South Korean authorities in May 1980 in denunciation of the suppression of people by the South Korean military fascists and thus expressed its full support and solidarity for our people's just cause. I express my sincere gratitude to the Seychellois Government and people for constantly and positively supporting and backing the just cause of our people to achieve an independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

Cherishing our friendship with the people and army of Seychelles, we will advance in the future, too, in firm unity with the fraternal Seychellois people in the struggle against imperialism and colonialism and for accomplishing the cause of making the whole world independent.

Finally, wishing you pleasant and beneficial days during your visit to our country, I propose a toast to the invincible fraternal friendship and unity between the Korean and Seychellois peoples and army, to the good health and long life of His Excellency President France Albert Rene, the outstanding leader of the Seychellois people, to the good health and long life of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and to the good health and long life of the dear comrade leader Kim Chong-il and to the good health of the comrades and friends who are with us at this place.

FURTHER REPORTS ON NATIONAL ASSEMBLY SESSION

Parties Give Keynote Speeches

[Excerpts] The ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) yesterday called for the development of a climate for dialogue politics, while the opposition Democratic Korea Party (DKP) and Korea National Party (KNP) demanded the revitalization of politics and the restoration of "public trust." Those demands were made in keynote speeches made by representatives from the three major political parties in a plenary National Assembly session.

Rep. Chin Ui-chong, DJP chief policymaker, said it is prerequisite to the lifting of the political ban on former politicians to eliminate the remanants of the old political era and, in turn, to develop a new political milieu for dialogue.

Rep Yi Tae-ku, DKP vice president, said he feels certain that the only solution to all existing problems lies in what he called the restoration of politics. Priority should be given to modernizing politics in the present decade, he said.

Meanwhile, Rep. Sin Chol-kyun, chief policymaker of the KNP, proposed the assembly form an ad hoc committee to revamp various controversial political laws and handle other political issues. Sin said he feels confident that the proposed ad hoc committee will help create a sound political atmosphere.

Speaking of economic issues, the KNP chief policymaker asserted that the government-proposed national budget bill for 1983 should be drastically modified in accordance with expected tax revenues. The government should retract its plan to issue national bounds and retrench subsidies and funds for nonessential projects as much as possible, he said. He also called for the formation in the assembly of a special committee to work out measures designed to overcome the present economic difficulty.

The assembly will embark on a six-day interpellation today. A total of 21 lawmakers will take the floor during the question-answer session and concentrate their queries on political, security, diplomatic, economic and social issues.

Further on Chin Speech

["Gist" of speech by Chin Ui-chong, chief policymaker of the Democratic Justice Party, at 6 October session of the National Assembly]

[Text] With the issue of distortions of history in the Japanese textbooks, the movement to overcome Japan is spreading across the nation like wildfire. We should turn this movement into a motive force for creating new history. For this, we should establish a more concrete view of national history to conquer the view of colonial history as well as of class history. Thus, we should firmly establish national sovereignty [minjok chuchesong] and, based on this, we should Koreanize democracy.

To Koreanize democracy, we should, first of all, reject long-term power by one man. Second, we should create a new image for politicians. Third, we should consolidate the new political climate. For this, we should settle the politics of dialogue through discussion and persuasion rather than struggle to the extremes, thus thoroughly eliminating the trend of distrust, the government, the ruling camp and the leading class of society should strive to eradicate the basis and causes of distrust. We should, in particular, prevent the fabrication of vicious wild rumors and eliminate the erroneous tendency of being dazzled by such rumors.

Needless to say, we should review pending political issues, such as the implementation of the system of provincial self-government is to carefully study necessary preconditions and conditions and strike to realize such conditions based on existing reality. This also applies to the issue of lifting the political ban. The ban on political activities imposed on some of the old politicians is the result of the unfortunate situation which made such a measure inevitable.

Thus, I believe it is a fundamental task to put an end to the political climate of the old era and to bring about political traits of dialogue based on trust.

In the economic field, we should, first of all, inspire businessmen's enthusiasm for business enterprises. For this, the government's economic policy should maintain consistency, and changes in policies should take place gradually. We should transform the system of a government-led economy to a civilian-led economic system by easing and abolishing various restrictions under the government-led economic system.

Second, the industrial structure should be reorganized in such a way as to increase earnings of business firms. We should break away from the production pattern -- aimed at boosting sales figures only -- of importing parts and simply assembling them, but should help domestic small and medium industries nurture parts industries. The small and medium-sized industries which produce parts should be nurtured from the viewpoint of industrial policy and those industries should be affiliated with conglomerates.

Third, the government is requested to give special consideration to the development of technology.

Fourth, so as to eliminate waste in distributing limited national resources, the government should promptly and drastically readjust insolvent enterprises.

By eradicating the idea of looking down upon farming on the basis of the theory of comparative superiority, the government should exert efforts to develop irrigation, arrange arable land and pave roads in rural villages and should establish a great principle of granting compensation for farmers' production costs in purchasing autumn and summer-harvested grains.

A policy aimed at remedying the unbending nature of the budget should be mapped out. The The governmemt should pay attention to the fact that the issuing of national bonds in the new year may cause an increase in the amount of currency, thereby necessitating the working out of careful and meticulous countermeasures.

A series of inauspicious events which have taken place during past 2 years were the product of the way of thinking of the old era. This shows that without reform in the way of thinking, it is difficult to realize a genuinely just society. Paying attention to the fact that those events took place in a transition period during which the measures toward achieving self-regulation had been undertaken, we should more actively push ahead with the social cleanup movement and the movement to reform our way of thinking.

While continuing multifaceted efforts to consolidate the friendly and cooperative relations with the United States, we should map out a clear-cut plan toward developing the triangular cooperative system among the ROK, the United States and Japan. We should be on the lookout so that the ROK not be subordinated to U.S. policy toward Japan.

We should by all means force North Korea into the forum of dialogue, and for this, we should actively conduct multifaceted diplomacy for unification, including diplomacy toward the communist bloc,

Further on Yi Speech

["Gist" of speech by Yi Tae-ku, vice president of the Democratic Korea Party, at the 5 October session of the National Assembly]

[Excerpts] How well has the National Assembly accepted public opinion and represented the public? Unfortunately, I have no proud, affirmative words to answer such a question. It is true that we were unable to organize a special committee to investigate the government offices -- an inherent right vested in the National Assembly -- in regard to the rice scandal, the Uiryong incident and the Mrs Chang scandal. What is more, the members of the National Assembly, who cannot be held liable for their speeches in the House, have been restricted and shown signs of atrophy in their speeches.

When real power is concentrated in one place, except for the few within the boundary of power, the absolute majority of the people are likely to be isolated and an invisible wall will separate the government and people. All such problems can be solved by politics and, therefore, the only way to fundamentally cure them is to restore the role of politics. In short, politics is nonexistent. There may be a difference in the degree and recognition of such a phenomenon, but politics, while appearing to exist, is in reality nonexistent. This is the present political reality. This is because we have inherited the political and cultural legacy of the Democratic epublica arty, which was devoid of politics, and because we have not been able to eradicate such a legacy.

It is true that political stability is necessary for economic growth. However, we already have learned from history the lesson that an attempt to justify the exercise of absolute power always results in a change of power because the attempt lacks justification and, just as the ruler, lacks morality.

We are no longer in an era in which one must sacrifice himself for the benefit of another. Our political culture has not yet been successful in overcoming the stage of feudal political culture. Political modernization based on the spirit of voluntary participation is what we urgently need. To this end, freedom of the press should be guaranteed. When freedom of the press is restricted, society enters a dark world due to the forced silence, and eventually new chaos results.

Also, the role of the House should be exercised properly for political modernization. It is a reality that the House is not exercising its inherent functions, not to mention its role of checking and supervising. A model case of this is the fact that we were not even able to form a special committee to investigate major incidents. It is our duty to call for a balanced development of parties, both ruling and minority, for the modernization of politics. The ruling party is suffering from obesity, while minority parties are suffering from malnutrition.

The election systems should also be revised for political modernization. As a logical justification of the government system centered on a president, the president should find direct public credence. For a president to find direct public credence, he must be elected by a popular election system. For this reason, the election system should be revised. As for the parliamentary election systems, it is irrational that the majority party should take two-thirds of the representational seats. This is the reason it is necessary to revise the parliamentary election systems.

I call for an immediate use of the local self-government system. Under the pretext of a poor degree of financial self-support on the part of the local self-governments, the government has been delaying the practice of the local self-government system that is clearly stipulated in the Constitution. We cannot but view this as having a political purpose.

There are many more tasks to tackle for political modernization. To cite a few: the issue of lifting the political ban on the old politicians, the issue of human rights, normalization on the campuses, the issue of the need to either revise or abolish undemocratic laws and the labor-management issue. These, all byproducts of political instability, can be solved smoothly when politics is put back on the right track.

Already more than a year has passed since we began talks for Korea-Japan economic cooperation, but we do not know how much progress has been made so far and the amount that will be settled upon in the talks. Now distortions in Japan's history textbooks have engulfed the economic talks. The issue of the Korea-Japan economic talks should be settled as soon as possible, separately from the issue of distortions of history, regardless of success or failure. The government should determinedly redefine Korea-Japan relations -- even if it has to run the risk of severing diplomatic relations with Japan -- confident that the people will back its decision.

The main reason for our economic hardships stems from the structural contradiction of our growth-oriented economic policy. Reduction of the 6 percent of the gross national product earmarked for defense expenditures -- the chief cause of our national budget's inflexibility -- is a heavy task that should be solved by highly political and diplomatic means.

I express my deep concern over how many of my suggestions contained in this speech will be reflected in national policy, because the government and ruling party, ever since the inauguration of the Fifth Republic, have never paid attention to our effort to promote political development through dialogue.

Parties React to Speeches

SK062328 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 6 Oct 82 p 2

[From the column "Central Tower"]

[Text] After the keynote speeches were delivered in the 5 October plenary session of the National Assembly, members of the majority and minority parties rated each other's keynote speeches as having shown an attitude for dealing with problems seriously.

Stressing that "in the speeches of the opposition parties there were portions that both the government and majority party should listen to and examine closely," Yi Chae-hyong, leader of the Democratic Justice Party, said: Our party's chief policymaker Rep. Chin Ui-chong's mention of the practice of a local self-government system and the issue of lifting the political ban on the old politicians was not simply political rhetoric.

Commenting somewhat critically on the keynote speech of his party, Yi Chong-chan, floor leader of the DJP, said: Because the speech stressed too many ideals and causes, it was like listening to a lecture on the ABC's of political theory.

Democratic Korea Party floor leader Yim Chong-ki said: It is significant that the DJP has mentioned the issues of a local self-government system and an end to the political ban imposed on the old politicians.

Korea National Party floor leader Yim Tong-chin said: I am not satisfied with the DJP speech because it did not mention political development in detail.

Rep Cho Il-che, chairman of the KNP policymaking committee, criticized the DKP, saying that "the DKP's keynote speech had no appeal because it only criticized the old regime, turning a deaf ear to today's problems."

6 Oct Interpellations

SK070130 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 7 Oct 82 p 1

[Text] The lawmakers of the opposition parties requested the government yesterday to take drastic political measures for what they called national reconciliation by such means as the lifting of political ban on former politicians during the first-day interpellation session of the regular house sitting.

Rep. Kim Ki-su of the Korean National Party (KNP) asked Prime Minister Kim Sang-hyop whether he was willing to recommend directly that President Chon Tu-hwan remove the ostracism at this moment to help create real harmony among the people. He claimed that the political outcasts were deemed to have already shown sincere repentance if the government judged that they had not engaged in political activity so far.

Rep. Ho Kyong-ku of the Democratic Korea Party (DKP) also insisted that the people now expected the government to adopt political programs for the cause of the total national unity.

Three lawmakers -- Reps. Kim and Ho and Ha Sun-pong of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) -- took the floor to question the administration on national political affairs, diplomacy and security during the session in the presence of the premier and cabinet ministers concerned. The major issues the legislators tackled included the readjustment of Korea-Japan relations following Japanese textbooks' distortions of historical accounts; early implementation of the local autonomy system; the promotion of Pacific summit talks; and overall security problems surrounding the Korean Peninsula.

In particular, Reps. Ha and Ho took issue with a recent remark made by U.S. Ambassador to Korea Richard Walker in which he said the U.S. hoped "Korea will avoid the patterns of nationalistic self-centeredness which often backfire." Rep. Ha inquired of Prime Minister Kim about his view of Walker's speech and about his idea on eliminating such a gap of opinions in understanding nationalism.

Reps. Ha and Kim showed keen interest in the recent visit of North Korean chieftain Kim Il-song to China in terms of its possible effect on the development of close relations between Pyongyang and Peking. They asked what was the government's counter-plan against the latest movement surrounding China.

Rep. Ha of the DJP questioned the administration about the possibility of U.S. President Ronald Reagan's visit to Seoul and the prospects for Korea-U.S. relations after Reagan's visit.

The House interpellation will continue for five more days until next Wednesday on three agenda items -- politics, diplomacy-security, and socioeconomic affairs.

Focusing his questions mainly on political affairs, Rep. Ho of the opposition DKP suggested that the assembly and the administration form a joint body to deliberate various political bills such as an amendment to the National Assembly law.

Prime Minister Responds

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 6 (YONHAP) -- Prime Minister Kim Sang-hyop Wednesday expressed the hope that conditions will ripen at an early date for the lifting of the ban on political activities of those outcast from South Korean politics in 1980.

In an appearance before the National Assembly plenary session, the prime minister was responding to the question raised Tuesday by the majority Democratic Justice Party and minority parties by recalling President Chon Tu-hwan's pledge to gradually reinstate political outcasts "at an appropriate time". Kim did not elaborate on the conditions that would have to be met before reinstating the outcasts. There are known to be 567 people on the political blacklist drawn up by the government in 1980 under a new law which bans until June 1980 political activities of those accused of corruption and other improprieties.

On the adoption of local autonomy system, Kim said it would be desirable to implement the system after all local units achieve some measure of financial self-reliance.

Asked to comment on U.S. Ambassador Richard Walker's recent speech warning against an excessive Korean nationalism, Kim said he did not think that the U.S. envoy's remarks were made with the understanding of or at the request of the U.S. State Department, and stressed the need for safeguarding nationalism in South Korea.

Kim said there would be no progress in the Seoul-Tokyo talks on the Korean request for official Japanese loans without resolving the textbook issue, and added that the loan talks should not interfere with the correction of the distortions in the disputed Japanese history textbooks.

Defense Minister Responds

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 7 (YONHAP) -- South Korean Defense Minister Yun Song-min Wednesday said: "The nation's defense industry, now assembling sophisticated fighter aircraft domestically, will surpass that of North Korea in the near future."

The defense chief revealed that South Korea "now produces M-16 rifles, field guns, missiles, patrol boats, destroyers and various kinds of ammunition. Models of light armored vehicles with endless-track drive will also come out next year."

Answering questions posed by lawmakers during the plenary session of the National Assembly, Yun said: "The combat capability of the nation's reserve troops will be upgraded to the level of regular forces, while that of soldiers actively enlisted will be also reinforced, to maintain superiority over North Korea." He added that the balanced development of both tangible and intangible combat capabilities will be sought as a first step toward the peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula.

In addition, Yun said: "A joint South Korea-U.S. information system collects and evaluates information on Korea and then transmits data analyses to each partner simultaneously."

Unification Minister's Remarks

[Excerpt] Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik said the government is working on a measure designed to break the deadlock in the inter-Korea talks. Serious studies are being made on the framework of the forthcoming constitution for a unified Korea, but the government is not ready to disclose the results of the studies, he said.

Touching on relations between North Korea and mainland China, he said he expects that relations will be brought closer in the political, economic and military fields. He said, however, he does not think China will render support for North Korea in a way that will break the military balance between the South and North Korea.

DEATH SENTENCE PASSED 7 OCT ON ALLEGED SPY

SK070608 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 0300 GMT 7 Oct 82

[Text] A death sentence was handed down for the former teacher who falsely sought asylum after being won over by the North Korean puppets while staying in West Germany as a mine worker. Senior Judge Yi Yong-pom of Seoul District Criminal Court Collegiate Department 13 passed the death sentence today for defendant Kim Chin-mok, 43, a spy who falsely sought asylum after being won over by a North Korean puppet agent while he was staying in West Germany as a miner. Kim was indicted for violation of the national security law. Former teacher Kim went to West Germany in 1974 as a mine worker and was won over by a North Korean agent. He received espionage training in Pyongyang and falsely sought asylum in West Germany in 1977, disguising himself as a North Korean doctor. Defendant Kim found employment in a West German hospital, married a Turkish woman, and expressed to the ROK Embassy in Turkey his desire to work for the ROK and make deceitful entry into Korea. He was caught while carrying out espionage activity, and was arrested and indicted.

ECONOMIC COOPERATION WITH ASEAN DISCUSSED

SK050110 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 5 Oct 82 p 7

[Excerpt] A joint seminar on Korea-ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) economic cooperation opened under the sponsorship of the Korea Institute for Industrial Economics and Technology (KIET) at the World Trade Center Korea building yesterday. Pak Song-sang, president of KIET, said in his keynote speech that most forecasters predicted that the growth rate of the world economy in the 1980's would be a little lower than that of the 1970's, but with an improved inflation rate. Pak said: "The world economy seems to be suffering from a long wave of slow growth and will continue to do so if there is no dramatic change in policy to cure the present malaise." He pointed out that reemergent protectionism in the industrial countries was a major threat to the continued growth of world trade. Fortunately, economic cooperation between ASEAN and Korea had been increasing in various fields such as commodity trade, joint ventures and technological cooperation, he said. Taking all the external and internal factors into consideration, he said that the ASEAN countries and Korea could derive maximum benefits by cooperating as development partners.

HUN SEN WARNS THAILAND ON 'PROVOCATIVE ACTIONS'

[Text] Phnom Pehn, 7 Oct (SPK) -- Hun Sen, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs, voiced his total rejection of any resolution on Kampuchea to be voted by the 37th UN General Assembly Session.

Minister Hun Sen on Wednesday, 6 October, attended a conference sponsored by the municipal people's committee, gathering more than 400 representatives of Phnon Penh workers. Hun Sen denounced the recognition of the bloody and genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime by the United Nations.

Minister Hun Sen denounced the Chinese expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists who, through ASEAN -- particularly Thailand -- ar aggravating tension along the Kampuchean-Thai border against the Kampuchean revolution.

Over the past 3 years, the Kampuchean people have always wished to turn this border into a zone of peace, but the Thai ruling circles which have forever followed the Beijing clique have undertaken sabotage activities against the rebirth of the Kampuchean people. Respecting their traditional friendship with the Thai people, the Kampuchean people have taken care not to counter the provocative actions of Thailand. However, patience has its limits. If the Thai authorities do not cease these actions, we may resort to our right of legitimate defense.

Hun Sen denounced and condemned international reaction headed by U.S. imperialism which, pretending to be the champion of human rights, has supported the genocidal Pol Pot clique or that of Pol Pot in disguise such as Sihanouk ad Son Sann, which, claiming to defend peace, has supported the Israeli Zionists and South African racists.

The Kampuchean people always uphold the banners of peace and independence and join their struggle with that of the Southeast Asian people and the progressives of the world.

The strategic alliance of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos is a factor determining the victory of the Kampuchean revolution and that of the three Indochinese peoples, affirmed Hun Sen, who declared: If China agrees to sign a treaty of nonaggression with the Indochinese countries, the PRK will contribute to the total withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and to the convening of an international conference on the problems of Southeast Asia.

The minister launched an appeal to the Kampucheans misled by the fallacious propaganda of the traitors to the nation to surrender themselves to the revolutionary power. Following their surrender, if they respect the Constitution adopted by the Kampuchean people and if they take part in national construction and defense, these persons will enjoy all rights of citizens.

SIHANOUK ADDRESSES UN GENERAL ASSEMBLY SESSION

BK070340 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 5 Oct 82

["Text" of 30 September speech by Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, president of Democratic Kampuchea, at the 37th UN General Assembly session -- read by announcer]

[Text] Mr President, Mr Secretary General, distinguished delegates: This is the sixth time in the past 25 years that I have had the honor to speak before the United Nations to defend the interests of my country and my people in front of the distinguished delegates of the UN member states,

Like the last time I made a statement to the UN Security Council in 1979, following the invasion and occupation of Kampuchea by the armed forces of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, it is the crucial question of my country's life or death as a free and sovereign nation that I have come to defend at this UN General Assembly today.

First of all, allow me to express my respect to his excellency the president of this General Assembly. I would like to express my high salutations to His Excellency Ismat Kittani and I sincerely admire him for having led the work of this latest UN General Assembly session with competence and honesty and without taking sides. I would like to extend best wishes to His Excellency Javier Perez de Cuellar, secretary general of the United Nations. We would like to express our admiration for all the expressions of conscience and great sacrifice made in the cause of justice and peace. I greet all the delegates present here -- among whom I am honored to notice many sincere friends -- on behalf of my country, our coalition government and the Kampuchean patriots who are fighting on the battlefield in the most difficult conditions but full of resolute determination to liberate our fatherland.

Contrary to certain false allegations, our government is not a government in exile. All members of our government live and fight on Kampuchean soil with our heroic combatants. Despite the efforts of the Vietnamese army to control and occupy the whole of our country, we have managed to liberate and firmly control vast regions not only near the Thai border, but also in southwestern and northeastern Kampuchea. Last July, I myself toured three liberated zones deep inside our territory by car, on foot and on elephant back. Wherever I went I was welcomed by well-disciplined armed forces and millions of people, among whom I noticed, with satisfaction, many children.

Kampuchea and the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea express their sincere gratitude to the United Nations which, since 1979, has rejected the attempts by the regime installed by foreigners in Phnom Penh to occupy the Kampuchean seat at the United Nations. Eeryone here knows that the Phnom Penh regime has no identity. It is under the permanent control of the Vietnamese aggressor authorities and survives only with the support of two foreign countries. Even those who favor the occupation of the Kampuchean seat at the United Nations by the Phnom Penh regime know this.

To recognize the puppet regime in Phnom Penh means, first of all, recognizing and allowing foreigners to continue indefinitely their occupation of our country, which has been a full member of the United Nations since 1955, and putting our country under the colonial control of a foreign country which has arrogantly violated the UN Charter and scornfully ignored the resolutions of the United Nations demanding the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all foreign troops from Kampuchea. Second, it will convince other countries which are victims of aggression and occuption -- countries not from the Third World -- that they are in no position to resist and eliminate aggression from a foreign country. Finally, it will increase tension and the risk of war breaking out in the whole region.

Geographically speaking, Kampuchea is located in an important area strategically. Originally, I tried to make Kampuchea a buffer state between two states with different ideologies. Everyone knows that war spilled into Kampuchea from Vietnam and is now raging further westward. As an independent, nonaligned and neutral country which does not allow the establishment of foreign military bases on its territory, our country should be a major factor for peace not only in the Indochinese Peninsula, but throughout the whole of Southeast Asia and the Far East as well.

On the contrary, Kampuchea has become a colonial state and a military base of two expansionist-hegemonist countries. This is a threat to the stability, peace, security and progress of the nations and peoples of the whole region, and it might cause an armed confrontation with incalculable consequences between (?different) superpowers who have conflicting interests in the Asian region.

As you are all aware, the Hanoi ruling circles and their clique have grossly insulted me, ridiculed me and offended me, but I have not responded to these attacks. I would only recall the fact that in Asia prior to 1970, there was no leader who was as sincere a friend of Vietnam as me, none who rendered as many important services to the Vietnamese patriots in the north and in the south in their struggle for Vietnam's independence.

In view of the occupation of our country by the Armed Forces of the SRV, it is my duty to remind the Hanoi leaders that in the past they promised many times, both verbally and in writing, to always remain grateful and absolutely respect the independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Kampuchea.

Between the end of 1979 and early 1980, I wrote three long letters to Pham Van Dong, prime minister of Vietnam, a friend and a former comrade-in-arms, proposing bilateral talks between the Vietnamese Government and myself in Hanoi or in any other city of his choice, to resolve differences between the two sides through peaceful means. I stressed in my letters that if the SRV agreed to let Kampuchea recover its independence and right to self-determination, the government representing the people's aspirations, chosen through free elections under international supervision, would maintain relations, cooperation and friendship based on equality with neighboring and fraternal Vietnam.

I waited for 3 years for some positive sign from Hanoi, despite the fact that some of my compatriots accused me of being friendly with Vietnam. But as a reward for my efforts to find a peaceful solution and restore mutual trust by making my country completely neutral under international supervision and guarantees, the Hanoi leaders said -- or made other people say -- that they would not discuss matters with a person who represents nothing and has no political future. They also said that the situation in Kampuchea is irreversible.

However, as in the past, I bear no grudge against Vietnam. I have always believed that considering the geographical positions of our two countries, we will always be neighbors and must tolerate each other. This tolerance, however, must be based on equality and not on a master-servant relationship. The present Hanoi government did not analyze the situation, but chose to quickly forget the many good deeds that the Kampuchean people and myself had done for the Hanoi Vietnamese during the arduous period of their struggle for independence and the reunification of Vietnam. Furthermore, the Hanoi government forgot the assistance and support of the world community in the struggle in which Vietnam was victim of colonialism and imperialism. Now that it has become an independent and unified country, Vietnam itself is changing into a colonial and imperialist country. It has arrogantly and insolently gone so far as to seriously threaten neighboring countries who are worried about Vietnamese expansionism.

We noticed that during his last trip to Southeast Asia, the foreign minister of the SRV threatened some Southeast Asian countries who simply demanded the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea, allowing the Kampuchean people the right to decide their own destiny. The Vietnamese foreign minister accused the governments of some Southeast Asian countries of interfering in the internal affairs of Kampuchea, but everyone knows that it is Vietnam which is insolently and barbarously interfering in Kampuchea's internal affairs. Vietnam is occupying our country, has stationed its troops in our country and has plundered vast amounts of our natural resources, while the ASEAN countries only demand that Vietnam -- the invader and aggressor -- let Kampuchea be the master of its own destiny.

The late President Ho Chi Minh, at whose funeral I was the only head of state, liked to say that there is nothing more precious than independence and freedom. But now, one can see in the deeds of his successors that this slogan applies only to Vietnam, which has the right to take away the independence and freedom of neighboring countries -- Kampuchea and Laos -- and to move forward to attack other countries which are militarily less powerful than Vietnam.

In the case of Kampuchea, it is clear that the SRV intends to occupy it indefinitely through its puppet government. It is in the light of these realities and these painful circumstances that I have felt compelled to join in a tripartite coalition and to participate in armed struggle in order that my country might become master of its own destiny again.

Mr President, Mr Secretary General, distinguished delegates, in 1979, 1980 and 1981, the United Nations adopted clear resolutions outlining the path for a just solution to the Kampuchean problem which resulted from Vietnam's political and expansionist territorial ambitions. The International Conference on Kampuchea, held in New York in 1981 under the sponsorship of the United Nations, adopted a just declaration and resolutions in accordance with the principles of the UN Charter, the interests of Kampuchea and Vietnam and those of the peoples of the whole of Southeast Asia.

The Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea, like the Kampuchean people, categorically rejects any other conference organized by the SRV with the backing of the Soviet Union and its followers. Any conference with the participation of the puppets in Phnom Penh and Vientiane will not diccuss the Kampuchean problem, but will declare that the problem has already been solved and will maneuver others into a de facto recognition of the Heng Samrin puppets installed by Vietnam. On this question, neither Democratic Kampuchea nor any freedom- and justice-loving country will fall into Vietnam's trap.

If the SRV really wants to contribute to restoring peace and stability in the region, as a member of the United Nations it must abide by the resolutions of the UN General Assembly and take part in the International Conference on Kampuchea. In order to reduce tension in the region, simply declaring a partial troop withdrawal is not enough; furthermore, there is no evidence of this partial troop withdrawal. As a matter of fact, Vietnam recently sent fresh troops from Vietnam into Kampuchea to reinforce its aggressor forces there.

I would like to stress that only the total withdrawal of Vietnam's aggressor troops from Kampuchea -- followed by free elections under the supervision of the United Nations so that the Kampuchean people can choose representatives to the parliament and senate, a prime minister, head of state and their political regime -- will result in a just solution to the Kampuchean problem. As long as the SRV refuses to withdraw its troops from Kampuchea, my government will fight with all its strength against the policy to make the occupation of Kampuchea permanent.

After 3 years, we know for certain that in our country -- which is under Vietnam's heel -- political objection is ruthlessly suppressed, resulting in either the disappearance or imprisonment of the protestor. The Vietnamese frequently use toxic chemical weapons, in particular toxic gas, on Kampuchean guerrillas and people who refuse to acquiesce to Vietnam's domination. The Vietnamese aggressors are intensifying their plunder of Kampuchea's natural resources and economy. They have sent in their own people to take over fertile land and fish-rich rivers and lakes, expelling the Kampuchean people who are the owners from their villages. Vietam has tried to make Western observers visiting Kampuchea believe that Kampuchea was invaded and has been occupied but is not under Vietnamese subjugation, and that Kampuchea is enjoying freedoms and well-being not experienced for many years. They have denounced some journalists who have tried to tell the truth about Kampuchea.

Mr President, Mr Secretary General, distinguished delegates, earlier I said that we have no other recourse but to take up arms to defend the destiny and future of our country and nation. I know that there are some who ridicule our resistance, saying that we are too weak and are not in a position to worry the Vietnamese aggressor troops. Whether weak or strong, we have the sacred duty to strive to fight with all our capabilities against the aggressors. I do not predict that we will achieve victory in the near future or at any time, but I can assure you that we will continue the struggle until the very end without grudge but with a resolute and firm determination. The foreigners who are imposing their yoke on our country and who are plundering our country will at some point, sooner or later, realize that they will not be secure in Kampuchea. They will also realize that Kampuchean territory will become hotter and hotter for them.

We are not fighting against the Vietnamese people; we are only fighting for peace and to restore independence and freedom to our country, which has become a vassal state of Vietnam. We definitely do not want a "pax Vietnamica" or a "pax Sovietica". What we want is true peace to live with full rights and freedom. We do not want anything from anyone else, but seek only to restore sovereignty and territorial integrity to our country. Once we achieve this goal, we solemnly pledge to live in peace with all our neighboring countries, particularly with Vietnam, as well as with those countries which respect us, regardless of their political or social systems. Is this an unreasonable demand or one which cannot be defended?

Mr President, Mr Secretary General, distinguished delegates, we solemnly declare before this General Assembly that in accordance with the resolutions of the UN General Assembly, once Vietnam withdraws all its troops from Kampuchea everything between our two countries can be solved.

We are ready to sign a treaty of peace and non-aggression with Vietnam as long as there is recognition and respect for the present territorial integrity of the two neighboring countries. This is a fair and reasonable proposal that I make on behalf of our coalition government to the leaders and people of Vietnam. I firmly believe that if the Vietnamese leaders listen to this demand, full of common sense, the peoples in Southeast Asia, like people the world over, will be very glad and satisfied because it means that not only will our Indochinese Peninsula live once again in peaceful coexistence, but the risk of war spreading will also disappear.

However, at present the SRV has not chosen the path of reconciliation and peace. It insists on having what they call another international conference which will not be convened to discuss the Kampuchean problem, but to discuss their so-called security, peace and neutrality for Southeast Asia.

On this question, I would like to draw the attention of all the distinguished delegates present here to the fact that the Kampuchean problem -- which is the central issue -- would not be discussed at all because the participants to such a conference would be forced to extend de facto recognition to the Heng Samrin puppet regime which is a surrogate of Hanoi and Moscow. No justice- and freedom-loving country would abandon its ideals to attend such a conference, which only serves the personal interests of the expansionist aggressors and colonialists.

Who, in fact, is responsible for destroying security, peace and stability in Southeast Asia? It is none other than Vietnam which, with the backing of the Soviet Union, is occupying Kampuchea by force and is threatening Thailand and the other ASEAN countries and even countries further afield.

Any conference concerned with the peace and stability of Southeast Asia must first solve the Kampuchean problem. Once this is done and Kampuchea has regained its independence and sovereignty, Southeast Asia will have no more problems because countries neighboring an independent and neutral Kampuchea will have nothing to worry about.

It is correct that the ASEAN countries should refuse to sign a nonaggression treaty with Vietnam as suggested by the latter, and I would like to sincerely greet the ASEAN countries who have shown political common sense and courage. Such a treaty would have been a disaster, like the one signed by Chamberlain and Daladier in Munich in 1938 in an attempt to appease Hitler and Mussolini. This kind of treaty is only a harbinger of future aggression against the countries and peoples who sign it.

The distinguished delegates present here already know the reason why another conference -- which will not discuss the Kampuchean problem and which will not seek to find measures to end the occupation and colonization of our Kampuchea by Vietnam with the backing of the Soviet Union -- cannot be convened. If it does not raise the Kampuchean question and does not solve the Kampuchean problem, then there is nothing to discuss but to kneel before the dictates of Vietnam and the Soviet Union. No one can participate in Vietnam's conference with Vietnam's agents in Phnom Penh, who only survive with the protection of a vast number of Vietnam's troops. To accept the Vietnamese aggression in Kampuchea means to capitulate to jungle law.

At present, many countries are the victims of the implementation of this law by superpowers. I believe that member countries of the United Nations, at least those who still adhere to the principles of freedom, independence, justice and peace, will pressure Vietnam to end its occupation and colonialist domination of Kampuchea by adopting resolutions and taking measures that will pressure Vietnam into restoring its own dignity.

Mr President, Mr Secretary General, distinguished delegates, I know that we appear very much absorbed by our pressing problems, but as a member state of the United Nations, I would like to affirm our position on a number of important issues.

1. I would like to express sincere gratitude on behalf of my country and my people to all the countries which have accepted Kampuchean refugees in a generous and humanitarian way, and in particular to the Kingdom of Thailand, which has shouldered a heavy burden in providing refuge for and looking after the tens of thousands of Kampuchean refugees who have fled from death, sorrow, hardship and savage oppression, refusing to bow to Vietnamese threats.

I would also like to express sincere gratitude to the other ASEAN countries which have provided active assistance and support -- diplomatic and otherwise -- for our cause. I welcome other countries who have accepted Kampuchean refugees and those who have given them humanitarian aid.

On the same occasion, I would also like to greet and thank the secretary general, His Excellency Javier Perez de Cuellar, and the International Red Cross, UNICEF and other humanitarian organizations which have been and are providing assistance and support for the Kampuchean refugees and for my other compatriots.

2. I would like to greet the Vietnamese people who have been forced by the Hanoi government to serve its adventurous colonialist policies and who have endured for many years all kinds of hardships. Tens of thousands have been compelled to go into exile by boat. I have no right to ask the Western countries to stop providing aid to our neighboring country which is the victim of the injustice of its own government, but in the name of the Kampuchean people, I have the duty to ask all those countries which are not accomplices of Vietnamese colonialism not to provide financial, economic and material aid to the Hanoi authorities because that regime is not going to use this aid to help the Vietnamese people, but instead will use it to continue the war of aggression and occupation in our country.

3. I would like to again express our solidarity with fraternal Afghanistan which, like us, is presently also struggling to restore the right of self-determination to its own people. We also support the fraternal Lao people who have expressed the desire to see their country regain its independence, rights and freedom.

4. I would also like to express solidarity with the fraternal Palestinian people who are struggling through all kinds of difficulties to achieve the creation of their homeland. We continue to officially recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization as the legitimate representative of the people of Palestine.

5. We resolutely support the fraternal Korean people whose just desire is to reunify their country by firmly supporting the wise proposals full of patriotism of Chairman Kim Il-song, president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, to achieve this reunification independently and peacefully.

6. We hope that the two fraternal countries of Iraq and Iran, which at present are at odds with each other, will strive to solve their problems through peaceful means, achieve reconciliation and coexist peacefully once again.

7. We would like to express our grief over the loss of many lives in Lebanon -- the former Switzerland of the Middle East. We hope that strict respect for the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Lebanon will be restored and that all foreign troops be withdrawn immediately from this country, leaving the Lebanese people free to solve their problems themselves.

8. We would like to again express our fraternal solidarity with the heroic people of Namibia who are fighting under the leadership of SWAPO to liberate their country from the colonialist and racist Pretoria regime.

I would like to thank the General Assembly for attentively listening to this long address. Thank you very much.

[Station commentary: "The Kampuchean People's Struggle Against the Vietnamese Le Duan Enemy Aggressors Is Advancing Constantly Under the Leadership of Our Democratic Kampuchean Government"]

[Excerpts] During the current rainy season, the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors have sent large numbers of reinforcements, weapons and war materiel to Kampuchea in an attempt yo redress their defeats and total impasse on the battlefield during the last dry season and display their strength on the eve of the 37th UN General Assembly, thus fooling world public opinion into believing that Vietnam has gained full control of Kampuchea and making the United Nations accept the Vietnamese aggression against Kampuchea as a fait accompli. This is a criminal and dark design of the Vietnamese Hanoi aggressors. However, although the rainy season has now almost ended and the 37th UN General Assembly has been in session for several days now, the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors still have been unable to harm our Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas.

By the end of the current rainy season, the serious situation and total impasse suffered by the Vietnamese aggressors since last dry season will have deteriorated and become more complicated in all fields. Meanwhile, our Kampuchean people's struggle under the leadership of the Democratic Kampuchean Government has developed favorably step by step. In fact, during the current rainy season, the Vietnamese aggressors have been unable to take any major initiative on the battlefield. On the contrary, they have been on the defensive. With a sense of initiative, our Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas have launched attacks against the Vietnamese aggressors everywhere, in the western and northern regions and various other battlefields in the interior of the country.

For example, on the western battlefields -- Koh Kong, western Leach, Samlot, Pailin-Route 10, Sisophon south of Route 5, Mongkolborei, Thmar Puok, Sisophon north of Route 5 and Chhep-Thalabarivat — our Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas, with a sense of initiative and mastery, have launched vigorous attacks against the Vietnamese aggressors, wiped out many medium-sized and small positions of the enemy, crushed many of the enemy every day and penetrated deep into Route 5, which is the main strategic transportation line of the Vietnamese aggressors. We have cut several portions of Route 5 in areas from Nimit in Battambang Province to Pursat Province. The Vietnamese enemy have been unable to use these portions of Route 5 for transporting supplies to its troops on the western battlefield.

We have also destroyed several sections and bridges of the Pursat-Battambang railroad, thus crippling the Vietnamese transportation along this railroad. Our Democratic Kampuchean National Army and guerrillas have launched vigorous activities against the Vietnamese aggressors on the Siem Reap-Route 6 battlefield. During this rainy season alone, we wiped out many platoon-size, company-size and battalion-size positions of the Vietnamese enemy, liberated a number of villages and communes and crushed a large number of Vietnamese aggressor troops. In particular, we destroyed several portions of Route 6, which is the Vietnamese enemy's strategic line for transporting supplies from the east to the western region battlefields, paralyzing Vietnamese transportation on this road.

Our Democratic Kampuchean guerrillas have also launched successive attacks against the Vietnamese enemy in the interior of Kampuchea, such as in the southwestern, western and northeastern regions, as well as the eastern region, which is adjacent to the Vietnamese border.

VNA REPORTS LAO DELEGATE'S UN ADDRESS

[Text] Hanoi, VNA October 6 -- Laos' acting foreign minister, Khamphai Boupha, has told the UN General Assembly that it is fundamental and imperative to find an overall solution to the situation in Southeast Asia.

Addressing the 37th plenary session of the General Assembly on October 4, Khamphai Boupha said that the international situation has not ceased to deteriorate since the 36th session and the international community is facing a crisis because the most bellicose circles of imperialism are still bent on implementing their adventurous policy of aggression and economic blockade.

Turning to the situation in Kampuchea and Southeast Asia, he said: "The problems which now confront Southeast Asia are essentially provoked by external interferences. Therefore, it is fundamental to urgently proceed to an overall settlement. All delay would only exacerbate the already tense situation."

He recalled the message of September 15, 1982, sent by the Lao foreign minister on behalf of the three Indochinese countries to the foreign ministers of the member countries of the ASEAN.

He stressed that experience over the past three years shows that the presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea does not threaten in any way the security of Thailand, and Thailand itself has on many occasions declared that there is no need to sign non-aggression treaties between Thailand and the three Indochinese countries since there is no danger of a Vietnamese aggression against Thailand. On the contrary, the activities of the Pol Pot clique and other Khmer reactionaries based in Thailand have seriously threatened the security of Kampuchea, leading to a permanently explosive situation at the frontier between Thailand and Kampuchea. The recent formation of the so-called "tripartite coalition government" aims to help the Pol Pot clique and other Khmer reactionaries to intensify their activities against the P.R.K., to prevent the revival of the Kampuchean people and to aggravate tension at the frontier between Kampuchea and Thailand. By aiding this government, the countries in the ASEAN can only run counter to their stated objective of finding a political solution. This has created a dangerous precedent of foreign intervention against the independent and sovereign nations and violated the principles of the U.N. Charter and of the Non-Aligned Movement.

Khamphai Boupha stressed: "We must take into account the interests of both Thailand and Kampuchea as far as security is concerned. To this end, effective measures must be taken to prevent that the territory of one of the two countries is used against the other."

He recalled the earlier proposal of Kampuchea to set up a security zone at the Kampuchea-Thailand border and Vietnam's decision to withdraw part of its troops from Kampuchea.

Khamphai Boupha rejected any international conference on Kampuchea, saying: "The past three years have demonstrated that an international conference can be fruitful only if the directly concerned parties approve it and take part in it. The international conference held under the U.N. auspices in July 1981 has only come to an impasse."

He recalled the proposal of the conference of the foreign ministers of the three Indochinese countries for an international conference on Southeast Asia with the participation of nine regional countries and six countries outside the region, and specified some related questions such as the composition, venue and date of the conference.

The Lao head delegate also spoke of the progress made by the People's Republic of Kampuchea over the past three years in reconstruction as well as in the consolidation of the state power.

He said: "Today, the international community can, by basing itself on facts, impartially and objectively draw a comparison between the four years of genocidal terror under the Pol Pot regime and the three years of the P.R.K. Government, and see which of them has done better for the good of Kampuchea and its valiant people, and which merits the honour and qualification to speak in the name of Kampuchea."

Khamphai Boupha stressed that the United Nations should restore to the P.R.K. Government, the only authentic and legal representative of the Kampuchean people, the place which is its due and expel the representatives of the butchers of the Kampuchean people even though they are now embellished by a new cosmetic.

By so doing, he said, our organisation will not only enhance its prestige but also do justice to the Kampuchean people, and most of all, to the memory of three million of them who have been massacred by Pol Pot.

'POL POT CLIQUE' CGDK PRESENCE IN UN SCORED

[Station commentary: "Their Place Is To Stand Before the Bench"]

[Text] At a time when Beijing and Washington and other international reactionaries were trying to maintain the genocidal Pol Pot clique's illegal UN seat, not far from this international organization's headquarters progressive American organizations held a meeting at the World Church Center in New York to show a film on the Kampuchean people's rebirth. After the film, the meeting participants were given copies of an open letter addressed to U.S. President Ronald Reagan. The letter bears the signatures of more than 3,000 personages from various political, artistic and literary circles -- including former U.S. Ambassador to Kampuchea Adams -- and demands that the UN representative of the United States vote for the genocidal Pol Pot clique's expulsion from this international organization.

Together with the American people, progressive mankind has also voiced its hatred and contempt for the genocidal clique and has demanded that this clique be doomed to the same fate as mankind's previous genocidal criminals. The genocidal Pol Pot clique has turned the beautiful Kampuchean territory into a colossal mass grave not only for the more than 3 million Kampucheans whom it killed but also for foreigners.

The revolutionary Kampuchean administration once discovered and made public a list of five foreigners killed by the genocidal clique at the Tuol Sleng prison and in various provinces. It recently discovered and made public another list, with a number of passports attached, of 85 foreigners of Thai, Lao, Indian, Pakistani, New Zealand, British, French, American and Australian nationality -- including 20 children and 5 Indian women -- whom the genocidal clique killed in 1975. This is not to mention the thousands of Chinese people all over Kampuchea tortured to death when the genocidal clique was being taught by its Beijing master the most effective way to exterminate mankind. Even though the exact number of mass graves and foreigners killed in Kampuchea is still unknown, the nature of the genocidal clique is too notorious. Its acts are no different then those of Hitler previously or of the Zionists in the Middle East currently.

If Hitler herded nearly 1 million people from 23 countries into the slaughterhouses at Mauthausen and Auschwitz, Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan also led all those who fell into their hands to the Tuol Sleng prison and mass graves of Kampuchea. If the Palestinian people -- from infants to the eldest -- are being massacred in Lebanon by the Begin-Sharon clique's soldiers, the children and old people of Kampuchea and both Kampuchean and foreign women also knew the way to the mass graves under the regime of Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan.

In 1945, the Hitler criminals were condemned by progressive mankind at the Nuremberg international tribunal. On the other hand, the genocidal Kampuchean criminals are now being helped by Beijing, Washington and other international reactionaries.

One of the masterminds behind the massacre of foreigners in Kampuchea was Thuch Rin. He is now the education minister of the camouflaged Pol Pot tripartite coalition government. As for the former Tuol Sleng prison chief (Kang Kem), he is still in refuge along the Thai-Kampuchean border. Their genocidal ringleaders Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan are playing the role -- staged by their Beijing boss -- of vice prime ministers and ministers in the camouflaged tripartite coalition government established in Bangkok by Beijing and other international reactionaries. They are still living and dancing to Beijing's tune, opposing the Kampuchean people who have already faced the heights of suffering during the days their genocidal policy was implemented. With this sham tripartite coalition government, they hope they will be able to deceive public opinion and neutralize progressive mankind's hatred and contempt for them.

However, no matter how beautifully they adorn themselves and regardless of what perfumes of the Western countries and other international reactionaries they may use, their bodies still reek of a macabre odor. No matter which personages they may send to the United Nations, they will merely be a smokescreen covering the corpse of Democratic Kampuchea, and those who vote for them to represent Kampuchea at the United Nations will have to cover their noses while voting for a corpse.

Progressives in the United States and throughout the world have demanded that the Pol Pot clique and disguised members of this clique be expelled from the UN forum. They must stand before the bench and the guillotine which mankind has reserved for genocidal criminals of the past and present.

Further Commentary

BK070424 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 6 Oct 82

[Text] Beijing, Washington and some other reactionary forces are feverishly campaigning for the Pol Pot genocidal clique's continued occupation of Kampuchea's seat at the United Nations. To this end, every wicked move is resorted to at the current UN General Assembly Session.

Sihanouk, Son Sann and Khieu Samphan themselves are ordered to advertise their coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea [CGDK], a disguise of the Pol Pot clique. Meanwhile, it is said that Pol Pot remnant troops keep winning many military victories here and there inside Kampuchea. In so doing, Beijing, Washington and their followers want to make people believe that the CGDK is not a disguise of Pol Pot government -- nor a shadow government -- but is a tripartite government which has the land, people and zone under its control. They also hope to win some more votes and voices of sympathy. But it is not easy to deceive public opinion.

Isao Ogiso, a correspondent of the Japanese paper MAINICHI SHIMBUN who recently visited the so-called capital of the coalition government, reported that the government is illusory and only exists on paper. Isao Ogiso quoted the vice chairman of the administrative council of the Sihanouk faction as saying that nothing is similar to the coalition government. We acted separately. The only thing we spared for the Pol Pot clique is ill will and hatred. In fact, the CGDK is only a cheap cosmetic to cover the bloodstained face of the Pol Pot genocidal clique.

In recent days, the Kampuchean people have discovered more evidence of the crimes committed by the Pol Pot clique. More [than] 110 foreigners incarcerated, tortured and murdered at the Tuol Sleng prison in Phnom Penh between April and November 1978 were identified as American, British, French, New Zealander, Australian, Indian, Pakistani, Thai and Lao; some of them were diplomatic personnel who were legally present in Kampuchea at that time, women, children, sailors, fishermen and traders.

The PRK now has ample evidence to confirm that one of the murderers of these foreigners is Thuch Rin, also called (Krin), who is now delegate of the Khmer Rouge in charge of culture affairs in the CGDK presided over by Sihanouk. Besides, many more mass graves have been discovered in Svay Rieng, Kandal and other localities. No mask and no cosmetic of any kind can cover up these genocidal crimes for the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique.

In the past 3 years, the land of Angkor, under the Heng Samrin regime, has been resurged with a new life. More and more people who formerly collaborated with Pol Pot and other Khmer reactionary groups have crossed over to the people. All the returnees enjoy the citizen rights and may stand for elections and vote in free elections as have been stipulated in the Constitution of the PRK. The Government of the PRK in the past 3 years has proved to be an administration elected by the people. It has effectively managed all affairs of the country and won the people's hearts and minds. Its prestige keeps increasing in the international arena. To hand over Kampuchea's seat at the U.N. General Assembly to the PRK and expel the Pol Pot clique from this organization is an act in conformity with the realities in Kampuchea. This is also an act in conformity with morality, justice and the U.N. Charter.

Beijing, Washington and other Western countries have talked much of the protection of human rights. Let us see how they act at the U.N. General Assembly.

LE DUAN TOURS HAIPHONG MUNICIPALITY ENTERPRISES

OW04004 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 2 Oct 82

[Text] Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the VCP Central Committee, recently visited Haiphong Municipality. Comrades Doan Duy Thanh, alternate member of the VCP Central Committee and secretary of the municipal party committee; Le Thanh Duong, deputy secretary of the municipal party committee; and Nguyen Dan, chairman of the municipal People's Committee, briefed Comrade Le Duan on the local situation and accompanied him on a visit to a number of enterprises, the Dinh Vu New Economic Zone and Tien Lang and Thuy Nguyen Districts.

The leather shoe enterprise in the muncipality was the first production unit to have the honor of welcoming Comrade Le Duan. After shifting to manufacturing shoes for export, the enterprise has increased its output value by more than 20 percent and its workers' income by 50 percent.

Comrade Nguyen Gia Khao, deputy director of the enterprise, accompanied Comrade Le Duan on a visit to the Vietnam-CSSR cooperative workshop and the workshop in charge of manufacturing soft sandals for the Soviet Union. More than 600 dayshift workers cheerfully welcomed Comrade Le Duan. Standing beside cutters and sewing machines, he inquired about their production work and lives, carefully examined each product, commended them for endeavoring to ensure product quality and urged the enterprise to strive to expand production in order to better satisfy the needs of fraternal countries. Before leaving the enterprise, Comrade Le Duan and the workers posed for a memorial photograph and then enthusiastically sang the song "As If Uncle Ho Were Present on the Joyful Day of Great Victory."

During his visit to a glassware factory, Comrade Le Duan inquired about the production work and urged the factory's leaders to uphold their activity in production and trade and to seek by all means to fully use the capacities of the machines and equipment and to restore the production of goods needed for the construction of cold-resistant homes in rural areas. The factory's director pledged to resolutely implement the comrade general secretary's recommendation.

During his visit to the Ben Kien shipyard of the Duyen Hai machinery plant, Comrade Le Duan praised its cadres and workers for successfully building a 600-ton coaster and urged the plant to successfully cooperate with other machinery plants in boosting the production of water transport facilities with the aim of developing waterways and seaways and increasing north-south transport capacity.

Taking a great interest in the opening up of virgin land in the coastal areas of Haiphong, Comrade Le Duan visited the Dinh Vu New Economic Zone, which delivered more than 30 tons of shrimp and fish to the municipality for export in 1981. Some 2,000 hectares of new land are expected to be used in agricultural production and raising of marine products in a few years. In the near future, Dinh Vu will become a tourist center which will be connected with Do Son and Cat Ba Island to form a chain of tourist centers lying along a seacost several kilometers in length. Comrade Le Duan expressed the hope that Haiphong would soon complete the building of this important new economic zone.

Comrade Le Duan spent much time visiting Tien Lang District. While en route to the district, he made a stopover at the Cau Se duck farm, a duck export installation. During the anti-French and anti-U.S. resistance wars, Tien Lang recorded many glorious feats of arms. Exposed to the sea, 70 percent of the 9,000 hectares of agricultural land in this poor district have acidic, saline soil. For many years in the past, production was suspended because of the lack of fresh water for plants and of hybrids suited to coastal fields. During the past 2 years, through properly solving the water and hybrid problems and through implementing the system of end-product contracts with workers, Tien Lang has made good progress in many aspects. In fact, in 1981 the district for the first time overfulfilled its rice production plan by 5 tons and delivered as many as 5,000 tons of paddy to state granaries, the largest quota ever. Tien Lang is now reclaiming land from the sea to open new land and has begun cultivating part of the new land. The local people's livelihood is now better than in the past 2 years. With these initial changes, Tien Lang was very enthused and honored by Comrade Le Duan's visit. All villages, economic installations, boards and sectors in the district sent their representatives to welcome the comrade general secretary.

After hearing district party committee Secretary Nguyen Lieu's report on all aspects of the local situation, Comrade Le Duan had a cordial talk with the comrade members of the district party organization Executive Committee and with representatives of grassroots party organizations. He cited the achievements scored by Tien Lang over the past 2 years and urged all party organizations and compatriots in the district to unitedly develop the country's tradition of valiant struggle and to strive to advance the revolutionary movement even more vigorously. He contributed concrete views on the use of labor and land to exploit economic potentials in order to solve the food, clothing, housing and educational problems for the local compatriots and to positively contribute to building socialism in the entire country. Pointing to the conditions of scarce land and a large population, he stressed the need to carry out intensive cultivation and increase the number of crops in order to achieve a paddy output of 7-8 and then 9-10 tons per hectare while stepping up stockbreeding, especially hog, buffalo, duck and fish breeding. He urged the restoration and expansion of mulberry planting and sericulture to help solve the clothing problem and stressed the need to create conditions for all families to build brick homes, to rapidly increase exports and to organize peasants in such a way that they can work 300 man-days per year, including 100 man-days for export work.

Comrade Le Duan spoke of building districts along the lines of combining agriculture with industry, stressed the role of the district level in economic management and in organizing the people's material and cultural life and conducting the three revolutions in the countryside, and pointed to the importance of forming a new type of socialist man. He urged teachers to properly fulfill the task of forming students into fully developed persons and advised young people to strive to train themselves in accordance with the criteria for socialist men.

In Thuy Nguyen District, after visiting the ricefields and embroidery workshop of My Dong cooperative, Comrade Le Duan was briefed by district party committee Secretary Dao Huong on the local situation and held a work session with the members of the district party committee Standing Committee. He noted with pleasure the achievements scored by Thuy Nguyen District in agricultural, small industrial and handicraft production, organizing the people's life and maintaining order and security. Dealing with the trend in local economic development, Comrade Le Duan stressed the need to ensure sufficient food for some 200,000 people in the district, to effectively exploit the potentials of hilly and mountainous areas and to create a source of local raw materials for the development of handicrafts and small industry. He urged the district to expand sericulture, increase the cultivate area for soybeans and reserve a certain area for sugarcane cultivation to produce sugar, honey and writing paper which the central industries are still unable to supply in sufficient quantities.

He pointed out the need to consolidate and strengthen the cooperative economy and the state-operated economy while paying attention to assisting the development of the family economy within the socialist orbit and in association with the production plan of cooperatives and with the economic development and transformation plans of districts, provinces and the entire country. He urged all families to grow fruit trees, raise domestic animals and poultry, bees and fish, and to engage in handicrafts so as to improve their daily diet and to effectively serve export needs.

Winding up his tour, Comrade Le Duan expressed satisfaction at seeing the obvious efforts and progress made by Haiphong Municipality, especially the rapid and consistent development of agricultural production during the past 2 years. He urged the municipal party committee to consistently strengthen political and ideological work, to build and consolidate local bases in order to increase the party organization's capacity for struggle, develop the strength of the people's right to collective mastery in wards, villages, districts, precincts and the entire municipality, thus encouraging all people to enthusiastically participate in productive labor and to strive, together with the people throughout the country, to successfully build socialism and firmly defend the socialist fatherland.

Recently, many party installations and mass organizations in Haiphong have feverishly participated in the political activity drive to study and thoroughly understand the Fifth VCP Congress resolutions and to formulate a program of action to welcome the second phase of the party organizations' congresses.

Comrade Le Duan's visit has vigorously encouraged the local people of all strata to strive to participate in productive labor, practice economy, successfully fulfill the 1982 state plan and enthusiastically move toward 1983 with even greater achievements.

U.S. SENATORS' STATEMENT ON TIMOR REGRETTED

BK071017 Jakarta OANA in English 1000 GMT 7 Oct 82

[Text] Jakarta, Oct 7 (ANTARA/OANA) -- "There is no need to comment or respond to it", was the comment made by Hji Nudin Lubis, deputy chairman of Parliament, Congress, when shown a negative report by a news wire service reporting from Washington about the East Timor issue.

The report said that 16 American senators last Tuesday called for an international investigation into charges there was starvation and violations of human rights in East Timor which integrated with Indonesia in 1976 after more than 350 years of Portuguese colonial rule.

Nudin Lubis, in an interview at Parliament, expressed regret at the report, pointing out that the East Timor territory was Indonesian territory and matters concerning it were the internal affairs of the country. He said these people with negative views about the situation in East Timor, Indonesia's 27th province, were those who were not informed about the situation and never visited the area to survey conditions following its integration with Indonesia.

The situation there was far more advanced and better than before, the MP declared. He expressed hope that such negative and ill reports about Indonesia would not be sent further in the interest of preserving the excellent relations between the United States and Indonesia.

Meantime, Mrs Ida Utami Pidada, chairman of the Karya Functional Group, and Yusuf Merukh, chairman of the Partai Demokrasi Indonesia in the House, blamed the bad reports about East Timor to little information being given about the youngest province in Indonesia to the world community.

Sudarji, chairman of the United Development Party in Parliament, expressed hope that President Suharto' scheduled visit to the United States later this month would create better understanding in the U.S. about the situation in East Timor.

SRV REACTION TO SIHANOUK'S UN SPEECH AWAITED

BK051231 Jakarta Domestic Service in Indonesian 1200 GMT 2 Oct 82

[Unattributed commentary: "Vietnam After the Sihanouk Speech"]

[Text] The five ASEAN countries were certainly happy to see Prince Sihanouk, head of state of Democratic Kampuchea, address the UN General Assembly session on Thursday. However, Southeast Asian observers want to know what steps Vietnam will take after the speech.

The part of the Sihanouk speech which merits great attention is his rejection of Vietnam's proposal calling for an international conference in a neutral country which would be attended by the ASEAN countries, the Indochinese states, Burma, India and the five permanent members of the UN Security Council, because this limited international conference was proposed by Vietnam with the view that the Kampuchean issue had been settled whereas actually it is still far from being resolved.

Since Sihanouk rejected the proposal, ASEAN can do nothing but support the position of the Democratic Kampuchean head of state. This means that the Vietnamese proposal has become a dead card. The Vietnamese proposal, which was launched on 7 June, was actually a move by Hanoi to frustrate the formation of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea [CGDK] in accordance with the Kuala Lumpur declaration of 20 June. Only days before Sihanouk was to address the UN General Assembly session, Vietnam reiterated its proposal by submitting it to the ASEAN countries, but the Sihanouk speech has decided the fate of the Vietnamese proposal.

Prior to the opening of the UN General Assembly session in the middle of last month, Southeast Asian observers predicted that, with the formation of the coalition government under the leadership of Sihanouk, Democratic Kampuchea would be able to maintain its seat in the world body and the only way for Vietnam to prevent it would be to launch diplomatic moves to see that the CGDK disintegrated before the annual UN General Assembly session.

However, the Vietnamese diplomatic moves were not effective. These Southeast Asian observers now are worried about the possibility of Vietnam launching a dry season offensive following the end of the monsoon season in Kampuchea next month. But whether the objective which could not be attained politically can be attained militarily remains a big question. The lesson from the Israeli invasion of Lebanon shows that military victory without a political victory can soon turn into defeat.

GHAZALI SPEAKS ON UPCOMING VOTE ON KAMPUCHEA SEAT

BK061630 Kuala Lumpur Domestic Service in English 1400 GMT 6 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Minister of Foreign Affairs Tan Sri Ghazali Shafie reiterates that Malaysia might have to send a team to the United Nations to discuss further the technical aspects of sending Malaysian troops to Namibia. He told newsmen in Kuala Lumpur that he had discussed the issue with the general responsible for UN forces while attending the current sitting of the General Assembly in New York.

Tan Sri Ghazali also said that voting on the seat for Democratic Kampuchea in the United Nations would be held after 19 October. The Credentials Committee had made its recommendation regarding the seat and Malaysia and its ASEAN partners believed there would be an improvement over last year's voting. He said ASEAN would continue to seek aid for the government of Democratic Kampuchea from as many countries as possible. ASEAN had also agreed on a draft resolution on Kampuchea with a little amendment to it. About 20 countries were expected to cosponsor the tabling of the resolution at the General Assembly.

Tan Sri Ghazali expressed disappointment on the choice of words used by India's foreign minister in his speech on Kampuchea at the General Assembly. He said India's criticism of the Kampuchean issue was a slap not just against ASEAN but also at other countries who supported the Government of Democratic Kampuchea.

UN SUPPORT FOR SIHANOUK COALITION URGED

BK051217 Kuala Lumpur International Service in English 0800 GMT 4 Oct 82

[Unattributed commentary]

[Excerpts] The newly formed Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea [CGDK] has launched its own diplomatic offensive in the United Nations to muster more support from the 157-member international community against the Hanoi-backed Heng Samrin regime in Phnom Penh. Its president, Prince Sihanouk, in his address to the UN General Assembly, said his government is even prepared to sign a treaty of peace and nonaggression if Vietnam withdraws all its troops from Kampuchea. However, should Vietnam continue to be as intransigent as it is now, his government will be forced to take up arms to protect Kampuchean national sovereignty although his troops are not the equal of the powerful Vietnamese forces.

This should go down well with all peace-loving nations which abhor the notion that might is right, for this is precisely the situation in the Kampuchean issue. These countries should now view the coalition government in a new light. Pol Pot's Khmer Rouge is now just a component of the coalition. The Kampuchean people now have a more representative government in the coalition once the Vietnamese withdraw their forces and pave the way for free election under supervision of the United Nations. Thus, instead of being hoodwinked by the Vietnamese, these should give their full support to the coalition government. It is from this point that political observers have predicated that the new coalition government will get even better support from members of the international community at the United Nations this time around.

By denying the Vietnamese puppet regime of Heng Samrin the UN seat, and thus international legitimacy, [words indistinct] the international body can take. Member countries must at the same time continue their efforts towards the acceptance by the Vietnamese of the resolutions of the International Conference on Kampuchea before there can emerge a glimmer of light in the tunnel that the solution to the Kampuchean problem is forthcoming.

MARCOS ASSESSES U.S. TRIP FOR CABINET MINISTERS

HK071000 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 6 Oct 82 pp 1, 11

[By Willie Ng]

[Excerpt] President Marcos assessed yesterday the results of his two-week visit to America in a meeting with the cabinet, briefing the ministers of the new Philippine-American relations and the implications of the seven agreements reached with Washington, DC.

Mr Marcos said he wanted the accelerated implementation of these agreements as well as those concluded during his state visit to Saudi Arabia last March. Among the accords reached in Saudi Arabia were the aviation agreement and technological exchanges.

On his state visit to America, the president said that "the efforts of the delegation were crowned with some success -- perhaps blessed by the good Lord." He attributed the success of the visit to the active participation of every member of the cabinet.

Before the delegation departed from Manila, it received warnings of violent demonstrations and of possible danger to the lives of the delegation. Instead, he noted, the visit was marked by rousing receptions from Filipinos. "Even the weather was good," he said.

He said that President Ronald Reagan set the tone for the visit with his warm words of welcome and endorsement of the Philippine program of government.

The president instructed all government offices to launch a massive information campaign down to the grassroots level to let the people know the programs of government and their effect on the citizenry. The people must know what the government is doing for them, he said. Just as a soldier would be more dedicated if he knows what he is fighting for, he said, a citizen would participate more actively if he knows the programs and objectives of government.

Taking the cue from the effectiveness of his meetings with media and overseas Filipino sectors in America, he said, there is no substitute for direct communication from the president and his official family.

He told cabinet ministers to prepare brochures about their offices, outlining in simple language their functions, objectives, programs, and other activities.

MARCOS ORDERS BANK TO PARTICIPATE IN KKK LOANS

HK070936 Manila BUSINESS DAY in English 6 Oct 82 p 4

[Excerpts] President Marcos directed Philippine National Bank to participate in an advisory capacity in the approval of loans under the Kilusang Kabuhayan at Kaunlaran program, Malacanang announced after a four-hour cabinet meeting yesterday.

The president also ordered the restoration of KKK loans in region IX (western Mindanao) and region XII (central Mindanao). The KKK loans in the two regions were suspended last month following reports that they were used for personal purposes. Malacanang yesterday said investigations showed that "while there were some instances of diversions of KKK loans, many viable livelihood projects were also successfully launched in the two regions."

The president, informed that most KKK projects in southern Mindanao involved fishing, also directed that studies be made on how to diversify KKK ventures there, Malacanang said.

Budget Minister Manuel Alba said the government has budgeted P3 billion for the KKK program from 1981 to 1983, for an average of P1 billion a year, Malacanang added.

CHURCH LEADER, 17 OTHERS REPORTED TORTURED

HK040656 Davao City PEOPLE'S FORUM in English 26-27 Sep 82 pp 1, 3

[Excerpts] A reign of terror swept the eastern seaboard town of Manay, this province -- where 700 rebels surrendered two weeks ago, as reports of mass arrests, torture, death threats and gross violations of human rights were denounced separately to a cultural minority association and a religious sect.

At least eighteen persons from three barangays of Manay town, mostly Mandaya natives and a few Christians, including a church leader of the Seventh Day Adventists denomination, were arbitrarily detained without formal charges after they were picked up last week and allegedly tortured during interrogation in the presence of a provincial official.

Some of the arrested persons have been released, it was tersely revealed by the office of Maj Renato Paredes, PC [Philippine Constabulatory] provincial commander. The reported inquisitions resulted in the brutal torture of one Rogelio Masankay, a Seventh Day Adventist, who allegedly lost his mind following his arrest.

MINDANAO PAPER CALLS FOR END OF VIOLENCE

HK040608 Davao City PEOPLE'S FORUM in English 28-29 Sep 82 p 2

[Editorial: "The Threat to Public Safety"]

[Text] The government has just issued a regional call for vigilance against all forms of violence and serious disturbance of peace and order.

The call, which was apparently based on the recent killing of a top communist leader during a military raid in Davao City, is not without basis. Statistics show that Davao City ranks high today in the the number of people killed by assailants who have never been identified.

There is a current presumption that the expected violence is a direct reaction of anti-government forces to the killing of communist leader Edgar Jopson and the subsequent arrest of some other suspects. Admittedly, the death of Jopson has created a void in the Communist Party of the Philippines. Even the government has admitted this fact. But whether the possibility of violence is directly connected with Jopson's death is, at this stage, a matter that only the authorities would be in the best position to know. At this stage, too, the people can only do two things: appeal to would-be perpetrators of violence to view the matter in terms of human lives that may be lost, and appeal to the government to give the best protection possible -- without need for violence, if possible -- to innocent civilians.

Above everything else, however, the people should be able to help protect their own community. Priority in popular attention should be given to public utilities such as the waterworks system, electricity plants and allied entities any impairment of which can lead to bigger and costly disaster.

It is ironic that Mindanao, which is considered the area with the best economic potentials in the country today, is now rocked by opposing forces both of which claim to be right. One can only hope for normalcy to return without too many losses in human lives. It pains one to realize that in many instances when problems could be solved through peaceful means, violence has to be resorted to as a necessary evil.

The threat to public safety is everyone's concern. Only by knowing the real extent of the problem can one expect to give the correct solution.

REVIVAL OF 'MILITARISM' FEARED BY PRC VISITOR

OW081131 Tokyo KYODO in English 1008 GMT 8 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 8, KYODO -- Sun Pinghua, vice president of the China-Japan Friendship Association, said Friday the Chinese people were still worried about the possibility of a revival of Japanese militarism despite the political settlement concerning toned down descriptions in Japanese history textbooks. Sun made the remark on the second day of a meeting of the Japan-China non-governmental conference being held here in commemoration of the 10th anniversary of the normalization of Sino-Japanese diplomatic relations.

He warned that similar disputes might occur in the future unless the Japanese people recognize the serious effect the textbook issue had on relations between Tokyo and Beijing. The Chinese leader said the Chinese people were most concerned with expressions such as "advance" rather than "invasion" in the textbooks, which will come into use next April, a controversial plan to build a monument as a memorial to Manchukuo (now northeastern China), and a movie entitled "The Great Japanese Empire." He also claimed that there are many Japanese who still prefer the word "advance" to invasion" in reference to Japanese military actions in China during the war.

China hopes lessons of the past will be taken to heart and that the peoples of both countries will cooperate to prevent a revival of Japanese militarism, he said. However, Sun stressed that China was not worried about Japan's current efforts to build up its defense capability since it was quite natural for Japan to have some means of defending itself.

Meanwhile, Wang Bingnan, president of the Chinese People's Association for Friendship With Foreign Countries, told the meeting that China and North Korea enjoyed an extremely close relationship. He was referring to the recent visit to Beijing by North Korean President Kim Il-song. Wang said it was natural for leaders to meet face-to-face because any effort to deepen the mutual understanding between the two countries would contribute greatly to enhancing their relations. Neither China nor North Korea present a threat to any of their neighbors and the sooner the U.S. Armed Forces withdraw from South Korea the sooner the two Koreas can be unified, Wang said.

PERU'S ULLOA SEEKS AID IN MEETING WITH SUZUKI

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 8, KYODO -- Peruvian Prime Minister Manuel Ulloa Elias Tuesday asked Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki to extend development aid to his country, according to Japanese officials. Ulloa made the request during a consultative meeting with Suzuki, followed by a luncheon banquet given by the Japanese prime minister. During the meeting, Ulloa advocated Suzuki's Pacific rim concept put forward last June in Hawaii calling for solidarity and cooperation among nations around the Pacific, the officials said.

Ulloa, in the meantime, was decorated with the First Order of the Rising Sun in a ceremony. The Peruvian prime minister has visited Japan to attend a symposium for promotion of economic exchange between Japan and Latin America. He is scheduled to fly to Beijing Wednesday.

Watanabe Pledges Assistance

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 5, KYODO -- Japan promised Peru Tuesday to extend financial help in the country's natural resources development in proportion to priorities of its development projects.

The pledge was made when Japanese Finance Minister Michio Watanabe received Manuel Ulloa Elias, visiting Peruvian prime minister and minister of economy and finance, at the Finance Ministry. During the meeting, the Peruvian prime minister sought financial help from Japanese Government and private sectors to develop natural resources in the country.

Touching on external debt in Peru, Ulloa said that it now reaches dollar 8.7 billion -- dollar 6.7 billion in official loans and dollar 2 billion in private loans. He also emphasized that Peru was shifting its short-term borrowing gradually to mid-term and long-term borrowing.

TAZAWA REAFFIRMS STAND ON AGRICULTURAL IMPORTS

[Text] Kanazawa, Oct 6, KYODO -- Kichiro Tazawa, Japanese minister of agriculture, forestry and fisheries, reiterated Wednesday Japan's stand against import liberalization of 22 agricultural products since they are key products of Japanese agricultural industry. "Rice and other items on the residual import restriction list are key products of the Japanese industry and important products in regions where they are produced," he told newsmen.

Tazawa, here for inspection of agricultural industry in Hokuriku District, central Japan, was referring to U.S. persistent request for full import liberalization of these items, specifically beef and oranges. He said that it would be "very difficult to negotiate" on the matter with the United States at the bilateral negotiations in Honolulu October 20-23. "But we will not comply with their request for import liberalization," he added.

IMPORT OF MANUFACTURED GOODS TO BE EXPANDED

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 7 KYODO -- Japanese Government and industrial leaders agreed Thursday to expand Japan's manufactured imports to stave off an outcry from the United States and Western Europe for such expansion. The agreement came at the trade conference, a semi-official forum to discuss more manufactured imports and other trade issues, held at the prime minister's office for the first time in 11 years to achieve full implementation of the government's second package of market opening measures announced in late May. The conferees also agreed to secure exports of equipment such as plants in an orderly fashion, promote industrial and economic cooperation, and to expand domestic demand vital for Japan's more imports to rectify its chronic trade surplus with other countries, the target of criticism from both industrialized and developing nations.

Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, who chairs the conference, sought further cooperation from private sectors in manufactured imports, specifically pointing to the possible danger of Japan again becoming again the target of criticism by the U.S. and Western Europe for its trade stance. The conference is an outgrowth of the Supreme Export Council established in fiscal 1954 originally intended for more export efforts by both the government and private sectors. It was reformed into the trade conference in 1970 to discuss trade issues, including manufactured imports. The last meeting was held in fiscal 1971.

Thursday's meeting was held to prevent a rising tide of protectionism beforehand on the eve of the U.S. off-year election and the ministerial meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) in November, the first in nine years, against the background of growing criticism from the U.S. and Western Europe for a "delay in the implementation of the measures" envisaged in the second round of market-opening moves. It is also aimed at requesting the Japanese trading industry to expand manufactured imports since they are rather negative in this respect.

KIM IL-SONG'S POLICY FOR WORLD INDEPENDENCE HAILED

[NODONG SINMUN 8 October special article: "The Achievement of Independence of the Whole World and World Peace"]

[Text] In his historic political speech, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forth a strategic policy to achieve independence of the whole world. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy for the achievement of independence of the whole world is an outstanding idea that has given a new theoretical interpretation of the inevitability of world revolutionary development in our times and delineated a strategy for the struggle to speed up world revolution. The idea is based on the people's demand for independence and on the scientific analysis of the nature of the present era.

Today, the torrential current of independence is sweeping all the continents of the world. The peoples of many countries, who have been freed from imperialism and colonialism, are vigorously moving forward along the road of independence and the progressive peoples of the world are waging a gallant struggle against domination and subjugation of all forms. It is an irresistible main trend of our times that the world's people are calling for independence and many countries of the world are taking the road to independence.

Today, as the struggle for independence is being carried out on an even broader scale in the world, the revolutionary people of the world urgently demand a revolutionary program of struggle that will help them achieve firm unity and delineate the way for joint struggle.

By putting forth the policy for the achievement of independence of the whole world, the great leader has given a complete answer to the urgent demand of the world people who have turned out in the struggle for independence. As taught by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the achievement of independence of the whole world means construction of a world where dominationism and colonialism have been completely extirpated and complete independence of all countries and nations achieved. The achievement of the independence of the whole world is possible when all the countries and nations of the world have been freed from domination and subjugation of all forms and have achieved national independence and when their sovereignty is firmly defended.

The policy for the achievement of the independence of the whole world, which is to liquidate domination and subjugation and principal-and-subordinate relations among the countries and nations and to guarantee the relations of complete equality, is a unique policy that has delineated the way to national liberation and human liberation in the world and showed the appearance of the future world. This means that the policy for the achievement of the independence of the whole world fully reflects the demand of the peoples of the countries seeking independence and the common desire and aspiration of mankind seeking an independent and creative life, and is a powerful guiding principle and program of struggle that enables complete elimination of imperialism and colonialism on the globe and the complete independence of all countries and nations.

Thanks to the policy for the achievement of independence of the whole world, the peoples of all countries of the world have been able to more vigorously speed up the struggle to build a new prosperous society under the banner of independence and to build a just and peaceful new world, and have been able to have a strategy of struggle with which they can firmly thwart and smash the imperialists' maneuvers of aggression and war and preserve durable peace in the world. By this, the policy for the achievement of the independence of the whole world has become a banner of encouragement that is vigorously stimulating the world peoples, who are regarding sovereignty, independence, justice and peace as precious, to the struggle to build an independent new world.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: When the independence of the whole world has been achieved, a new world war can be prevented, a durable peace in the world can be preserved, and a broad way can be paved for countries and nations to build an independent and prosperous new society and to achieve the complete independence of the masses.

Living an independent life in the peaceful and free world without aggression and war is a common demand and unanimous aspiration of the people.

Only when durable pace is guaranteed on the globe can the countries and nations live an independent and creative life and social progress and advance of mankind be spurred. In particular, today's complicated and tense international situation is urgently calling for world peace-loving people to defend world peace and security.

The way to defend world peace and security for the common desire and aspiration of the mankind is the achievement of independence of the whole world. The achievement of independence of the whole world is a firm guarantee for the prevention of new a world war and for the preservation and consolidation of world peace. This is because the cause of war will be completely eliminated by the achievement of independence of the whole world.

At present, the main cause of war is imperialism. Imperialists and colonialists are an antirevolutionary force seeking aggression, plundering, domination and subjugation. From their beginning the imperialists have considered aggression and war as a means of existence and are still depending on them for their living.

There is no imperialism that is not aggressive and what is viable without aggression and plundering of other countries is not imperialism. The past two world wars were nothing more than a fight of imperialists scrambling for the redistribution of colonial lands and even today's growing danger for a new world war is linked with the criminal maneuvers of the imperialists seeking maintenance and expansion of their spheres of domination.

Imperialists, by nature, seek only war and are unable to provide peace for people. To preserve and consolidate world peace and security, the maneuvers of the imperialists, the disturber and enemy of peace, must be thwarted and smashed. To this end, independence of the whole world should be achieved.

The struggle for the achievement of independence of the whole world is one to liquidate dominationism and colonialism. Accordingly, when independence of the whole world has been achieved, the cause of the danger for world peace and security will be eliminated. By that time, there will be no military blocs -- the product of imperialists' war policy -- and no country will render a military base to them. At the same time, there will be no dispute among the newly emerging nations.

The reason that the achievement of independence of the whole world can be a firm guarantee for world peace is because this will enable complete sovereignty of countries and nations to be achieved. The achievement of sovereignty is a prequisite to the preservation of peace. Sovereignty is national self-determination to shape one's own destiny independently. Without sovereignty, a country cannot become a truly independent nation. If sovereignty, which is equal to life for a country or nation, is infringed upon, it is impossible to escape domination and subjugation and, if there is domination and subjugation, it is no use to talk about peace.

Peace achieved by slavish submission is not genuine peace. Genuine peace is achieved only when the sovereignty of every country and nation has been achieved and the relations of equality have been established among them. Therefore, to guarantee durable world peace, the countries and nations must firmly defend their sovereignty.

If each country and nation fails in defending sovereignty, there will still be interference in others' affairs and blind following of others. This will subsequently bring about a new type of domination and subjugation, even if they have achieved national independence. And, this will eventually endanger independence and peace.

Only when each country and nation exercises complete sovereignty will there be no country to dominate or be dominated, will relations of complete equality be established among countries and nations; only then can durable world peace be guaranteed. Thus, the struggle for the achievement of independence of the whole world is one to liquidate dominationism and colonialism and to achieve complete sovereignty of the countries and nations.

Therefore, when the independence of the whole world has been achieved, imperialism and colonialism -- the cause of war -- will be eliminated for good and no one will allow any attempt to dominate small nations.

Indeed, the achievement of independence of the whole world is a correct way to the complete liquidation of the cause of war and to the preservation of durable peace and security on the globe -- the long cherished desire of mankind. The construction of a new independent world is the unanimous demand of the peoples seeking independence and the common noble cause of mankind.

Thanks to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's unique policy for the achievement of independence of the whole world, the world's people have now been able to more vigorously turn out in the struggle to carry out the cause of human liberation. This is another great achievement which the respected and beloved leader has won for the era and mankind.

Upholding the great leader's policy for the achievement of independence of the whole world, our party and the government of the republic, in firm unity with all world countries struggling to defend independence, will struggle to build a new independent world.

Nothing can block the march of the world people vigorously moving forward under the banner of the independence of the whole world. Mankind's desire for a peaceful world without aggression and war and for a new independent world will certainly be realized.

PRESS, STAMP-FORGING PROCESS DRIVE UNDERWAY

[Text] Pyongyang, October 1 (KCNA) -- An energetic drive is under way in Korea for the overall introduction of press and stamp-forging at engineering plants.

The Hamhung Plenary Meeting of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea held toward the end of August put forward the task to complete the introduction of press and stamp-forging in the production of all machines within 2 or 3 years. In a little more than half a month following the plenary meeting, the Sungni general automobile works manufactured over 200 kinds of chucks and devices for press and stamp-forging and introduced them into production to acquire tens of installations and save hundreds of tons of steel and much labour while markedly improving the quality of products. The Taean general heavy machine works has increased the capacity of the press shop and introduced a 2,000-ton press and a 5 ton hammer into production to convert the processing of parts of large generators and electric motors into pressing.

The Hamhung machine tool plant has completed technical preparations for converting gradual pressing into combined pressing. It has also wound up the manufacture of a 250-ton crank press and equipment for stamp-forging of bolts and nuts.

The Sariwon tractor accessories factory has in a short time manufactured 15 presses and many stamp-forging machines to lift the proportion of press and stamp-forging to above 85 per cent.

The Kim Chong-tae electric locomotive factory, the Pyongyang coal mine machine plant and other machine plants have also reported successes in the endeavours for the overall introduction of press and stamp-forging.

ELECTRICITY PRODUCTION SUCCESSES CLAIMED

[Text] Pyongyang, October 4 (KCNA) -- New successes are being registered at the power stations in different parts of the country through the drive for the creation of the "speed of the 80's."

The Pukchang thermal power plant is surpassing the daily assignments by an average of three million KWH by introducing various technical innovation proposals. In the last half year the power plant turned out 550 million KWH of electricity outside the plan, while saving much fuel.

In September the Pyongyang thermal power plant increased the daily output of electricity by more than 1.2 million KWH on a daily average, thereby upping the electricity output 25 per cent above the same period of last year. The Hochongang and other hydraulic power stations have ensured a high water-level and raised the water-wheel efficiency to produce more electricity than in the like period of last year.

The power industry of Korea has made rapid development by relying on rich hydraulic and fuel resources. Large-scale hydraulic and thermal power stations are properly combined and medium- and small-scale power stations proportionately distributed, with the result that power stations, big and small, have made their appearance not only in major industrial districts but also in all other parts from the plain areas to the mountain and remote areas.

Along the policy of the Workers Party of Korea on the chuche-orientation, modernisation and scientisation of the national economy, automation, telemechanics and industrial television are widely introduced in the power stations.

At present the construction of many large-scale power stations and medium- and small-scale power stations is progressing in Korea, while substantially increasing the capacity of the existing power stations.

The per-capita electricity output of Korea will reach 5,200 KWH at the end of the 1980's.

According to a report filed in the South Korean Foreign Ministry from the Korean Embassy in London, Thatcher expressed her content over the past Korea-Britain relations and hoped for further expansion of economic cooperation between the two countries.

The report also said Thatcher pledged Yi that there will be no changes in the British Government's Korea policy and it will continue to support the position of the South Korean government.

On Trade, Unification

SK060252 Seoul YONHAP in English 0241 GMT 6 Oct 82

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 6 (YONHAP) -- South Korean Foreign Minister Yi Pom-sok, now visiting Britain, Tuesday said: "Koreans are ready to contribute to a more prosperous and peaceful world community, recognizing the importance of economic and political interdependence."

Addressing the Royal Institute for International Affairs, Yi said Korea is committed to progressive import liberalization "in spite of the fact that in many sectors we do need to protect our young industries from tough competition from outside."

According to a report filed with the South Korean Foreign Ministry from its embassy in London, Yi added: "In Korea, we have many people who advocate that we should also revert to protectionist measures; but let me assure you that, as foreign minister, I am among those who stand for an open world trading system and for foreign access to the Korean market." "If I try to draw some conclusions from the Korean experience to date," Yi said, "it is quite clear that the combination of self-reliance and international cooperation has been crucial ingredient of our progress."

Yi continued to say: "The Korean Peninsula is an area of unending local conflict where interests of major powers also intersect. Whether we Koreans like it or not, the problems on our own peninsula cannot be settled in the absence of some agreement among the two superpowers -- the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. -- and the two major regional powers, China and Japan.

However, Yi emphasized: "Every logic and every reason points to the desirability of stopping as soon as possible this expensive and highly dangerous confrontation," and added that he maintains "almost a religious faith" that North Korea will eventually agree on this truth and come to the conference table. "South Korea will continue to work strenuously and tirelessly for the goal of peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula, despite all obstacles and frustrations", Yi said.

The Korean diplomatic chief made an official visit to Britain Sunday through Wednesday after a trip to New York.

"When these two lines coincide, that is the most dangerous moment for war," the paper quoted Yi as saying.

In a message to Erich Honecker, general secretary of the Socialist Unity Party of Germany (SED) Central Committee, and Willi Stoph, chairman of the Council of Ministers of the GDR, General Secretary Heng Samrin and Chairman Chan Si expressed satisfaction at the strengthening of the "socialist internationalist relations" uniting the two peoples, which is in the interest of peace and social progress.

The Kampuchean people are elated at the achievements won by the people of the GDR under the leadership of the SED in the dynamic development of the socialist economy. The concern of the SED with the improvement of the people's living conditions leads to the conception of the superiority of a communist society in the GDR and the strengthening of its position in the face of the schemes to oppose socialism launched by the imperialists, with U.S. imperialism as the ringleader.

In his message to Horst Sindermann, chairman of the People's Chamber of the GDR, Chea Sim affirmed that through their own efforts during the past 33 years the GDR people have achieved "remarkable socialist gains" making it possible to "promote peace and social progress of mankind." Chairman Chea Sim expressed his conviction that the relations of fraternal friendship and cooperation between the two peoples "will continually strengthen the well-being of the two peoples and socialism."

[Begin recording] I believe it will maintain support at the present level, or will even gain more support, during next year. We won't have to do anything.

[Answer] He requested a meeting with me. It was not I who wanted to see him. The meeting was an ordinary one and the talks covered no substantial topics. We only renewed our acquaintance. He said he visited Thailand and that relations between Thailand and Vietnam have improved. We did not talk much. [end recording]

PRK DEFECTOR DISCUSSES SCOPE OF SRV 'DOMINATION'

[Excerpts] Vietnam has set up a unit known as "B68" to supervise the Heng Samrin regime in Phnom Penh, the two highest-ranking Khmer defectors to have come to Thailand revealed yesterday.

Di Lamthol, 33, former secretary to the Phnom Pehn foreign minister, and his wife, Niang Sida, 33, translator who had worked for Heng Samrin and handled secret documents, escaped to Thailand because, apart from personal reasons, they hated the Vietnamese domination. They told a select group of local newsmen and foreign correspondents at Khao I-Dang refugee holding camp in Ta Phraya District, Prachin Buri, that the unit provided "advisers" to all ministries.

Describing how the 17 Vietnamese assigned to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs worked, Di Lamthol disclosed that the two topmost "advisers" met every morning with Foreign Minister Hu Sen or his deputy or assistant in his absence and "showed him secret messages from Hanoi, told him what to do about this or that policy or problem." Hun Sen then conferred with the various department chiefs to pass on the recommendations.

The two advisers who worked daily with Hun Sen were Ngo Dien, Vietnamese ambassador to Phnom Penh, and Cao, who had come from the Hanoi Foreign Ministry. Fifteen other "advisers" worked with the department heads.

Di was given papers prepared by the Vietnamese in French or English for presentation to diplomats and visitors. The Vietnamese also prepared statements made by the Indochina foreign ministers at their meetings in Phnom Penh, Vientiane and Ho Chi Minh City regarding ASEAN, Di said. He and his wife were present in their different capacities at these meetings.

Di reported that the Vietnamese drew up all the policies for the Heng Samrin regime regarding positions of the Soviet Union, China, the United States, West Europe, East Europe, Asia, Southeast Asia, the Middle East and other parts of the world. Di did not know how many advisers worked for "B68." He did not see any Soviet adviser in the Foreign Ministry at Phnom Penh. Every evening officials had to spend one hour learning Vietnamese. The Vietnamese language was taught two hours a week in schools.

Asked for his opinion of Hun Sen, he said: "He's not an intellectual, not well-educated, can speak only Khmer and has learned Vietnamese." He had accompanied the foreign minister to party congresses in Poland, Cuba, Nicaragua, Yemen, Angola and the Congo, mainly in charge of documents.

Di's colleagues at the ministry did not like the Vietnamese control of their government but "they live in terror, they are afraid to protest, they are too insecure to denounce the regime." He also said that the people did not like the Vietnamese-directed regime. They could not go anywhere without permission.

Di welcomed the formation of the Democratic Kampuchea coalition under Prince Norodom Sihanouk. He wished the Vietnamese would leave and let free elections take place. He believed other people in Phnom Penh felt the same.

His wife, Sida, who had acted as translator for Pen Sovan, deposed chairman of the Politburo, did not know why he was ousted -- whether because he was pro-Soviet or wanted to be independent. She did not think much of him. "He spoke the same things. He had no new ideas. He only criticised the previous regime."

Sida accompanied Heng Samrin on his visits to Vientiane, Hanoi, Havana, Moscow, East Berlin Prague, Budapest and other capitals. She said that Heng Samrin was accompanied by a doctor and a security guard, both Vietnamese but bearing Khmer names and passports.

Di had studied at Kompong Cham and Phnom Penh when Prince Sihanouk was head of the government. During the Lon Nol regime, he worked with the World Vision medical team. During the Pol Pot regime, he was a farmer in Kratie. He interrupted a medical course (which was then suspended) to study in the political school of the Ministry of Propaganda and also studied diplomacy at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. In May, 1979, Di joined the Foreign Ministry as vice chairman of the Department of Western Europe and America and after three months became special secretary to the foreign minister. He also received additional political training in South Vietnam. Later he was made chairman of the General Political Department of the Foreign Ministry. Early in 1981, he was appointed chairman of the Western Europe and America Department. He was there until November, 1981, when he resigned to continue his medical studies. In May, he came to the Thai border with his wife and two sons, nine and seven years old. He was not a member of the communist party, but had been in the corps group preparing members for the party. Besides his hatred of the Vietnamese intervention in his country, Di left Phnom Penh also because Hun Sen did not like his marriage to Sida. Di had divorced his first wife. He also suffers from a heart ailment.

The family is seeking political asylum in a third country. They refused to divulge their method of escape or their intended destination.

NATION: TOP CPT MEMBERS WANT TO RETURN FROM PRC

BK300225 Bangkok THE NATION REVIEW in English 30 Sep 82 p 3

[Text] Mongkhon na Nakhon, one of the senior members of the trouble-plagued Communist Party of Thailand (CPT), has sought permission from the Thai Government to return here from his exile in China, an authoritative source told THE NATION yesterday. The source said Mongkhon is suffering from senility and wants to spend the rest of his life in Thailand. Mongkhon, who was among the first political activists that went underground and joined the CPT, was a member on the outlawed's Central Committee before its recent fourth congress.

The Thai Government has no objection to his return, as it has a policy to welcome communist defectors, the source said. However, Mongkhon, believed to be living somewhere in south China, has not responded to the government's permission for his return, the source said. "This delay could be whether Mongkhon has not received the green light from Beijing or that his trip back to Thailand might be problematic. You know, he is very senile," the source said. Mongkhon first contacted the Thai Embassy in Beijing, possibly through a representative, requesting his return to Thailand.

The source also said that he had received reports that Pluang Wannasi, another senior communist member in China, also wished to return to Thailand, but added that so far he had not made any contact with the Thai Government. Pluang, a close friend of Politburo member Udom Sisuwan, was rumoured to have defected to the government following Udom's surrender recently.

The source also said that Thai descendants who were stranded in China following the communist takeover of the country also wished to return to Thailand, but their applications were made complicated as it was difficult to prove their citizenship.

LAO DELEGATE'S UN SPEECH, LAO ASEAN LETTER VIEWED

[Station commentary]

[Text] The speech delivered by Khamphai Boupha, head of the [Lao] delegation to the 37th session of the United Nations General Assembly, as well as the message of 15 September 1982 sent by Lao Foreign Minister Phoun Sipaseut on behalf of the three Indochinese countries to the foreign ministers of the ASEAN countries, have received a warm welcome in the world.

These documents not only analyzed correctly the main threat to peace and stability in Southeast Asia, but also contained fair and reasonable measures aimed at building Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation.

The realities in Southeast Asia over the past 3 years show that certain reactionary forces in the Beijing leadership in collusion with U.S. imperialism and other hostile forces have resorted to every means to sabotage the three Indochinese countries. They have fostered and incited the Pol Pot genocidal clique to oppose the revival of the Kampuchean people and to aggravate tension along the border between Kampuchea and Thailand. They have intensified armed provocations and other sabotage activities against Vietnam and Laos and also attempted to overthrow the legal governments in the three Indochinese countries. Moreover, they have tried to put the ASEAN countries in confrontation with the Indochinese countries in the hope of fishing in troubled waters.

With a high sense of responsibility, the Indochinese countries have put forth a series of peace initiatives including the proposal for signing a treaty of peaceful coexistence with China, bilateral or multilateral, for ending all hostile armed activities along the Sino-Vietnamese border, and for the resumed Sino-Vietnamese talks to peacefully solve problems in the relations between the two countries. But it is regrettable that all these good-will proposals of the three Indochinese countries have been rejected by China.

A number of practical-minded authorities in the ASEAN countries have come to realize the root cause of tension and conflict in Southeast Asia. Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja once said that the threat to the ASEAN countries comes from China. Nevertheless, some other ASEAN countries wrongly believe that the presence of a limited Vietnamese armed force in Kampuchea is threatening peace and security of Thailand and the region. Hoodwinked by Beijing's propaganda, they consider the Kampuchean [words indistinct] to be one between the ASEAN and Indochinese countries. For this reason, they continue to oppose the trend of dialogue in the region.

In fact, the two groups of countries -- Indochina and ASEAN -- still have some differences. In their peace proposals, the three Indochinese countries always advocate a settlement of differences through dialogue and negotiation on the basis of mutual respect for each other's legitimate interests, equality and mutual agreement without any imposition whatsoever and without interference from outside.

With this stand, the Indochinese countries are ready to take the first step to create conditions for promoting the trend of dialogue. The concrete proposals put forth by the Indochinese foreign ministers in July this year, the partial withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and the recent visit of Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach to a number of countries in Southeast Asia have been warmly welcomed by public opinion.

At the current UN General Assembly session, the Lao representative, on behalf of the three Indochinese countries, again proposed more contacts to be made between countries in Southeast Asia or between the two groups of countries. He also pointed to concrete measures for convening an international conference on Southeast Asia.

The Indochinese countries proposed that the conference should be convened in the last 3 months of this year or early next year. The conference may take place in Rangoon, New Delhi, Paris, Stocklholm or Vienna. Concerning the agenda, there may be still disagreement, but the conference can discuss all problems in the region raised by each side on the principle of complete equality. There are many ways: an agreed agenda, an open agenda, or an agenda with agreed upon problems and open problems.

Obviously, the latest proposal of the Indochinese countries is very flexible and full of good will. It only aims to promote the trend toward dialogue between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries for the common interests of all countries in the region, namely, peace, stability, friendship and cooperation.

NHAN DAN Editorial

[NHAN DAN 6 October editorial: "Welcome the Vocational Training Conference of Socialist Countries"]

[Text] The 10th conference of the vocational training sector leaders of socialist countries opens today in Ho Chi Minh City. This event is significant for several reasons and marks a developmental step in the relations of solidarity, cooperation and friendship between our people and the peoples of the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea and other socialist countries.

Socialist countries consider vocational training to be an important task aimed at developing the capability of all workers and at optimally using the source of reserve manpower to serve the common interests of society. Vietnam's vocational training sector, which has always been cared for by our party and state, is a developing education sector. The system of vocational schools in our country is still poor quantitatively and has not been modernized in terms of supply and machinery. Nevertheless, our vocational training cadres and teachers have implemented consistently and creatively the party line of education, realizing their heavy responsibility in forming a class of new men to replenish the Vietnamese working class, and they have thus made considerable contributions to the training of more than a million workers.

The Fifth VCP Congress has asserted the great achievements of various education sectors -- including the vocational training sector -- and has clearly pointed out the shortcomings and the guideline for continually developing the educational task in the future. Implementing the party resolution, the vocational training sector has struggled to increase the quality of its training, primarily the quality of its political, ideological, revolutionary and ethical education, so as to make every graduate worthy of being a replacement member of the Vietnamese working class. At the same time, all vocational schools graduates will acquire sufficient knowledge and, most importantly, definite skills so that they can continue to develop their abilities in the service of the country.

The system of vocational schools in our country should be revamped, rearranged and given more funding in order to make these schools really worthy of their name through our actions to build them properly and definitively. Only by building standardized and systematic vocational schools can we train skilled workers. To cope with the conditions in our country, which is advancing to socialism from a low level of technology, we must continue to maintain several forms of substandard vocational training to teach many people, to serve the requirements of developing agriculture, handicrafts and artisan industry, and of expanding jobs and sectors, and to fully capitalize on our country's strength of abundant labor.

The organization and management of an education sector as important as vocational training should be closely linked with the country's economic and social lives. The technical and professional education sector of socialist countries, especially the Soviet Union, has achieved high scientific and technical standards in terms of supply and machinery, on a large scale and with a great deal of momentum. These achievements are closely related to the superiority of socialism and play a significant role in building socialism, an ever-increasing material life and an increasingly fruitful moral life.

Over the past several years, the vocational training sector of our country has received valuable support from the vocational training sector of the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries. Tens of thousands of our youths have been sent to the Soviet Union and other fraternal countries for training to become skilled workers. Many vocational schools in our country have been built and commissioned or are being constructed with Soviet assistance. Those schools built with the assistance of the GDR, Hungary and Poland have begun operating successfully. Vietnam's vocational training sector has cooperated closely with its counterparts in fraternal Laos and Kampuchea.

On this occasion, we would like to express our sincere gratitude to the governments and peoples of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries for helping our people develop the vocational training sector. We are convinced that this conference of the vocational training sector leaders of socialist countries will be a valuable contribution to the enrichment of our experiences and the promotion of cooperation in the vocational training field of the socialist community.

This conference held in Vietnam reflects the great support and encouragement of fraternal countries in the socialist community to the vocational training sector and the Vietnamese working class as a whole. We sincerely wish the conference a fine success!

TRADE UNION FEDERATION MEETS IN HO CHI MINH CITY

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, September 30 -- The Vietnam General Federation of Trade Unions [VGFTU] held the 90th conference of its Executive Committee in Ho Chi Minh City recently.

The conference, attended by hundreds of delegates from provincial and municipal trade union organisations and those from production branches throughout the country, reviewed the implementation of the objectives set forth by the V.G.F.T.U. Executive Committee on the organisation of emulation drives to boost production and improve the living conditions of workers and public employees.

In cooperation with managerial organs, grassroots trade unions have organized many production emulation drives among workers and public employees aimed at enhancing their role of collective masters and developing their innovative spirit. The trade unions have also held conferences of technical and managerial cadres and skilled workers to map out effective economic and technical measures with a view to solving difficulties in each phase of production. "Innovation support" teams and groups have strongly developed in all production establishments serving as the hard core of these movements.

In the first half of this year, 15 localities and six branches of activity in the country developed 24,600 innovations saving 76 million dong and 72,000 U.S. dollars worth of materials.

Besides, thanks to rational use of raw materials, materials and energy in production, the coal, construction, geology and postal services and 12 provinces have saved 4,000 tons of coal, 2,600 tons of steel and iron, 900 tons of fuel and restored equipment and machinery worth nearly 100 million dong.

Together with managerial organs, trade unions at all levels have worked out more rational labour quotas and applied a better wage system so as to encourage producers. They have also provided more sideline jobs to improve the life of workers and public servants. At present, throughout the country, 1.2 million workers and public employees in the productive sector and more than 400,000 others in the administrative sector have been provided free lunch at their working places.

AFP REPORTS CHANGES IN HO CHI MINH CITY TRADE

[By Michel Blanchard]

[Text] Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam, Oct. 7 (AFP) -- Pragmatism is in, anarchy is out. Hanoi will soon retake control of the southern Vietnamese economy, checking the rampant "liberalization" of this city's foreign trade.

Though no one from the Foreign Trade Department would admit to it, the uneasiness had prevailed for months. At a meeting on the southern economy last August, the tongues were finally loosed. Deputy Director for Foreign Trade of Ho Chi Minh City, Phan Thanh Cuong, surrounded by three furiously-note-taking aides, took up the subject in measured tones: "There have been no abuses, some excesses at most. Changes are on the way, and will be implemented wihtout delay."

The call to order comes just as the city's mayor, Mai Chi Tho, was preparing for a foreign trip to Bulgaria, India and France. He was due in Paris today to visit a number of factories.

Ho Chi Minh City has in the past three years been in the vanguard of economic "revival" with undeniable success. Believers in "orthodoxy" were unhappy with the deviations from official doctrine, saying the results still did not justify the means.

The southern economy is made up of five divisions, against three in the north. These are state, collective, individual, mixed public-private, and capitalist.

Taking advantage of the opening brought on by "liberalizations," several mixed enterprises, some led by former capitalists, ventured into foreign trade, doing something of everything. Those days are now over. "Foreign trade is a state monopoly. Only state enterprises will be allowed to engage in it, Mr. Cuong said. Mixed enterprises will be "re-channelled" into domestic activities, and profit margins will be restricted.

Six public companies dominate the south's economic activity, with four having a full range of businesses. There are also five municipal production units and a company in all 18 districts for the distribution of produce. This framework would give the south a special and independent economic status, though still under the state's powerful grip.

Number two man of the party's Secretariat Le Duc Tho recently expressed support for the pragmatists. "We must utilize everyone's abilities and potential," but only up to a certain point, and "those who would take advantage of this freedom should be called to order."

First to be affected by the changes will be the import-export headquarters of Direximco and Cholimex, based in the former Chinatown of Cholon, now turned into the fifth district. Rumours have long circulated that their days were numbered, brought down by their own successes which were worrying Hanoi.

Taking advantage of the Chinese networks of Singapore and Hong Kong, Cholon Chinese traders often practiced barter trade. "The procedures might do temporarily, but cannot be relied upon in the long run," said Mr. Cuong, "lacking the reliability and flexibility of international rules."

Mr. Cuong did not believe that overall trade would suffer, as the Singapore and Hong Kong factors were "negligible." Nevertheless, the two ports play an important part in this picture, especially as intermediaries.

This city, said Mr. Cuong, is still under the influence of its past association with capitalist countries, "whether we like it or not."

Mr. Cuong sees the present as a "transition," but much still remains to be done. "In any case the southern side of the 17th parallel has overtaken the 1974 foreign trade volume of the former regime, totaling 85 million dollars," he said.

The U.S. embargo hindered the import of sophisticated products, "but we can get around it by dealing through agents," he added with a smile.

Trading here involved mostly socialist countries, the main trading partner being the Soviet Union, and as these exchanges are accounted for in local currency, it was "difficult" to give a total figure for the trade. South Vietnam needs mostly raw materials and spare parts from the West. The country is targeting raw agricultural produce and processed food as well as handicrafts for export, especially to France and the Scandinavian countries. A Western expert believed two-way trade here could total 200 million dollars in 1982, evenly divided between export and import.

PHILIPPINES TO PRESS FOR ASEAN COMMON MARKET

HK071353 Manila TIMES JOURNAL in English 7 Oct 82 pp 1, 2

[Text] The Philippines will press for the formation of an Assiciation of Southeast Asian Nations common market in the ASEAN ministers meeting in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, tomorrow and Saturday. Agriculture Minister Arturo R. Tanco Jr., who will represent the country in the meeting, said yesterday the proposed common market will be patterned after the European Economic Community.

Initially, Tanco said, the proposed ASEAN common market may be limited to agricultural products. So far, ASEAN has considerably lowered, if not altogether removed, tariffs on some 400 agricultural commodities. However, he pointed out, tariff policies of some ASEAN member countries are still hampering the free flow of goods in the region.

For instance, Tanco said rice is still being subjected to tariff duties in some cases. Such restrictive policies discourage the export of the commodity by the Philippines and Thailand to Malaysia, Singapore and Indonesia.

He also cited the case of fish products which, when caught in Philippine waters, are exempt from tariff duties. If caught in Indonesia, however, they are heavily taxed.

Lifting of trade barriers through the formation of a common market will encourage cross investments and joint ventures among ASEAN nationals in the region, he said. "It is high time ASEAN members pressed for economic integration in the region in the face of growing protectionist policies being adopted by Western countries," Tanco said.

TANCO DISCUSSES PROTEST AGAINST EEC SUGAR SUBSIDY

HK071349 Manila TIMES JOURNAL in English 7 Oct 82 pp 1, 6

[Text] The Philippines and nine other cane sugar-producing countries are working out ways to minimize the European Economic Community's big sugar exports which have been hurting third world countries.

Agricultural Minister Arturo R. Tanco Jr. said yesterday the 10 countries will meet with EEC officials anytime this month to discuss ways to end the community's "protectionist policies on the sugar trade." Tanco said the EEC exported 4.5 million metric tons of beet sugar last year due to the huge subsidies it has been giving to its producers.

He said two major concessions will be asked by the 10 countries from the EEC member-countries. These are: Limit the EEC's sugar exports so more sugar from the traditional exporters would be absorbed by importers. Stop the big subsidies granted by the community's member-countries to their beet sugar farmers.

Tanco said beet sugar farms in the EEC would not be viable were it not for the huge subsidies given by the governments. "The production cost of their beet sugar is about U.S. 27 cents lower. If no subsidy were given to sugar farmers, exports would be impossible," Tanco said. Tanco said cane sugar production cost in the Philippines is only U.S. 11 cents per pound. "Without the subsidies, the community members' sugar exports could have been supplied by traditional exporters like the Philippines," Tanco said.

Earlier, the United States was asked to double its quota on Philippine sugar exports. The United States is the biggest buyer of the country's 1.2 million metric tons of sugar exports yearly. Other big buyers are China, Iraq, Japan and Indonesia. Tanco said other countries protesting the EEC subsidy to sugar farmers are Australia, Brazil, the Dominican Republic, Cuba and Argentina.

UNIDO SEEKS FORMATION OF 'SURVIVAL' COMMISSION

HK071319 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 7 Oct 82 pp 1, 7

[Text] The United Nationalist Democratic Organization (UNIDO) reiterated yesterday its proposal to create what it called an extraconstitutional "preparatory commission for survival" to prevent "further radicalization" of the people.

Former Senator Salvador H. Laurel, UNIDO president, said in a press statement that the UNIDO proposed commission will have a limited term of one year and must accomplish four major objectives during that period.

Laurel stressed that within one year from its creation, the commission must improve and maintain peace and order, grant a general amnesty in line with a policy of national reconciliation, write a new constitution reflecting the "true sentiments of the real opposition," and call a general election that is free, orderly, and honest under the new constitution.

The proposal states that all members of the commission should be chosen by a consensus reached between the administration and credible leaders of the "real opposition" and that the members shall be disqualified from running under the new constitution to ensure maximum credibility and objectivity. Laurel said these objectives must be attained while President Marcos is still in power in order to prevent a wild scramble for his office.

ENRILE LISTS WANTED COMMUNIST, NPA LEADERS

HK080453 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 7 Oct 82

[Text] The Defense Ministry released yesterday the list of top Communist Party and New People's Army [NPA] leaders wanted, dead or alive. The government has rewards amounting to 1.85 million pesos for their capture. Topping the list are Rodolfo Salas, alias Commander (Biloc), who is chairman of the Communist Party Central Committee, and Juanito Rivera, alias Commander (Juaning), who is vice chairman of the Central Committee. Salas has a 250,000-peso reward for his capture, dead or alive, while Rivera has a 200,000-peso price on his head.

The other wanted Communist leaders, among them former newsman Antonio Zumel, have from 150,000 pesos to 200,000 pesos rewards for their capture, dead or alive.

COLUMNIST QUESTIONS COMMUNIST CHAIRMAN'S DEATH

HK300242 Manila BULLETIN TODAY in English 29 Sep 82 p 6

[Column by Ninez Cacho Olivares: "Death of a Rebel"]

[Excerpts] Edgar Jopson, a moderate student activist and leader of the national union of students, had been considered during the late sixties and early seventies by many radical student activists as tame. The newspaper reports said that Edgar Jopson died during a shootout in Davao. Military intelligence reports that had been declassified revealed that Jopson was a communist.

The news dailies also said that Jopson disappeared in 1972 when martial law was declared and that Jopson was, until his death, the Communist Party of the Philippines' chairman in Mindanao. He was, according to military reports the guerrilla who would have spearheaded the campaign of destruction. Jopson carried a peso 180,000 price on his head -- dead or alive.

What could have caused a moderate activist and a highly intelligent man, filled with idealism, to join the communist movement? We will never know, will we, because Jopson is dead. He was allegedly killed in his hideout.

Was killing him necessary? From reports, there were 21 soldiers who surrounded Jopson's hideout. Four other ranking NPA members were captured. These NPA members were with Jopson in his hideout. But only Jopson died from three gunshot wounds.

From reports, the intelligence community claimed it knew about the terror operation in Mindanao since July. It also discovered that Jopson had been in hiding in Davao. The hideout, a bungalow which is well furnished, is situated in Matina, Davao. The hideout was placed under surveillance for months but military operatives decided to assault the area on the eve of Sept. 21, the day martial law was proclaimed 10 years ago, "to preempt the plot."

I know nothing about military operations and I suppose there are many like me who are not privy to military tactics and operations. There are therefore many questions that arise in my mind -- probably because the reports are sketchy and probably because of my ignorance. For instance, I can't seem to understand why, if the hideout was under surveillance for months and used as a propaganda center of the CPP [Communist Party of the Philippines] in eastern Mindanao, why did the operatives decide to assault the area on the eve of Sept. 21? It couldn't have been for dramatic effect, could it? There must have been many opportunities for these military men to round up CPP members during the months of surveillance. Why wait for the eve of the twenty-first to assault the area? Was that the only opportune moment?

Was the violence necessary? Did Jopson have to die? If Jopson was a communist leader, and intelligence reports say he was, wasn't Jopson then more valuable alive? He could have been captured, rehabilitated and neutralized. He could have shed more light on the communist activities in the country, if he was indeed a communist leader in Mindanao.

Rehabilitation is possible. After all, haven't Taruc and Nilo Tayag been rehabilitated? The government says so. Sayang. All that intelligence and idealism had gone to waste, because of three bullet wounds.

And again I ask: Was there the need for Jopson's death?

SUZUKI RESIGNS AS LDP PRESIDENT 12 OCTOBER

OW120718 Tokyo KYODO in English 0700 GMT 12 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Tokyo, Oct 12, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Tuesday tendered his resignation as president of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party. The resignation was offered at a meeting of the four top leaders of the party which Suzuki convened from 3 p.m. at his official residence. Suzuki was understood to have told the meeting that "someone more suitable" should be elected as new party leader and, consequently, new prime minister to succeed him.

Suzuki's Statement

OW120916 Tokyo KYODO in English 0857 GMT 12 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 12, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Tuesday abruptly announced his intention to give up power, sending shock waves through the nation which had believed he was almost assured of his reelection to head of his party.

Leaders of the Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP), upon his resignation announcement, hurriedly met and decided to pick his successor by October 16, LDP sources said.

Political sources said Yasuhiro Nakasone, Cabinet minister and chief of the Administrative Management Agency, has emerged as a strong successor to the 71-year-old Suzuki.

Suzuki announced his intention to resign as president of the conservative party Tuesday afternoon when he called four top party officials to an emergency meeting.

In a statement Suzuki said since he was installed in power in July 1980 to succeed his mentor Masayoshi Ohira who died suddenly, he has tried very hard to have a harmonious party to tide over various difficulties both at home and abroad. But he noted the emergence of intraparty turmoil prior to the holding of a presidential election this autumn.

Ichiro Nakagawa, state minister in charge of science and technology, has already announced his candidacy in the November election.

The LDP presidency automatically carries with it the premiership since the Tory party is enjoying a comfortable majority in the two houses of the Diet (parliament).

The intraparty factions led by Nakagawa, former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda and Toshio Komoto, state minister and chief of the Economic Planning Agency, are opposed to Suzuki's way of running state affairs. These "nonmainstreamers" within the faction-ridden party are, however, a minority, while the "mainstreamers" supporting Suzuki are dominant, with backing from his own faction and those headed by former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and Nakasone. Therefore, the nation believes Suzuki was already assured of his reelection to president of the party, political pundits said.

With the approach of the announcement of the election October 16, mud-slinging campaigns have become intensified within the party between the mainstreamers and nonmainstreamers. Suzuki said in Tuesday's statement that if this intraparty conflict should further develop, it will become increasingly difficult for his government to run state affairs.

Administrative reforms for making a "small government" have been Suzuki's pet scheme since he seized power two years ago. "I have decided to resign in order to avoid any political confusion and pave the way for making an all-party setup," Suzuki said.

Political sources said Suzuki wants Nakasone to be his successor, but the idea is strongly opposed by the Fukuda, Komoto and Nakagawa factions. Therefore, it is still uncertain whether the four top officials of the party can successfully pick Suzuki's successor by October 16, they said.

SAKURAUCHI REPORTS TO SUZUKI ON U.S. VISIT

[Excerpt] Tokyo, Oct 10, KYODO -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi told Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Saturday U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz had urged Japan to make further efforts to continue its defense buildup program, calling for "reciprocity" even in the defense issue. Sakurauchi, who returned Saturday from an 11-day tour to the United States and Canada, reported to the prime minister primarily on his first official consultations with his American counterpart.

Showing understanding (?of) the U.S. stance, Sakurauchi later told reporters Japan had better draw a conclusion on the exchange of defense technology as soon as possible. He indicated the government would make positive efforts to work out a consensus on the technology exchange issue among concerned government departments -- the Foreign Ministry, the International Trade and Industry Ministry (MITI) and the Defense Agency. The Foreign Ministry and the Defense Agency have argued Japan should cooperate with the United States in the exchange of defense technology even when the latter is directly involved in a conflict. MITI, however, has contended Japan should discontinue the cooperation under such circumstances.

MIYAZAWA DENIES ANY OFFICIAL WORD OF REAGAN VISIT

OW120323 Tokyo KYODO in English 0312 GMT 12 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 12, KYODO -- The government has not officially heard of a prospective visit to Japan by U.S. President Ronald Reagan next year, chief spokesman Kiichi Miyazawa said Tuesday.

Reagan was officially invited to visit Japan when Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi recently met with his U.S. counterpart George Shultz in New York.

Speculation was aroused by a Seoul dispatch that Shultz and South Korean Foreign Minister Yi Pom-sok have agreed on the President's Korean trip next year.

"The government has nothing to do with the reports," Miyazawa told newsmen.

ITO MEETS TOKYO PRESS, VIEWS U.S. DEFENSE TALKS

OW080939 Tokyo KYODO in English 0905 GMT 8 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 8, KYODO -- Deployment of F-16 fighters at Misawa U.S. air base in northern Japan will contribute to peace and security in the Far East, the director general of Japan's Defense Agency affirmed here Friday. Speaking to reporters at the Foreign Correspondents' Club, Soichiro Ito said he made the same point during talks in Washington last week with U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Deployment of the multipurpose fighters, which have a combat range of around 900 kilometers, was first proposed by the United States in June, Ito said. It was formally agreed upon during the Washington talks. "The plan to deploy F-16's is designed to improve the military balance in the Far East and, by clearly demonstrating the United States' commitment, to improve and maintain the deterrent power of the U.S.-Japan security arrangement," Ito said.

"The large-scale Soviet military buildup shows no sign of abating," he said, and in this context, Japan's efforts to maintain and improve the credibility of the Japan-U.S. relationship, while keeping up its own appropriate level of defense capability, will contribute to world stability.

Summing up his Washington talks, Ito said U.S. leaders urged much greater efforts by Japan to improve its defense strength. However, he said, Japan's huge budget deficit would make it difficult to achieve even the 7.346 percent increase in defense spending for fiscal 1983 that the Defense Agency is calling for. Japan's fiscal 1982 defense budget grew 7.75 percent over the previous year.

"While bearing in mind U.S. expectations, we in Japan need to clearly indicate what Japan can and cannot do," Ito said. "We need to make make stepped-up and concrete efforts based on our own judgement."

Ito said he hoped for an early start on a joint study of sealane defense agreed upon between Japan and the United States, but said Japan had reached no conclusion yet on providing military technology as requested by the Americans.

He confirmed that Japan is to develop missiles capable of intercepting airborne or sea-borne attack, but denied that any more long-range weapons were being contemplated. "The military capability we are aiming for is emphatically a deterrent and exclusively defensive capability," Ito said.

Asked if Japan's defense spending would go beyond one percent of gross national product in the next few years, Ito said improving Japan's defense strength while remaining within the one percent limit was "one of my greatest headaches." However, he said the 1981 mid-term program estimate for defense outlays of yen 15.6-16.4 trillion from 1983-87 was designed to achieve those objectives.

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 12, KYODO -- A Foreign Ministry official said Tuesday his ministry will reconfirm with the United States that it will not introduce nuclear arms into Japan with the F-16 fighter bombers to be deployed at Misawa U.S. Air Force Base in Aomori Prefecture. Yoshifumi Matsuda, councillor of the Foreign Ministry's North American Affairs Bureau, made the statement in answer to interpellation by Socialist Issei Inoue at a session of the House of Representatives Audit Committee. Inoue called for a U.S. commitment not to arm the F-16 fighter bombers with nuclear weapons.

Pak Song-chol Banquet Speech

[Speech by Pak Song-chol, member of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee and DPRK vice president, at banquet arranged at the People's Palace of Culture on 8 October for PRC NPC delegation -- read by announcer]

[Text] Respected Comrade Xi Zhongxun and members of the delegation, we are very happy to sit together and share warm friendship with you, the good-will delegation of the PRC, our closest neighbor and comrade-in-arms. On behalf of the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly and of the Korean people, I warmly welcome the visit to our country by the delegation of the Chinese National People's Congress, led by respected Comrade Xi Zhongxun.

Before the subsidence of delight and excitement overflowing in mountains and rivers in Korea and China as the result of the historic visit to the latter by Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of our people, you are visiting our country with the feeling of friendship cherished by the Chinese people toward us. We are happy to meet fraternal Chinese comrades as if we were meeting our brothers. Our hearts are warmly throbbing.

The recent visit to China by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song was a great auspicious event that brilliantly decorated the annals of the historically formed Korea-China friendship by raising to a new, higher stage the traditional friendship and unity between the parties, governments and peoples of the two countries. It was a great historic event which greatly contributed to accelerating revolution and construction in the two countries and to consolidating peace in Asia and the world.

Our people warmly recall that, during the great leader's visit to China, the leading cadres of China and the Chinese people cordially entertained the respected and beloved leader as the most precious guest and enthusiastically welcomed him and made every sincere effort to achieve good results during his historic visit.

Our people boundlessly value the great success attained by the respected and beloved leader in his recent visit to China. They are determined to glorify Korea-China friendship forever and generation after generation by consolidating and developing it in the future.

Your visit to our country will more beautifully decorate the flower garden of Korea-China friendship which has brightly blossomed between the peoples of our two countries. Developing friendship through the exchange of mutual visits and through frequent contacts is a good tradition which has long been maintained between the peoples of Korea and China.

The friendship between our two countries has been strengthened and developed into an eternal, unchangeable one as time passes. This is because it has been based on the particular intimacy between the leaders of the two countries. The Korea-China friendship which the great leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song is developing into fuller bloom together with respected Comrades Hu Yaobang and Deng Xiaoping is everlasting, unchangeable and great, based on fraternal, comradely friendship and noble revolutionary fidelity between the leaders of the two countries.

The peoples of Korea and China have jointly traversed the glorious road of revolution. In this course the excellent sons and daughters of China sacrificed their precious lives in Korea, and Korean Communists shed their warm blood on the wild plain of China.

As taught by the great leader, the relations between the governments and peoples of Korea and China are as inseparable as lips to teeth -- relations between revolutionary comrades-in-arms and relations sealed in blood.

The Korean people are proud to have the Chinese people as their close revolutionary comrades-in-arms. With deep interest they are watching revolution and construction in China. After overcoming difficulties on the road of advance under the leadership of CPC the Chinese people have recently achieved political stability and have reached a new historic stage of achieving socialist modernization. In particular, following the Third Plenary Meeting of the 11th CPC Central Committee, a great change has taken place in the ideological and spiritual traits of the Chinese people and in various sectors of socialist economic construction. When the policy for four modernizations set forth by the CPC is implemented, the Chinese people will enjoy a more affluent and civilized life.

Xi Zhongxun Banquet Speech

[Text] Pyongyang, October 9 (KCNA) -- Comrade Xi Zhongxun, member of the Political Bureau and the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China and vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress of the People's Republic of China, spoke at the banquet arranged on the evening of October 8 by the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly in honour of the visiting NPC delegation led by him.

He expressed heartfelt thanks and lofty regards to the Standing Committee of the Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for having invited his delegation to visit Korea and according it warm hospitality.

He said Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people and a close friend of the Chinese people, paid a historic official state visit to our country after the 12th national congress of our party and achieved a satisfactory success.

During the visit of President Kim Il-song to China, the leaders of the two countries cordially met each other and had profound exchanges of views, thereby developing the relations between the two countries to a new stage.

President Kim Il-song highly estimated the achievements of the Chinese people and the 12th National Congress of the CPC and gave great support and encouragement to the Chinese people's cause of revolution and construction.

The further development of friendship and unity between the Chinese and Korean peoples will have a great influence not only on the cause of socialist construction in our two countries but also on defence of peace of the Asian and world peoples and the strengthening and development of the friendship and cooperation among the countries and peoples of the Third World.

Noting that the Korean people are industrious and courageous and they are a great people with glorious revolutionary traditions, he went on: All the successes made by them give boundless joy and great inspiration to the Chinese people. The Chinese people wholeheartedly wish the fraternal Korean people new, greater successes in their revolution and construction and the DPRK further prosperity.

The Chinese people are deeply interested in the Korean people's cause of the independent and peaceful reunification of the country and have all along supported the constant efforts bent by the Workers Party of Korea and the Korean Government for national reunification.

The United States has interferred in the internal affairs of Korea, keeping its troops in South Korea for tens of years in the past under all excuses and pretexts. This runs up against the resolute opposition of the Korean people and the peoples of many countries of the world, as it not only gravely obstructs the cause of Korean reunification but also increases tensions on the Korean Peninsula and northeast Asia.

President Kim Il-song set forth the three principles and five-point policy and the reunification proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo to realise the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea. These proposals indicate correct ways for Korean reunification, being very reasonable and consistent with the fundamental interests and desire of the Korean people. The Chinese Government and people resolutely support the propositions of President Kim Il-song.

The United States must withdraw its troops from South Korea and renounce its interference in the internal affairs of Korea and its "two Koreas" scheme.

The friendship between the two parties, two countries and two peoples of China and Korea is indestructible as it has been sealed in blood in a protracted struggle and has pulled through grim tests of history. The Chinese people set store by China-Korea friendship and will make all efforts to convey it down through generations. Whatever may happen in the world in the future, the Chinese people will as in the past, so in the future, too, struggle shoulder to shoulder with the Korean people.

Concluding his speech, he proposed to drink a toast to the good health and longevity of Comrade President Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people and a close friend of the Chinese people, and to the good health of the dear leader of the Korean people Comrade Secretary Kim Chong-il.

CHONG CHUN-KI SPEAKS ON DCRK PROPOSAL ANNIVERSARY

[Speech by Chong Chun-ki, alternate member of Political Bureau of KWP Central Committee and vice premier of DPRK Administration Council, at 9 October Pyongyang meeting held at People's Palace of Culture in Pyongyang marking second anniversary of Kim Il-song proposal for Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo -- read by announcer]

[Text] Comrades: In the magnificent circumstances that the entire working people of the country, upholding the militant program advanced at the historic Sixth KWP Congress and the decision of the Hamhung plenary meeting of the party Central Committee, are vigorously waging the struggle for the creation of the speed of the 1980's on all fronts of social construction and that in South Korea the anti-U.S. struggle for independence and the independent reunification of the country is being persistently waged, today we are holding a meaningful celebration of the second anniversary of the announcement of the proposal for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the sun of the nation -- on the lofty rostrum at the historic Sixth KWP Congress.

The Sixth KWP Congress, held in the midst of the attention of the entire Korean people and the revolutionary peoples of the world, was a congress of honor which provided a firm guarantee for the consummation of the chuche revolutionary cause from generation to generation and the consolidation and development of our party as an everlasting chuche revolutionary party. Thus, it was a significant event which set forth a most glorious chapter in the history of our party's sacred struggle for the complete victory of the Korean revolution and the advance of the world revolution.

In his report at the historic congress, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song illuminated the path to be traversed by our party and people and, in particular, described the achievement of the cause of the reunification of the fatherland -- the supreme national desire of our people -- as the most important revolutionary task of our party and people. He advanced a new reunification program for the reunification of the fatherland through the founding of a confederal state by the North and the South.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Our party holds that the country should be reunified by founding a confederal republic through the establishment of a unified national government on the condition that the North and South recognize and tolerate each other's ideas and social systems; a government in which the two sides are represented on an equal footing and under which they exercise regional autonomy respectively with equal rights and duties.

Advancing the new proposal for the achievement of the reunification of the country by founding a confederal state through the alliance of the North and the South, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song gave a comprehensive delineation of all the questions including the principle and way for the establishment of the confederal state, its character and function, the duties of the unified government and regional government and their mutual relations, the national title of the confederal state and its policy.

The new reunification program of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a great charter for reunification and national salvation, one which has embodied the immortal chuche idea for the settlement of the reunification question, and which is based on the three principles of independence, grand national unity and peaceful reunification.

The proposal for the founding of the DCRK is a patriotic reunification program which has fully reflected the demands of the chuche idea calling for considering independence as the life of the nation and mobilizing everything for the protection and defense of the independence of the nation.

The proposal for the founding of the confederal state is a unique reunification proposal which has delineated the best way to establish a unified state and to achieve the reunification of the country by giving top priority to the question of the nation and on the basis of the idea of the nation.

The great leader's proposal for reunification is also the most realistic and reasonable reunification proposal correctly reflecting the specific conditions of our country.

In our country, the North and South have systems different from one another and are dominated by ideologies different from one another.

Considering precisely this situation, the great leader advanced the proposal for the establishment of a sovereign and neutral unified independent state through the formation of a confederal state by the North and the South, one which will not become a satellite of any other country and will not join any bloc. Thus, he delineated a unique way to successfully achieve the reunification of the fatherland.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's proposal for the founding of the DCRK is the most reasonable, great reunification program which can earn everyone's sympathy for its fairness and correctness.

Advancing the new proposal for the reunification of the fatherland, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song also put forth the 10-point policy to be implemented by the confederal state.

In the 10-point policy of the DCRK, a detailed delineation is given for questions of maintaining firm independence in all activities of the confederal state, of effecting democracy throughout the country and in all spheres of society, of bringing about economic collaboration and exchanges between the North and South, of ensuring uniform progress in science and technology and in national culture, arts and education, of reopening traffic and communications, of seeking promotion of people's welfare, of removing military confrontation and of organizing a combined national army, of seeking protection of national rights and interests of overseas compatriots, and of seeking a neutral and peace-loving foreign policy.

The proposal for the founding of the DCRK and the 10-point policy of the confederal state put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song are the most realistic and reasonable, great program for the achievement of the reunification of the fatherland, the greatest desire of the nation, in conformity with the specific conditions of the country and the aspirations of the nation. They are a fair and patriotic, common proposition of the nation acceptable to all people desirous of reunification and a banner of reunification vigorously encouraging the whole nation to a new struggle for national salvation.

When the DCRK is founded and the fatherland is reunified through the alliance [yonhap] of the North and the South in accordance with the new reunification program of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our country, as a sovereign and independent state with powerful self-reliant economy and brilliant national culture, will make its appearance in the international community with majestic dignity and right and will build a wealthier and more prosperous paradise of the people on its territory. It is for this reason that the proposal for the founding of the DCRK and the 10-point policy, since the day they were announced, have earned active support and sympathy among the compatriots at home and abroad and among the world peoples.

Today, the movement supporting the proposal for the founding of the DCRK is being expanded and intensified on a global scale. Heads of parties, states and governments and personages of the political and social circles of many world countries have already expressed their formal support for the proposal for the DCRK's founding and the signature campaign supporting the proposal has been carried out on a broad and global scale. The number of signatories, as of the last April, reached more than 1.6 billion in some 100 countries.

Indeed, the proposal for the DCRK founding and the 10-point policy put forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song have become a powerful driving force vigorously advancing our people's pannational, patriotic struggle for the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and have become a brilliant beacon uniting in a single force the solidarity movement of the world's progressive peoples supporting our people's struggle for the reunification of the fatherland.

The proposal for the DCRK's founding, which has such great vitality, is the only just program for national salvation and a great charter for the reunification of the fatherland, one which could be put forth only by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the sun of the nation -- who has devoted his life to the freedom and happiness of the people and possesses outstanding wisdom and leadership and endlessly warm love for the people.

Since the first day of the division of the country and the nation by outside force, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has regarded the reunification of the fatherland as the supreme task of the nation, has led us in such a way that we may make everything serve the reunification cause to achieve the sovereignty of the nation, and put forth the most correct lines and policies for the reunification of the fatherland at every stage of the development of the revolution, making all kinds of efforts for their implementation.

All the proposals and policies of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, from the great declaration of patriotism at the historic North-South joint meeting in April 1948 and to the three-principle and five-point policy of the reunification of the fatherland, reflect the respected and beloved leader's great love for the fatherland and the nation and are filled with the unyielding will to end the division of the nation during our generation and to achieve the reunification of the fatherland for the people and for coming generations.

Indeed, the great leader comrade Kim Il-song is the matchless patriot, the great sun of our nation and the lodestar of the fatherland's reunification who is unfolding the chapter of the history for a new turn for reunification and national salvation with the warm love for the fatherland and people and with outstanding and tested leadership. On this significant occasion marking the second anniversary of the announcement of the proposal for the DCRK founding, I respectfully extend greatest honor and warmest gratutide to the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the genius of the revolution, the sun of the nation and the legendary hero -- who has unfolded the brilliant blueprint of the reunified fatherland for our people and is always leading our people wisely along the single road of victory and honor.

Comrades, two years have elapsed since the announcement of the proposal for the DCRK founding by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

During this period, with ardent desire for the reunification of the fatherland, we have made unstinted efforts for the implementation of the proposal for the DCRK founding and took various practical measures.

Shortly after the announcement of the new reunification proposal we proposed the formation of a joint consultative body of the nation such as a preparatory committee for the DCRK founding which will comprise all parties, factions and personages of all strata of the North and the South and the overseas Korean communities. To this end, we made and had steady contacts and dialogue with personages in all strata of the Korean communities abroad. During these contacts, sincere consultations and a joint quest were made for the DCRK founding.

In addition, last year, with the ardent desire to eliminate an obstacle on the road to reunification and to open a new phase for the reunification of the fatherland, we put forth an epochal proposal for the convocation of the congress for promotion of national reunification, which will consist of representatives of the parties and factions of the North and the South and personages of the overseas Korean communities who are truly desirous of the reunification of the country, but will exclude such traitors to the nation as Chon Tu-hwan. And, this year, we proposed the convocation of a 100-man joint conference comprising well-known politicians of the North and the South and the overseas Korean communities.

Moreover, for the promotion of reunification of the country, we have kept the door of dialogue open to the United States, too, and have again and again called for talks between Korea and the United States to settle the question of replacing the armistice agreement with a peace agreement.

As realistic and reasonable ways to the effective settlement of the reunification question of the country in accordance with the desire and demand of the whole nation, such proposals and steps we put forth and took have earned the unanimous support and welcome of the peoples at home and abroad.

Nevertheless, despite our sincere efforts, due progress has not been made in solving the question of national reunification and the barrier of the division of the nation has been further reinforced. This is entirely due to the aggressive policy of the U.S. imperialists and their schemes for two Koreas.

Maintaining South Korea as their permanent colony by dividing Korea in two and perpetuating the division is the unjust stand which the U.S. imperialists invariably seek.

Embarrassed by the mass advance of the South Korean people who, in the days following the 26 October incident, called for a divorce from the accursed Yusin system, for new politics and a new system, and embarrassed by the daily-growing spirit aspiring for reunification, the U.S. imperialists intervened more nakedly in the developments of South Korea in order to keep their fascist colonial rule floating in the face of an imminent collapse.

To put back together again the colonial ruling system that was falling apart, they chose as a shock brigade the military hooligan Chon Tu-hwan, whom they had trained as a faithful watchdog for 20 years. Having the military rascal Chon Tu-hwan control power within the military and with martial law expanded all over South Korea by staging the 17 May violence, the U.S. imperialists instigated the military rascal Chon Tu-hwan to make arrests of a vast number of political, social, academic and religious personages and organizers of student movements and eradicate and obliterate all the patriotic forces deemed to be hindering their colonial rule.

Thus, dark clouds of fascism and division again covered heavily over the land of South Korea -- which for a while saw the dawn of democracy and reunification -- and another Yusin system, a tyrannical and ruthless fascist military colonial ruling system, began to revive.

The criminal maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists who challenged the strong aspiration of the Korean people for independence, democracy and reunification have been exposed even more clearly in the brutal suppression of the Kwangju popular uprising.

It is widely known to the whole world that the U.S. imperialisats, while yelling for the fascist military Chon Tu-hwan clique to suppress with iron fists the Kwangju citizens who poured out into the streets to stage a national salvation struggle of resistance under the loftily raised banner of democracy and reunification, took the lead in the unprecedented massacre operation by supplying the clique with a vast number of military forces and even covering the puppets with AWACS and ships dispatched from the continental United States.

The U.S. imperialists, who dipped Kwangju in a sea of blood and turned the whole land of South Korea into a colonial and military prison, established a more tyrannical fascist military regime on the grave of democracy and committed an unpardonable criminal act of placing the pro-U.S. stooge, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, at the top of the regime.

As soon as it took office, the present U.S. ruling class summoned the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan to the White House, repealed the troop withdrawal plan and put the puppet on the road of fabricating two Koreas by handing over to the puppet a splittist plan -- the counterplot of the proposal for the founding of the Democractic Confederal Republic of Koryo while reaffirming the so-called commitment pledged to South Korea.

The proposal for mutual visits, general elections, the so-called provisional agreement or the pilot projects that the puppets stick to are all scenarios provided by the U.S. imperialists and are nothing but shields to thwart the great attraction and vitality of the proposal for founding the DCRK.

The splittist nature of the U.S. imperialists is also proven in their reiteration of the theory on admission into the United Nations and the theory on cross recognition.

The present U.S. ruling class, while persistently pursuing two Koreas policy, is clinging to a policy of strength which is incompatible with peace and the peaceful reunification of Korea.

To achieve their ambition of aggression into Korea, the U.S. imperialists are reinforcing U.S. military forces occupying South Korea and military equipment on a large scale. Not satisfied with hundreds of nuclear weapons already deployed in South Korea, they are hatching a plot to ship into South Korea neutron bombs and even theater nuclear missiles and turning South Korea into a powderkeg for a new war and a nuclear base, straining our country's situation to an extreme by frequently staging commotions of military exercises, including Team Spirit 1982.

Because of the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique's treacherous and sellout acts, the U.S. imperialist policy of aggression and splittist maneuvers are becoming more serious. The traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, which came to power under the protection of those masters, while serving the U.S. imperialists more faithfully than any other puppet in the past, is strengthening the policy of subjugating South Korea to the United States to a higher degree than ever before.

Holding in still higher esteem the U.S. imperialists -- the chieftain who wrought division of Korea and aggression into Korea -- as its ally and protector of peace, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique continues to beg for the permanent presence of U.S. troops of aggression in South Korea and for military assistance. It is not even hesitating to sell the national sovereignty of the South Korean people to outside forces, while trying to turn South Korea into a permanent colony of the U.S. imperialists.

While strengthening the policy of moving closer to Japan along with its policy of depending on the United States, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique is deepening political, economic and military collusion with the Japanese reactionaries, begging for more assistance from the Japanese reactionaries in order to increase its military potentials.

The traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique is fawning and subordinating itself to the brigandish assertions of the Japanese reactionaries over the revision of textbooks containing distortions of the history of aggression against Korea and their dark ambition of reinvasion, while offering South Korea to them with stronger insistence.

Maintaining his personal power by currying the favor of outside aggressive forces, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique is now strengthening its fascist suppressive policy of strangling democracy and reunification on the strength of bayonets given to it by outside aggressive forces. Fabricating fascist evil laws en masse, evil laws unprecedented in the annals of legislation, the Chon Tu-hwan clique enforces its rule through intelligence activities and imprisonments, mobilizing a vast net of suppressive organizations.

In South Korea, which has been turned into the most tragic living hell of the late 20th century because of the bestial rule by the U.S. imperialists and their stooge, the Chon Tu-hwan clique, freedom for discussing reunification has been eliminated, the reunification movement has been blocked and those involved in it have been subjected to harsh punishment.

The suppressive acts committed against the democratic personage Kim Tae-chung, who advocated democracy and peaceful reunification, and the violence inflicted on the patriotic students, people and religionists who raised the banner of anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation for independence and peaceful reunification of the country nakedly expose the tyrannical and cruel character of the fascist colonial rule being practiced in South Korea. While castrating and obliterating forces that aspire for reunification with its fascist dictatorship, the puppets are strengthening the unprecedented and criminal anticommunist and war policies as never before.

Slandering the proposal for founding the DCRK as a strategy for communizing the South or as a united front strategy, the puppets are ceaselessly staging anticommunist propaganda. While reinforcing military forces and accelerating modernization in the puppet army under the pretext of the nonexistent threat of southward invasion, the puppets are commandeering all the manpower and material resources available in South Korea in execution of the U.S. imperialists' aggression and war policy.

By mobilizing all the pro-government propaganda means, the South Korean puppets are ceaselessly conducting anticommunist education and anticommunist functions, encouraging discord and feuds among the people and fanning confrontational sentiment and antagonistic consciousness.

Today, the South Korean puppets, shouting about the theory of permanent division -- the theory of achieving reunification in the 2000's -- are even making an ugly scene by touring foreign countries begging support for the splittist plot provided by its masters.

All facts show that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a group of traitors who are selling out national dignity and sovereignty to outside forces and that the South Korean puppet regime is a colonial ruling instrument serving the U.S. imperialists' aggressive two Koreas policy. It is, therefore, natural for the world's peoples to brand the puppet South Korean regime as a traitorous, splittist regime and to raise their voices denouncing and cursing traitorous Chon Tu-hwan, the chieftain of the regime.

Although the Chon Tu-hwan ring, which is protected by U.S. bayonets, is trying to cover up its sad nature as a puppet colonial stooge and justify the U.S. imperialist colonial rule by unseemingly prattling about independence, sovereignty or anti-imperialism, it will never be able to cover up its dirty nature as a colonial puppet and a traitor who is devoted to a national sell-out and treachery, no matter what cajoling, coaxing or camouflaging it may try. It cannot shirk its criminal responsibility for perpetuating national division and blocking national reunification by teaming up with outside forces.

With surging resentment, I bitterly denounce the U.S. imperialist aggressors for hindering Korea's reunification while continuing a colonial policy for controlling South Korea by sitting astride half of our country and the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique, patronized by them for seeking treacheries, division, fascism and war. The policy of aggression and maneuvers for division sought by the U.S. imperialists by maintaining the fascist military dictatorship has greatly enraged the South Korean people and caused them to resist and has further deepened the crisis the radicals are facing in maintaining their colonial fascist rule.

Firmly believing, through experiences in their daily life, that the only way to end the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and to restore the sovereignty of the people is a patriotic one for achieving independence and the country's reunification, the South Korean people have more vigorously fanned the flames of anti-U.S. and independence struggle this year.

Rising in the vigorous anti-U.S. struggle, touched off by the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan this March and holding aloft an anti-U.S. banner of independence in the forests of bayonets and under unprecedented colonial fascist rule, which threatens imprisonment and decapitation, the South Korean students are vigorously advancing to achieve democracy and reunification. Enraged by the Japanese reactionaries' intolerable distortion of historical facts in school textbooks this September and by the traitor Chon Tu-hwan's humiliating attitude toward this, demonstrating students of Koryo University have turned the struggle into the torch of a new anti-U.S. struggle that has fiercely spread throughout South Korea.

Availing myself of this occasion and speaking on behalf of all the people of the northern half of the republic, I send warm greetings of fellowship, support and encouragement to the South Korean people and students who are unyieldingly struggling to banish the U.S. imperialists from South Korea, to end the cursed colonial fascist rule and to achieve independence, democracy and reunification.

Comrades, today our people are assigned the pressing task of reunifying the divided fatherland by quickly implementing the proposal for founding the DCRK and of achieving the nationwide sovereignty of the people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Upholding the new proposal on the fatherland's reunification set forth at the sixth congress of our party, the entire Korean working class and the people of all walks of life should unanimously rise in the sacred struggle to reunify the fatherland by founding the DCRK.

To implement the new proposal for founding the DCRK delineated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, we should above all force the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea and should end the U.S. imperialists' interference in the internal affairs of Korea. Without removing the U.S. imperialists' aggressive forces from South Korea, we cannot achieve the sovereignty of the people. Nor can we achieve the democratization of South Korean society and the cause for the country's peaceful reunification.

Raising the anti-U.S. banner of independence higher, the South Korean people of all walks of life should resolutely rise in the sacred struggle to force the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces to withdraw from South Korea and to end their colonial rule there. The U.S. imperialist aggressors must renounce their aggressive policy of occupying South Korea, must stop pursuing the criminal two-Koreas policy and must immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along their aggressive troops and lethal weapons, including nuclear weapons.

To implement the proposal for founding the DCRK, we should eliminate the Chon Tu-hwan ring, which is seeking treacheries, fascism, division and confrontation as an executor of the U.S. imperialists' colonial policy of controlling South Korea.

Discussing the reunification question with such a traitor and splittist as Chon-Tu-hwan constitutes patronizing traitors -- stooges of the U.S. imperialists -- flouting the cause for the fatherland's reunification, an important issue of the people, and constitutes betraying all the people who desire reunification.

We once again propose to convene at the earliest possible day a conference for the promotion of national reunification with the participation of representatives of all parties, groups and overseas compatriots, who seek reunification, and with the elimination of the Chon Tu-hwan ring and a 100-man joint meeting with the participation of renowned politicians at home and abroad.

The South Korean people should more strenuously struggle to frustrate the treacherous Chon Tu-hwan clique's criminal maneuvers to perpetuate national division and fulfill its wild desire for long-term power, patronized by the U.S. imperialists, to overthrow the rascals' treacherous regime and to achieve the democratization of South Korean society.

To reunify the fatherland by founding the DCRK, we should achieve the grand unity of all the people. All Korean compatriots in the North, South and overseas should positively rise in the pannational struggle to implement the proposal for founding the DCRK by firmly uniting around the great united national front under the banner of national reunification by transcending differences in ideas, systems, factions and political views.

In seeking the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification by founding the DCRK, the people of the northern half of the republic are assigned a really worthwhile and glorious revolutionary duty.

Upholding the magnificent program set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the Sixth KWP Congress, his policy speech at the joint meeting of the KWP Central Committee and the DPRK Supreme People's Assembly and programmatic teachings at the historic Hamhung plenary meeting of the party Central Committee, we should positively accelerate the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea and should more vigorously forge ahead with the three revolutions -- idological, technical and cultural.

We should bring about a new leap and perform an innovation in socialist construction by more firmly preparing ourselves as chuche-type communist revolutionaries who are boundlessly loyal to the great leader and the party center and by closely combining the struggle to create the speed of the 1980's in all sectors and units of the people's economy with the movement to win the red flag of the three revolutions and to follow the example set by the unheralded heroes.

By rising as one to implement the decision of the historic Hamhung Plenary Meeting of the KWP Central Committee, all workers should achieve the goal of 1.5 million tons of nonferrous metals and should vigorously carry out the revolutions of press and stamp forging, welding and insulators in the machine industry sector.

The future path of the Korean people strenuously advancing along a single road toward independent reunification, upholding the program for reunification delineated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and guided by the glorious party center promises only victory and glory.

Let us all firmly unite around the great leader and the glorious party center and more vigorously struggle to achieve the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification and the complete victory of socialism and to accomplish the chuche cause.

SIHANOUK'S REMARKS AT UN GENERAL ASSEMBLY SCORED

[Text] Phnom Penh, 9 Oct (SPK) -- On 30 September, in the name of the murderers of more than 3 million Kampucheans, Sihanouk changed the nature of reality in Kampuchea at the 37th UN General Assembly session, a session aimed at dislocating the Kampuchea-Vietnam solidarity — the determining factor in the Kampuchean revolution's victory -- and peace and stability in Southeast Asia,remarked KAMPUCHEA in a commentary.

It is ridiculous that the criminals of genocide and their accomplices sympathize with the misfortunes of their victims and that they wish to look after their destiny. The immense sacrifices made by the fraternal Kampuchean and Vietnamese peoples in their common struggle against the French colonialists and U.S. imperialists were sold out at a cheap price by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique.

Sihanouk himself acknowledged that Pol Pot's atrocities touched all Kampuchean people as well as his relatives. However, because of his ambition for power, Sihanouk turns his back on reality and ends up by pleading in favor of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan hangmen and by qualifying them as "patriots." Sihanouk betrays the interests of the Kampuchean people. The rebirth of this people in the PRK denies all Sihanouk's remarks.

The so-called "coalition government," of which Sihanouk is president, is only an old corpse wrapped in a new shroud. His remarks are only those of a ghost.

The Kampuchean people refute all Sihanouk's remarks because he is not entitled to represent the 6 million Kampucheans rescued from genocide. The legal and authentic government of the People's Republic of Kampuchea is the only one entitled to represent the Kampuchean people in all conferences which decide the destiny of the Kampuchean people.

The presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea is in response to the wishes of the Kampuchean people, who are busy reconstructing their country, and conforms with the treaty of peace, friendship and cooperation concluded on 18 January 1979 between Kampuchea and Vietnam -- two independent and sovereign states. This presence is aimed at opposing the Chinese threat. Animated by the spirit of proletarian internationalist solidarity and for the genuine socialist revolution, distinguished sons of Vietnam have endured sacrifices and hardships and are fighting alongside our people and our army against the enemy of the Kampuchean revolution, facilitating the building of socialism in Kampuchea.

More than ever, the Kampuchean people and army are determined to do everything possible to safeguard the Kampuchea-Vietnam militant solidarity and to struggle with the countries of the socialist community, for which the Soviet Union provides the structure, and with peace-loving peoples of the world for the common objectives of peace, independence and social progress.

KAMPUCHEA COMMENTARY ON DIALOGUE WITH ASEAN

[Text] Phnom Penh, 10 Oct (SPK) -- The Beijing-Washington collusion aimed at sabotaging the revolution of the three Indochinese countries in general and the rebirth of the Kampuchean people in particular has increased tension in Southeast Asia, the newspaper KAMPUCHEA affirmed in a commentary.

The three Indochinese countries, the newspaper said, always pursuing a genuine foreign policy of peace, justice and stability, have on many occasions proposed starting a dialogue to ASEAN in order to find a political solution acceptable to both sides and without any external interference. It is regrettable that the ASEAN countries, and particularly Thailand, have not responded to this proposal with a positive gesture.

For more than 3 years, Beijing has openly opposed, through the Pol Pot gang, the trend toward an Indochina-ASEAN dialogue and the rebirth of Kampuchea. With large numbers of troops stationed along the border, Beijing puts pressure on Vietnam and Laos and maintains Khmer, Vietnamese and Lao reactionaries to carry out intervention, subversion and sabotage activities against the three Indochinese countries.

Under pressure from the Beijing expansionists, ASEAN demands the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea while Thailand, which actually gives refuge to Pol Pot remnants and other reactionary Khmers, ballyhoos that the presence of Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea constitutes a threat to the security of Thailand.

In 1980, the PRK proposed to Thailand creating a demilitarized zone along the common border. Recently, the three Indochinese countries at the sixth conference of their foreign ministers proposed creating on both sides of the Kampuchean-Thai border a safety zone where there would only be the armed forces of the PRK in Kampuchean territory and the armed forces of Thailand in Thai territory.

The PRK and the SRV took the first step by unilaterally deciding to partially withdraw Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea and would proceed toward additional withdrawals if Thailand would manifest a good gesture toward our good will.

The problems of Southeast Asia must first be settled by the countries of the region.

The holding of an international conference by ASEAN under the patronage of the United Nations was a failure as it did not include the participation of Kampuchea. Wishing to promote the trend toward dialogue, the three Indochinese countries proposed convening a regional conference attended by the five ASEAN countries, the three Indochinese countries, Burma, the Soviet Union, the United States, China, France, Britain and India. The participants, site, agenda and date of the conference would be decided upon by the countries concerned: the ASEAN and Indochinese countries.

Reckoning that the question of peace and stability in Southeast Asia is urgent and that it must be settled as soon as possible, the three Indochinese countries propose that an international conference on Southeast Asia be started in the fourth quarter of 1982 or in the beginning of 1983. The negotiation or dialogue would proceed on the basis of equality and the principles of mutual respect for interests and of common agreement, without external interference or pressure.

The three Indochinese countries always pursue a policy of peace and maintain their position of turning Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and stability, contributing to the promotion of international detente.

PRK OFFICIAL COMMENTS ON DI LAMTHOL'S BACKGROUND

BK081532 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1443 GMT 8 Oct 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 8 Oct (SPK) -- Ruos Kong, deputy director of the U.S.-West Europe Department of the PRK Ministry of Foreign Affairs, told SPK that Di Lamthol, who defected to Thailand, was a civil servant that the minister had dismissed a long time ago for immoral conduct.

Ruos Kong made it clear that Di Lamthol fled to Thailand with his lover, leaving his wife and children behind. Statements from such a person are unreliable. He is a man of no value who brought nothing good to the Kampuchean revolution, stressed Ruos Kong.

SIHANOUK, SON SANN MEET BUSH IN WASHINGTON

[Text] Washington, Oct. 8 (AFP) -- Cambodian resistance leaders Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Son Sann talked with Vice-President George Bush here today, but did not ask for U.S. military aid. They assured him that the three-party coalition government they have formed with the Khmer Rouge "is there to stay," Mr. Son Sann said at a press conference.

He confirmed that Washington intended to limit its aid to humanitarian relief and diplomatic support. Mr Son Sann commented: "I know the United States is not ready to give us military aid; that's why we have not specifically asked for it." However, he added: "I will go to Beijing in November, but not to ask for humanitarian aid."

He acknowledged that many Cambodians preferred continued Vietnamese occupation to a return of the (bloody) Khmer Rouge regime. But they were reassured now that the Khmer Rouge were merely one of three forces represented by the anti-Vietnamese coalition government of which he is premier, he said: "Now there is a guarantee (the coalition) acceptable to them" (the people).

Mr. Son Sann explained that he and Prince Sihanouk agreed to form a coalition with the Khmer Rouge despite their differences because "time was not working in our favor." The intensive Vietnamization of Cambodia risked leading to swift disappearance of the Khmer people.

He told newsmen a possible reconciliation between Beijing and Moscow "would not be a good thing for us." But he expressed confidence that the current Soviet-Chinese talks in Beijing would not improve relations and thereby threaten to end China's support for his anti-Vietnamese coalition.

Visit Concludes 8 Oct

[Text] On the morning of 8 October, our party and state delegation visited the Trebukhovskiy state farm in Kiev province.

Numerous farm cadres, workers and employees and children, dressed in their best with flags and bouquets of flowers in their hands, gathered in front of the gate of the farm's office to greet the delegation. In keeping with the national tradition of welcoming a distinguished guest, a female farm worker, clad in her beautiful national costume, raised a plate with both hands to offer bread and salt to Comrade Truong Chinh and other members of the delegation.

Present at the farm on the Soviet side to welcome the delegation were Comrades Vatchenko, Gilashvili, Yelchenko, Smirnovskiy, Chaplin, Merkurov and Boychenko. Also on hand were Comrades Tsybulko, first secretary of the Kiev Oblast Party Committee, and Lysenko, chairman of the Soviet Executive Committee and representative of the people of Kiev Oblast.

Trebukhovskiy State Farm Chairman (Rubka) informed Comrade Truong Chinh of the situation and development of his farm. Trebukhovskiy is a famous state farm in the food belt of Kiev City. It boasts many production branches including livestock raising and crop growing and processing. In particular, it specializes in breeding milch cows and many animal husbandry establishments. Its 1,300 workers cultivate an area of 6,000 hectares, raise 7,000 head of cattle, and produce 3,000 heifers yearly.

Over the past 15 years, the living standards of farm workers have been markedly enhanced due to improvement in housing, welfare, cultural and medical services.

Comrade (Rubka) also expressed the warm sentiments of his farm members as well as of all the Soviet people vis-a-vis our people in the struggle against aggression and in the building of a new life.

Chairman Truong Chinh meticulously inquired about the economic situation and living conditions at the farm and hailed its achievements in implementing the state plans and food programs laid down by the CPSU. He wished the cadres and workers of Trebukhovskiy new successes in carrying out these glorious tasks.

The Vietnamese party and state delegation also toured a number of cultural, educational and animal husbandry establishments of the farm.

That evening, the Communist Party Central Committee, the Supreme Soviet Presidium and the Government of the Ukraine gave a grand reception in honor of the delegation. Present on the Soviet side were Comrades Shcherbitskiy, Vatchenko, Lyasko and Gilashvili, and many Politburo members and secretaries of the Ukrainian Communist Party Central Committee, ministers and numerous other leaders of the Soviet Union and Ukraine.

During the reception, Comrade Vatchenko delivered a toast, and Chairman Truong Chinh made a reply.

In his toast, Comrade Vatchenko said: Your visit to the Soviet Union and the successful Soviet-Vietnamese talks in Moscow coincided with major anniversaries of our national history. Yesterday, the Soviets marked Constitution Day. They are now actively preparing to celebrate the 65th anniversary of the Great October Revolution and the 60th founding anniversary of the Soviet Union. Together with the rest of the nation, the working people of the Ukrainian Soviet Republic are celebrating these major anniversaries by scoring achievements in their labor aimed at fulfilling the resolution of the 26th CPSU Congress and the 11th 5-Year Plan.

You have had the opportunity to see this through your meetings with the comrade leaders of the republic and the city, and during your contacts with the Soviet people in heroic Kiev City and Kiev province. I hope that you have also perceived the sincere sentiments, the profound respect and the sympathy of our people for the heroic people of Vietnam, a nation which, after long years of struggle against aggression, is now building a new life under difficult conditions.

Comrade Vatchenko went on: One of the tokens of these sentiments has been the conferring on you the title of honorary citizen of heroic Kiev City and the commemorative medal of the 1,500th anniversary of Kiev City.

We sincerely rejoice at the fact that, thanks to the success of the August revolution, the first worker-peasant state in Southeast Asia was founded 37 years ago under the leadership of a heroic Communist Party and that, overcoming all difficulties, it is recording new achievements in the cause of socialist construction.

We are also very pleased to note that the peoples of the homelands of Lenin and Ho Chi Minh have always stood side by side, and that the two peoples are bound to each other by their common objective and lasting friendship, which has been tempered in the difficult years of Vietnam's struggle against imperialist aggression and tested in the defense of socialism and peaceful construction.

This friendship has been consolidated and developed on the strong foundations of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism, based on the USSR-SRV Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation.

This friendship has always been manifested in the close contact between the two parties, in the regular meetings between Comrades Brezhnev and Le Duan, and in the visit of our party and state delegations. This friendship serves the cause of peace and social progress.

The working people of our republic take pride in the fact that the Ukrainian Republic has also made notable contributions to Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation.

Today, at a time when warmongering imperialist forces, especially U.S. imperialism, are intensifying the arms race, creating dangerous hotbeds of conflict in many places around the world, and proclaiming a crusade against socialism, it is extremely important that all peace-loving forces act in unison. We are very happy to note that Vietnam has closely cooperated with the countries of the socialist community and has actively supported the external political initiatives of the Soviet Union aimed at checking the arms race, preventing a nuclear war and ensuring the legitimate interests of all freedom-loving nations. Vietnam's role in the international arena has been increasingly strengthened. Together with Laos and Kampuchea, Vietnam has consistently striven to make Southeast Asia a zone of peace, stability and cooperation.

The people of Ukraine and the rest of the nation are pleased to note that your talks in Moscow proceeded in an atmosphere of fraternity and unity and that unanimity was achieved on all problems discussed. Our people are prepared to continue their contribution to the cause of consolidating Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation.

In his reply, Comrade Truong Chinh said: We greatly rejoice at the brilliant result of our delegation's current visit to the Soviet Union. Our talks with Comrade Brezhnev and other Soviet party and state leaders have reflected the complete unanimity of our two parties and states. The result of this visit will surely contribute to strengthening the great friendship and all-round cooperation between Vietnam and the Soviet Union, two fraternal countries. We were deeply moved by Comrade Brezhnev's statement when he said: We know very well that nothing can shake the will of the peoples of Vietnam , Laos and Kampuchea to build a new life. They have loyal and reliable friends on their side, among them our Leninist party and our Soviet state.

We are very pleased to be able to visit the beautiful Ukrainian Republic in the year of celebrations of the 65th anniversary of the Great October Revolution and the 60th anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Union, of which Ukraine was one of the advocates, and to visit heroic Kiev City on the occasion of its 1,500th anniversary. Standing side by side with the Russian people and other peoples in the old Czarist empire, the Ukrainian people, under the inspired leadership of great Lenin and the glorious Bolshevik Party, carried out the first proletarian revolution ever, thereby ushering in the era of success of socialism the world over.

We would like to express our profound admiration for the heroic Ukrainian people who fought tenaciously and achieved fabulous feats of arms of national defense. Thanks to the selfless labor of the Ukrainian people and their close cooperation with the other fraternal peoples in the Soviet Union, today the Ukraine has become a socialist republic with modern industry, a highly mechanized agriculture, and developed culture and science.

The incessant growth of the Ukrainian Republic is a real reflection of the correct Leninist policy of nationality, a policy which not only has a historic significance to the development of the peoples within the Soviet Union but which also sets a shining example for other peoples in the resolution of the problem of nationalities.

From the bottom of our hearts, we wish the people of the Ukraine, under the leadership of the Ukrainian Communist Party headed by esteemed Comrade Shcherbitskiy, many achievements in implementing the resolution of the 26th CPSU Congress so as to bring greater prosperity to their homeland and to make worthy contributions to the cause of socialist construction in the Soviet Union, the pillar of the socialist community and the bastion of world peace and revolution.

Chairman Truong Chinh added: Following the path of Marxism-Leninism and under the leadership of the Communist Party founded and trained by Comrade Ho Chi Minh, the people of Vietnam have scored historic victories. We defeated the wars of aggression waged by the French colonialists, the U.S. imperialists and the reactionaries among the Beijing leadership, have firmly defended our national independence and sovereignty, and have built a new life style while making worthy contributions to the cause of peace and revolution of the world peoples.

Today, our entire party and people are strenuously striving to successfully implement the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress so as to successfully build socialism and firmly defend our fatherland.

Every success of the Vietnamese revolution has been closely linked with the strong support and the great and highly effective assistance of the Soviet people, including the Ukrainian people.

Although our two countries are situated tens of thousands of miles from each other, similar historical circumstances have bound the peoples of Vietnam and Ukraine together. In 1918, Vietnamese sailor Ton Duc Thang, who later became president of the SRV, raised a red flag on a French warship docked at Odessa to show support for the Soviet administration. The book "Secret Provincial Party Committee," by famed Ukrainian guerrilla fighter Fedorov, was translated into Vietnamese by Comrade Ho Chi Minh and became the bedside book of many of our cadres and combatants during the war of resistance against French colonialism.

The Ukrainian Republic has made great contributions to the cause of assistance to and cooperation with Vietnam. The port of Odessa, a heroic city of the Ukraine, is a friendly bridgehead linking the Black Sea with various Vietnamese ports. Thousands of young Vietnamese men and women have studied and worked in many Ukrainian cities under the wholehearted care and tutor of their teachers, who consider them as their own children.

On behalf of the Communist Party, the state and the people of Vietnam, I would like to convey to the Communist Party, the state and the people of the fraternal Soviet Union and to the people of the Ukraine our sincerest and most profound gratitude for their sentiments of proletarian internationalism toward the Vietnamese people.

Once again I sincerely thank you for giving me the honor of being a honorary citizen of Kiev and the commemorative medal of the 1,500th anniversary of this heroic city.

The reception took place in an atmosphere permeated with friendship and fraternity.

After touring Kiev, our party and state delegation concluded its extremely successful visit to the Soviet Union.

[NHAN DAN 9 October editorial: "The Strong Vitality of Vietnam-USSR Friendship"]

[Text] Our party-state delegation's official friendship visit to the Soviet Union has concluded successfully. The CPSU Central Committee, the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet and the fraternal Soviet people accorded a warm and cordial welcome to the delegation.

The Vietnam-USSR joint communique points out: In an atmosphere filled with fraternal friendship and with the total unanimity of views achieved frankly on the basis of comradeship, the two sides have discussed various matters regarding the further development of Vietnamese-Soviet relations, the strengthening of all-round cooperation between the VCP and the CPSU and between the SRV and the USSR and current affairs issues dictated by the international situation.

This visit of the Vietnamese party-state delegation led by Comrade Truong Chinh, member of the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the SRV Council of State, and the many meetings and talks held recently have contributed greatly to consolidating the friendship and the fraternal cooperation between the VCP and the CPSU and the fine all-round cooperation between the two countries.

Comrade Truong Chinh and Comrade Brezhnev noted with great satisfaction that relations between the two countries are developing vigorously toward serving the two peoples' basic interests -- namely, the cause of peace, socialism and progress. Both sides emphasized the role and the great significance of the Vietnamese-Soviet Treaty of Friendship and Cooperation. The signing of this treaty has promoted better all-round relations between the two fraternal countries.

This high-level Vietnam-USSR meeting in early October once again strongly affirmed the two countries' stand and common designs concerning urgent international issues, especially the struggle for the protection of peace against the nuclear arms race. Vietnam and the Soviet Union expressed their support for the further strengthening of the cooperation between Vietnam, the Soviet Union and other socialist countries in the world arena and stressed that unanimity and unity among the socialist countries are the most important factors for maintaining world peace.

Our party, government and people totally support all the initiatives of the Soviet party and government as part of their peace program for the 1980's. This peace program calls for the maintenance and consolidation of world peace, halt of the arms race and the adoption of practical measures to achieve disarmament. Our party, government and people especially support the historic action taken by the Soviet Union when it pledged not to be the first to use nuclear weapons.

The Soviet Union has highly regarded the SRV's contributions to the struggle against the imperialist, hegemonist and reactionary forces for the consolidation of peace and security of various nations.

Vietnam and the Soviet Union have attributed the continuing tension in Southeast Asia to the policies now pursued by the hegemonist and imperialist forces against Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea.

The Soviet Union has expressed its total support for the three Indochinese countries' struggle to foil all the maneuvers of these forces and for the peace initiatives of the three Indochinese countries aimed at improving relations with their neighboring countries, promoting a dialogue between the Indochinese countries and the ASEAN states, normalizing the situation and turning Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and stability.

The Soviet Union has hailed the increasingly improved friendship and fraternal unity between the SRV, the LPDR and the PRK, regarding the unanimity and close unity among the Indochinese peoples as an important factor for peace in this part of Asia.

The fine success of our party-state delegation's visit clearly attests to the strong vitality and the great effect of the Vietnamese-Soviet friendship, which has its roots deep in history and which is endowed with long-standing traditions.

The unshakable Vietnamese-Soviet friendship, as Comrade Brezhnev put it, represents the solidarity which has been tested both in the defense of socialism and in the cause of creative and peaceful labor.

Soviet-Vietnamese cooperation has encompassed all domains -- welfare, political and economic. The prospect of this cooperation is immense.

We are deeply moved by the warm sentiments expressed by representatives of the Soviet people of various strata to our party-state delegation and by the fact that Comrade Brezhnev, on behalf of the Soviet party and people, highly valued Vietnam's struggle for national independence and freedom. He expressed his firm confidence in Vietnam's unshakable determination to achieve its goals of building the material and technical bases of socialism, stabilizing and gradually improving the people's lives and strengthening national defense as advocated by the Fifth VCP Congress.

We are grateful to the CPSU and to the Soviet state and people for having reaffirmed their determination to increase their support and assistance for and cooperation with our country.

On behalf of the VCP Central Committee, the Council of State and the people of Vietnam, our party-state delegation has expressed the warm sentiments of our people to the Soviet Union.

Through our party-state delegation, our people have shown their profound admiration for and firm confidence in the land of Lenin and the October Revolution. Comrade Truong Chinh has said: No ploy to slander or distort can erase the great contributions to peace, national independence and social progress made by the Soviet Union under the leadership of the glorious CPSU headed by the esteemed Comrade Brezhnev -- a contemporary Marxist-Leninist, the well-deserved successor to Lenin's everlasting cause and a fighter known for his untiring struggle for world peace and friendship among nations.

The Vietnamese people are really very happy with the Soviet Union's successes in carrying out its great economic and social development tasks set forth by the 26th CPSU Congress and ensuing CPSU Central Committee plenums with the aim of constantly increasing the material and technical bases of communism, improving the people's livelihood and making the Soviet Union -- the first socialist state in the world, the mainstay of peace and the firm supporter of the world's revolution -- even more powerful.

The fine success of our party-state delegation's visit has created more prospects for further developing the effect of all-round cooperation on the basis of the Vietnam-USSR treaty of friendship and cooperation. This is a great encouragement for our people.

We are determined to do our utmost to constantly consolidate and develop the valuable friendship between Vietnam and the Soviet Union, regarding it as a factor in ensuring the success of the Vietnamese revolution for the benefit of our people's happiness and for the sake of peace, stability and security in Indochina, Southeast Asia and the rest of the world.

SRV DELEGATE HOANG BICH SON ADDRESSES UN 6 OCT

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, October 7 -- The "global counter-attack" mounted by the United States against peace and independence runs counter to the aspirations of billions of people, said the Vietnamese delegate to the United Nations yesterday. The delegate -- Deputy Foreign Minister Hoang Bich Son -- also pointed out that the same forces which had caused world tension had been threatening peace and stability in Southeast Asia. Hoang Bich Son said:

"To extricate itself from the prolonged economic recession and to cope with the growth of the forces of peace, democracy, national independence and social progress in an attempt to continue to impose its will on other peoples, during the past three years the United States -- in collusion with other reactionary forces -- has launched a global counter-attack against the independence and sovereignty of peoples and against world peace. It has stepped up the arms race to an unprecedented level in its quest for military supremacy. Billions of dollars have been spent on the production of weapons of mass destruction, including the neutron bomb. It has decided to deploy medium-range missiles in Western Europe, shamelessly proclaimed the 'limited nuclear war' doctrine, introduced the 'Rapid Deployment Force' into the region of the Persian Gulf, reinforced its naval fleet in the Caribbean Sea, and built new military bases in the Indian Ocean, with a view to preparing for aggressions and interventions in all countries, thus creating new hotbeds of tension in various regions of the globe.

"This adventurist and bellicose policy constitutes an extremely grave threat to world peace and international security and runs counter to the aspirations of billions of people in the world. The collusion between the ring-leader of imperialism and the international reactionary forces is a cause of tension and explosive situations. More than ever before, the struggle for world peace and international security has become an urgent and primary task of all peoples... The combination of the efforts and the coordination of the struggles by the socialist countries, the non-aligned countries, and the forces of peace and democracy in the Western countries have great possibilities of removing the danger of a nuclear war and staying the bellicose and aggressive policy of the imperialists and international reactionaries.

"Having undergone 35 consecutive years of war while the rest of the world was enjoying the longest period of peace in this century, the Vietnamese people are profoundly conscious of the significance of peace. Together with all peace-loving forces on this planet, our people have waged and are waging an untiring struggle for national independence, foiling one after another all schemes of imperialism and international reaction aimed at turning Southeast Asia into a hotbed of a new world war. In the past several months alone, 15 million Vietnamese have participated in demonstrations, briefings and seminars and have signed petitions in response to a nationwide campaign for peace and disarmament. We fully support the peace and disarmament initiatives put forward by the socialist and non-aligned countries. In particular, we highly appreciate the unilateral commitment of the Soviet Union not to be the first to use nuclear weapons, and consider this a gesture of historical importance. If, like the Soviet Union, all nuclear powers, first of all the United States, make similar commitments, the possibility of repelling the danger of a devastating nuclear war will immediately become a reality, even at a time when the major powers have not yet reached an agreement on disarmament. The new proposals of the Soviet Union, set forth by Foreign Minister A. Gromyko before the General Assembly on October 1, once again proved that the Soviet Union spares no effort to prevent war and defend world peace. We give full backing to the initiative of the Soviet Union and the U.N. secretary general to convene a conference of member countries of the Security Council at the highest possible level to find a solution to questions relating to world peace and international security.

"As an Asian country bordering the Pacific Ocean and the Indian Ocean, Vietnam warmly welcomes the initiatives of India and other nonaligned countries aimed at turning the Indian Ocean into a zone of peace. Likewise, we firmly support the initiative of the Mongolian People's Republic on the signing of a convention of non-aggression, and non-use of force in relations among countries in Asia and the Pacific.

"The accomplishment of these initiatives consititutes an effective contribution to world peace and international security".

Hoang Bich Son angrily condemned the crimes perpetrated by Israeli Zionism against the peoples of Palestine and Lebanon, particularly the massacre of thousands of Palestinian civilians in west Beirut. He said: "People of conscience can in no way remain indifferent in the face of the abominable crimes perpetrated by the Israeli aggressors against the innocent civilian populations of Lebanon and Palestine. The atrocious massacres in Lebanon are reminiscent of the crimes committed by the Hitlerite fascists during the Second World War, by the American aggressors in My Lai during the Vietnam war, and by the Pol Pot clique in Kampuchea. So long as murderers of the type of Hitler and Pol Pot in the Middle East remain unpunished, such slaughters as those taking place in Lebanon will not be the final crimes against humanity. The Government of the United States cannot clear itself of the crimes of aggression and genocide of the Israeli Zionists".

Hoang Bich Son continued by voicing support for the struggle of the peoples of Palestine, Lebanon, Syria and other Arab countries against aggressive Israeli Zionism. He said Vietnam was behind the peoples of Namibia, Seychelles, Madagascar, Cuba, Nicaragua, Grenada, El Salvador, Puerto Rico, and other countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America in countering imperialist aggression and war moves.

Hoang Bich Son dealt at great length with the situation in Asia and the Pacific. He said: "The causes of world tension in the past three years are precisely those that threaten peace and stability in the Southeast Asian region.

"After failing in their attempt to collude with U.S. imperialism in holding back the camplete victory of the Vietnamese, Lao and Kampuchean peoples in their wars of resistance for national salvation, the reactionary elements in the Beijing ruling circles considered the emergence of a unified Vietnam the biggest obstacle to their strategy of expanionism in Southeast Asia. Since 1975, China has used the Pol Pot clique as its main instrument to weaken Vietnam and to carry out its policy of expansionism.

"After the overthrow of the Pol Pot clique and China's defeat in its war of aggression against Vietnam in February 1979, the new leaders of the modern 'middle empire' have waged a war of destruction in all fields against Vietnam and other Indochinese countries. At the same time, they have kept on using the Pol Pot remnants and fabricated the so-called 'Kampuchean problem' in a bid to reinforce their collusion with the United States and other reactionary forces against the Indochinese peoples, and to incite confrontation between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries with a view to undermining peace and stability in Southeast Asia so that China may fish in troubled waters.

"In order to conceal its expansionist and hegemonist schemes, China has fabricated the so-called 'Vietnamese threat' as regards ASEAN countries with a view to inciting the later to oppose Vietnam and sowing disorder in Southeast Asia.

"It is necessary to point out that this is not the first time that aggressors have used such a pretext to justify their aggressions against Vietnam. As is widely known, in 1964 the United States concocted the 'Tonkin Gulf incident' as a pretext for unleashing its air and naval war of destruction against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam. What the Beijing expansionists are now doing is just a repetition of the shameful acts previously committed by the colonialists and imperialists against Vietnam.

"At present, China demands the settlement of the so-called 'Kampuchean problem' as a precondition to normalise relations between Vietnam and China, and claims it the root cause of the Sino-vietnamese conflict. Yet, it is all too evident that in early 1978, China used the questions of the Hoa people (Vietnamese of Chinese descent) to launch a campaign of subversion against Vietnam, as it did against Indonesia in 1965 and to invade India in 1962. Certainly, they will resort to similar pretexts when they find it necessary to provoke a conflict with other countries in Southeast Asia."

Hoang Bich Son continued: "Despite the hostile policy pursued by the Chinese leaders against Vietnam and other countries in Indochina, the Vietnamese people never regard the Chinese people as their enemies. Bearing in mind the age-old friendship between the two peoples, we believe that the present abnormality in relations between Vietnam and China is a temporary phenomenon. It has been our consistent policy to persevere in peaceful negotiations to settle all differences between the two countries. We stand ready to resume the Vietnamese-Chinese talks at any level, at any place, and at the earliest possible time, with the aim of normalizing relations between the two countries.

"We consider these proposals as ones open for negotiations between the two groups of countries.[abrupt change of subject as received] We are ready to listen to other views and to respond positively to the legitimate concerns of the ASEAN countries. We hold that the two sides should respect each other's legitimate interests, respect the principles of equality, mutual respect, non-imposition of one side's views upon the other, and non-interference from outside. Only under these conditions can all issues concerning Southeast Asia be settled properly, and peace and stability in the region be guaranteed."

On Kampuchea, Hoang Bich Son Said: "The situation in Kampuchea is developing favourably. Under the leadership of the Government of the People's Republic of Kampuchea, the Kampuchean people have over the past three years overcome their most serious difficulties and hardship to continue the miraculous rebirth of their nation after the nightmare caused by the Pol Pot genocidal clique. World opinion particularly welcomes the policy of national unity and concord of the Government of the People's Republic of Kampuchea as expounded in a recent statement by Hun Sen, vice president of the Council of Ministers and minister for foreign affairs, concerning those Kampucheans who are still in the ranks of the Pol Pot clique or are collaborating with it, but who respect the Constitution of the People's Republic of Kampuchea. Such people will be entitled to enjoy all rights of citizenship, including the right to stand for and vote in Kampuchea's free elections in the presence of foreign observers. With its foreign policy of peace and non-alignment, the People's Republic of Kampuchea, together with other countries on the Indochinese Peninsula, is playing an increasingly active role as a factor for peace and stability in Southeast Asia".

Hoang Bich Son said: "We appeal to the international community: If, for the time being, it is unable to actively assist the Kampuchean people in achieving their rapid revival and to favour dialogue and reconciliation between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries, it should refrain from doing anything that may poison the atmosphere which is being improved in this region.

"As a member country of the United Nations, the Socialist Republic of Vietnam wishes that this organization will do its best to perform the noble tasks entrusted to it by the world's people. It is regrettable, however, that throughout the 37 years of its existence, in spite of the good will and commendable efforts of many member states, the United Nations has not yet fulfilled the aspirations of mankind. The great changes brought about by the world's people in that period of time in their struggle for peace, democracy, national independence, and social progress have all taken place outside the United Nations.

"In the course of the struggle of the Indochinese countries against the bloodiest war in history, the United Nations did not recognize the Indochinese peoples' right to be represented, while the imperialist and reactionary forces hostile to the three peoples had an important voice at this organization. Nowadays, when the world's people greatly rejoice at the rebirth of the Kampuchean people -- survivors of genocide -- the criminals of the Pol Pot genocidal clique and their accomplices in the so-called Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea are not yet ousted from this body. However, the rebirth of the Kampuchean people is absolutely irreversible. All attempts to reimpose the genocidal regime on Kampuchea will certainly fail."

SUZUKI EXPLAINS RESIGNATION IN PRESS CONFERENCE

OW131015 Tokyo NHK Television Network in Japanese 0630 GMT 13 Oct 82

[Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's 13 October press conference, held at the prime minister's official residence in Tokyo -- live; questions by unidentified reporters]

[Text] [Question] Mr Prime Minister, you tendered your resignation from the Liberal-Democratic Party [LDP] presidency yesterday. Since this press conference is being held in that connection, we would like you to make a statement on this to begin with.

[Answer] As I said in my statement yesterday, I have decided to decline the recommendation of my fellow party members to run in the forthcoming party presidential election and to step down at the end of my current term of office. The situation facing the country at home and abroad is extremely severe and my perception is that the situation is grave indeed. I think that harmony and solidarity are most important to the LDP which is in charge of the government. I believe that the party should do everything in its power to establish a truly fresh and vital all-party system and tide over this difficult situation. I decided that my last assignment as party president would be to prepare the emergence of a new party leader and to pave the way for him and have him create a fresh and powerful party system as a new leader. Although my term of office as LDP president expires on 26 November, in view of Diet matters, the supplementary budget and the public notice on the formulation of the budget and other matters, this is no time to allow a vacuum, even for a moment. Based on this belief, I have requested the four top party leaders to select my successor as president as early as possible within the scope permissible under the party rules and the presidential election regulations.

[Question] From what you have explained just now we can conclude that the biggest reason for your resignation at this time was to avert an intraparty struggle within the LDP. However, in reality, factional maneuverings have become fierce since yesterday evening or this morning, giving us the impression that the LDP still has not changed in the least. In tendering your resignation, what sort of measures did you have in mind to check this kind of strife among the various factions?

[Answer] I think it is quite natural for the factions to recommend or campaign for someone qualified to be my successor as president through consultations with their respective faction members and comrades. But this should not develop into a so-called intraparty struggle. As I have just mentioned, this is a very important time, and bygones within the party should be bygones, emotional confrontations must be done away with and a truly all-party system must be established. I made my decision at this time to help refresh the public by restating this wish. Therefore, I hope that my fellow party members will fully understand my feelings and intentions and choose an excellent successor as president in the interest of the party and the country, thereby meeting the people's expectations. I expect that party members of sound judgment will unfailingly follow that course.

[Question] Public attention is now being focused on the meeting of the LDP Supreme Advisory Council scheduled for 14 October. What is your position on this Advisory Council meeting? Specifically, do you intend to make that forum a venue for talks on personnel affairs?

[Answer] I do not know what the elder supreme advisers will say but, as far as I am concerned, I am going to explain my decision to step down at the end of my current term and report to them that I requested the four top party leaders yesterday to make a decision on the selection of the next president as early as possible. Then I am going to ask the supreme advisers for their cooperation.

[Question] Do you mean it will be all right for us to believe that the Supreme Advisory Council meeting will not turn into a venue for debating specific personnel affairs, such as listing names or coordinating those lists?

[Answer] Right. I do not know what the supreme advisers will have to say but, since I have asked the four top party leaders to make preparations, initiate procedures and make adjustments within the party regarding the selection of my successor, I am thinking of requesting the elder supreme advisers to cooperate with the four top party leaders.

[Question] I would like to ask you about your successor as the party president. In your statement yesterday, you mentioned fresh and energetic men. Because of your remark, there has been speculation that you may have someone in mind. Do you in fact have someone in mind? Also, regarding the selection of your successor, do you think that you should have some say in it or be able to designate someone?

[Answer] I hope to see a decision made on a new president and a vital, new system established by rallying fresh and energetic men within the party around the new leader. It was this desire that I expressed in my statement. In forming a Cabinet twice in the past, I assigned nucleus party leaders in accordance with the principle of having the right man in the right place and allowing them to work freely. I hope that these leaders will turn to the talents that will shoulder the party in the days to come. Therefore, I hope that the next president will make himself an excellent one by rallying fresh and energetic men within the party. This is what I said; it does not mean that I have a specific individual in mind as my successor.

[Question] Listening to what you said, I get the feeling that you have someone among the so-called new leaders in mind. What is your comment on that, Mr Prime Minister?

[Answer] No, that is not what I meant. I said that I hope that the president who succeeds me will rally fresh and energetic men around him, make his power vital and create a vital party system. This is the expression I used to describe my viewpoint.

[Question] Please allow me to ask you about the method of selecting your successor as president. Mr Prime Minister, you just said that you hope to see a united party system established as early as possible without a repetition of the factional strife within the party. Regarding the method of selecting your successor, there are various opinions within the party: Some maintain that your successor should be selected through negotiations and some others assert that it should be decided through a preliminary election as prescribed by the party presidential election regulations. Mr Prime Minister, what do you think is the best way to pick your successor as president?

[Answer] On that matter, I asked the four top party leaders yesterday to select the next president smoothly by themselves and without allowing a political vacuum, in accordance with party rules and the presidential election regulations, while listening to the views of various quarters within the party. Therefore, I have not made any special request, nor have I said that I prefer negotiations or a specific method for making the selection.

[Question] I understand that you had a talk with the finance minister on the question of convening an extraordinary Diet session and other matters. Should this intraparty strife get out of control, state administration might be seriously affected, I believe. What date does the government want to set as the deadline for getting the supplementary budget bill approved?

[Answer] Today I received a report from the finance minister on the progress in the work of compiling the budget and on the possible trends in the bond market in case the necessary financial source is decided to be public bonds, and on various other matters.

Recently, I determined the economic outlook, and on that basis worked out the economic measures for the second half of the year. Therefore, I want to carry on the work of compiling the supplementary budget on that basis as an established government policy. The government plans to convene an extraordinary Diet session as soon as the party selects the next president and appoints the head of the government. The government also plans to make the necessary preparations for Diet deliberations on the budget and to submit other necessary bills to the Diet as soon as possible.

[Question] Prime Minister, we cannot but feel that you are giving up halfway in the administrative and fiscal reforms you have held up as your public commitments. In this sense, we believe that you would like to have someone who is going to meet your wishes and fulfill the public commitments you made. Thus, it is our feeling that you will have someone in your mind as your successor. You have told us that for the moment you are not thinking of any specific person as your successor. However, we wonder if you are not planning to transmit, one way or another, your wishes to the four top party leaders regarding your successor. Are you not planning to do so?

[Answer] Administrative reform and fiscal reconstruction have been important tasks for my government. They have been the most important political tasks for the LDP as well. Therefore, both the government and the party have jointly tackled these tasks. Thus, administrative and fiscal reforms have now become a national task. In this sense, I hope that my successor, whether he is selected through the support of our party majority or through an all-party decision, will tackle the administrative and fiscal reforms just as I have done or with even greater effort. It is my belief that my successor, regardless of who is selected, will carry out the administrative and fiscal reforms.

[Question] When you first took office as prime minister, you pledged that you would establish political ethics. As a matter of fact, however, the aircraft ad hoc committee was [words indistinct] and summoning of dietmen as witnesses has not been realized under the pretext that it should be preceded by an amendment of the current dietmen's testimony law. Many people say that you have not fulfilled your public pledge in this regard. We expect you to express some regret regarding political ethics.

[Answer] As you know, I asked the Diet to enforce the dietmen's testimony law as soon as possible. This issue has been eagerly and repeatedly discussed in the House of Representatives Diet System Deliberation Council. In addition, the LDP has formulated its own draft law and is now working for its enactment. It has been referred to the speaker of the house for deliberation when the Diet is resumed. Thus, I hope that you will understand that we have made great efforts in this regard. As you know, the connection between politics and money represents one of the most realistic issues we face in dealing with political ethics. In this context, [illegible] ave paid attention to the inadequate reporting on individual donations and have am[illegible]d the political funds control law. We have also carried out the reform of the House of Councillors national constituency election system -- a long-pending issue -- with the aim of establishing a less costly election system. I believe that I have done my best, although there may be some complaints that my efforts have been insufficient.

[Question] I would like to ask you about your decision to resign. I can understand your hope that through your resignation you will create a chance for the all-party system and invigorate the execution of the party's policy under the new system. However, I believe that you also had some desire to stay on and to keep working on the still unfinished administrative and fiscal reforms. Please tell us about how you arrived at your decision.

[Answer] I felt that my appeal for the unity of the party is less persuasive as long as I myself am engaged in the contest for party presidency. I felt that I should not seek another term and should work to again win the hearts of the people.

I felt that I should work to renovate the party's working style and create a truly united all-party system. On the basis of this viewpoint, I have chosen to serve as just an ordinary member of the party.

[Question] People think that your decision was rather abrupt. When did you actually make up your mind?

[Answer] I wanted to carry out, one way or another, the reform of the House of Councillors national constituency election system, that is, the amendment of the public officials election law, one of my public pledges since my inauguration as party president. To fulfill this desire, I asked for the extension of the previous ordinary Diet session. Thanks to the understanding of the members of the Diet, the law was finally adopted by the Diet. It was about this time that I made up my mind not to seek another term.

However, as the Diet session came to a close the government faced the need to formulate the administrative reform outline based on the third basic recommendation from the ad hoc committee on administrative reform. This formulation of the outline was required to take necessary reform measures in compliance with the order of priority. In addition, the government also faced the need to sharply reduce expenditures in the fiscal 1983 budget under extremely difficult financial conditions. We have sought the people's understanding that they will have to share in the pains and sacrifices to this end. Asking public servants to set a good example, we first called for a freeze on their pay raises despite the national personnel authority's recommendations that pay be raised. We also faced another task, to map out economic policies and business stimulating measures for the latter half of this year on the basis of an accurate economic forecast. We have carried out those three tasks since the end of the Diet session. At this point, I made my final decision to resign. This is how I arrived at my decision.

[Question] Could you briefly express your feelings now that you have tendered your resignation?

[Answer] I have asked for party members to understand my resignation in view of the need to tide over the difficulties facing our party, a government party with heavy responsibilities. I pray that they will understand the step I have taken and meet my wishes.

[Question] Before you announced your resignation, it was reported that you would meet Mr Fukuda following a meeting of the party's top advisers. This report is no longer true now that you have announced your resignation, is it?

[Answer] That report circulated when I was still regarded as one of the candidates for the party presidential election. People at that time speculated that the meeting of the party advisers would make some requests of me in order to settle the current difficult situation and that Mr Fukuda and I would meet to discuss various issues. Now that I have given up running as a candidate and decided not to seek reelection, I only hope that the party executives will work to smoothly choose the next party president through cooperation of party leaders and advisers. I will meet people and have talks if necessary.

[Unidentified voice] This conference has lasted a little bit longer than scheduled. If there are no more questions, we would now like to end this conference.

FORMER JSP LEADER CITED ON PRC-USSR RELATIONS

OW131049 Tokyo KYODO in English 1034 GMT 13 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 13, KYODO — China and the Soviet Union appear to be stepping up efforts for an approach to put an end to their 20-year hostility, former Japan Socialist Party leader Seiichi Katsumata said Wednesday.

Katsumata, who has just returned home from a three-week tour to the Soviet Union, East Germany and France, said he gained such impressions through discussions with Ivan Kovalenko, deputy chief of the Soviet Communist Party's International Affairs Bureau.

A major stumbling block for Sino-Soviet rapprochement will be troop withdrawals from areas along the thousands of kilometers of border between the two countries, he said.

China and the Soviet Union began working-level talks in Beijing last week apparently aimed at improving bilateral ties. The meeting between Soviet Vice Foreign Minister Leonid Ilichev and his Chinese counterpart Qian Qichen was the first high-level contacts since Beijing suspended negotiations with Moscow following the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in December 1979.

Katsumata, who served as chairman of the No. 1 opposition party between 1967 and 1968, is currently head of the party's Center for Socialist Theory.

Katsumata quoted Kovalenko as saying that the Soviet Union would meet China's demand for reduction of Soviet troops on the China-Soviet border if China cuts its border forces of two million troops. Kovalenko said the Soviet Union was ready to withdraw Soviet troops from Mongolia at once if Mongolia agrees, Katsumata said.

Katsumata said he was also told by Kovalenko that the Soviet Union would refuse to take the initiative for the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea because it would constitute interference in Vietnamese and Kampuchean domestic affairs.

In East Germany, Katsumata was awarded an honorary doctorate from Martin Luther University, one of the oldest universities in the country, in ceremonies held on September 30, for his contribution to deepening Marxist theory and promoting cultural exchanges between the JSP and the Socialist Unity Party of East Germany. He also delivered a lecture on such problems as the postwar Japanese democratic movement and peace and democracy.

SAKURAUCHI, CANADA'S MACEACHEN HOLD TALKS

[Excerpts] Ottawa, Oct 6, KYODO -- Canada Wednesday called on Japan to buy CANDU nuclear reactors and increase imports of other Canadian manufactured goods, as well as primary products. The call came when Allan Joseph MacEachen, Canadian secretary of state for external affiars, met with Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, who flew here from New York Tuesday. In the meeting, which lasted about four hours from 9 a.m. (10 p.m. Japan time) Wednesday, MacEachen also said Canada wants direct investments from Japanese interests, particularly in the fields of manufacturing and processing plants and sophisticated technology. MacEachen and Sakurauchi agreed in this respect that Canada send a mission made up of federal and provincial officials and private industrialists to Japan to invite direct investment in Canada. The Japanese and Canadian foreign ministers also agreed on the need for a bilateral working-level consultation on the two countries' efforts for solution of North-South economic disparity problems of the world.

Sakurauchi pointed out to MacEachen that the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) ministerial meeting scheduled for November must be made successful to stimulate the world economy. He expressed the hope that Canada, the chairman country of the preparatory committee for the ministerial meeting, maintain close touch with Japan in regard to the coming meeting. MacEachen was understood to have accepted Sakurauchi's request.

The Canadian foreign minister told Sakurauchi that Canada will take its final decision in the next two or three months on whether or not it will take part in the 1985 exposition to be held in Japan.

The party was addressed first by Vice-Chairman Kim Pyong-chil.

The NPC delegation of China is visiting our country at a time when the Korea-China friendship is being brought into fuller bloom in the minds of the two peoples after the historic official state visit of the great leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song to the People's Republic of China, he noted, and said:

The recent 12th National Congress of the Communist Party of China was a historic congress which marked a new milestone in the revolutionary struggle and constructive work of the Chinese people; it opened a new prospect on the road ahead of the Chinese people who are striving to build China into a highly civilised and highly democratic, socialist state by accelerating socialist modernisation. We rejoice as over our own over all the successes made by the fraternal Chinese people in their endeavours to carry out the decisions of the 12th National Congress of the CPC and warmly hail them.

We Hamhung citizens are proud of having built on the instructions of the great leader of our people Comrade Kim Il-song the statue of respected Premier Zhou Enlai who made an imperishable contribution to the strengthening of the Korea-China friendship and unity and are rejoiced at the establishment of friendly city relationship between Hamhung and Shanghai in June. We are making all efforts to further strengthen the blood-cemented Korea-China friendship.

Comrade Xi Zhongxun spoke next. Pointing to the development of Hamhung, he said: The new looks of the city demonstrate the rapid development of socialist construction in Korea and show the spiritual traits of the industrious and courageous Korean people. All this proves the correctness of the leadership of Comrade Kim Il-song, the great leader of the Korean people, and the Workers Party of Korea.

Hamhung is a city linked with the Chinese people by the bonds of friendship. All Chinese comrades who saw the statue of Premier Zhou Enlai and the monument to him were moved by the sincere feelings of the Korean people who love Premier Zhou Enlai and set store by the China-Korea friendship. The establishment of friendly city relationship between Shanghai and Hamhung in June made closer the friendly relations between the peoples of the two countries.

The recent visit of President Kim Il-song to China greatly contributed to further developing and strengthening the friendship and unity between our two peoples and will exert a deep-going influence on the development of the revolution and construction in our two countries and peace in Asia and the world.

Noting that the Chinese people have all along supported the Korean people's cause of revolution and construction he further said: In the future, too, the Chinese people will resolutely support the Korean people's struggle to force the U.S. troops to withdraw from South Korea, smash the "two Koreas" plot and achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the country at an early date. The friendship between the Chinese and Korean peoples was established and has been developed through mutual support and assistance.

No matter what may happen in the world in the future, the Chinese people will always stand firm by the Korean people and fight shoulder to shoulder in firm unity with them.

The attendants of the party raised glasses to the everlasting friendship and unity sealed in blood between the Korean and Chinese peoples, to the good health and long life of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, to the good health and long life of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, to the good health and long life of esteemed Comrade Hu Yaobang and to the good health and long life of esteemed Comrade Deng Xiaoping.

Chairman of the Kaesong Municipal People's Committee Kim Yong-chon spoke first at the banquet. He said: Each time the citizens of Kaesong meet the fraternal Chinese comrades-in-arms, they recollect with deep emotions the days when they had fought in the same trench with fighters of the Chinese People's Volunteers against the common enemy in the period of the past fatherland liberation war.

Our Kaesong citizens, along with the entire Korean people, sincerely hope that the fraternal Chinese people will achieve more brilliant successes in the struggle to build China into a highly democratic and highly civilized socialist power by carrying out the construction tasks for socialist modernisation put forward at the 12th National Congress of the Communist Party of China and to reunify the whole country by having Taiwan returned to the embrace of the motherland.

Our people regard it as great pride to have the Chinese people as their intimate comrade-in-arms and will make every possible effort to further strengthen and develop down through generations the Korea-China friendship based on the militant fraternity and brotherly fidelity, he stated.

Comrade Xi Zhongxun, member of the Political Bureau, and member of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of China and vice-chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, spoke next.

The remarkable changes of Kaesong show the brilliant successes made by the Korean people in the revolution and construction, the correctness of the guidance of the great leader of the Korean people Comrade Kim Il-song and the Workers Party of Korea and the Korean people's revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and hard struggle, he noted, and said: The Chinese people sincerely rejoice as over their own over all the successes made by the fraternal Korean people.

I express the belief that the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo advanced by President Kim Il-song will surely be put into effect.

If the Americans provoke another war, the Chinese people will assist the Korean people in their struggle, not only coming across the River Amnok but also in various ways.

The Chinese people have invariably supported the struggle of the Korean people for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

The government and people of China resolutely oppose the splittist policy for creating "two Koreas" and fully support the proposal for reunifying the country by founding the DCRK put forward by President Kim Il-song.

The United States must completely withdraw its troops and military equipment from South Korea and the South Korean authorities provide the people with political freedom and democracy.

The Chinese and Korean peoples established a great revolutionary friendship in the protracted revolutionary struggle. The recent visit to China by President Kim Il-song made a great contribution to the further development and strengthening of the friendship and unity between the Chinese and Korean peoples.

He continued: People say it takes 10 years to grow a big tree and 100 years to make a man. But, in Korea the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il have successfully solved the problem of training cadres.

There are a lot of things to learn from in Korea.

The Chinese people greatly value the great friendship and unity sealed in blood with the Korean people.

In conclusion, he stressed: Korea is not what she was in the 50's nor China what she was in the 50's.

No matter what may happen in the world in future, the Chinese people will fight shoulder to shoulder with the Korean people, always standing firm on their side, and make all efforts to constantly develop the friendship between the two peoples.

[Text] Pyongyang, October 11 (KCNA) -- The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, made a speech at a banquet he arranged today in honour of Manuel Pinto da Costa, chairman of the Liberation Movement of Sao Tome and Principe and President of the Democratic Republic of Sao Tome and Principe, on a state visit to our country. Follows the full text of his speech:

Your Excellency esteemed President Manuel Pinto da Costa, dear guests from Sao Tome and Principe, comrades and friends:

Today we have the great pleasure of receiving Comrade Manuel Pinto da Costa, chairman of the Liberation Movement of Sao Tome and Principe and president of the Democratic Republic of Sao Tome and Principe and our close friend, and his entourage.

Very happy at meeting again and sitting together with you, respected Comrade President, I warmly welcome your visit to our country.

You visited our country shortly after the independence of your country seven years ago to have the first meeting with us and tighten the bonds of friendship between Korea and Sao Tome and Principe. You came a long way to the east to see us again today. This is a manifestation of deep trust in our party, government and people and exceptional feelings of friendship toward us and we are deeply moved by this.

It is of great significance today for the leaders of the new-emerging countries to deepen mutual understanding and trust and strengthen the friendly and cooperative relations among peoples by visiting each other. Only when the new-emerging countries strengthen cooperation and solidarity in close relationship and counter the imperialist moves for division and alienation in a concerted action can the prosperity of the nations and the independent development of the countries be achieved successfully and the ever growing danger of a new world war be averted.

This meeting with your excellency president will be an occasion to thrash out various problems of common concern. This will contribute to a further flourish and development of the friendly relations between our two countries, strengthening of the unity of the Non-Aligned Movement and promotion of the common cause of the peoples of the Third World countries.

Recently the leaders of non-aligned countries have had broad consultations and reached a full consensus on convening the seventh summit conference of non-aligned countries in New Delhi, the capital of India. We consider that all the member nations should make joint efforts to ensure that the seventh summit conference of non-aligned countries to be held amid great expectation and interest of the world people will be a success and fulfill the historic mission of the Non-Aligned Movement and thus demonstrate the united might of this movement.

Korea and Sao Tome and Principe are both member nations of the Non-Aligned Movement.

Our two countries are adhering to chajusong (independence) and struggling against imperialism, colonialism and racism and are supporting and closely cooperating with each other to build a new, independent society free from exploitation and oppression.

We are glad to note that the people of Sao Tome and Principe under the guidance of their outstanding leader, Comrade President Manuel Pinto da Costa, have achieved great successes in the struggle to consolidate the independence of the country and eliminate the consequences of the old colonial rule, repulsing the ceaseless subversive activities and sabotage of the imperialists. We express full support to the government and people of Sao Tome and Principe in their stern denunciation of the heinous apartheid pursued by the South African racist regime and its aggressive moves against its neighbouring countries as well as the efforts they are making for the independence of Namibia and the complete liberation of southern Africa.

The Korean people will stand firmly by all the African people in the future, too, in their struggle for the complete liberation and unity of Africa.

The Korean people vehemently denounce the outrageous acts of war of the Israeli Zionists in Lebanon and the brutal massacre of defenceless Palestinians in West Beirut committed by them under the patronage of U.S. imperialism as an open challenge to all humanity and strongly demand that for a fair and comprehensive settlement of the Middle East issues the Israeli aggressors withdraw immediately from all the Arab lands they are occupying. We will continue to give positive support and encouragement to the just struggle of the Palestinian people to win back their legitimate national rights including the rights to self-determination and the establishment of an independent state.

The Sao Tome and Principe people always render valuable support and encouragement to our people in the common struggle against imperialism and for independence.

We are grateful to the government and people of Sao Tome and Principe for rejecting the so-called "regime" of South Korea as a colonial puppet regime and invariably recognising the Democratic People's Republic of Korea as the only legitimate state of the Korean nation and sincerely supporting our people in the just cause of forcing foreign forces out of South Korea and achieving the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

The Korean people will in the future, too, fight on staunchly under the uplifted banner of independence, friendship and peace to make the whole world independent and defend peace and security of the world, in close unity with the peoples of the socialist countries and non-aligned countries and all the peoples of the world who advocate chajusong.

Your Excellency Esteemed President, the friendly relations between Korea and Sao Tome and Principe reflect the excellent relations among the countries of the new-emerging forces and the non-aligned countries and we value them very much.

At this place overflowing with amicable sentiments upon receiving again Comrade President, our intimate friend from a far-off place, I propose a toast: To the unbreakable fraternal friendship and solidarity between the peoples of Korea and Sao Tome and Principe, to the prosperity and development of the Democratic Republic of Sao Tome and Principe, to the unity of the world people who advocate chajusong, to the health of His Excellency Esteemed President Manuel Pinto da Costa, and madame, to the health of the dear guests from Sao Tome and Principe, and to the health of the comrades and friends present here.

Text of Da Costa Speech

SK120037 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2317 GMT 11 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 11 (KCNA) -- Follows the full text of the speech made by Manuel Pinto da Costa, chairman of the Liberation Movement of Sao Tome and Principe and president of the Democratic Republic of Sao Tome and Principe, at the banquet arranged by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on October 11:

Your Excellency Respected President Kim Il-song, Messrs. members of the leadership of the party, comrades and friends:

It is a great joy to me and my wife and to the entire members of the delegation accompanying me to be guests of the people of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and its party and government.

The honorable invitation extended me by Your Excellency President to my second official visit to your beautiful and kind country vividly indicates the friendly and cooperative relations and unity between our two peoples and two states.

During our visit, we will witness new successes made by the Korean people in the building of their beloved country under the tested leadership of respected His Excellency President Kim Il-song, their great leader, and, at the same time, make our relations ever closer.

When we were paying our first visit to this splendid and peaceful country, we got vivid impressions from your successes in the hard battles for clearing away backwardness. Today, seven years since then, we can hardly repress our admiration at the new and important achievements made by the Korean people in the work for the promotion of welfare and social progress. We warmly congratulate Your Excellency President on this. These achievements have been made possible through a correct application of the chuche idea founded and developed by respected Comrade President.

Your Excellency President, the Democratic Republic of Sao Tome and Principe has paid deep concern for and extended support to the legitimate desire of the Korean people for reunifying their country peacefully without foreign interference. Our Sao Tome and Principe people unconditionally support the legitimate desire of your people for the peaceful reunification of the country.

Other peoples are also struggling against aggression and occupation of their territories, for the achievement of the right to national self-determination and independence and the liquidation of apartheid. South Africa persists in its illegal occupation of Namibia in disregard of the United Nations Resolution No 435 laying down basic principles guaranteeing success of the talks on her independence.

For this, the day of the celebration of the victory of the liberation struggle of the Namibian people led by the South-West Africa People's Organization, their only lawful representative, is being delayed. This situation is a result that some Western countries are actually conspiring with and giving support to the apartheid regime in pursuance of their interests and for the purpose of maintaining exploitation and domination in Namibia.

The South African people are also running up against big obstacles in their struggle for ending the cursed apartheid regime and establsihing a democratic regime of the majority representing and defending the legitimate desire of the South African people. And, in southern Africa, the countries there, the People's Repbulic of Angola and the People's Republic of Mozambique in particular, are made victims of the cursed aggression of the terrorist South African apartheid regime which crudely violates the international morality and norms. We can find an example of this in the fact that in one part of the Angolan territory illegally invaded and occupied, the human lives and socio-economic foundations are trampled upon and defenceless people are massacred and there are constant manoeuvres for toppling the regime freely established by its people. The apartheid regime seeks to force the Angolan people to step back from fulfilling their noble mission for solidarity with the Namibian and South African peoples.

Important stages have already been achieved on the long road for the liberation of the oppressed peoples and these successes cannot be undermined. But there remains a distance to go. The successes of the peoples of West Sahara and Puerto Rico are made unshakable by the conviction that the active solidarity of the peoples who love peace, justice and freedom for them will be everlasting.

Respected Your Excellency President, ladies and gentlemen, we should naturally pay tribute to the courageous and heroic Palestinian people and undaunted fighters who have decorated with blood the most brilliant pages of the history of the liberation struggle of the people and to the Palestine Liberation Organization, their revolutionary vanguard.

Though the Palestinian people, their dignity violated and their inviolable rights and land lost, are moving from one place of exile to another and are facing a danger of extermination by massacre, they are fighting courageously and staunchly to have their just desire for their homeland recognized, return home and establish an independent state freed from outside interference.

The invasion of Lebanon and brutal atrocities in West Beirut committed by the Zionist regime of Israel in league with their allies and the fact that these acts go unpunished are a grave threat to world peace and security. Though some countries are systematically violating even the elementary norms of international law, no deserving sanctions are applied against them. This means encouraging them to continue such acts and heightening tensions in the world.

The developing countries should make all efforts and mobilize all their means in the struggle to remove the calamities barring the social progress of our peoples.

The selfishness of rich countries lay obstacles to the negotiation for the establishment of a new international economic order. This urgently demands that the Third World countries counter the grave consequences of the world-wide economic crisis.

To strengthen cooperation among the developing countries is an inspiring means for cementing the unity between the Third World countires and defending their common interests.

In this respect, the Non-Aligned Movement, which is faithful to its organizational principle and purpose, is making a contribution to the consolidation of the unity of the developing countries, though it is hindered in its normal activities to a certain degree by disputes between some member nations, particularly the Iraq-Iran dispute.

The conference of heads of state and government of the Non-Aligned Movement scheduled in New Delhi will prove the maturity and responsibility of this movement. We hope that Iraq and Iran, member nations of this movement and fraternal Islamic countries, will seek proper ways and means to end the war which is beneficial only to the enemies of the people's advance and the unity of the Non-Aligned Movement.

Comrade President, ladies and gentlemen, the Democratic Republic of Sao Tome and Principe is under influence of the serious world-wide economic crisis. The drop of the international market price of cocoa, our main export, creates difficulties to our work for gradually getting rid of backwardness. But, even under such conditions, the determination and efforts of the Sao Tome and Principe people and the solidarity of the friendly countries guarantee successes of our national reconstruction.

Comrade President, our respected friend, ladies and gentlemen, the people of Sao Tome and Principe and the Korean people are united with each other as brothers on the road of maintaining peace, defending the gains of independence and promoting social justice and progress. We will keep in our memory the cordial reception and fraternal hospitality accorded us by the Korean people and the serenity and beauty of this country.

Concluding my speech, I propose a toast to the further consolidation of the bonds of fraternal friendship and solidarity uniting our peoples, to the progress and peace of the Korean people, to the reunification of Korea, to the good health and long life of respected His Excellency Comrade President Kim Il-song, to the good health and long life of the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau and secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea, to the friendship and solidarity between the peoples of the Democratic Republic of Sao Tome and Principe and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, and to the good health of all comrades and friends present here. Thank you.

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 11 (YONHAP) -- The Organization of Asia-Pacific News Agencies (OANA) opened its third technical group meeting here Monday to review the routing plan and other technical aspects of the ASIA-PACIFIC NEWS NETWORK (ANN), which went into operation in January 1982.

Attending the two-day meeting hosted by South Korea's YONHAP news agency at Seoul's Hyatt Hotel were delegates from the group's six member agencies -- ANTARA of Indonesia, BERNAMA of Malaysia, KYODO of Japan, the PHILIPPINES NEWS AGENCY, the PRESS TRUST OF INDIA, and TASS of the Soviet Union, and observers from UNESCO and other OANA members, including YONHAP.

In his opening address, OANA President Ahmad Mustapha said that OANA had "a mission to correct the imbalance in the flow of information in this world today," and reiterated its call to governments of member agencies to take steps to reduce the telecommunications rate for the media.

Stressing that OANA was not out to humiliate and impose its will on others, Mustapha, who is the general manager of BERNAMA, said that the organization should be given the chance and the good will to function as an effective vehicle for the dissemination of Asia-Pacific news, opinions and concepts.

For his part, Kim Song-chin, president-publisher of YONHAP, in his welcoming address, expressed the hope that the meeting be successful and fruitful in a cooperative spirit of OANA. Kim added that "the meeting will mark another step forward in achieving OANA's avowed goal of promoting a greater exchange of news among Asian and Pacific news agencies, and contribute in the long run to enhancing the understanding among nations and peoples in the region. "

Participants in the Seoul conference will discuss ways to induce greater participation by regional news agencies in the OANA projects including the ANN, conference sources said. The Seoul meeting will also adopt the report of the Beijing conference in March and review other technical aspects of the ANN and impact and redistribution reports.

The technical group meeting will be followed by a three-day conference of the OANA Executive Board, of which YONHAP is a member.

News Conference Held

SK121348 Seoul YONHAP in English 0733 GMT 12 Oct 82

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 12 (YONHAP) -- Ahmad Mustapha Hassan, president of the Organization of Asia-Pacific News Agencies (OANA), Tuesday called for friendly cooperation between the news agencies of both developing and developed nations. Mustapha told a news conference here that OANA was not designed to "dislodge or confront the international news agencies, but to supplement and complement their efforts for a balanced flow of information in the world."

Mustapha, general manager of the Malaysian national news agency, BERNAMA, said OANA and its news exchange service, the ASIA-PACIFIC NEWS NETWORK (ANN), were founded on the principle of better and more direct relations between the peoples of Asia and the Pacific region. "It is encouraging that a growing number of the 24 OANA member agencies are joining ANN", since it went into operation this January, and contributing to a freer and greater flow of news in this part of the world, he said. Mustapha added that OANA seeks cooperative relationships with news agency associations beyond the Asia-Pacific region, to work towards expanding ANN into a worldwide news exchange system.

The press conference was called to announce the decisions reached at the third OANA technical group meeting opened Monday at the Hyatt Regency Hotel with representatives from all nine member news agencies -- ANTARA, Indonesia; BERNAMA; KYODO, Japan; the PHILIPPINES NEWS AGENCY; the PRESS TRUST OF INDIA; and TASS of the Soviet Union.

The representatives agreed to hold an editorial workshop aimed at coordinating the style and other technical aspects of member services handling OANA news items. Mustapha also said that the VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY (VNA) and ISLAMIC REPUBLIC NEWS AGENCY (IRNA) had become redistribution centers sending news to and from adjacent agencies. The projected ANN route was also revised to maximize the smooth flow of OANA news items.

Following the two-day technical group meeting, YONHAP will host the second OANA Executive Board meeting at the same place from Wednesday through Friday. Member agencies to attend the conference are BERNAMA, PTI, KYODO, APP of Pakistan, ANTARA, IRNA, KPL of Laos, RSS of Nepal and YONHAP.

KYONGHUI PROFESSORS RESIGN OVER CAMPUS UNREST

SK130151 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 13 Oct 82 p 8

[Text] Seven Kyonghui University professors resigned from their posts as vice president and as deans yesterday in connection with recent campus disturbances. Their replacements were not appointed immediately. The former administrators will retain their teaching positions.

An Chi-yol also tendered his resignation as the university president early yesterday. But the school's board, meeting from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m., decided to withhold action on the resignation until after the campus situation calms down.

A spokesman for the private university said a replacement for An will be appointed after action on resignation. Choe Yong-sik, founder of the school, presided over the board conference.

The disturbances started a week ago when about 100 architectural engineering students demonstrated against the abolishment of the unit next year. The spokesman said the university recently decided to close the department because of changing freshmen enrollments next year and because the school's annex in Suwon has an Architectural Engineering Department. Under the decision undergraduate students of the Seoul department will be transferred to Suwon, according to the spokesman. He said the affected students demonstrated again the next day, joined by College of Industry students.

The college, said the spokesman, is also to be transferred to the Suwon campus in 1983. A similar demonstration continued during the next two days and on Monday. Some 200 students of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences joined in the Saturday protest.

Students of more colleges joined in a demonstration Monday during the Seoul campus' midterm examinations. Alarmed by the developments, the Ministry of Education authorities called in the university president, An, Monday afternoon and warned him that the ministry would step in if school authorities fail to control the student unrest. Returning to the campus, An discussed the school situation with Vice President Yi Won-sul and 26 other key faculty members Monday night.

HUN SEN INTERVIEWED ON FOREIGN, DOMESTIC ISSUES

[Excerpts] Phnom Penh, Oct 12, KYODO -- The Kampuchea Government in Phnom Penh, now fighting the China-backed resistance coalition of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, has said it welcomes the current Sino-Soviet peace talks in Beijing. "We support and welcome moves for Sino-Soviet rapprochement," Foreign Minister Hun Sen told KYODO news service in an interview here Monday. But he added: "(Whether the negotiations can make any progress) depends if China would positively respond to the Soviet proposal (for improving ties between Moscow and Beijing)."

The vice ministerial-level talks started in Beijing last week as the first such negotiations which were broken up after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in late 1979. Hun Sen said the result of the bilateral negotiations will be significant for a future situation in Asia. He did not elaborate.

But the foreign minister said China poses a threat to Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos by supplying arms to resistance forces in his country through Thailand. If the threat is lifted, Hun Sen said, Vietnam will withdraw its forces from Kampuchea. Pullout of Vietnamese forces and their replacement with Kampuchean troops have been going on smoothly since 1979, Hun Sen added.

He rejected as groundless Western estimates of the presence of 180,000 to 200,000 Vietnamese troops in Kampuchea at present. Vietnam still stations an "adequate number of troops to maintain Kampuchea's security," Hun Sen added, but declined to say how many.

Hun Sen said Sihanouk is just like face powder to cover the tarnished image of the Pol Pot government, the most powerful component in the three-party coalition. Hun Sen called for immediate expulsion of Democratic Kampuchea from the U.N., but added the Phnom Penh government will not suffer any setback even if it fails to obtain a U.N. seat again this year.

Pen Sovan, who was also general secretary of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea, is now in therapy at a Phnom Penh hospital, according to Hun Sen. Hun Sen ruled out the possibility of Pen Sovan's return to official duties.

NHAN DAN Hails Visit

[NHAN DAN 10 October article by special correspondent (Tran Kien): "From Moscow to Kiev: The Tree of Friendship Has Grown Deeper and Bigger Roots"]

[Text] Grand and imbued with comradely affection was the reception given by the CPSU, the Soviet state and the fraternal people of the USSR to our party and state delegation led by Comrade Truong Chinh on an official friendship visit to the great land of the Soviet Union.

At this time, golden fall has arrived in the northern part of this friendly country. Nature seemed to enliven the atmosphere of the truly festive days of Vietnam-USSR friendship. In these early days of October in Tashkent, Moscow and Kiev, we witnessed touching and unforgettable manifestations of the Soviet-Vietnamese militant friendship. We were not so deeply touched by the full honor given to a visiting head of state as by the depth of the longstanding militant solidarity that has weathered several decades and by the ever-expanding scale of the comprehensive relations of bilateral cooperation which now have become a tremendous material and spiritual driving force.

The important visit to the Soviet Union by respected and beloved Chairman Truong Chinh was a fine success. It served as a great landmark in the process of strengthening and consolidating the militant solidarity and relations of cooperation between our two fraternal countries.

At noon on 5 October 1982, at the beautifully appointed Yekaterina Hall of the Kremlin, Comrade Brezhnev and Comrade Truong Chinh merrily shook hands and cordially embraced before beginning the Soviet-Vietnamese talks. Taking place at a time when the entire Soviet people, together with all progressive mankind including our people, were looking forward to the grand celebration of the 65th anniversary of the Great October Revolution and the 60th founding annivesary of the USSR, the Vietnamese-Soviet meeting at the Kremlin vividly brought to mind the traditional link between the revolution in our country and the country and party of the great Lenin, and boundlessly respected and beloved Uncle Ho -- the leader who taught generations of Vietnamese about close and lasting friendship with the great Soviet Union and absolute loyalty to Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism. Le Duan, Truong Chinh and Pham Van Dong -- the comrades who are Uncle Ho's outstanding successors -- have implemented his teachings, guiding our entire party and people in doing their best to consolidate their alliance and strenthen their ties with the Soviet Union. The annual meeting between the general secretaries of the two party Central Committees -- Comrade Brezhnev and Comrade Le Duan -- have been a fine practice for many years now; they play an important part in promoting bilateral cooperation and working out a common stand regarding international issues.

On this trip, the first thing Comrade Truong Chinh told the Soviet brothers was that, loyal to President Ho Chi Minh's testament, the Vietnamese people will forever be grateful to the Soviet Union, will strive to protect the Vietnamese-Soviet friendship as they do the apple of their eyes, and will do their best to constantly consolidate and develop that friendship as the factor deciding the success of the Vietnamese revolution in the past, at present and in the future.

The party, state and people of the Soviet Union highly valued this official friendship visit by our party and state delegation led by Comrade Truong Chinh. In its first report on this event, complete with a biography and portrait of Comrade Truong Chinh, PRAVDA stressed: This visit further strengthens the friendly and fraternal relations and the comprehensive cooperation between our two parties and states in the interest of both the Soviet and Vietnamese peoples as well as that of the whole socialist community.

Comrade Brezhnev, during the Kremlin talks, and Comrade Shcherbitskiy, during his talks with our delegation in Kiev, highly appreciated the great contribution made to the development of the Vietnamese revolution by Comrade Truong Chinh, the close comrade in arms of President Ho Chi Minh who has gone through the struggle for national liberation and socialism and contributed to consolidating the unshakable friendship between Vietnam and the Soviet Union.

The most remarkable result of the visit was the complete unanimity of views of both sides on all issues discussed. The joint communique with its diversified contents is a new step in the development of relations between the two countries. It lays stress on the importance of the existing treaty of friendship and cooperation and highly appraises what has been done.

Both sides displayed the iron-like determination to continue to consolidate their fraternal friendship that has been tested over the past years, to develop comprehensive cooperation between the two countries and to make fuller use of latent sources in their bilateral cooperation.

The Soviet Union has declared its support for our people in the struggle to implement the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress, affirming that it has been providing support and assistance to Vietnam and has been cooperating with it, and will continue to do so, for its economic, scientific and cultural development, for the consolidation of its socialist gains and in the struggle to defend its national independence and sovereignty.

Visiting the Soviet Union during these days, we witnessed the arduous and creative labor movement to implement the resolutions of the 26th CPSU Congress. Labor achievements are publicized daily on television. The installation of the Urengoy gas pipeline has reached the 1,000th kilometer. Steady and stable progress has been made in many fields of the economy. But these are not without disadvantages. Unfavorable weather conditions affect crops and the grasslands.

At present as well as in the past, the Soviet Union has always been our close friend who has had profound sympathy for us and has helped us wholeheartedly and to the best of its ability. Comrade Brezhnev has remarked: The cooperation between the Soviet Union and Vietnam now encompasses all domains of political and economic life. As a matter of fact, never has the comprehensive cooperation between our two countries been so close as it is now, and both of us have reached an identity of views on all matters related to the common struggle.

Vietnam heartily welcomes the historic resolutions of the 26th CPSU Congress and resolutly supports the Soviet peace program and all important peace initiatives set forth by Comrade Brezhnev. At a time when our people are overcoming great ordeals in order to satisfactorily fulfill the two strategic tasks set by the Fifth VCP Congress -- successfully building socialism and defending the Vietnamese socialist fatherland against all hostile schemes and acts of the hegemonistic and expansionist forces within the Chinese ruling circles in collusion with the U.S. imperialists -- we are very delighted at the vigorous affirmation by Comrade Brezhnev: We know very well that nothing can shake the will of the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea to build a new life. They have on their side loyal and reliable friends, among them our Leninist party and our Soviet state.

The Vietnamese-Soviet single-mindedness vis-a-vis the policy toward China, the question of peace and stability in Southeast Asia, the question of common peace and security in the world and regional problems reaffirms that Vietnam and the Soviet Union share the same views on international issues and on the struggle to prevent the arms race, consolidate peace and support the revolutionary movement of the world's peoples.

The Soviet Union welcomes the SRV's positive activities in the international arena and highly appraises Vietnamese contributions to the struggle against imperialism, hegemonism and the reactionaries and for the consolidation of peace and security of nations.

Time has elevated Vietnamese-Soviet friendship to new heights. The tree of Vietnamese-Soviet friendship has grown deeper and bigger roots. The noble Order of Lenin which the Soviet party and state bestowed on Comrade Truong Chinh last spring, as well as the distinguished title of "honored citizen of heroic Kiev city" awareded to him on this visit, is a commendation for our venerated and beloved leader and speaks of the Soviet people's sincere love for our people. Everywhere we went, we heard brother Soviet people of all generations vigorously affirm that solidarity with Vietnam is the dictate of the heart and the mind of every Soviet citizen.

PRC SAID ACTING CONTRARY TO WORDS IN FOREIGN POLICY

[Unattributed article]

[Text] At the recent 12th Congress of the Chinese Communist Party, General Secretary Hu Yaobang said that China neither occupies an inch of land nor violates the sovereignty of any country. But, in fact, China occupies 37,000 square kilometers of land in Kashmir area of India. China also attempts to occupy the northern and northeastern areas of India, Nepal, and Bhutan to set up a corridor to protect China. The Indian newspaper PATRIOT reported that China is mustering its troops close to the Indian border and installing missile launchers in Tibet which can attack cities and towns in northern India. On the other hand, China continues to train and arm tribal reactionary groups operating in northeastern India and Afghan rebels. China also frequently conducts provocations at the Burmese-Chinese border, even in such areas lying deep inside Burma as Shan Highlands, Kayah, Karen and Mon [placenames as heard]. Its aim is to help rebellious organizations overthrow the Burmese Government. THE WALL STREET JOURNAL said that Burma has to bear the burden of the strongest rebellion. There is no indication that China would reduce its support for the rebels, even its supply of a large amount of money and weapons, the journal said.

Regarding Vietnam, China still occupies Hoang Sa Island. Since their defeat in the invasion of six northern Vietnamese border provinces in February 1979, Chinese troops have repeatedly carried out armed provocations along the Sino-Vietnamese border and sabotage activities against Laos.

These facts show that the Chinese leaders have been acting contrary to their words.

PHAM VAN DONG MESSAGE TO UN SCORES APARTHEID

OW112124 Hanoi VNA in English 1559 GMT 11 Oct 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, Oct. 11 -- Chairman of the Council of Ministers Pham Van Dong today sent a message to U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar and president of the U.N. Special Committee on the South African Government's policy of apartheid al-Hajj Doussuf Maitams Soule. The message says:

"The apartheid regime in South Africa, an odious, criminal regime, a stain on world civilization, is being strongly condemned by the whole mankind, which demands its abolition. It represses, terrorizes, detains without trial and eliminates combatants of the African National Congress (ANC) or any other people struggling for independence and freedom of South Africa. If this rotten regime still remains in power, it is only thanks to the support and encouragement of the imperialists and other reactionary forces".

The message vehemently condemns the South African apartheid regime and demands that the South African authorities release all political prisoners without any condition, cancel the death sentence they have handed out to three ANC combatants, in keeping with the resolution of the 37th session of the U.N. General Assembly, put an immediate end to every form of persecution of the South African people, restore independence to the Namibian people, and stop all acts of aggression and threat against the People's Republic of Angola and other front nations. The message reaffirms the Vietnamese people's and government's fraternal militant solidarity and resolute support to the South African people's just struggle under the leadership of the ANC for their independence and freedom and for peace and security in Africa and in the rest of the world.

MP WELCOMES HOLDRIDGE APPOINTMENT AS U.S. ENVOY

BK131349 Jakarta Domestic Service in Indonesian 1200 GMT 13 Oct 82

[Text] Amin Iskandar, a member of Parliament Commission-1 [in charge of defense, security and foreign affairs] today expressed his conviction that the Indonesian Government will welcome the appointment of U.S. Assistant Secretary of State John Holdridge as American ambassador to Indonesia. As assistant secretary of state, John Holdridge knows much about the aspirations of the ASEAN member countries, particularly Indonesia. It seems that the U.S. desire to know more about Indonesia's aspirations in the political, economic and defense sectors stems from its desire to further strengthen its friendly relationship with Indonesia.

SUHARTO CONCLUDES VISIT TO SPAIN, LEAVES FOR U.S.

Banquet Remarks Cited

BK081638 Jakarta Domestic Service in Indonesian 1200 GMT 8 Oct 82

[Excerpt] President Suharto has said that all nations in the world should be determined to build a more just world order in the political and economic fields, because the main source of current difficulties is the old world order which no longer suits the needs of modern times.

President Suharto made this remark in a speech at a state banquet hosted by King Juan Carlos in honor of President and Madame Suharto at the Oriente Palace on Thursday evening.

President Suharto, in his speech, also expressed the hope that nations in the world would respect each other's sovereignty on the basis of equality and noninterference in each other's domestic affairs and would develop mutually beneficial friendly relations.

Having touched on the achievements made by the Indonesian people in development, President Suharto said that to speed up the pace of development, Indonesia believed there was room for foreign cooperation along a course of development determined by the Indonesian people themselves.

In another part of his speech, the president praised the dramatic progress made in Spain in various modern industrial sectors.

Earlier, King Juan Carlos of Spain said that the role Indonesia played in Asia would make Indonesia one of the big powers of the 21st century. The Spanish king also highly valued economic development in Indonesia and Indonesia's role as one of the founders of the Nonaligned Movement.

Explains Timor Issue

BK091127 Jakarta ANTARA in English 1058 GMT 9 Oct 82

[Text] Madrid, October 9 (ANTARA) -- President Suharto in his discussions with Spanish Government leaders gave also an explanation on the integration of East Timor into Indonesian territory.

Minister/State Secretary Sudharmono in his statement to the press in Madrid Friday evening said that President Suharto had requested the Spanish Government leaders to explain to the Portuguese side the reasons which led to the integration of East Timor into Indonesian territory in 1975.

"This is for Portugal's own interest, if they (Portugal) see for themselves the progress made in East Timor during the eight years of development there. As such they will be able to see the difference in progress made during eight years compared to the hundreds of years of Portuguese colonial rule over the regions," the state secretary said. Minister Sudharmono further said that the Spanish Government had received the explanation on the integration of East Timor, an appeal of the Indonesian side, favourably.

President Suharto Thursday had discussions with Spanish Prime Minister Calvo Sotelo, which was part of the program of President Suharto's state visit to Spain from October 7 through 10, 1982.

Meanwhile, in his statement to the press Friday evening Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said that he had discussed the possibility of cooperation in the cultural field with his Spanish counterpart, Jose Pedro Perez Llorca.

"Spain is desirous to have a cooperation agreement in the cultural field, but even without an agreement, cooperation in this field between the two countries can be carried out," Minister Mokhtar said. "Spain has expressed its desire that the Spanish language be taught at school in Indonesia", he added.

Joint Press Statement Issued

BK101357 Jakarta Domestic Service in Indonesian 1200 GMT 10 Oct 82

During their meeting the two heads of government expressed the desires of the two nations to take concrete steps to fruther promote bilateral cooperation, particularly in the field of economy, technology and science. The two heads of government expressed concern about various international issues and expressed the hope that peaceful steps would be taken soon to overcome these issues.

President Sunarto and his party today left Granada, Spain, for a visit to the United States, which will last until 15 October.

MALIK RECEIVES VISITING FRENCH MINISTER QUILLIOT

BK091433 Jakarta OANA in English 1338 GMT 9 Oct 82

[Text] Jakarta, Oct 9 (ANTARA/OANA) -- Vice President Adam Malik has expressed hope that good relations between Indonesia and France would be stepped up into French participation in Indonesian development projects. He conveyed that hope to French Housing and Urbanization Minister Roger Quilliot when the latter paid a courtesy call on him Saturday at his residence at Jalan Diponegoro.

With the vice president, Quilliot discussed matters relating to the enhancement of the relations between the two countries, especially in the fields of public works, housing and clean water supply.

Junior Minister for People's Housing Kosmas Batubara, who accompanied Quilliot for the meeting with Adam Malik, told reporters a memorandum of mutual understanding had been signed between Quilliot and Public Works Minister Purnomosidi Hajisaroso Friday. The question now was how to actualize this understanding in the form of cooperation in development projects, Kosmas said. In the field of clean water supply, Indonesia will ask for the assistance of French experts, he said. With the heightening of development activities in the country, on a budget of Rp. 118 billion (one U.S. dollar equals Rp. 670) this year, Indonesia would need a great number of experts he said.

Under the agreement signed Friday, France will take part in training and educating Indonesian personnel in the field of public works. These Indonesian personnel will be sent to France for training. France would also help finance projects for the expansion of water supply.

In the field of housing, France could also participate in the development of urban satellite areas, Kosmas said. It would be possible for French companies to establish joint ventures in Indonesia for housing construction purposes, he added.

COMMONWEALTH CONFERENCE OPENS IN FIJI 14 OCT

Law of Sea on Agenda

BK131609 Hong Kong AFP in English 1321 GMT 13 Oct 82

[Excerpts] Suva (Fiji), Oct. 13 (AFP) -- by Frank Chamberlain -- Australia and New Zealand are disappointed because Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi is not among the delegates who have arrived for the Commonwealth heads of government regional meeting which begins here tomorrow. There were strong hopes expressed by both countries that Mrs Gandhi might be able to come at the last minute. Indian Foreign Minister Narasinha Rao is expected to be a lively debater on the major topics of economic development and in promoting a consensus of opinion among Commonwealth countries in the Asian-Pacific region on world topics.

During his opening speech Mr Fraser is expected to announce tomorrow that Australia still regards Papua-New Guinea, its former trusteeship territory, as its chief priority of responsibility for aid. He will point, however, to Australian participation in the physical development of Fiji as evidence, on the spot, that Australian economic aid has turned from words into deeds in the Pacific.

Disappointment at the absence of the Indian political leader is tempered by the presence of Malaysian Prime Minister Datuk Sri Dr. Mahathir Mohamed who declined to attend the full Commonwealth heads of government meeting in Melbourne last year because it was too soon after his election in Malaysia.

No specific agenda has been prepared, but Australian officials told AFP today that the whole future of the Law of the Sea in the Pacific would be discussed in the hope that regional views could be assembled in the conference communique as friendly pressure on the United States to agree to the draft of the International Law of the Sea. An unofficial subject will be the possibility of Pakistan re-entering the Commonwealth. Both Australia and New Zealand are interested in this being explored, but they will be influenced strongly by India's view. The 17 nations whose delegates have arrived are Australia, Bangladesh, Fiji, India, Kiribati, Malaysia, Maldives, Nauru, New Zealand, Papua-New Guinea, Singapore, Solomon Islands, Sri Lanka (represented by government officials), Tonga, Tuvalu, Vanuatu and Western Samoa.

Focus on Economic Situation

BK140219 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0100 GMT 14 Oct 82

[Text] There has been widespread pessimism on the world economy at the opening in Fiji of the Commonwealth heads of government regional meeting. The Australian prime minister, Mr Fraser, told the meeting in Suva that there were prospects of continuing world recession despite recent signs of an improvement in the economy of the United States. Mr Fraser said there was a need for the developed and the developing nations to act together to fight trade protectionism. He described the liberalization of current trade restrictions as possibly the only way to regenerate growth within the industrialized countries.

Other leaders were equally pessimistic, with the Commonwealth secretary general, Shridath Ramphal, describing the present international situation as probably more unstable than at any time since World War II. Fiji's prime minister, Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara, also blamed trade protectionism for present world economic problems and he warned there was a danger that the developing countries could assume a merely peripheral place in the economies of the affluent nations.

Fraser Warns of Soviet Aid

BK141255 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 1130 GMT 14 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Australia's Prime Minister Fraser has warned small Pacific island countries to resist efforts by the Soviet Union to buy political influence through aid. Fraser was speaking at the third Commonwealth heads of government regional meeting which opened in the Fiji capital, Suva, today.

He said the island countries should not be placed in a position where they needed to worry about being pulled in different directions by great power rivalry and in that context he warned them to be wary of Soviet aid.

Concern Over U.S. Trade Policy

BK150812 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0500 GMT 15 Oct 82

[Excerpt] Small island countries have told the third Commonwealth heads of government regional meeting that they are concerned about aspects of United States' trade policies. The spokeswoman for the conference, Patsy Robertson, said Pacific countries, in particular, were concerned that if they had to trade with the Soviet bloc, their actions might be seen by the Western countries as a sellout. She said the island countries were concerned about being taken for granted, misunderstood or ignored, and wanted very much to be taken seriously. Mrs Robertson said that while they accepted the need for strong Western alliance and a strong United States, they were worried about the trade policies of America.

Maritime Cooperation Sought

[Text] Australia has suggested regional cooperation on maritime matters among Commonwealth countries in Asia and the Pacific. The prime minister, Mr Fraser, said the suggestion had been made at the third Commonwealth heads of government regional meeting now underway in the Fiji capital, Suva. Speaking in Suva, Mr Fraser said a regional working party on maritime matters could coordinate cooperation in areas such as coastal surveillance, fishing, maritime research and application of the Law of the Sea. He said maritime matters was only one field in which there could be regional cooperation among Commonwealth members. Other fields included industrial matters, energy, trade and agricultural research. Mr Fraser said there was very strong support for regional cooperation which was the main issue to be discussed at the meeting. He said regional cooperation could help minimize the effects of the global economic recession on member countries.

Mr Fraser and New Zealand's Prime Minister Mr Muldoon have disagreed at the meeting on whether a world monetary conference is needed to restructure the international financial system. Mr Muldoon favors the gathering like the Bretton Woods conference which established a world monetary system in 1944. But Mr Fraser said today that it would be better to wait until the Commonwealth finance minsters completed a study they began last month. Earlier, Radio Australia correspondent in Suva quoted officials at the meeting as saying that most other delegates see merits in Mr Muldoon's plan.

Mahathir Raps Developed States

[Excerpt] Malaysia has criticized developed countries for their exploitative methods under the guise of a free enterprise system. Prime Minister Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir regrets that such activities will only lead to the destruction of the system. He calls on these countries to undertake a thorough soul searching examination, increasing their own productivity without such exploitative tendencies. Only then could the developed countries begin to sincerely appreciate the problems of the poor nations and the need to resolve them urgently.

The prime minister was speaking at the heads of Commonwealth regional meeting in Suva, Fiji. Datuk Sri Dr Mahathir goes on to say that countries in the Pacific should work together at their own direction. He cites the example that ASEAN has become successful because there is a definite sense of direction.

[Melbourne Overseas Service in English at 0800 GMT on 15 October adds: "Malaysia's Prime Minister Dr Mahathir today questioned the future of the Commonwealth of Nations and accused Western powers of exploiting developing countries." "He said the Commonwealth was now under test and the poorer nations have to receive more help in order for it to be revitalized"]

LDP LEADERS MEET ON SUZUKI SUCCESSOR

OW150753 Tokyo KYODO in English 0736 GMT 15 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 15, KYODO -- Three leaders of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party(LDP) Friday met to try to pick Prime Minister and LDP President Zenko Suzuki's successor but failed to bury their differences. But the three -- Suzuki, former Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda and Secretary General Susumu Nikaido -- agreed to meet again later Friday, LDP sources said. The main stumbling block to a smoother transfer of power from Suzuki, who surprised the nation Tuesday by announcing he was stepping down, to someone is the rivalry among party leaders.

Speaking at a meeting of LDP members of the Diet (parliament), Suzuki called for an end to the rivalry in selecting his successor. "We, as a party responsbile for running state affairs, should sweep out distrust and establish an all-party setupfor the inauguration of a fresh government," the 71-year-old Suzuki said. The conservative party is to announce the holding of a presidential election Saturday which is opposed by the party's "mainstream" factions because it could deepen party divisions.

Japanese newspapers Friday continued to give prominence to speculation on Suzuki's successor. They were in agreement on speculating that Yasuhiro Nakasone, Cabinet minister in charge of the Administrative Management Agency, is ahead of the other presidential rivals. Nakasone, 63, is reportedly supported by three mainstream factions led by former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, Suzuki and himself. His rivals, belonging to "nonmainstream" factions, are Toshio Komoto, Cabinet meeting and head of the Economic Planning Agency, Shintaro Abe, minister of international Trade and Industry, and Ichiro Nakagawa, Cabinet minister in charge of science and technology. Some papers said Friday under a Nakasone administration, Komoto might be given the post of party vice president, and Abe party secretary general, the No. 2 post in the party. The mainstream faction controls 244 Diet members and the nonmainstream factions 132. There are 44 nonaffiliates.

GOVERNMENT ADOPTS PACKAGE TO BOOST BUSINESS

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 8, KYODO -- The government Friday adopted a yen 2.07 trillion (dollar 7.7 billion) package to perk up sluggish business activity. The package, featuring increased spending on public works, would push up the nation's economic growth rate for fiscal 1982 to 3.4 percent in real terms from the 2.7 percent as projected unofficially, a government spokesman estimated. The reflationary program also calls for the extension of increased loans and other help to small businesses feeling the pinch of the protracted slump, and additional relief for structurally depressed industries, such as aluminum and lumber. The package further provides for various measures to secure and promote employment, including the furnishing of subsidies to prevent businesses from dismissing workers. The package calls for:

-- Yen 750 billion (dollar 2.79 billion) spending on the reconstruction of areas hit hard by typhoons and heavy downpours;

-- Yen 1.02 trillion (dollar 3.79 billion) in additional spending on public works, and

-- Yen 300 billion (dollar 1.12 billion) in additional financing to promote private housing construction and rebuilding.

At the meeting of the Ministerial Council on Economic Afffairs, in which the package was adopted, Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki described it as the best program that could be drawn up under current harsh conditions. He instructed the ministers in charge to make every effort to carry out the package steadily and successfully.

Commenting on the package, Toshio Komoto, director general of the Economic Planning Agency, told reporters that it was intended only to cope with the economic situation in the latter half of the current fiscal year. He said the Economic Council, an advisory body to the prime minister, was now drawing up a new five-year economic plan, and that an outline of this plan would be completed in December, indicating the medium-term course of the Japanese economy. Komoto said the Japanese economy would begin heading for stable growth after the plan was implemented and placed on the track.

International Trade and Industry Minister Shintaro Abe said the government's economy-stimulating package devoid of an investment tax credit for small and medium enterprises is not perfect but ''cannot be helped'' in the present difficult state of public finances. ''It (the package) would be meaningful,'' Abe said, ''if it could help the country achieve a 3.4 percent economic growth in the current fiscal year.'' He hinted that current economic conditions would not allow the government to arrange an additional package of reflationary measures in the current fiscal year ending March 31, 1983.

At the ministerial council meeting, Finance Minister Michio Watanabe said that the fiscal management policy would be modified after the government draws up a new long-term economic plan in December, government sources said. He made the remark after Ichiro Nakagawa, director general of the Science and Technology Agency, asked Watanabe whether the additional spending on public works would have adverse effects on steering of the national economy in fiscal 1983. It has been the target of the Suzuki government to end budgetary dependence on deficit-financing bonds in fiscal 1984. The sources interpreted Watanabe's remark as indicating that the administration would modify the target soon.

Business leaders generally reacted to the government's action with much skepticism. The sole exception was Shigeo Nagano, president of the Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry, whose members are mostly smaller businessess. Nagano, an advocate of a massive public works spending, said he welcomed the new package. But he added he found the amount of public works spending as contained in the package rather insufficient and expressed displeasure at the absence of a new investment tax credit for smaller businesses, which he had strongly called for.

Yoshihiro Inayama, president of the Federation of Economic Organizations (Keidanren), described the package as a ''stopgap'' measure which he said he will not solve various troubles the Japanese economy faces. ''The first thing the government should do is to bring about political stability and push ahead administrative and fiscal reform,'' Inayama said.

Tadashi Sasaki, chairman of the Japan Committee for Economic Development (Keizai Doyukai), said the package was politically motivated. ''I'm rather skeptical it will help stir up the whole economy,'' he said.

KYODO INTERVIEWS GOVERNMENT ECONOMIST YOSHITOMI

OW130453 Tokyo KYODO in English 0422 GMT 13 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 13, KYODO -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's ''emergency declaration'' on the Japanese fiscal deficit recently caused ripples internationally when U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan interpreted it as meaning the Japanese economy is in crisis. Regan used this to explain the plummeting value of the yen on foreign exchange markets, evoking a string of protests from Japanese officials insisting the Japanese economy is healthy. One was Dr. Masaru Yoshitomi, senior research economist with the Economic Planning Agency, who spoke with KYODO's Yasushi Watanabe amd Roslyn Hayman recently. Extracts follow:

KYODO: Is the Japanese economy in crisis?

Yoshitomi: If it is, what would be the state of the rest of the world? The U.S. economy would be a disaster.

Q: Then what was the crisis Suzuki was referring to?

A: Japan's budget deficit is very big -- around 6 percent of GNP. But the question is whether this is generating crisis conditions in the Japanese economy or not. Two notorious possible effects of high deficits -- high inflation and crowding out phenomenon -- are not happening in Japan.

Q: In that case, why is the government so concerned to reduce the deficit?

A: It is potential problems for the future that we are concerned about. The high fiscal deficit means, under whatever beautiful name of welfare you call it, that we Japanese are eating and drinking beyond our means. And eating and drinking can't produce the equivalent of the interest we have to pay on national bonds to finance this deficit.

Japan's population is aging rapidly and in another 20 years we will be paying pensions -- usually intended to support minorities -- to a majority of our population. We have seen the problems this causes in other advanced countries. Japan needs to take action now, while our economy is reasonably healthy by international standards. Otherwise, if we wait too long, the adjustment process will be too painful.

Q: Prime Minister Suzuki staked his political career on achieving a balanced budget by 1984.

A: When we set that deadline, in 1979, we assumed annual inflation-adjusted GNP growth of around 5 percent -- and even then it would take strenuous efforts to remove the deficit. But now we have economic growth of around 3 percent. And government outlay -- largely because of increased welfare spending -- has risen from around 20 percent of GNP in the early 1970 to around 33 percent today. So in that sense there could occur critical conditions in the Japanese economy arising from an enlarged structural deficit, in turn caused by unexpected slower growth due to worldwide recession. But we haven't yet had a crisis as such.

Q: How then is this related to the yen?

A: The yen's weakness has nothing to do with this. There have been three stages in the weakening of the yen over the past 18 months. First we ascribed it to the high "real" long-term interest rates in the United States, causing a net outflow of long-term capital out of Japan. Then when U.S. interest rates began to decline somewhat, and the yen's weakness still prevailed, some experts linked this with capital gain, saying lower interest rates will lead to higher bond prices so that people seek capital gains by investing in U.S. bonds. Now we are in the third stage. On top of exchange transactions and investment in the U.S. bond market, both of which are bound to be speculative, you now have what we call the "bandwagon" psychological effect. It's very difficult to find economic reasons for the yen's weakness. All we can do is say in retrospect: "Oh, this is due to the safety haven in the United States, the international financial crisis, worldwide political uncertainty and so on."

Q: How is the yen's decline affecting the economy?

A: An interesting thing about the yen's weakness is that it is occurring amid worldwide recession in which primary commodity prices, including petroleum, are falling in dollar terms. In other words, the possible inflationary effects of the weakened yen are being offset by lower import prices. Japan's exports are down, and that is a reflection of the worldwide situation, but even from our own viewpoint this is welcome, because whenever our exports expand too rapidly we see the emergence of strengthened protectionism, which is really harmful for the world economy as a whole.

Some experts say Japan's recovery should rely on export expansion, but in the present circumstances that doesn't make any sense.

Q: What steps should Japan take to promote recovery?

A: First we should specify what kind of recession we are now in. This is not a major recession caused by sharp decline in plant and equipment investment -- there has been some weakening, but no serious decline yet in private fixed capital formation -- but rather a minor inventory recession caused by the second oil crisis. In that sense it is better to rely on the built-in stabilizer of this year's budget. The government's newly announced package of stimulative measures should be understood in the context of overall action taken by the prime minister -- including the freezing of civil servants' salaries.

All in all, actual money to be spent for new stimulative measures will be only slightly more than the amount to be cut down in the salary freeze. In other words the overall effect is rather neutral. On the other hand, if we generated an intentional deficit by adopting discretionary Keynesian policies, I am afraid that crowding out phenomena would result.

Q: Can Japan achieve the government's revised fiscal 1982 economic growth prediction of 3.4 percent?

A: I don't know whether we can achieve that growth rate or not. But this is the best policy we can make. I leave it to the forecasters.

FINANCE MINISTRY SOURCES WARN OF MONEY SHORTAGE

OW140354 Tokyo KYODO in English 0343 GMT 14 Oct 82

[Text] Tokyo, Oct 14, KYODO -- The nation may face a serious financial pinch in November following Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's decision to resign, Finance Ministry sources said Thursday. His sudden resignation threatens early Diet approval of a supplementary budget for fiscal 1982, mainly designed to cut spending in the face of a swelling fiscal deficit, they said.

Tax revenue shortfalls in the fiscal year ending next March are estimated at more than yen 6 trillion (dollar 22.6 billion).

The sources said the supplementary budget bill calls for additional flotation of deficit-covering bonds worth yen 3.9 trillion (dollar 14.6 billion). It also calls for such spending-curtailing measures as a cut by yen 1.6 trillion (dollar 6 billion) in the amount of subsidies to local governments.

If the appointment of Suzuki's successor as the president of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party and the prime minister takes time and results in slow Diet passage of the budget bill, the sources observed, the government will have to pay yen 2 trillion (dollar 7.5 billion) in such subsidies as is called for in the original fiscal 1982 budget. In addition, the government needs to disburse yen 1.3 trillion (dollar 4.9 billion) next month for payment of interest on government bonds.

It can cover any short-term fund shortages through flotation of treasury bills (TB's), but it already issues such bills amounting to yen 7.2 trillion (dollar 27 billion) between May and June, against the TB issue ceiling of yen 7.4 trillion (dollar 27.8 billion) in fiscal 1982, the sources said.

RPR Message to Kim Il-song

[10 October congratulatory message from the Central Committee of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification on 37th anniversary of the founding of the KWP -- read by announcer]

[Text] To the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the founder and leader of the chuche party:

Members of our Revolutionary Party for Reunification [RPR] who are courageously carrying out the anti-U.S. struggle for independence and antifascist struggle for democracy under the brilliant banner of glorious Kimilsongism are significantly greeting the 37th anniversary of the founding of the KWP -- the great chuche-type party -- on the arduous clandestine battlefield.

The RPR Central Committee extends the boundless honor and warmest congratulations to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the founder and leader of the KWP -- the flag bearer of the chuche era and glorious vanguard -- reflecting the unanimous reverence and warm wishes of loyalty of all the revolutionaries and patriotic people in the South on the occasion of the auspicious party birthday.

Comrade Kim Il-song, the great sun of chuche, embarked on the road of revolution in early days in the flames of the bloody anti-Japanese revolution, illuminating the road of the chuche era -- a new era in the development of history -- with the signal fire of chuche and constructing a deep and solid foundation of the chuche-type party that will lead the times and the revolution. Under complicated circumstances after national liberation, you founded the KWP, a new revolutionary party, for the first time in the history of the communist movement.

The founding of the KWP was an announcement of the birth of a revolutionary party of chuche type guided by the chuche idea and a historic event that heralded the efflorescence and development of the era of independence.

You, the great leader, the genius of revolution and construction and master of leadership, have led the KWP over the past 37 years, pulling through the storms of manifold obstacles and ordeals, creating a new history of miracles that stir mankind in the struggle for independence, sovereignty and socialist construction and performing great exploits that will shine forever on the highest peak of the era.

The great leader, the tested and outstanding leader of the KWP -- an ever-victorious guiding banner -- accomplishing the revolution for democracy and the socialist revolution and the cause of socialist industrialization, founded a mighty socialist country with independence, self-reliance and self-defense and with a most superior chuche socialist system. You also opened up the brilliant era of the Workers Party when Korea is unprecedentedly prosperous and the independence of mankind is esteemed to the maximum extent.

The KWP, which is embodying the great leader's ideas and leadership in a most brilliant way, is effecting heroic exploits that will be endlessly radiant in history in the lofty course of implementing the programs of Kimilsongism in the entire society.

The leader, party and masses are firmly united with one another in the chuche fatherland and the new speed of the 80's is being created under the banner of the three revolutions for the final victory of socialism. The monumental creations shining in the era of the Workers Party are being raised more magnificently. All this is the precious result of the leadership of the glorious KWP, which is realizing the profound ideas of the great leader.

In the course of making a victorious advance through the most rigorous storms of revolution under the wise leadership of you, the great leader, the KWP has grown stronger and developed into a steel-like revolutionary detachment that has perfectly achieved monolithic unity and cohesion based on the chuche idea, an experienced and authoritative general staff of revolution always leading the revolution and construction to a great upsurge without vacillation in any adversity and the Kimilsongist party with a bright prospect that is stoutly carrying forward the vein of chuche.

In particular, it is the greatest victory to be proud of down through generations that the KWP has laid a solid organizational and ideological foundation for brilliantly inheriting the revolutionary cause of chuche, started by you, the respected leader.

In the long history of the communist movement, spanning more than one hundred years, the party that has most perfectly solved the question of inheriting the leader's revolutionary cause, the fundamental, decisive question of the future destiny of the party and revolution, and is advancing along a straight path towards the final victory of the revolutionary cause started by you, is only the glorious KWP.

You, the great leader who has taken the helm of the era of independence, are leading the world revolution along the road of independence, thereby making a distinguished contribution to the unity and cohesion, the strength and development of the international communist movement and the Nonaligned Movement.

Highly revering you, the great leader, as the sun of mankind illuminating the road of the era and the outstanding leader of the world revolutionary movement and the Nonaligned Movement for the great world-historic feats performed by you for mankind, the world people are further intensifying the struggle to create an independent, new world holding aloft the banner of ever-victorious Kimilsongism.

Indeed, the glorious path that the KWP has traversed has proven that there will be no targets that cannot be attained and that miracles creating something from nothing can happen as long as the great leader and the party led by him exist.

Struggling in a dignified manner, regarding the endlessly prospering chuche fatherland as a lighthouse of hope and boundlessly encouraged by the glorious victory attained by the KWP, RPR members are vigorously waging the sacred, nation-saving anti-U.S. struggle.

The nation-saving anti-U.S. struggle, which has been rapidly stepped up throughout South Korea with enraged voices demanding the withdrawal of Yankees, is the manifestation of the firm will of the South Korean revolutionaries and people, who have grasped with their blood the meaning of the might of the spirit of anti-U.S., independence, democracy and reunification.

Although the U.S. imperialists and their bunch of stooges are desperately running amok to quench the flames of the movement for democratization and against fascism by using unprecedentedly barbarous suppressive means, no force can block the future path of our party and people of all walks of life who have resolutely risen, correctly realizing the justness of their cause.

Struggling by more highly raising the banner of great Kimilsongism -- a guiding banner in the era of independence and a sole guiding idea of the revolution for reunification -- is a decisive guarantee for achieving the final victory of the anti-U.S. national liberation struggle.

By accelerating in various ways the work of imbuing the party and the revolutionary ranks and by fostering a great chuche revolutionary force by indoctrinating the broad strata of the people with the chuche idea, our party will end the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule, will build its new society and will expedite the fatherland's reunification -- the long-cherished desire of the people.

Reflecting the unanimous desire of the South Korean revolutionaries and patriotic people, the Central Committee of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification respectfully wishes the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the genius of the revolution, an ideological and theoretical master, the symbol of freedom and liberation and the sun of mankind, a long life and good health for the sake of the victory of the revolution for reunification, the completion of the chuche cause, the strengthening and the development of the KWP and the prosperity of the Kim Il-song era.

[Signed] The Central Committee of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification

The founding of the KWP was a historic declaration which marked the birth of the first chuche-type revolutionary party remaking society and nature and remodeling man on the basis of the immortal Kimilsongism, and of the grand march. It was a noteworthy revolutionary event which carries epoch-making significance in the history of communist movement.

On reflection, the proud path of the KWP, which was born under the tested leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and has won victory after victory, has been an annal of feats in which the most rigorous difficulties and hardships have been surmounted and in which every stage has been embroidered with the most shining victory and glory, and the path has been the one of immortal epic which opened up the broad road for the brilliant succession and consummation of the chuche cause and the eternal prosperity and development of the chuche era.

Because the sagacious leader Comrade Kim Chong-il, the sacred guiding star of chuche, as well as the highest paragon of the great Kimilsongists, is leading in the van, the KWP is recording more in the shining annals of chuche.

The dear comrade leader, who possesses loyalty to the great leader at the loftiest level and is brilliantly embodying the leader's ideas and leadership, has made great immortal achievements for time, the revolution, the fatherland and the nation by leading the KWP into becoming ever-victorious ranks.

The sagacious comrade leader, the genius of ideology and theory, has extraordinarily developed and enriched the theory on the building of chuche party and consolidated as firm as a rock the organizational and ideological foundations of the KWP by putting forth, as the key issue in consummating the chuche cause, the matter of forever strengthening and developing the KWP into the party of Kimilsongism and by pushing ahead with the work of substantially making the entire party Kimilsongism-oriented.

By strengthening and developing the KWP into invincible ranks which are firmly united and rallied, with the respected and beloved leader as the centripetal point, and into loyal ranks of Kimilsongism which are endlessly having the revolution and construction leap forward in conformity with the leader's will [pakryok] and intention, the sagacious comrade leader, the outstanding artist of leadership, has provided the source of boundless power which brings into fuller bloom the era of the Workers Party.

Because today it holds in high esteem the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader and the dear Comrade Kim Chong-il as the sagacious leader, the KWP is attaining fruitful results in the struggle to advance the complete victory of socialism by extraordinarily accelerating the three revolutions under the resplendent rays of the program of imbuing the whole society with Kimilsongism. It is unfolding the broad road of more shining prosperity of chuche socialist power by generating the gale-like winds of the miracle of creating the speed of the 1980's -- the new speed of advance.

The functions celebrating the 70th anniversary of the birth of the respected and beloved leader, which were grandly held last April -- a meaningful time -- in the midst of the blessing of the people and the times, were spectacular scenes which forcefully displayed to the world the national dignity and pride of the KWP members and the brothers in the North who live and carry out revolutions, holding in high esteem the excellent leader and the sagacious leader [kolchulhan suryonggwa yongmyonghan chidoja] and which forcefully displayed the aspects of the advance of the glorious KWP -- the ranks of loyalty which dye the entire society one color with the leader's great idea under the sacred guidance of the comrade leader [chidoja tongji] and lead with confidence all the people toward the most ideal land of mankind.

The sagacious comrade leader, the shining sun of communism, is leading the international communist movement and the world revolution to victory with the brilliant model of the KWP which has made great achievements and achieved rich experiences in the revolution and construction for sovereignty, independence and socialism by more resplendently illuminating the direction of the times and the revolution with Kimilsongism -- the great guiding ideology whose truth and justness were corroborated in the practical struggle.

Because the chuche sun and the chuche guiding star emit shining rays over the world, the prestige of the KWP is enhanced with each passing day and the people's respect and admiration for the respected and beloved leader and the dear comrade leader flow over the universe.

The dignified looks of the advancing KWP -- which is running in the foremost van of the chuche era, holding high in the sky the banner of the great Kimilsongism -- eloquently establish the fact that when it is under the excellent guidance of a sagacious leader, the cause of the outstanding leader who pioneered the dawn of the revolution is brilliantly inherited and that the party founded by the leader leads the revolution and construction to the glorious victory, holding its leader in high esteem forever, and it advances, full of ambitious spirit and zeal, looking forward to a promising future.

In reality, the dear Comrade Kim Chong-il, whom the nation and the mankind look up to, is the great guide of the glorious party of Kimilsongism, the outstanding representative of Kimilsongists of our era and the shining symbol of victory and glory.

The dignity and pride of the Kimilsongists lie in, and the ultimate victory of chuche revolution is firmly promised in, upholding the dear leader comrade Kim Chong-il, who is glorifying the revolutionary cause of the great leader.

Because of this great pride and honor, we revolutionaries and patriotic masses in the South are waging a bold anti-U.S. resistance, overflowing with a conviction in victory and indomitable fighting spirit even under the violent gale of fascism.

The anti-U.S. struggle, which our party and the masses are now waging on a nationwide scale, is a sacred struggle to establish a new social system vibrant with the life of independence and creativity in the southern colonized land and to speed up the fatherland's reunification -- the long-cherished desire of the nation.

We, who are being greatly encouraged and inspired by the dazzling achievements and victories the KWP has won by embodying the immortal chuche idea under the guidance of the sagacious leader, will force the withdrawal of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces from this land, end their colonial rule, overthrow the military fascist ring, establish an independent government and will certainly advance the new day of democracy and reunification by more fiercely setting ablaze the anti-U.S. and pro-independence flames, holding higher the banner of the great Kimilsongism.

Although the future road of revolution is more rigorous than the past road of struggle, the revolution for reunification, which advances looking up to the chuche sun and the chuche guiding star, is ever-victorious.

Reflecting the ardent wish of all revolutionaries and the patriotic masses in the South who are strenuously marching forward toward the peak of victory of the revolution for reunification, looking up to the chuche guiding star, the Central Committee of the RPR respectfully wishes the long life and good health to the sagacious leader of the nation Comrade Kim Chong-il -- the highest paragon of the great Kimilsongists [widaehan kimilsongjuuija], the genius of creation and construction and the shining sun of communism -- for the ultimate victory of the fatherland's reunification and chuche cause, for the strengthening and development of the party of Kimilsongism and for the eternal prosperity of the era of Kim Il-song and Kim Chong-il.

VRPR Roundtable Talk

SK121309 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korea to South Korea 1000 GMT 9 Oct 82

[Roundtable talk: "The KWP, the Vanguard Party of Chuche" from the "Today's Feature" program on the occasion of the 37th anniversary of KWP founding]

[Text] [First speaker] How are you? As we know, 10 October is a significant day marking the 37th anniversary of the founding of the KWP, the great Kimilsongist party, which is standing in the spotlight of the world people as the vanguard of chuche.

Marking this day, members of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification [RPR] and patriotic masses of people are compelled to look back with deep emotion on the proud path traversed by the KWP, which has performed immortal exploits in the history of the nation and the history of the liberation of mankind, thereby showing its name to the world.

So, in this hour I would like to talk with you about this. Let us talk about the founding of the KWP first.

[Second speaker] The KWP proclaimed its founding to the world on 10 October 1945. Though its founding was at that time, its historic roots can be considered to be very deep. Based on the immortal chuche idea, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who embarked on the road of revolutionary struggle in his early days, formed the down-with-imperialism union, the first revolutionary organization of a chuche-type, on 17 October 1926 and proclaimed to the world a new start in the revolution of our country.

At that time, the KWP, a chuche-type party, began to take glorious root. These historic roots firmly developed and were deepened as an eternal foundation stone in the flames of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle.

Thanks to these historic roots, even under so difficult and complicated circumstances right after liberation, the cause of founding the party could be achieved without (?delay). So, it can be said that the founding of the KWP was not only a brilliant fruition of the energetic struggle of the great leader to build a revolutionary party in the early period of his embarking on the road of revolution but was also the great birth of a revolutionary party of new type, the party of Comrade Kim Il-song.

With the founding of the revolutionary party of a chuche-type, the working class and working people of our country came to possess their mighty vanguard and general staff of the revolution and to victoriously pioneer a glorious road of the revolution for the victory in the chuche cause.

From this time, a glorious era shining with great changes and creation began to be unfolded in the North.

[Third speaker] We can say that traversing its proud road under the wise leadership of the great leader, the KWP which was founded has achieved remarkable successes in the revolution and construction. What do you think?

[Second speaker] In the history of the party, 30-odd years cannot be said to be a long period. But, in this period the party has achieved great achievements in the implementation of its sacred cause for the freedom and happiness of the people and for the grandeur and prosperity of the country.

The KWP frustrated the aggressive ambitions of the U.S. aggressors and their stooges and defended the honor of the fatherland and the sovereignty of the nation. It also led the two phases of social revolution and socialist construction to victory, thereby transforming the North into a powerful socialist country of independence, self-reliance and self-defense. Thus, it has built the North into a utopia to which the people of the world are looking up.

Besides these, the KWP has put forward most reasonable and fair reunification proposals at every period and every phase to achieve the burning desire of the nation and has unfolded an indomitable struggle. Thus, it has opened a bright prospect for reunification.

[First speaker] I think that the KWP has performed great exploits in the building of the party and its activities, too.

[Second speaker] The great leader has set forth revolutionary theories and policies for building the party and has brilliantly led in their implementation. As a result, the party has been able to more firmly consolidate its ranks organizationally and ideologically. Thus, through this course, the party has been able to be further strengthened and developed as the invincible vanguard of revolution.

The chuche-oriented theory and policies for building the party have been embodied with greater expertise by the dear Comrade Kim Chong-il. As a result, today the KWP has entered a new higher stage in its development. Through his extraordinary ideological and theoretical activities and energetic guidance, he has further strengthened and developed the KWP into the party of the great leader.

[Third speaker] This is precisely a policy to imbue the entire party with Kimilsongism. Isn't it?

[Second speaker] That's right. The dear Comrade Kim Chong-il has led all party members to become the core elements of Kimilsongism and has led them to carry out the party activities thoroughly in accordance with the ideology, theory and method of the great leader. As a result, the work to imbue the entire party with Kimilsongism has been conducted successfully.

[First speaker] With the progress in imbuing the entire party with Kimilsongism, I think, the party has been strongly rallied around the great leader and the dear comrade leader. What do you think?

[Second speaker] As we know well, to really consolidate the cohesion and unity of the party and to make the party vigorous, the party should be firmly united under one ideology, which is the leader's ideology, and should be strongly rallied around (?the leader). This is the life of the working class and is the source of [words indistinct].

Therefore, recognizing it as a factor determining the destiny of the party and the destiny of the revolution to achieve the cohesion and unity of the party around the leader, based on the revolutionary ideology of the great leader, the party has concentrated all possible efforts on this.

As a result, today the KWP has achieved highest cohesion and unity and greatest cohesion and unity. Such cohesion and unity are precisely those based on the burning loyalty of absolutely trusting and following the great leader and the dear comrade leader.

Because of this great cohesion and unity, the might of the party is invincible and the victory of the revolution is certain. Thanks to the great cohesion and unity of the party, the political and ideological cohesion and unity of the (?people) have been firmly achieved in the North today. The North has been changed into a society in which all the people are firmly united as a harmonious family under the chuche idea. Therefore, I think that the cohesion and unity in rallying around the great leader and the dear comrade leader and the cohesion and unity of all the people are the solid foundation of the society of the North and the source of the invincible might which the party is demonstrating in the revolution and construction.

[Third speaker] As the work to imbue the entire party with Kimilsongism has made progress, all successes attained in party building and party activities of the party have given perfect answers to all the theoretical and practical problems arising in this work, including the policy to make all party members into cadres. Based on these successes, the party has been further strengthened and developed. What do you think about this?

[Second speaker] Yes, that is true. Thanks to the energetic guidance of the dear Comrade Kim Chong-il, today the KWP has been changed into an ever-victorious and iron-like party. The work system of the party has been firmly established. A strong revolutionary discipline has been established among the party organizations. The revolutionary work method and popular work style are sweeping the entire party. Thus, successes attained in party building and party activities are countless.

[First speaker] Because of this, today the KWP has become a revolutionary party of chuche in fact as well as in the name and is standing in the spotlight of the people of the world.

[Second speaker] You are right. In the world today, there are many political parties which are recording the modern history of struggle through their political activities. Among them, many parties are undergoing many vicissitudes.

However, the KWP has been victoriously advancing without knowing any vicissitudes. The KWP has always established policies independently in conformity with the situation in the country. In its relations with the parties in other countries, the KWP has firmly maintained independence. It has also set a good example for the world in leading the revolution and construction.

This is why various parties of (?comrades-in-arms) are paying attention to the activities of the KWP and the party leaders of many other countries are visiting Pyongyang to learn the experiences of the KWP.

[Third speaker] It is believed that the guidance of the great leader, who set forth a theory on building the party of a chuche-type for the first time in the world and has brilliantly embodied it, and the dear comrade leader, who has further developed and enriched the leader's theory on building the party in conformity with the demands of the new stage of the development of the revolution and has vigorously pushed ahead with the theory, constitutes an immortal contribution to stepping up the implementation of the anti-U.S. struggle for independence of our masses of people and the march toward independence of the progressive people of the world. Thank you very much.

NODONG SINMUN Editorial

[NODONG SINMUN 10 October editorial: "Let Us Endlessly Brighten the Glorious History of Struggle of Our Party"]

[Text] The KWP has a glorious and brilliant history of struggle embroidered with brilliant exploits and great victories.

Our party is now greeting the most rewarding period in its history. Never before has the party's militant might been so strengthened as now, and all people are firmly advancing toward a brilliant future following the revolutionary lines set forth by the sixth party congress.

In the midst of such a solemn atmosphere, we are greeting the significant 37th anniversary of the founding of the glorious KWP. Our party is the staff headquarters of the Korean revolution and organizer and encourager of all the victories that our people have achieved.

Our party is organizing and guiding all the struggles to hasten the complete victory of socialism and to imbue society with the chuche idea, shouldering full responsibility for the fate of the Korean revolution and our people.

Founding this great party which possesses invincible might and leadership is the greatest accomplishment of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The foundation of our party 37 years ago was the birth of a chuche-type party -- a new type of revolutionary party which has assumed the chuche idea as its guiding idea.

With the foundation of the party, our people came to have a revolutionary vanguard unit enabling us to consummate the cause of the chuche revolution and an epochal turning point was created in the Korean communist movement. From this point on, a new era shining with great changes and creations -- the glorious era of the glorious Workers Party -- has been unfolding in the annals of our country and in the development of the Korean revolution.

The founding of our party was a brilliant fruition of the grand plans and energetic leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who, from the day he embarked on the revolutionary road, has exerted every effort possible to provide a brilliant future for the Korean revolution.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who had earlier organized the down-with-imperialism league -- the first true communist revolutionary organization ever founded in our country, organized in the summer of 1930 the first chuche-type party organization consisting of a new generation of revolutionary core members he himself trained, laying a strong foundation for the founding of the party in the midst of the arduous flames of the anti-Japanese struggle.

Our party is one whose historic roots are firmly struck in such a tradition and exploits of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The source of the KWP's invincible might lies in the act of purely inheriting the traditions provided by the leader at the most glorious period when the revolutionary cause was first explored.

In the period since its foundation, our party has traversed a truly glorious course of struggle, while firmly defending its revolutionary traits. The history of our party is proud annals of the greatest party of the working class. This history shines as a history of the struggle for defending the cause of the leader by thoroughly embodying his revolutionary idea and traditions, as a heroic epic of the greatest revolutionary changes effected by pulling through the severe tempest of revolution.

In this course of struggle, an ever-lasting foundation enabling us to unwaveringly continue the life of our revolution has been provided. Because of this, the history of the KWP is so proud.

In the course of the victorious advance of the revolution and construction, our party has entered a new, high stage of development, and now an epochal change is being created in party work and party building.

Our party has strengthened the unity of its ranks in ideology and purpose and their revolutionary cohesion on the basis of the chuche idea and established a revolutionary method of work and discipline for firmly guaranteeing its leadership over the revolution and construction, thereby successfully accomplishing the historic cause of cementing the organizational and ideological basis of the party as firm as a rock.

The organizational and ideological basis of our party has become most solid and Powerful as all cadres and party members support the leadership of the party center with unshakable faith and absolute trust. The establishment of this firm basis is the most precious success gained in our party construction and the Korean communist movement.

In the course of going through thick and thin in the grim revolutionary struggle, our party has grown to be a powerful revolutionary party with a wealth of fighting experience and tested leadership ability.

Today, our party has become an experienced and tested party undertaking all work in the leader's style and possessing the outstanding art of leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, a vivacious party struggling and advancing full of vigor and zeal. There has been no such time in the history of our party as today when the party's might is being strengthened and its leadership authority is being enhanced. Our party's prominent leadership and greatness are giving our people the firm conviction that we can, without fail, build the paradise of socialism and communism on the fatherland, and they are inspiring us with boundless national dignity and pride.

The KWP is a great party which has performed imperishable feats for the country and people, for the times and history by leading the revolution and construction to victory beneath the unfurled revolutionary banner of the chuche idea.

The respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Our party enjoys the absolute support and trust of all the Korean people and the world's working class for its dedicated service to the fatherland and people, for imperishable feats for history and mankind.

Thirty-odd years are not a very long time in the history of a nation or the history of the communist movement. However, our party has accomplished much work during this period for the prosperity of the fatherland and the development of the times and attained great achievements which cannot be seen in the history of struggle of the working class.

Our party has resolutely defended and upheld the revolutionary idea of the great Comrade Kim Il-song and provided a precious ideological and theoretical wealth for the final victory of the revolutionary cause. This is our party's greatest feat.

The most important mission for the party of working class is to resolutely safeguard the revolutionary ideas created by the leader and to inherit them to the end under any circumstances. Our party's history has been embroidered with a proud course in which we have brilliantly performed this noble mission and in which we have endlessly enriched the treasure chest of the revolutionary ideology of the working class.

From the unshakable stand of glorifying generation after generation the ideological and theoretical achievements of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our party has clearly delineated a militant program and policy for standardizing the great leader's revolutionary idea and for winning final victory in this regard. Thanks to our party, the fundamentals and guiding principles of the chuche idea have been fully developed in depth and many new, unique theories have been expounded to embody the chuche idea in all domains of party construction, state construction and economic and cultural construction.

Today the chuche idea -- the revolutionary idea of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- is shining as the great guiding idea for our revolution and its power of attraction and renovative role are being remarkably enhanced. This cannot be imagined without our party's struggle to defend and protect the chuche idea.

The great exploits achieved by our party for the country and people, for the times and the revolution have brought about the great heyday of chuche Korea by effecting epochal changes in all fields of revolution and construction.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song turned our fatherland into a mighty socialist country of independence, self-reliance and self-defense by leading at many stages the difficult and complicated revolution with uncommon wisdom and energy without sleep or rest.

It is a firm will of our party to endlessly make shine the great chuche fatherland provided by the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, by devoting everything and to glorify its honor and dignity to the entire world.

As the guiding force of the revolution and construction, our party is widely leading work in all domains from state construction to economic construction, construction of the armed forces and cultural construction, grasping all work as a whole and not falling into stagnation or standstill. Thus, the state and social systems of our country are being further consolidated and the might of the self-supporting national economy is being strengthened in many ways. Education, science, culture and art are brilliantly developing.

The march of the speed battle is being accelerated on all fronts of socialist construction under the banner of the three revolutions and unprecedented upsurges are being effected in the struggle to attain the magnificent economic targets of the 1980's. This is a great demonstration of our party's energetic guidance and invincible might.

The KWP is greatly contributing to vigorously promoting the anti-imperialist cause of independence and the world revolution. It is the consistent principle of our party for becoming faithful both to the national and international duties of the working class and for strengthening friendship and unity with the world's revolutionary people who protect sovereignty. As an authoritative vanguard of the world working class and as a reliable standard-bearer of the anti-imperialist, independent forces, our party is now carrying out brisk external activities and is greatly contributing to solving pressing issues in the world political arena.

Our people have consolidated their confidence in the positive struggle and resolute revolutionary stand of our party for strengthening the anti-imperialist and anti-U S. struggle, for expanding and developing the Nonaligned Movement and for achieving unity in this movement. They anticipate a bright future when independence is achieved in the world.

All the revolutionary feats performed by the KWP in the course of its arduous revolutionary struggle are a priceless means to finally accomplish the revolutionary cause of chuche and the boundless prosperity of our era. This clearly shows in what manner the party of the working class, taking responsibility for the destiny and future path of the people, should safeguard and advance the revolutionary cause.

Since our party has greatly contributed to history and mankind, the people absolutely trust and support it. It has displayed its honor as the most authoritative and dignified revolutionary party in our era. The name of our party has become the banner of the struggle and victory of the people advancing along the road of independence and the symbol of the future of communism.

Because the KWP has firmly defended the foundation of the revolution provided by the leader and has brilliantly inherited his cause, it has grown and been strengthened into an invincible force and has attained great revolutionary achievements, going through grim trials.

A firm principle in the work of our party is to regard as a lasting treasure the tradition and achievements developed and attained when the party took historic root under the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's leadership, and to organize and plan all work based on this tradition and achievements. All the ideological and theoretical activities and practical struggles of our party are entirely for advancing our revolution only along the road pioneered by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and for completing it. This is precisely the basic feature of the activities of our party and is the greatness of the history of our party.

Never in the long history of the struggle of the working class has there been such a revolutionary party as ours which firmly maintains its revolutionary character and nature and is boundless faithful to the leader's cause, no matter what circumstances it may face. Since this great party is leading us, the bright prospects of our revolution and the lasting prosperity of the people are firmly guaranteed.

Today, we are assigned the weighty duty of further glorifying the history of the glorious struggle of our party and of accomplishing the revolutionary cause of chuche under the party's leadership. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: It is the sacred duty of our party members and workers to devotedly struggle to accomplish the revolutionary cause of chuche initially developed by the young Korean communists.

The most important question in the present era in accelerating our revolutionary cause under the party's leadership is to continuously and vigorously forge ahead with the struggle to implement the decisions of the Sixth KWP congress. The sixth party congress was a historic meeting which powerfully declared that our party has grown and been strengthened into a guiding force capable of accomplishing the cause of the Korean revolution. It was an immortal milestone which has provided momentum for bringing about a new change in imbuing society with the chuche idea and in achieving the fatherland's independent reunification.

The sixth party congress was brilliantly recorded in the history of our party as a meeting solving basic questions influencing the destiny of the party and the revolution in our country. The historic significance of this meeting in developing the contemporary era and the revolution has increased with each passing day.

While consolidating the successes attained in our struggle during the past 2 years since the party congress, we should thoroughly implement the decisions of the party congress and the revolutionary policies of our party for implementing these decisions. When all party members and workers resolutely struggle with burning loyalty to the party and the leader and with confidence in victory, following the revolutionary line set forth by the sixth party congress, they can make decisive progress in their struggle to expedite the complete victory of socialism and the fatherland's reunification and to accomplish the chuche cause.

For the entire party and all the people to hold the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in high esteem, and their thoroughgoing materialization of the leader's leadership, are important tasks for strengthening and developing our party and for accelerating the revolution and construction along the road indicated by the party congress. The history of the communist movement shows that only when we hold in high esteem the leader who has pioneered the revolutionary cause and has founded the party and only when we become faithful to the leader to the end can the party and the revolution be victorious without the slightest difficulties or twists and turns under any circumstances. By closely understanding this truth, we should continuously glorify the Korean communist movement to hold the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in high esteem and glorify the proud traditions of our party.

All party members and workers should permanently protect the chuche idea -- the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary idea -- as the leading idea of our party and should brilliantly inherit and develop the great achievements the leader has attained in the course of his revolutionary struggle over more than a half century.

The work of consolidating the organizational and ideological foundation of the party is one which we should continuously carry out throughout the entire period of building the party and which we further strengthen when the revolution develops. The decisive key to performing the weighty revolutionary duty assigned our party and to vigorously expediting the revolutionary cause is to firmly consolidate the foundation of the party. To more firmly consolidate the foundation of the party, all party members should hold the party center in high esteem with a firm revolutionary creed.

Party members are the revolutionary warriors of the party, who should have the same will forever with the party center on the road of the revolution and who should share life and death and destiny with it. It is the noble duty and fidelity of our party members to entirely entrust with their destiny the party, which has provided them with a precious political life and has brought up them into vanguard fighters of the revolution, to breathe with the party every moment they live and to struggle in their lifetime only for the party and the leader. With a firm political creed that they know only our party, all party members should absolutely trust and follow the party and should resolutely, under any circumstances, protect and defend and hold in high esteem the party without the slightest wavering.

We should firmly establish the revolutionary discipline of moving as one in accordance with party decisions and directives, should have a correct organizational view of the party and should further strengthen our party life. When all party members firmly unite around the party center and struggle with a revolutionary creed which never wavers, our party will be more firmly consolidated into ironclad militant ranks possessing victorious might and militant power.

Accelerating socialist construction under the banner of the three revolutions is an important requirement for implementing the magnificent plan of our party for expediting the final victory of the revolutionary cause of chuche.

Upholding the party's militant slogan for creating the speed of the 1980's, all party members and workers should continuously fan the flames of a great revolutionary upsurge on all fronts of socialist construction.

By thoroughly implementing the decisions of the historic Hamhung plenary meeting of the party Central Committee, all sectors of the people's economy should strengthen the country's economic might in various ways and fully demonstrate the might of our party as one which carries out the revolution and which struggles.

The history of our party is a glorious one which has advanced along a single victorious road of chuche indicated by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. All party members and workers should correctly understand how successfully this history has been pioneered and created under grim circumstances and how brilliantly it has continued under the leadership of our party center. With great pride in having the great party, they should endlessly glorify the proud history of the party.

Our revolution has reached the summit of the 1980's. The future path of our party and people strenuously advancing toward the future of communism promises only victory and glory.

Let us all vigorously struggle to achieve the final victory of the revolutonary cause, firmly uniting around the party Central Committee led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and upholding the revolutionary banner of the chuche idea!

Saying that they were holding the national meeting of the communications functionaries in the midst of a solemn atmosphere in which the entire working people in the nation, upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's report and historic policy speech at the Sixth KWP Congress and the militant tasks elucidated by him in his summing up at the plenum of the KWP Central Committee held in Hamhung, are engaged in a vigorous struggle to successfully implement this year's plans, to hasten the second 7-year plan and the 10 major prospective goals of socialist economic construction by raising high the flames of the movement to create the speed of the 1980's, the reporter and debators noted that the meeting will serve as an opportunity to make an epochal turning point in the communications work.

Communications are the national nerve system which quickly links ties in the party, state activities and in all domains of society such as politics, economics and culture.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: As we always say, communications are like the nerve system of the nation. Just as the nerve system plays an important role in man's activity, communications play an important function in state affairs.

By establishing a well-functioning communications system in the armed ranks and guerrilla base during the period of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle and by gaining precious experiences and accomplishment, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has laid a tenacious and deep foundation for our country's communications. On the basis of this, he set forth chuche-oriented and creative ideas for the building of a diversified and developed socialist communications system equipped with modern technology and equipment in the years that followed national liberation.

The speaker and the participants in the discussion pointed out that this has become a firm ideological and theoretical foundation of our party's communications policy and a reliable guarantee for the endless strengthening and development of our country's communications.

They pointed out: Even though he is so busy taking care of general party and state affairs, the great leader has given a total of 1,000-odd pieces of programmatic teachings to the communications sector by giving on-the-spot guidance to communications organizations and enterprises and has wisely led the struggle to embody the idea for building chuche-oriented socialist communications at every period and every stage of revolutionary development.

They pointed out: By nationalizing communications after liberation, the great leader helped make the people the owners of communications. He minutely delineated the position, mission, basic duty and principles for communication activities for building a new society. He gave great consideration to providing the material and technological foundation for communications. As soon as the U.S. imperialists ignited a fire of war on this land, he reorganized communications work into a wartime system and quickly guaranteed communication between the front and the rear and between the army and the people, thus helping contribute to the victory in the fatherland liberation war. After the war, he led the effort to establish an orderly communications network established from the capital down to the provinces, cities, counties and lis.

They also pointed out: By wisely leading the struggle to accomplish the task facing the communications sector after newly putting forward the task at the fourth party congress, the great leader helped bring about a new turn in all fields of communications, including wireless transmissions and television broadcasting.

The speaker and the participants in the discussion said that as in all sectors of revolution and construction, particularly in the 1970's, a great heyday was provided for communications work, too. They pointed out that using the national communications workers meeting convoked in October 1971 under the big care of the great leader and the glorious party center as momentum, an epoch-making turn was effected in the development of our country's communications.

They pointed out: Upholding the lofty intention of the great leader, the glorious party center has led so that a powerful industrial telephone network linking the state economic organizations and important plants and enterprises can be established, thereby helping establish the orderly industrial telephone system and agricultural intercom system in a short period of time. Thus, communications could serve the country better in socialist construction.

They also pointed out: The party center helped brilliantly carry out in just a few years the militant task for improving and strengthening the distribution of publications and propaganda work through broadcasting and for realizing the work of introducing television sets into the whole country in the not-too-distant future by further increasing the television broadcasting network put forth by the great leader at the fifth party congress. He helped create the miracle of establishing the microwave communications network -- the construction of which was expected to take several scores of years -- in 2 or 3 years. He has given all consideration so that the modernization of the communications facilities could be accelerated.

The speaker and the participants in the discussion pointed out: In the days during which the great leader's ideas for building the chuche-oriented socialist communications are embodied, the glorious party center has fostered the workers in the communications sector as chuche-type communist revolutionaries and carefully looked after their lives. Therefore, they pointed out, endless innovations have been created in the work of distributing publications and the work of communications and broadcasting. The material and technological foundation for the communications sector have been incomparably strengthened. Communications have been able to genuinely contribute to the performance of the three revolutions -- ideological, technological and cultural.

They stressed: All these proud successes achieved in the communications sector are the result of the wise leadership and heart-warming care of the great leader and the glorious party center, who put forth the most correct policies for the building of communications at every period of the revolutionary development with the shining rays of chuche and who are leading our communications workers along the single road to victory, while embracing our communications workers in benevolent bosoms.

They said: Reflecting the boundless loyalty of the participants in the meeting and all communications workers of our country, we extend the greatest glory and the warmest gratitude to the respected and beloved leader and the glorious party center.

The meeting pointed out: The communications sector is faced today with the heavy task of further consolidating the chuche character and the self-reliance of communications, modernizing communications and broadcasting facilities and of placing communications management activities on a new scientific and technological foundation.

The meeting pointed out: For this, by waging an energetic struggle to increase the capability of the telegraphic and telephonic facilities to the maximum by remodeling the facilities and to automate all telephones including the industrial telephones, telegraphic communications and telecommunications, until the end of the 1980's, we should increase the capability of the intracity telephone switching by 3 times, the rate of automatic telephone operations by 2.5 times, the capability of communications circuitry by 4.5 times between the capital and the provinces and by 4.4 times between the provinces and the counties. The meeting proposed measures to achieve this.

This meeting also pointed out: After equipping them with more modern rotary presses and transport means, we should further shorten the delivery time of papers and magazines by actively speeding up the mechanization and automation of mail service.

The meeting pointed out: The communications sector should repair and maintain the existing broadcasting facilities well, raising the broadcast output, intentionally rewiring facilities to use the existing wire radio broadcasting network, displaying a greater vitality, further raising the output of the wireless broadcasting, increasing the number of frequencies and improving the quality of broadcasting hookups.

The meeting pointed out: Along with this, we should accelereate the establishment of the broadcasting hookup network for the television correspondence college and speed up construction of a modern, international earth station for the communications satellite.

The meeting pointed out: We should strengthen the mass movement for technical innovations, enhance the role of scientists and technicians and actively accept (?up-to-date) scientific and technical successes. We should thoroughly establish the revolutionary system and order in communications activities and further raise the quality of communications in terms of service and culture, thus accomplishing the demands of the Taean work system.

The meeting said that raising the responsibility and role of leading functionaries is an important guarantee making it possible for us to brilliantly carry out the vast tasks facing the communications sector. The meeting pointed out that all leading functionaries should positively learn from the work method in the style of the great leader, thus actively organizing and mobilizing the masses into the work of accomplishing, through the forceful political work, bold plans and skillful command.

The meeting emphasized that the people's government organizations should improve their leadership over the works in the communications sector and foster more technicians and specialists in the communications sector and that the work to support this sector should be positively organized and carried out on a society-wide scale.

The meeting reiterated: By strengthening the ideological and indoctrination work among the communications workers, we should have them firmly prepared as enthusiastic chuche-type communist revolutionaries who resolutely defend and safeguard, politically and ideologically and with their lives, the party and the leader with endless loyalty to the great leader and the glorious party center.

The meeting pointed out: We should establish thoroughly the revolutionary spirit among the functionaries to accomplish to the end the great leader's teachings and the party's policies -- the embodiment of his teachings -- with their own might and with the spirit of absoluteness and unconditionality, while displaying boundless devotion.

The meeting pointed out: By vigorously pushing ahead with the struggle to create the speed of the 1980's, closely connecting the struggle with the movement to win the red flag of the three revolutions and with the movement to emulate the unsung heroes, we should have all functionaries in the communications sector responsibly carry out the assigned revolutionary tasks, as befitting the master, and endlessly create new miracles and innovations everwhere.

The meeting adopted a letter of pledge.

WORKERS STEP UP SPEED OF 80'S IN PRODUCTION

SK121529 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1506 GMT 12 Oct 82

[Text] Pyongyang, October 12 (KCNA) -- An energetic struggle for the creation of "the speed of the 80's" is under way in Korea. At the iron and steel works of the country engaged in a drive to attain the goal of 15 million tons of steel, the daily output in October has jumped 24.4 percent in steel, 27.9 percent in pig iron and 28.3 percent in rolled steel above the daily average in the first half of the year.

At the Kangson steel complex, the daily output of steel has gone up 52.9 percent and that of rolled steel 56.2 percent above the first half year's daily average.

Innovations have also been reported from the mining industry. The Komdok mining complex has hurled itself into the drive for lifting the annual non-ferrous metal output of the country to 1 million tons in two or three years to come and to 1.5 million tons by 1988. It has increased the construction speed 6 or 7 times in building its third dressing plant large in scale. There the construction of several shaft pits and a long-distance belt conveyor is being vigorously promoted.

A high speed has been developed in ore production and expansion of capacity at the non-ferrous metal mines in Yanggang and Changang Provinces. The ore output at the Unhung mine in September was double that in last year's comparable time. It is developing several new pits, one of which has been completed. A project is progressing at full speed at the March 5 youth mine for creating a large open-cast mine with a capacity of eight times the present one.

A new speed is being developed at the engineering plants, too. At the Yongsong machine complex, the cutting speed has jumped 5.7 times and the melting capacity 2.5 times as against the rated capacity. This is more than double the peak record since the commissioning of the plant. The Nagwon machine plant has manufactured a large scraped rock trans-shipping machine which can treat over 2,500 tons of scraped rock per hour in a 60 metre section and the June 4 rolling stock factory has boosted production 2.5 times.

The drive for creating "the speed of the 80's" is powerfully sweeping many construction sites of such works as the Tanchon smeltery, the Chongjin thermal power plant and the September 18 factory.

ASSEMBLY REPORT LINKS HUMAN RIGHTS, U.S. TROOPS

SK150820 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 14 Oct 82 p 2

[From the column "Central Tower"]

[Text] A parliamentarian team on diplomacy led by Yi Chong-chan, chairman of the Steering Committee of the National Assembly, which had visited the United States and Canada last July, submitted a relatively frank but critical report on 14 October. This report indicated that the issue of a U.S. troop withdrawal from South Korea is not likely to become an issue of argument again for the time being in light of the current atmosphere in the government, Congress and military circles of the United States. However, the report stressed that, considering the fact that there are still political forces in the United States keenly watching the moves in South Korea in connection with the human rights and Unification Church issues and, in particular, because of a negative image of South Korea caused by the Pak Tong-son bribery scandal, prudent efforts should be made so as not to provide any grounds for the U.S. troop withdrawal to become an issue again in the U.S. elections in 1984.

Saying that there have been cases in which excessive advertisements were placed in U.S. newspapers at enormous cost, the report stressed that such advertisements should be scrutinized for their effectiveness.

UNSUCCESSFUL PRC TRIP, KIM IL 'HOUSE ARREST' REPORTED

SK150508 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 14 Oct 82

[Text] Report by correspondent Chong Yong-sok from Tokyo--From Pyongyang, (?it is said) Kim Il-song's recent visit to Red China was not successful and that Kim Il is under house arrest because of his attempt to criticize this. According to this source, Kim Il-song, who recently visited Beijing to seek assistance in overcoming serious economic difficulties, was rebuffed in his attempt to obtain economic aid from Red China, although he was superfically well received. Red China refused to give this aid, using as an excuse a certain domestic situation.

When the moderate faction attempted to criticize Kim's unsuccessful visit to Red China, the Kim Chong-il faction quickly put Kim Il under house arrest to foil this attempt, and it has begun to take a tough line to suppress this critical force, reported the newspaper.

RETURNED FISHERMEN DESCRIBE DETENTION IN NORTH

[Text] Seoul, Oct. 15 (YONHAP) -- The thirty-five South Korean fishermen who had been detained in North Korea for over two months revealed Friday that they forcibly received intensive brainwashing from North Koreans designed to induce their loyalty to North Korea's chieftain Kim Il-song and his son Chong-il.

The fishermen of the Masan-Ho No 5, released by North Korea last Sept. 27, divulged details of their 78-day nightmare in the North at a news conference at Seoul Sejong Cultural Center. The fishing boat and its crew were taken captive by a North Korean patrol boat during peaceful fishing operations on the open seas some 170 kms norhteast of Ullung-do Island on July 13.

Kim Sun-tal, 70, the oldest of the fishermen, tearfully expressed joy over the refound privilege to spend the rest of his life in his free homeland. The fishermen explained that, exhausted from work the day before, they were sleeping on the morning of July 13 when an unidentified North Korean naval vessel approached their fishing boat. The North Korean vessel damaged the front right part of the fishing boat and eight North Korean soldiers armed with rifles, including two officers, boarded and forced the fishermen to steer the boat north.

They were detained in Chongjin port in North Hamgyong Province, 480 kms north of the island, until July 26, when they were taken to Wonsan.

Under threat by armed soldiers that they would not be sent back, they were forced to sign a North Korean document of admission that they had trespassed into North Korea's economic zone, Hong Jun-ho, skipper of the 114.5-ton boat, said. There was a difference, however, of about 72 kms between the point of capture and the location specified by the North Korean paper, Hong added.

Fishermen reported brainwashing sessions of over 11 hours daily on subjects such as socialism. They were also induced to write letters to Kim Il-song expressing their gratitude for his goodness to them and vowing their faithfulness to Kim and his son, the fishermen said.

They quoted a North Korean official as saying that because of preparations for war, the North Korean economy lags far behind that of the South. The North Koreans claimed, however, that they could communize the Korean Peninsula within three or four years, according to the freed fishermen. The North Koreans also instructed the crew to foment social instability by launching or abetting anti-government demonstrations.

North Korea abducted a total of 453 Korean fishing boats and 3,554 fishermen, but released all but 31 ships and 407 crewmen.

ADDITIONAL REPORTS ON OANA MEETING IN SEOUL

Chon Receives TASS Delegates

SK151332 Seoul YONHAP in English 0805 GMT 15 Oct 82

[Text] Seoul, Oct 15 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan Friday received a courtesy call from delegates to the second executive board meeting of the organization of Asia-Pacific News Agencies (OANA) held Oct. 13-15 in Seoul.

Included in the visit to Chongwadae, the presidential mansion, were chief delegates from BERNAMA of Malaysia, APP of Pakistan, KYODO of Japan, PTI of India, ANTARA of Indonesia, KPL of Laos, RSS of Nepal, PNA of the Philippines and TASS of the Soviet Union. Also present were Culture-Information Minister Yi Chin-hi and President-Publisher Kim Song-chin of YONHAP, which hosted the three-day conference of news agencies in the Asian-Pacific region.

Further on Chon Meeting

OW151255 Tokyo KYODO in English 1245 GMT 15 Oct 82

[Text] Seoul, Oct 15, KYODO -- President Chon Tu-hwan Friday welcomed Soviet journalists as the first Russians to visit his country since the division of the Korean Peninsula in 1948. South Korea has no diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, a close ally of North Korea.

Chon met the Russians, delegates from the Soviet news agency TASS, who took part in a meeting here of the Organization of Asia-Pacific News Agencies (OANA). During the 50-minute meeting at the presidential mansion, Chon said: "We are extremely pleased that you decided to visit South Korea, which presumably took a lot of courage."

OANA sources said the president apparently attached special significance to the visit of the TASS delegation when he specifically referred to it twice during the meeting which was also attended by delegates of several OANA members. Chon's gesture is regarded as a possible signal of Moscow's departure from its previous policy toward Seoul, the sources said.

In the past, the Soviet Union has declined South Korean invitations to visit Seoul for international sports events. South Korea officially opened its doors to communist countries for the first time in 1973 and has been seeking mutual recognition of the country by the Soviet Union and China, and North Korea by the United States and Japan. The Soviet Union has been also invited to send a delegation to Seoul for an Interparliamentary Union meeting next year and a team to compete in the 1988 summer Olympics, both to be held in the South Korean capital.

Diplomatic sources here said the Soviet Union may be playing a "South Korean card" in regards to North Korea. The sources noted that the Russian visit followed a trip to Pyongyang by Chinese strongman Deng Xiapoing in April and a visit to Beijing by North Korean President Kim Il-song in September.

Meeting Closes 15 Oct

SK150745 Seoul YONHAP in English 0325 GMT 15 Oct 82

[Text] Seoul, Oct 15 (YONHAP) -- The Organization of Asia-Pacific News Agencies (OANA) closed its second executive board meeting in Seoul Friday, pledging efforts for the progress of the regional body and its news exchange system, the ASIA-PACIFIC NEWS NETWORK (ANN).

During the three-day meeting, the board agreed to hold group training programs and workshops for both editorial staff and maintenance personnel to enable the more effective exchange of news.

Member agencies were encouraged to start a feature service to enrich their news exchange and to set up special desks to handle OANA news. They were also asked to continue meetings with end-users to increase the number of OANA items by the newspapers.

The board pledged to renew efforts to reduce the development bulletin service rate of 200 U.S. dollars per month for a 24-hour duplex circuit, and expressed regret that little progress had been made.

Delegates reaffirmed OANA's policy to strengthen its ties with the pool of news agencies of non-aligned countries, the Federation of Arab News Agencies, Pan-African News Agency, the National Information System Network (ASIN) and other similar multilateral news exchange associations to correct imbalances in the global flow of information and create a new information and communications order.

Members also reviewed and adopted the report of the Fifth General Assembly of OANA in Kuala Lumpur in November 1981, and those of the second technical group meeting in Beijing this March and the third technical group meeting held prior to the executive board conference.

Participants in the meeting expressed satisfaction on the decisions and commented that the scope of OANA's activities had surpassed their expectations. The board noted that the links between the 24 member agencies through ANN will be completed when RSS of Nepal sets up a link with the PRESS TRUST OF INDIA before the end of 1982. The board also noted the heightened use of OANA news materials by the Asian media, reflecting the growing awareness of the importance of regional cooperation.

The YONHAP news agency hosted the meeting, attended by all members of the board -- BERNAMA of Malaysia, APP of Pakistan, KYODO of Japan, PTI of India, ANTARA of Indonesia, KPL of Laos, IRNA of Iran, RSS of Nepal and YONHAP.

Delegates from PNA of the Philippines and TASS of the Soviet Union, which attended the third technical group meeting Oct. 11-12 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, participated in the conference as observers, along with delegates from UNESCO.

The next meeting of the board will be held in October next year, and OANA President Ahmad Mustapha Hassan, who is the general manager of BERNAMA, will consult with members of the board on the venue and date.

PRIME MINISTER'S ANSWERS IN ASSEMBLY VIEWED

SK102343 Seoul KYONGHYANG SINMUN in Korean 7 Oct 82 p 2

[From the column "Reporter's Bench"]

[Text] Reacting prudently, most of the executive members of the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] kept silent on the first round of answers by Prime Minister Kim Sang-hyop at the 6 October interpellation of the National Assembly, during which the prime minister maintained a moderate posture from start to finish, with both hands folded behind his back while answering, whereas members of the opposition parties, the Democratic Korea Party [DKP] and the Korea National Party [KNP], expressed their dissatisfaction.

On 7 October, Kim Yong-tae, spokesman for the DJP, commented: I was anxious about the prime minister. I thought he would approach the questions myopically because he is a scholar and because it was his first interpellation session at the National Assembly. Surprisingly, he answered with flexibility and maturity. Other executive members, however, remained silent.

DKP floor leader Yim Chong-ki said: His answers greatly disappointed not only the opposition parties, but also the people.

KNP floor leader Yi Tong-chin said that he would rate the prime minister after listening to him a little more. Vice floor leader of the KNP Pak Chae-uk expressed his dissatisfaction, saying that the prime minister's answers were not prepared beforehand.

Rep. Ho Kyong-ku, a disciple of the prime minister at the university who questioned the prime minister at the house interpellation, said: His answers lacked relevance. On top of that, his answers lacked sincerity, point and even truthfulness.

Rep. Kim Ki-su, member of the KNP, said: His difficult position is understandable, but his answers should have been more appealing.

Rep. Ha Sun-pong, one of the DJP interpellators, expressed dissatisfaction on behalf of the ruling party, saying: Unsatisfactory, but plain and passable. However, it is quite regrettable that the prime minister, responsible prime minister of the current cabinet as he is, has not mentioned the legitimacy of the Fifth Republic.

[Article from column "Tidbits"]

[Text] At a regular National Assembly session held on the afternoon of 6 October, National Assemblyman Ho Kyong-ku, the first speaker from the Democratic Korea Party [DKP], attacked Prime Minister Kim, saying: The people expected that the strong will of the present regime for reform plus the statesmanship, experience and wisdom of Prime Minister Kim Sang-hyop would produce a 100-percent pure alloy. However, they have failed to come in contact with even pig iron, much less an alloy.

After hurling a question about the Prime Minister's motives in making a decision to serve the government, National Assemblyman Ho, Prime Minister Kim's disciple while he worked at Koryo University, said: Is it all right to kill the press, the people's criticism of the government, the opposition parties and the National Assembly, provided that we adopt a single presidential tenure system? The desire to achieve democracy by having only the government and the ruling party become prominent is very dangerous.

Following this, National Assemblyman Kim Ki-su of the Korea National Party [KNP] said: We do not want a prime minister who does nothing but read the text of a presidential speech and sign government documents.

He then asked detailed questions of the prime minister and ministers concerned. This impelled him to ask the prime minister whether he intended to freeze farmers' debts -- an issue not included in the agenda.

National assemblyman Ha Sun-pong from the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] said: The work of correctly assisting the government in carrying out summit diplomacy should be a calm one. Our diplomatic activities are so boisterous from the start as to cause developing and advanced countries to become jealous and vigilant against us.

LAWMAKERS HIT INCONSISTENCY IN ECONOMIC MEASURES

SK121021 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 9 Oct 82 p 2

[From the column "Tidbits"]

[Text] At the plenary session of the National Assembly on 8 October -- the first day for the government interpellation sessions in the economic field -- legislators of the opposition camp, including Reps Cho Pyong-pong of the Korea National Party and Yi Yong-taek of the independent lawmakers' fraternity group, pointed out the lack of consistency in the recent series of economic measures. They continued calling the government to account from a political standpoint, saying: In reality, are these measures in accord with the ideology of the Fifth Republic?

Rep Chong Sun-tok of the Democratic Justice Party also made a caustically critical remark by noting: The tax reform bill is of no use even as an economic stimulus. It is feared that the reform will only impose a financial burden.

Rep Yi Hyong-pae of the Democratic Korea Party hit the government by saying: If a series of economic measures have been drafted at the hands of certain persons, what are you, the deputy prime minister and the finance minister for? In addition, he even launched a political offensive by unfolding a theory that there is no such place as a sanctuary, saying: It is regrettable if politics exist elsewhere rather than in the National Assembly, where politics should exist. Mentioning the name of a certain figure who was the chief economic adviser [of the president] in the era of the Yusin regime, he pointed out instances in which his economic measures failed. He even said that the man amassed a vast fortune illegally.
